For the first time in modern history, a teacher, Michael McFarren, who is football coach, is a part of the cast.

Others in the cast are Randolph A. Cole and Jeffrey Holt, the male leads; Jean Cunningham and Lisa Robinson, the female leads; Guy E. Flora, Maureen Flora, Charles Flora, Deborah Cole, Deborah Kelley;

Tickets are $2.25 for all floor seats, $1.50 for adult seats in the bleachers, $1 for pupil seats there.

Sewer contract wins approval

A contract to install a lift station and force main between West Broadway and Nichols avenue was authorized for McDaniel Construction Co., Amherst, by village council Tuesday night.

McDaniel will be paid $80,167.67.

Eugene C. Gerken, consulting sewer engineer, told the council that until the village furnishes Farmers Home Administration with data relating to execution of the sanitary sewer project, it cannot expect FHA approval to pay bills for sewer work performed by the village or its subcontractors.

The Norwalk office of FHA has complained for two years that the previous clerk, William G. Hamilton, refused or neglected to furnish the required data.

Obstructions to both storm and sanitary sewer conduits in the northeast section of the village will be subjected to an identification technique using pellets, the council agreed.

A request by Salvatore J. Glorioso to be reimbursed $35 for a sewer cleaning service was approved. Councilman D. Douglas Brumbach dissented. Glorioso argued that since he is already connected to the sewer interceptor, any blockage must be the fault of the village.

Marathon Oil Co., Findlay, was awarded a one year contract to supply petroleum products on its low bid of 38.5 cents a gallon for regular gasoline. Standard Oil Co. of Ohio, Cleveland, bid 40.5 cents. The Sohio representative at Tuesday's meeting complained that he was "used harshly by the former clerk when I asked to see the bids submitted a year ago." Mayor Elizabeth G. Paddock told him he may inspect any and all bids.

Sohio will remove its equipment, which has been used in the past by Marathon, and make appropriate arrangements with Marathon for any equipment not removed.

Hiring of a fourth full-time patrolman was tabled.

Bomb threat clears hall at Legion

A bomb threat forced evacuation of about 250 dancers at a country and western music program in Ehret-Parsel Post 447, American Legion, Tuesday night.

Russell Kamann, a bartender, said he received at 8:50 p. m. a telephone call from a female voice, which said, "There's a bomb going off between nine and 10 o'clock."

He asked her to repeat the message. She did so and then disconnected.

The building was promptly evacuated.

Bomb squad of the Richland county sheriff's department was summoned and Plymouth police, assisted by Shiloh police, joined sheriff's deputies in searching the building. Plymouth Fire department stood by with water and rescue vehicles and Route 603, which passes the building on the north side, was barricaded to traffic.

Shortly after 10:20 p. m police dispersed.

Boy hit by car

A five-year-old boy was severely injured Monday at 5:15 p. m. in Main street, Shiloh, when he was struck by a car.

The boy was taken to Willard Area hospital by ambulance. He is said to have a skull fracture, a fracture of the femur and a fracture of the collar bone.

Two villagers fined for theft

Two Plymouth residents were convicted of petty theft in Mansfield Municipal court last week.

Fire contract dispute composed by Shiloh

After hot dispute, Bloominggrove township trustees agreed Mar. 29 to execute a contract with Butler township by which fire protection there will be furnished by apparatus owned and men paid by Bloominggrove.

The contract calls for $200 for each fire, $75 for each grass fire, $50 for each ambulance call.

William Wilkins, the former Shelby football coach who is a trustee of Bloominggrove township, spoke for his side. He argued that if the lower charge is enforced, Butler would be obtaining fire protection without paying for the upkeep of the equipment.

He said Butler spends about $1,350 for fire protection each year whereas the Shiloh department, in which Bloominggrove is a participant, costs up to $9,000 a year.

There was some spirited disagreement with Wilkins's argument.

He was accused of "worshipping the almighty dollar instead of helping people".

Councilman Frank Cline, Shiloh, said "we have everything to lose and nothing to gain by not signing that contract."

After lengthy discussion, Wilkins dropped his opposition and the contract was approved.

Milk bottle's antique dates from 1878

By AUNT LIZ

One of our pet antiques probably should not be called one, but even today it is fast becoming a rarity. It's a common glass milk bottle.

It can't be much more than 30 years old. Does anyone know when milk in cartons began? I would venture to guess around the World War II period.

Delivering milk in bottles was a big thing in its day. The first glass bottle came into use about 1860, and an enterprising milk company in Brooklyn, N. Y., began delivering bottled milk in January of 1878. But widespread us of the bottle did not come about until a Harvey Thatcher patented his idea of a "Milk protector" for safe delivery in 1884.

Before that, milk was commonly delivered in bulk in large brass containers, some of them very decorative.

When we lived in Italy, we went early each morning with our little metal container to get fresh milk for the day. And that was in 1946, while at home everyone was getting it delivered to the back door in a nice clean bottle.

The dairy industry that we all take so much for granted has come a long way. Unfortunately, as it was found in Michigan during the bad storm a few weeks ago, it is simply too dependent on electricity. Cows simply could not get milked since they had no power, and I am willing to bet that very few knew how to milk by hand.

We all have a guy named Stephen Moulton Babcock to thank for his little invention. Even back in the 1890s, which is sometimes referred to as "the good old days", there were little problems like a farmer watering down the butterfat content of his milk when he sold it for cheese making. Steve came up with testing equipment that would show the exact butterfat content. So even today that is important.

You can see all the history of the dairy industry by just driving a few miles to Dearborn, to Greenfield Village, and it is interesting.

A CHEESE DISH IS ALways a nice change and especially during the Lenten season. When I was growing up, no meat was served on certain days, and if you want to quibble about it, some of those old church rulings were very beneficial and were for a darned good reason. They forced a varied diet of dairy things and fish that the human body needs. Go back to the old Jewish laws on food and take a look at what was prohibited and you will find that they were for a good reason, the best way to avoid common food poisoning. They probably did not know why, but they knew if you ate certain meat or fish, you got sick as a dog.

This recipe will keep you plump and happy and healthy. It is for a baked fondue, which is a little easier than the dipping kind and not so messy.

Butter two nine inch cake pans. Cut about 16 slices of bread. If you have real homemade bread, it is that much better. Trim the crusts, which can be saved for a tasty bread pudding or dressing. Cut the bread into strips about an inch wide and butter the top side, then cut quarter inch Swiss cheese into the same size.

Put a layer of bread over the bottom of the pan, and be sure it covers it all. Then put the cheese slices on top. Do two layers of this and over it all pour a mixture of two beaten eggs, a teaspoon of salt, a little freshly ground pepper and a cup and a half of light cream, all lightly whisked togethr.

Bake this at 375 degrees until it puffs and is golden, which should be just over a half hour.

If this is to be a party dish, then serve it with slices of cold baked ham. Otherwise bologna slices work really well.

Art inventory under way by Smithsonian

An inventory of all paintings by Americans before 1914 is being undertaken by the National Collection of Fine Arts of the Smithsonian Institute, Washington, D. C.

Persons who have paintings known to have been created before 1914 either by a known or an unknown artist are asked to complete a prescribed form as to the media, size, location of the painting and other details.

The forms are available in Plymouth from the mayor's office.

It is planned that gathering such information will take about five years and along with the recording of such paintings as part of the American heritage, the institute plans to use it as a study guide in the future of American art.

Red victor in opener

South Central pitchers issued nine passes and hit two batters, Trojan catchers were guilty of four passed balls and other players committed four errors Mar. 30 as Plymouth stormed from behind to win, 10 to 5, in the season's opener.

Mark Fidler opened on the hill for Plymouth and pitched splendidly, not allowing a hit in the four frames he worked.

Ahead 4 to 0 in the fifth, Plymouth gave up five runs with Mike Carty on the slab.

Carty whacked a two run homer in the sixth to regain the lead and Plymouth added four more in the seventh.

Brad Turson also had two RBIs.

Mounties stomp track squad

Shut out of 11 events, Plymouth's track and field squad took Mar. 30 what may have been its worst beating in history -- a 113 to 12 walloping by Mapleton there.

Barry Hamilton won the mile run in 5 mins. 17 secs., Ray Gullett placed second in the 120-yard high hurdles in 20.5 secs., Steve Shaver took third in the quarter mile run with a time of 1 min. 1.5 secs. and Gullett came back for third in the 180-yard low hurdles in 24.5 secs.

Cigs sold to pilot

Man and boy, Albert Marvin, Jr., has been in the grocery business since he got out of the military service after World War II.

And in those 30 years, he has seen and heard and smelled and felt more than his share of the vagaries of the trade.

But as of Monday, he's seen and heard and felt it all.

A customer for a package of cigarettes dropped in on him by helicopter, which he left standing in the parking lot while he purchased, and paid for, his gaspers. Then, with a wave of the hand and a "See ya, boys!" he flew off.

The pilot was engaged in a line checking assignment for International Telephone & Telegraph Corp.

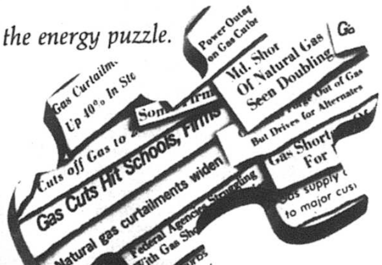
A piece of the energy puzzle.



The natural gas shortage is costing more than just higher gas bills.

First of all, let's not kid ourselves that the natural gas shortage isn't for real. It is very real.

And yes, we all know that gas bills are going up.

But the gas shortage has a price that doesn't show up on our gas bills. It's the cost of curtailment — rationing — of natural gas.

In 1975, U.S. industry couldn't get all the gas it needed. Companies that could afford to, switched to alternate fuels — at a cost of nearly three billion dollars more than their gas bill would have been! And who pays for that extra cost? All of us do. In the cost of the products those firms make.

And when companies cut back or shut down because they can't afford the cost of going to alternate fuels, there's an even higher price to pay. Lost jobs.

Higher product prices and higher unemployment.

They don't show up on the gas bill.

But they're a real cost of the gas shortage.

Look . . .

It's not so much where you say it, in this newspaper, anyway, as what you say and how well you say it.

Mrs. W. H. says, "I always get good response when I run ads in your paper." (She never spends more than $2 an issue.)

C. R. says, "The business I have developed over the years is in part because we used The Advertiser to serve our friends in Plymouth, old friends that we had before we started to advertise and new friends that we made after we started to advertise."

You don't need a whole page to tell your story. But you need to tell your story professionally.

Why not rely on a pro? We haven't many pretensions, but one is that we know how to write ad copy, whether to sell a barn, a baby carriage or a brougham (remember?).

Our cheapest rate is 20 words for $1.

You could hardly go wrong at that price.

You can reach us at 687-5511. We'll come a-runnin' to serve you, or we'll deal via Alexander Graham Bell.

Call now.
