

Plymouth Boy Writes from Pearl Harbor.

U. S. S. Alert, Pearl Harbor, T. H., February 28, 1917.
Mr. G. W. Reed, Plymouth, O.
Dear Friend George:—Some time has passed since I wrote you requesting a change of address to my subscription to the Advertiser. Since my time I would like to have you mail me my copy to the U. S. S. St. Louis, Pearl Harbor, T. H. Will be here for a while and then guess go to Bremerton, Washington, to have the machinery installed to fit the ship for a submarine tender.

Have been here just a year today, and during that time have had the pleasure of seeing a real honest-to-goodness volcano. It is certainly some sight, and if you ever think of coming out to the islands on a vacation you want to be sure and take it in. It is well worth the cost of the trip, and in addition there are numerous other places of interest.

Carroll Week a yearly event, has just passed, and while I would much rather see a good old county fair, still it was also interesting and instructive. The military parade was held on Washington's birthday and about ten thousand troops were in the parade. Quite a sight for one who has not seen it.

The navy yard is rapidly nearing completion and a new dry dock work is completed, the largest in the world. The new shops will be open and there are accommodations for three hundred in an emergency. A fine building and very well equipped. At present the mechanics are cared for at the department hospital, an army institution.

See by the paper that Russell Campbell has taken over the grocery. When you see him, tell the tall drink of water, that I often wonder about the old bunch and that I wish him success in his venture, also any others that may have gone in business.

Today finds me well and happy, with six months to do in this enlistment. Will probably stay out for a couple of months upon the expiration of this enlistment and then back again. A retirement bill went into effect last August that makes it possible for me to retire with twenty years service with $71.00 per month. Not so bad, eh? With sixteen years I can quit with about $50 per month. Guess I will stick around. If any one around the old home town is thinking of coming into the government service be sure to tip them off to come into the navy. Caution them about the marine corps and army. Both are good branches and need more money and quicker advancement in the navy.

Well, George, I guess this will be about all for this time. Hope you are all well and prosperity is yours. Be sure to remember me to Mrs. Derringer and other friends that I may have here.

Very truly yours,
FRANK L. BEVIER,
Chief Pharmacist Mate, U. S. Navy.

Twentieth Century Circle.

Mrs. Searle entertained the Twentieth Century Circle March 5th with twenty-one members present, and the following program was given:

Wealth of Alaskan Waters, Miss Rogers.
Military Courtesy, Mrs. Luella Wilson.
Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

President, Mrs. Ladotska Waite.
First Vice President, Mrs. Luella Wilson.
Second Vice President, Mrs. Anna Walker.
Secretary, Mrs. Jean Seville.
Treasurer, Mrs. Edith Southard.

After adjournment the hostess supplied her guests with the wherewithal for enjoying the sweetest of all drinks, toasted almonds, and a delightful social hour was spent before the members departed.

Time to Apply Lime.

The best time to apply lime is probably during the preparation for seed bed for corn. The thorough cultivation of this crop mixes the lime with the upper soil. Lime should not be applied to the surface and immediately plowed in, in connection with manure or fertilizer. It is better to plow the manure under and put the lime on top of the soil. In case the manure is desired for the spring, the lime should be worked into the soil at least two weeks previous to the application of manure. Likewise it is well to plow in some lime previous to commercial fertilizers. Further information on the liming of soil may be obtained from a bulletin on this subject which will be sent on application to the Agricultural College Extension Service, Columbus.

Ripley Items.

Mrs. Minnie Dewitt was a recent guest of relatives in Fostoria, Ohio. D. B. Catlin was a week-end guest of his brother and sister last week. Albert Reber and brother Will of Shelby, were guests of the Ripley literary last Friday night.

The W. F. M. S. was in all day session at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Stillman, a week ago Thursday.

S. E. Gleason and family were last Sunday guests of his daughter, Mrs. G. H. Maynard and husband, in Greenview.

Entertainment this Friday eve at the Delphi church given by the Willing Workers' class of the M. E. Sunday School of North Fairfield.

Mr. Stahl of Pennsylvania, was an over Sunday guest at the G. A. Hasinger home. He will work the coming summer for Bruce Snyder on the farm.

H. H. Sibbett will read the part of the will of the late Mary A. Sibbett pertaining to her gifts to the church and Missionary Society, next Sunday at the regular service.

The Ripley literary after a series of meetings fraught with good interest closed last Friday evening with the next October. Supply Superintendent Minnie, District Superintendents Arnold and Sherman, May or Dawson of Chicago, R. R. Robertson of Norwalk, Messrs. Willig and L. E. Larner, and Rev. DeWitt appeared on various programs.

Sarah E. Willis, daughter of Abram and Hannah Willis, died at her home south of Ripley Center Tuesday morning, March 13, 1917, aged 77 years. She was born in Herkimer county, N. Y., and when a child came with her parents to the village of Huron, and later moved to Bronson township, Huron county, then to Branch county, Mich., and 47 years ago settled in Ripley, where she spent the remainder of her life. She followed the work of school teaching and afterwards made her home with her youngest brother, George, with whom she lived until the end. Miss Willis led a consistent christian life and early joined the Methodist church. D. D. Spivey was always concerned in the affairs of the church. Being well known to the older preachers of that denomination, he was called to read the conference appointments. Her pastor, Rev. A. R. Brown, conducted the services at the home, assisted by the blacksmith church, interment in Edwards Grove cemetery.

Obituary.

Nellie M. Shaw was born in Orono, Maine, March 11, 1841. She was united in marriage to Joseph Randall June 12, 1862. This union was blessed with three children, two of whom died in infancy. The oldest son, Harry, preceded her in death, Sept. 13, 1893.

Mrs. Randall came with her family to Plymouth, Ohio, where they have resided ever since. She has been an invalid for several years, but six weeks ago she fell and sustained a broken hip, owing to her weakened condition resulted in her death March 17, 1917.

She was a home-loving person, always looking after the welfare of her family. She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church for a great many years. She leaves to her husband and husband and daughter by marriage.

Funeral services were conducted at the family home Monday, by the Rev. C. F. Mott. The body was laid to rest in Greenlawn cemetery.

Ply Time Will Soon Be Here.

Flie time is coming; unlimber the swatters, plug the holes in the screen doors before they are hung, see that the karbage can lid fits tightly and map out the spring clean-up work to include plans for cremating rubbish heaps and making fly nests uninhabitable.

"Why is it?" is a harder question to answer than "Why is a hen?" There is no excuse for the existence of the pesky pest. Swat him. Swat them. Swat them until they are the main army will never come up. Flies multiply more rapidly than all the adding machines and expert accountants in the universe. A healthy, pugnacious fly can cause you more annoyance than a nocturnal howling dog or yowling cat, you would stand either of them very long. The cute little habit of the fly has of wading in the cesspool, feasting on carrion and getting up to his knees in filth, then flitting in to skate through the butter and two-step on the bread, then wipe his feet on baby's tender lips and leave the scars of a dozen deadly germs there, makes him a deadly enemy to health and happiness.

To Rent—Modern home in the south part of town. Bath, hot and cold water and other conveniences. Enquire at this office.

Methodist Notes.

The protracted meetings began on Tuesday evening and the pastor has been preaching every night. Services will also be held on Saturday evening. The theme Sunday morning will be, Jesus Christ the Savior, and the theme in the evening will be, Christianity, the World Religion. These meetings are for everybody and everybody is invited. The meetings continue every night next week with the exception of Monday night. It is reasonable to suppose that every one has some interest in religion. We suggest that you let it be manifested by attending these meetings.

Presbyterian Church.

The Adult Men's Bible class entertained the Margaret Reed class on Wednesday evening, in the church parlor. The ladies were not allowed to even take a peep into the dining room till luncheon was announced ready. The refreshments were abundant and everything systematically carried out to the delight and satisfaction of every one present. Remarks by Rev. Helmuth and officers of each class followed which were well received. The menu cards were unique. The ladies feel that it will be hard for them to compete with such royal entertainers in the future. The winning side in the auto C. E. race under the leadership of Mr. Phoenix, will be captured by the losing side on this Friday evening. The refreshments were abundant and everything systematically carried out to the delight and satisfaction of every one present. Remarks by Rev. Helmuth and officers of each class followed which were well received. The menu cards were unique. The ladies feel that it will be hard for them to compete with such royal entertainers in the future.

Lutheran Church.

Worship and preaching service on Lord's Day morning. Subject of sermon: Why do people not believe the truth? There will be a service on Sunday evening at which the Rev. M. Edwin Thomas of Guntur, India, will speak. Rev. Thomas has been in India for a number of years. He is a brother of Miss Jessie Thomas, who formerly taught school in this place. He was a member of our church in Wooster, when the pastor of this church was pastor there. He is one of our very own and we should esteem it a privilege and pleasure to hear him. The lack of interest in God's great work, Missions is due to lack of knowledge of it, and the best way to know the work is to know the men on the field and get the truth from them. Luther League meeting at 5:30. Subject: "Compromises of Cowardice." (Plate). Sunday School at 9:30. The social given at the church by the Alpha class on Tuesday evening was a very pleasant affair. It was quite well attended and every body was happy and had a good time.

Did You Lose Any Money?

Rev. C. G. Smith is in receipt of the following from a Mansfield merchant and turned the same over to the Advertiser for publicity:

"On Tuesday morning following Christmas when on my way to work, I found in the street a purse containing money. I advertised the find in the Mansfield News but failed to find an owner. It occurred to me that some one from an adjoining town may have been the loser, and decided to use this method in an effort to find the party. Our druggist for me to announce the find to your congregation. Should any one be interested, write phone or call or E. A. Leabach, 53 Buckingham street, Mansfield, O."

Richland County Women to Meet.

A meeting of the women of Richland county will be held at Mansfield Friday, March 23, in the lecture room of the Baptist church, corner Park and Main streets, at 1:30 p. m. to complete the county organization of woman's work for state wide prohibition campaign. All women who are interested from parts of the county are invited to be present. By order of Mrs. Florence D. Richard, Director of Women's Work, Ohio Dry Federation, Columbus, O. FRANCES WAITE LETTER, Temporary Chairman.

Oberlin Business College Items.

The Spring Term at the Oberlin Business College will begin April 2, 1917. This school has come to occupy by a great place in the education of young men and women of this community for business and office positions and for teaching commercial branches in high schools and business colleges all over the country. The reputation for thorough work which it has gained brings so many calls for graduates that only a small part of them can be filled. It was the first business college in Ohio to be placed upon the Accredited List by the State Department of Public Instruction. Those who go to Oberlin for business training have very unusual advantages.

Public Sale.

Having sold my home and leaving town, I, the undersigned, will offer at auction on Tuesday, the 27th day of March, 1917, at 1:30 o'clock, on the premises, the following personal property, to-wit: 3 oak bedsteads, 1 iron bedstead and springs, 1 three-quarter size iron bed, springs and mattress, 15 straight chairs, 3 oak wash stands, 1 wicker rocker, 2 oak rockers, 1 Morris chair, 1 patent rocker, 1 oak bureau, 1 antique book shelf, 2 kitchen tables, 1 couch, 1 oak library table, 1 piano and stool, 1 mission hall seat, 2 stands, 1 two burner gas heating stove, 1 sideboard, 1 dining table, 1 6 burner cook stove, one 12 rug and carpets, pictures and mirrors; string of sleigh bells, 10-gallon meat jar, other jars and crocks, all sizes, Mason jars and jugs, grindstone, 270 feet 1 inch rope and blocks, other blocks and pulleys, cast hook, log chains, boring machine, lawn mower, foot saw, forks, shovels, 1 paper hanger's outfit, one 1-horse power Marine Engine, 1 double harpoon, hay fork, including Myers' car, rope and pulleys. Terms of sale—cash. Mrs. D. E. NIXON, Geo. Cole, Auctioneer.

CONSTIPATION AN UNNECESSARY EVIL.

Taking cathartics is simply a habit, a habit brought about through the in-correct use of that very unnecessary evil, constipation. Why not break away from cathartics? You can if you wish. Cathartics tear the bowels and simply complete your task more and more all the time. Isn't it true? You know it is. A small dose answers very nicely at first, but takes more and more as necessary, which in the course of time loses its effect.

The up-to-date method is entirely new and safe. Instead of hurting the bowels this new method tones them up. It works in an entirely different manner from cathartics and laxatives. It does its work through the stomach. Most all bowel trouble is caused by indigestible food. Permitting this new method to take care of the food as soon as it enters the stomach. Permitting thoroughly digest every particle of food, thereby preventing undigested, bowel-clogging stuff entering the bowels.

Why not try this new method and cure your trouble. Ask your druggist for a small test packet. It will cost you twenty-five cents and will pay for a week or more of the Neuro Pharmaceutical Company, Wapakoneta, Ohio.

AGED FARMER

Made Strong and Well by Vinol
This letter proves there is nothing equal to Vinol to create strength for weak, run-down conditions.
Vestal Centre, N. Y.—"I am a farmer 74 years of age and got into a weak, run-down condition as a result of the Grippe. Our druggist suggested Vinol to build me up, and I noticed an improvement soon after taking it, and the weakness of my strength can now do a good day's work. My wife has also taken Vinol for a run-down condition with splendid results."

WOMAN WITH PERFECT HEALTH

What Came From Reading a Pinkham Advertisement.

THIS is a tale about a young man who came from England to the wilderness of America to kill an enemy. At the beginning of his residence among the simple people of the frontier his heart was full of bitterness and sorrow. In the end the whole course of his life is altered. You will enjoy reading this story of brave, strong, faithful men and women.

CHAPTER I

The Wilderness.

April—1811! Up the valleys of the South spurs, trembling from the farther South, along the river lowlands of Kentucky and up the sides of the steep, pebbly hills on the Indiana shore. First to come, like the wildflowers in a straggling of peace, the blossoms of the wild plum flung out diaphanous draperies against the monochromes of the hills and the dark greenness of the pine woods. Then, in the open spaces and around the gray log cabins on the heights, the peach trees flushed pink in the warm kisses of the sun. The next grasses were starred in patches by multitudes of blue, the blue-eyed grass, each tiny flower as simple and as wonderful as a little child.

Deep in a crevise of the limestone strata that sank to form the bed of Little Indian creek, hidden from the warmth and light of the April morning, there lay a coil of what might have been mistaken for a rope—a coil whose every fold was thick as a man's wrist, mottled with spots of dull black, yellow-finged.

Along the path through the forest there came striding a tall youth, in rugged garments, a little bundle slung at the end of a staff over his shoulder. His fair skin was deeply burned by the sun and his blue eyes were veiled in anxious thought. He had pursued another man over sea and through forest wilderness with the intention of killing that man if he should overtake him.

Now, the young man's intention was blunted. Months before it had seemed the one right and just thing that another man should die at his hands. This other man had caused the legal murder of the youth's father. But to take justice into one's own hands, even on such provocation as this, is an act unseemly and dreadful; and weeks of meditation had succeeded only in painting it a thing more despicable.

In the fragment that was left of the original error he cried out in an agony of mind. A bounding universe shouted aloud for joy of victory over death. Life rose and pressed her triumphant feet on the prone shoulders of her weaker brother, Death. For the struggle between Life and Death is eternal. Life lives by pressing her triumphant feet on the prone shoulders of her weaker brother, Death. For the struggle between Life and Death is eternal. Life lives by pressing her triumphant feet on the prone shoulders of her weaker brother, Death.

"You live in Corydon, sir?" asked the young man. "I'd like to find work there—a weaver by trade."

"You are a weaver by trade?" asked the old gentleman, peering at him from one side in dubious refection. "Small chance for a weaver, my lad. He answered, 'for every cabin has a loom to its own. But ye'll find something for ye.'"

His words froze on his lips as a tawny mottled length flowed out from the crevice, built itself up with a quivering tawny tint, and, as if by magic, died. But with a lightning quickness, the young man had seized his oaken staff from the ground.

"Dost thou know thy father?" he cried; and on the words the cudgel whirled above his shoulders and struck the venomous head like a thunderbolt.

The girl drew a deep breath; and the young man suddenly realized that he was still standing by to his side. He released her as though she crumpled his fingers; and his face crimsoned with shame.

"Dost you pardon?" he said awkwardly. "I'm sorry I was so rough. But the girl's eyes shone like stars. 'Am not thinking of roughness," she said tranquilly. "I'm just—thankful." "About that story of yours, Colonel?" O'Bannon said. "Ye've clovered it up while you make your trip to Louisiana, aren't ye? Well, suppose you put this modest 'Oh, it was in Indiana' in it, and it earns a dollar or two while ye're

"But it was not so much, the friendliness of the old gentleman's voice that made the young man smile, as it was the smile that lighted up the eyes of the girl. Her eyes had made a silken frame about her pink cheeks and smiling lips; her eyes—sapphire blue and clear as the sky—danced with a smile of divine friendliness. And then, too, she crinkled her eyelids all around them. An iron image would have responded to that laughing challenge."

"The youth said 'Good morning.' 'Bound for Corydon?' Inquired the old gentleman affably. His undoubted years were somehow discounted by an almost divine quickness of glance, and his hobbling gait, his whole appearance suggested a Solomon among cock-sparrows hopping along a pump handle."

"Bound for Corydon?" "Yes, am I on the right track?" "Fully the path on the town's a bit of mile ahead of ye. If ye will follow the sorrowful old fellow's tracks, ye can't build a bit of a fire to save his soul, ye'll not push on till we've got the tinder going. And he thrust his hand into the young man's hands with an air of comical dismay."

"Oh, do!" said the girl. "Father's so stupid."

The young man took the flint and steel with a laugh and knelt down to obey. He rearranged the twigs with a bit of care, struck a spark into the tinder and upon it he blew breathless morn; then a tiny flame crept up the pile of brush and the three looked at one another in triumph.

"You had a fire like a woodman," observed the girl admiringly, though of course you aren't one."

He finished, for he knew that his rags were an unusual dress for the backwoodsman of the forest; and the girl added quickly, "Because you aren't carrying a rifle."

"No, I'm no woodsman," he admitted gratefully for her tact, "but I've come a great distance through the woods and have had to learn a few of their ways."

"Ye've come a long way?" asked the old gentleman. "Till ye'll best be sittin' down with us for a bit. Sure, the town will wait."

"Oh, do!" added the girl impulsively. "You should about the woods. Have you seen any Indians?" "I've seen one come out here today for fear one would pounce on us!" She laughed a ripple more musical than that of the brook. "Ye can't see 'em, but I've seen 'em Amazin' habit beneath her, settled her on the ledge of limestone rock. 'Tell us about Indians,' she went on calmly. 'We can't see 'em, but I've seen 'em. New Orleans and haven't seen a single real paint-and-feathers one yet. Ooh!' she laughed in mock terror."

The fire crackled merrily up the face of the rock and the girl's face swept into the crevice of the stone. The dusky thing lying within stirred pleasantly.

The mottled rope within the crevice felt the warmth of the fire, stirred, uncoiled and gilded noiselessly toward the young man.

"You live in Corydon, sir?" asked the young man. "I'd like to find work there—a weaver by trade."

"You are a weaver by trade?" asked the old gentleman, peering at him from one side in dubious refection. "Small chance for a weaver, my lad. He answered, 'for every cabin has a loom to its own. But ye'll find something for ye.'"

"The young man laughed. 'They stop to rattle here, thank God!'

"My name is Patrice O'Bannon," he said, "and proud I'll be to know yours."

"David Larrence," was the answer. "David's already called me by mine," said the girl, "I'm Tolnetto."

David blushed faintly. "I—there wasn't time—I had heard your father call you by name—"

"Never mind," laughed the girl. "I owe you my life—names don't matter now."

"You'll honor me by being my guest, sir," went on Mr. O'Bannon. "Sure, the fairies set ye here at this minute."

"Thank you, no," he said, "but if you can help me to find work—"

"Ho, hum!" said the little old gentleman irrelevantly. "Ye must find wurk—but first tell me, have ye eaten a Hoosier midday meal yet?"

"No, I haven't," said the young man. "I've eaten a Hoosier midday meal yet?"

"No, I haven't," said the young man. "I've eaten a Hoosier midday meal yet?"

"No, I haven't," said the young man. "I've eaten a Hoosier midday meal yet?"

"No, I haven't," said the young man. "I've eaten a Hoosier midday meal yet?"

"He leaned forward and whispered something in the colonel's ear."

"Mr. O'Bannon promises to be responsible for you, Mr. Larrence. Do you think you can take care of the business?"

"But," David cried, overwhelmed, "you know nothing about me, Major Posey! Why—why—how can you trust a stranger with such a responsibility?"

"Oh, as for that," the major answered, "you will be watched like a hawk by Mr. O'Bannon. For the matter of that, Mr. Larrence, I think I'm a fair judge of me, myself; and I'll take Mr. O'Bannon's opinion of you at first glance. No need to blush—we say what we think, hereabouts."

David could only stammer his gratitude.

"Very well, then, I'll give Mr. O'Bannon the key at once." He drew out an enormous affair of iron and handed it smilingly to David's sponsor.

"That's a fine old-fashioned dinner," said O'Bannon, and he produced a Spanish dollar, which the tavern keeper took with a nod. He waved David and the young man to the table. The dishes were heaped with roast chicken and wild duck. There were baked buffalo fish and cornbread, and there were Mr. O'Bannon's own specialties, a word a bottle of Madeira was added. When David had finished he rose to take his departure with O'Bannon.

"I'll give Mr. O'Bannon the key at once." He drew out an enormous affair of iron and handed it smilingly to David's sponsor.

"That's a fine old-fashioned dinner," said O'Bannon, and he produced a Spanish dollar, which the tavern keeper took with a nod. He waved David and the young man to the table. house, and called the men of the country in that heroic company known as 'Spencer's Yellow Jackets.' William Henry Harrison, the young governor of the territory, had laid out his farm of 800 acres on the edge of the village, and there planted his orchard of green plums and cherries; and he hit her, to Corydon, came his friend, Colonel Thomas Posey, proud of the title won in the war with England thirty years before, but willing to serve again as a private should a second war arise.

As the O'Bannons and their new friend entered Corydon, David caught sight of a young man, tall as himself, striding away down one of the narrow village lanes. He stiffened like a dog that sees his foe.

"Who is that?" he asked sharply. "That's Doctor Elliott of Louisville. He comes here once a week on his sorrel mare."

"Oh!" exclaimed David, relieved. How absurd of him to suppose that in this remote spot he should meet the one human being he counted an enemy!

Tolnetto added no further word of comment on the young doctor; for although Elliott had been paying her for a few years, but had not yet decided just what she thought of him.

Mr. O'Bannon drew David into Spencer's tavern and spoke a word to the proprietor.

"They will take care of you here tonight," he said, "and tomorrow I'll come over and help you open up Colored Posey's shop. And now, young man, I wish you a good day and good luck. Tolnetto and I live at the other end of the village."

From the door of the inn David watched his quiet figure and that of his daughter till they disappeared from his view. A negro boy carrying pails of water came up to the tavern door. David could not resist asking him the meaning of a word he had heard for the first time that day:

"Boy, what is a 'Hoosier'?" "The boy set down his pails and scratched his head in an attempt to answer with exactness.

"Cap'n," he said finally, "I see all sorts of quality in my day; but first 'an' las' these yere gemen wut live here in Indliany an' goes by the name of 'Hoosiers' is de bestenes' lot' o' dem; and dey's got mo' quality blood in 'em 'n' de no't'n gemen, an' dey's got mo' "

ANY CORN LIFTS OUT, DOESN'T HURT A BIT!

Sore corns, hard corns, soft corns or any kind of a corn, can harmlessly be lifted right out with the fingers if you use the corn lifter. It is made of freestone, says a Cincinnati authority.

For little cost one can get a small bottle of freestone at any drug store, which will positively rid one of every corn or callus without pain.

This simple drug dries the moment it is applied and does not even irritate the surrounding skin while applying it on afterwards.

This announcement will interest many of our readers. If your druggist hasn't any freestone left in his store to get a small bottle for you from his wholesale drug house—adv.

"Don't Move, Tolnetto." He Cried.

"I thought not. We'll go up to Conroy's tavern and see what he can give us before ye begin to talk about seeing any Indians."

And with a last grimace at the tangled thing that lay in the grass, he flung his arm in David's, and bobbing ridiculously along, led him through the woods.

Tolnetto walked on the other side. David moved in a happy dream. They reached the door of Conroy's tavern, east of the village—a square, low house of stone, two feet thick in the walls and with the most picturesque of small-paneled windows, vine-curved and white.

O'Bannon accompanying his jerky progress with a flow of eloquence on the advantages of Corydon, where, it seemed, he and his daughter had recently arrived from New Orleans.

"Hurrah," he exclaimed as they entered the low doorway. Here's Colonel Posey; he'll find something for you to do, he says."

A gentleman with hand outstretched to David's companion came forward. "A good morning to you, Mr. O'Bannon," he cried brightly.

A fine, compelling figure of a man was Colonel Thomas Posey, as he towered over little Mr. O'Bannon, who stood looking up at him with a side-ways cock of the head. Splendidly he filled his butt-rimmed, light blue army coat, with its huge collar reaching up to his ears. His big shoulder cape and his cocked hat, with its black and white cockade lay on a bench where he had tossed them. He looked the Virginia gentleman he was by birth.

"This is Mr. Larrence," he said. "Dost he know England and now come to try his fortunes in the American states. I am no herald to inquire of men's pedigrees; it suffices me if I know their virtues. Colonel Posey; if this young man's face be no false witness, his virtues better apparel his mind than England has appeared his body."

"Still quoting Sir Philip, Mr. O'Bannon? No doubt you're right. What can we do for you, Mr. Larrence?" "Mr. O'Bannon tells me that you can perhaps give me some work to do, Colonel Posey. Is it true?" "Colonel Posey is true again at the young man's expense."

Indestructible roads are what the people want now. The old water-logged road was an improvement over the loose stone road just as it was an improvement over the dirt road. Brick and concrete are the only kinds of roads to put down on the main arteries of travel. They are cheaper.

Congress at the coming extra session will be asked to pass a law granting the railroads new increased freight and passenger rates to reimburse them for the increased wages which they will pay under the Adamson eight hour law, prominent rail road heads and officials of the interstate commerce commission say.

Possibly the largest tax ever collected in this county under the inheritance tax law from an individual estate was $1612.60 recently paid into the office of Auditor Bloomer from the estate of Susan Jones, of Sherman township. This lady was reported as the richest resident of Sherman township and possibly the wealthiest woman in Huron county.

Dealers have been warned by State Inspector of Weights and Measures Samuel Lindsey not to sell onion sets in liquid measures. The law decrees that they either must be sold by weight, or by dry measure. Onion sets weigh 28 pounds to the bushel. A liquid quart contains 57.75 cubic inches while there are 67.2 cubic inches in a dry quart. Farmers buying these sets by the liquor quart lost 14 per cent of what rightfully belonged to them.

Nearly 200 acres of land east of Olderman's creek in the township of Erie county, has been sold to Oberlin College by the executor of James M. Black, for $23,173. It is understood that Black is now being used as a site for an agricultural college or a biological laboratory similar to the one maintained by Ohio University at Coshocton, Ohio. Positive information as to the exact use the land purchased by Oberlin College has not been divulged. Much of the land purchased is marshy, which, however, it is said, can be easily drained, and when reclaimed, will be very productive.

Footstuffs in the United States are said by the Bureau of Labor and Statistics, to have advanced 19 per cent during the year ended on January 15, 1917. However to obtain this average, abnormal and temporary advances in certain articles had to be included. The year was the average one, even at a decade of high prices, and it is quite certain not to size up with the average of the next ten years, simply because footstuffs will not put up with a repetition of the manipulation that made abnormal advances possible. Coming footstuffs promises to be a rather risky business in the future.

Unknown as Ohio interscholastic basketball title claimants less than three weeks ago, the Huron high school quintet dark-horred through the championship Ohio Western States annual tournament at Delaware Saturday. Davton Stivers, the last of the sixty-six survivors of the tournament, was put out of the way by a score of 21-15 in the hardest fought and most brilliant game played during the tourney. Last year's champions and conquerors of Marietta were unable to solve the Slyker-Lange-Detrick passwork, and though giving a stubborn resistance, were outplayed as well as outscored by the winning Huron aggregation.

March is a blustery, treacherous month, to make the best of it; and, yet, we oftentimes are given very favorable weather in this month. Fifty or more years ago, farmers made it a rule to sow their oats in the last week in March. Early potatoes were planted even before that date. Corn was put in the ground not later than the tenth of May. Wheat harvest was over by July 1st. But the clearing away of the forests changed the climatic conditions of the country, until today it is a problem to raise a crop of any sort, without the aid of the experiment stations and farm experts thrown in. What the conditions will be in another fifty years, one can only guess at. Of course, we will not be here to witness the changes that will be in evidence in those years to come. So cheer up.

It May Be Your Daughter.

Branded by the hand that should have protected and cared for her, a young girl's marriage and life devoted her life to the rescue of the erring.

Her motherly advice, she pictures to the erring boy the temptations and pitfalls before them, and shows them the error of their ways. She leads them back to the straight and narrow path with a full realization of their folly, and restores them to their homes and loved ones.

The mission of this picture is to reach fathers and mothers, brothers and sisters, to aid and encourage the noble work of uplift and redemption.

Unofficial Report That Mediators Have Succeeded in Obtaining More Time.

New York City.—It was reported semi-officially at the headquarters of the railway strike conference that the strike had been called off.

Mediators and managers were believed to be awaiting the arrival of the brotherhood chiefs, who had retired, before making the announcement that the strike had been averted.

Washington, D. C.—Word is that the railroad strike has been called off brought mingled satisfaction and relief to administration officials.

Some officials pointed out that the rescinding of the strike orders has the effect of removing the situation under which the supreme court might decline to hand down an opinion today on the Adams law even if it should be ready to grant this refusal on a long recognized objection.

Washington, D. C.—Under the personal direction of President Wilson, Secretary of the Navy Daniels instituted drastic measures to put the navy in shape to meet war conditions.

PAYS FOR 160 ACRES OF LAND

And now, all that the farmer makes is velvet and you find him going more and more into stock raising, for all authorities agree that in a short time there will be a demand for live stock, such as even will tax the vast resources of Western Canada.

GREEN'S AUGUST FLOWER

For Sick Headache, Biliousness, Bad Taste or Constipation by Mornning.

Are you going into your bowels liver, with stomach clear, pure and fresh with Cascarets, or merely forcing a passageway every few days with the laxative pills, Castor Oil or Purgative Water?

Stop having a bowel wash-day. Let Cascarets thoroughly cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour and fermenting food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will make you feel better by morning. They work while you sleep—never gripe, sicken or cause any inconvenience, and cost only 10 cents a box from your store.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never have Headache, Biliousness, Coated Tongue, Indigestion, Sour Stomach or Constipation. Adv.

"It appears as if Mrs. Blax cried more than you did at the nuttree."

"I don't know any such nuttree. You certainly have a mean disposition."

"Would you like to see a secret involving Mrs. Nixdorff in a dreadful scandal?"

"Yes, yes; tell it to me."

"I don't know any such secret. You certainly have a mean disposition."
