High School Commencement.

The annual commencement exercises of the Plymouth High School were held in the Methodist church, Tuesday evening, June 25.

The church was beautifully but sparsely decorated with potted plants, ferns and the national colors.

After a selection by the orchestra the invocation was offered by Dr. G. Smith, pastor of the Lutheran church.

The class address was given by Prof. W. H. Dawson of Antioch College who spoke on "Ideals," this address was eloquent and timely, abounding in inspiration for young and old.

The diplomas were then presented in a brief address by Supt. J. A. Kershner, after which the benediction was pronounced by Rev. W. W. Helmuth, pastor of the Presbyterian church.

The class of '17 number five members, but one of whom, Miss Alverda Monteth, was on the program. Miss Monteth gave the class president's address. The class roll is as follows: Gertrude Willatt, Alverda Monteth, Ditha Devore, Arna Ward and Oliver Donnenwirth.

A June Wedding.

On Wednesday, June the twentieth at high noon occurred the marriage of Miss Verna Hoie to Joseph Q. Waldhaus.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. R. Brown of North Fairfield, in the presence of about seventy-five relatives and friends. Preceding the marriage ceremony, Miss Lucie Blackmore of Broughtonville, gave a vocal selection. The wedding march was played by Mrs. Geo. Atyeo, of Sullivan, Ohio. Following the ceremony the guests were served with a three course luncheon.

The bride wore a beautiful gown of white revere de chine and georgette crepe with pearl trimmings and carried a bouquet of bride's roses. The groom wore the conventional black tuxedo with a white shirt and bow tie.

Miss Hoie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hoie, of Broughtonville, O. For two years she has been a domestic science teacher in the public schools of Amherst, O. Mr. Waldhaus is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Waldhaus, of Quincy, Ill. Mr. and Mrs. Waldhaus have four children, three sons and one daughter, all on the farm with the bride's parents.

The bride and groom received many beautiful and useful presents, including money, fur, cut glass, linen, furniture, etc.

Guests from a distance were the groom's mother, Mrs. Fred Waldhaus, and his sisters, Mrs. Hamendorfer of Quincy, Ill., Mrs. L. D. Menall, of Conneaut, O., Miss Nellie Howe of Barbark, O., Miss Anna Smith of Elvira, O., Miss Etha Starkey of Tiffin, O., Miss Susie Agey of Berea, O., Mr. and Mrs. Ray Heam, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Baker, Mrs. Caroline Keeler and children, Mrs. Albert Menz and father, Mr. Bodman, of Amherst, O.; Mrs. Mary Baker and daughter, Mrs. Geo. Atyeo, and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Atyeo, of Sullivan, O.

Washington Trips for Girls.

A lot of prize trips to Washington are awaiting the girls of Ohio who are making an extra showing in their canning and baking work this summer. To enable them to increase their skill the Ohio State College of Agriculture will send pamphlets of information regularly and will entertain and reinforce these visits through economics specialists to each county.

The contest is being conducted in counties not having regularly organized clubs and is for girls between 10 and 18 years of age. An exhibit of a loaf of bread, six pint cans of fruit, two glasses of jelly and a small quantity of preserves will be made at the county fair.

Girls who would like to win a trip should write at once for further information to W. H. Brown, State Leader of Boys and Girls Clubs, Ohio State University, Columbus.

Summer School at the Oberlin Business College.

A large class enrolled at the opening of the Summer School June 12, at the Oberlin Business College and one of the finest schools in years is in session at this institution. High school graduates of this year's class have already enrolled from at least ten different high schools bearing large numbers of teachers from all parts of Ohio. Some who could not enter this summer have enrolled and will enter in September, at the opening of our Fall Term.

The fact that this school now maintains standard courses, recognized by colleges throughout the state and made it the leading school of its kind in Ohio and has brought to it a numerous student body from all parts of the State. This brings an increasingly large number of calls for O. B. C. graduates and puts this school in a more and more prominent position than any similar school. Bulletin of the college may be had upon request.

J. MONTAGUE SMITH, LATE OF LAWRENCEVILLE, DISCOVERS THAT AS "JOHN SMITH," A CONSTRUCTION CAMP WORKER, HE CAN'T CONCEAL HIS PAST LIFE

Synopsis—J. Montague Smith, cashier of the Lawrenceville Bank and Trust company, bachelor society leader engaged to marry Vera Richlander, heiress, is wrongfully accused of dishonesty by Watrous who is employed as an auditor. Smith strikes down Watrous and leaves him for dead and the construction camp in the Rocky mountains and as John Smith gets a rough job.

CHAPTER IV—Continued.

"I'm afraid he'd have to loosen up on his record a little before we could bring him in here. Badly as we're needing a money man, we can hardly afford to put a 'John Smith' into the saddle—at least not without knowing what his other name used to be."

"No," of course not. But after all, he's only a 'lame duck,' like a good many of the rest of them. Day before yesterday, Burdell, the deputy sheriff, was out at the camp looking the gang over for the fellow who broke into Lanning's place last Saturday night. When he came into the office Smith was busy with an estimate and Burdell went up and touched him on the shoulder. Just to let him know that it was time to wake up. Hearing that, I took three of us to keep him out of breaking Burdell in two and throwing him out of the window."

"That looks rather bad," was the president's comment. Col. Dexter Baldwin had been the first regularly elected sheriff of Tyanonoy city in the early days and he had some symptoms. "Was Burdell worrying his star where it could be seen?"

"The engineer nodded. "Oh, he apologized like a gentleman, and said he was subject to little nervous attacks like that when anybody comes up to him. He said that Burdell over to Pete Slime's shack saloon and bought him a drink. Perkins, the timekeeper, says he's going to get a megaphone so he can give the notice in advance when he wants to call Smith's attention."

"The colonel pulled out a drawer in the desk, found his box of diplomatic cigars and passed it to the engineer, saying: "Light up a sure-enough good one, and tell me what you think Smith has been doing back yonder in the other country."

out reference to mountain ranges or other natural beauties. Williams nodded.

"Well, as I say, one corner of the Escalante reaches over the Hopkiss and into the park, covering about eight or ten square miles of the territory just beyond us on our side of the river. Starbuck told me yesterday that a big Eastern colonization company had got a bill through congress allocating that tract."

"The chief of construction hounded out of his chair and began to walk the floor. "By George!" he said; and again: "By George! That's what we're up against, Colonel! Where will those fellows get the water for their land? There is no site for a dam lower than this ours, and anyway, that land lies too high to be watered by anything but a high-ditch ditch."

"Nice little brace game, isn't it?" growled Baldwin. "If we hadn't been a lot of layseeded fools, we wouldn't have found out long ago that someone was running in a cold duck on us. What's your notion? Are we done up, or without one?"

"What we need, Colonel, is to go out on the street and yell for a doctor," he said. "We're beginning to look as if we had acquired a pretty bad case of malignant strange-itis."

Baldwin ran his fingers through his hair and admitted that he had lost his sense of humor.

"This Eastern crowd is trying to freeze us out, to get our dam and reservoir and high ditch for their Escalante scheme. When they do, they'll turn around and sell us water—at fifty dollars an inch, or something like that."

"What breaks my heart is that we haven't been able to surround the sure-enough fact while there was still time to do something," lamented the ex-reclamation man. "The first thing that stock, Stanton will own a majority of the stock and he's voting us all out of it. You'll have to come around to my suggestion, after all, and advertise for a doctor."

"I suppose you know the plain inference to be drawn, when you say a thing like that?"

said, since he had fought three pitched battles with so many of these bullies, and had in each of them proved himself a man of his hands who could not only take punishment, but could hammer an opponent swiftly and neatly into any desired state of subjection.

"Come in here and sit down; I want to talk to you," was the way Williams spoke. "I'm afraid you've had a chair the chief went on: "Say, Smith, you're too good a man for anything I've got for you here. Haven't you realized that?"

Smith pulled a memorandum book from his hip pocket and ran his eye over the private record he had been keeping. "I've shown you how to effect a few little savings which total up something like 15 per cent of your cost of production and operation," he said. "Don't you think I'm earning my wages?"

"That's all right; I've been keeping tab, too, and I know what you're doing. You're not beginning to earn what you ought to, either for yourself or the company," put in the chief shrewdly. And then: "Loosen up, Williams! Do something about yourself. Who are you, and where do you come from, and what sort of a job have you been holding down?"

"Williams' reply was as surprising as it was seemingly irrelevant. "If you're not too busy, Mr. Williams, I guess you'd better make out my time-check," he said quietly.

"Williams pulled a reflective half-minute for consideration, turning the sudden request over deliberately in his mind. "You'll have to come around to my 'quit before you'll consent to open up on your record," he assumed. "I've just guessed it," said the man who had sent the book of his past.

Again Williams took a little time. It was discouraging to have his own and the company's predicaments as to some probable state of standing so promptly verified.

"I suppose you know the plain inference to be drawn, when you say a thing like that?"

Smith made the sign of assent. "It leaves you entirely at liberty to finish your little death-bed confession, if you like, but I don't want to produce it on request."

THE OTHER FREAK.

By OSBORN JONES.

When you go from the West to Perkins college, you have to change cars at a certain junction and walk in a forlorn little freight station in the middle of cornfields for the uncertain shuttle train that carries you on to Perkins town—Perkins town that is Perkins town, and college boys and girls, and faculty, and faculty houses, and only one-tenth native population.

Passengers stranded at Perkins Junction never need introduction. That is an unwritten rule of courtesy at Perkins.

The acquaintance in this case was begun when the man raised his hat and bowed, indicating thereby that if the girl wished it he would speak. She was not loath.

"You are a student aren't you?" she asked, and the man noticed that her voice was slivery.

Then in the next few remarks the barriers were down. Instinctively they knew that they were of the staff out of which congenial comrades are made.

When 15 of the 45 minutes that were deemed to pass in waiting had slipped by, the man summoned courage to ask the girl's her name.

"Edith Stone," she said, and then when she asked him, he told her his name was Alonzo Love. Just a shade of a smile crossed her face.

"That's a queer sort of name," he said. "Not funny, only somehow you don't look like an Alonzo. You look like a Bill or a Tom or something like that."

"What's your name?" she asked. "I am going to take mining engineering," she replied.

"Edith Stone," she said, "I'll be the only girl in that department," he told her.

"I know I shall be regarded as a freak," she admitted. "There's another nut in college, though—a chap named Bill Dean, who is taking domestic science. That is just as bad."

"Alonzo," she said, "I don't know her companion a secret that she asked him not to divulge. She was destined to be a mining engineer because her father was always a mining engineer for four generations, and because her father had died and left her a valuable collection of mining engineering tools and papers and her grandmother, who was her guardian, felt that she ought to make use of them."

"Funny," said the man. "Darned funny," he emphasized. On the train together they occupied adjoining seats.

"Do you know, I had an idea," she said, "that you might be perhaps I and we could get a man to take the course for me. Grandmother need never know. That is why I came early, so could I know your registration. My name is Sidney. That might be a man's name."

"It's a good idea," commented the man, "you're not the first one to think of it. You know the other nut—"

ANY CORN LIFTS OUT, DOESN'T HURT A BIT!

No foolishness! Lift your corns and calluses off with fingers—It's like magic!

Soft corns, hard corns, soft corns of any kind of a corn, can harmlessly be lifted right out with the fingers if you apply upon the corn a few drops of Freestone, says a Cincinnati authority. For little cost you can get a small bottle of Freestone at any drug store, which will positively rid you of every corn or callus without pain.

This simple drug does the moment it is applied and does not even irritate the surrounding skin while applying it or afterwards.

This announcement will interest many of our readers. If your draggish hasn't any Freestone tell him to surely get a small bottle for you from his wholesale drug house—adv.

They Understood. Col. John Ward, M. P., is a popular hero. When he was a sergeant and was lifting into shape the raw recruits for his famous navy's battalion his method of inspiring instruction, though not always according to the drill book, was simple, direct and effective.

Once, for instance, he was in charge of a squad at musketry. "This," he said, "is the bayonet boss, this is the bayonet bar. Boss and bayonet you can easily remember that; where you get your money and where you spend it."

This squad grinned sheepishly. But they understood—and remembered.

Fully Qualified. The clergyman had advertised for a butler, and the next morning after breakfast a well-dressed, clean-shaven young man in black was ushered into his study.

"Name, please?" asked the clergyman. "Hilary Arbuthnot, sir." "Age?" "Twenty-eight."

"What work have you been accustomed to?" "I am a lawyer, sir."

The clergyman started. This was odd. However, he knew many were called in the law, but few chosen. "But," he said, "do you understand the conduct of a household?" "In a general way, yes," murmured the applicant.

"Can you carve?" "Yes, wash glass and silver?" "I'er—think so."

money game from start to finish. What is better still, he is a fighter from start to finish. You could not get a lawyer fighter. Suppose you drive out tomorrow or next day and pry him into a little."

The rancher-president had relaxed quite more into the slough of discouragement.

"We are in a bad rap of stumps when we can sit here and talk seriously around the square to the Brewster Expedition. He had let his putting him into the financial harness. Let's go around to Frascati's and let before you go back to camp. It's bread-time for the chief."

The chief of construction said no more about his joking suggestion at the moment, but when they were walking around the square to the Brewster Expedition he went back to the dropped subject in all seriousness, saying: "Just the same, I wish you could know Smith and me. I have a feeling that I can't help believing, some way, that he's all to the good."

CHAPTER V.

The Specialist.

Though the matter of calling in an expert was a matter of diagnosis, the alarming symptoms in Tyanonoy ditch had been left indeterminate in the talk between Colonel Baldwin and himself. Williams did not let go entirely by default. On the day following the Brewster office conference the engineer sent for Smith, who was checking the amount of the crushers at the quarry, and a little later the "betterment" man presented himself at the door of the corrugated-iron shack which served as a field office for the chief.

Some real opportunities come to "John Smith," but the fear of detection and capture worries him deeply. Some big developments are given in the next installment.

(TO BE CONTINUED)

A curious custom exists in the town of Port of Spain, in the island of Trinidad. Every year the servants, who are all of the same race, and are under their master's eye, give a grand ball for their master's aid. The Princes building, a huge place where all public entertainments are held, is the scene of the ball. It is a very beautiful style. There are two bands for dancing, one for the servants and the other for their guests, both of which are of the highest quality. The best band in the island is engaged, and the guests are given a champagne supper. Etiquette is very strict. It is supposed to be the duty of the servants, the governor's butler and his lady going in before the chief justice's groom, and so on.

Women's Work for Freedom

and others of the great spirits of that day were among her correspondents. Her home was the rendezvous of such company, and she herself said: "By the Plymouth fire-side were many political plans discussed and executed."

Patriotic Mary Draper

There was Mary Draper for Massachusetts, who surely did her "bit" for American independence when she sent husband and son to the front with all dispatch; and when the daughter begged that the boy might be left at home, she said: "He is needed, and must go. You and I have also service to do. Food must be prepared for the hungry, for before tomorrow night hundreds will be on their way to join the Colonial forces, and we must feed as many as we can."

Mary Draper's bread and cheese and cider kept many a weary soldier from exhaustion as he passed on his way to the war. Nor did she stop with this service. Her stock of pewter vessels went into the melting pot, and with a mold for casting bullets, she transformed her domestic utensils into balls for the Continental army.

Alexandria's Heroine

Alexandria had a heroine in the Revolution less well known than those whose praises have often been sung. This was Ann McCarty Ramsay, who was the daughter of Maj. Dennis McCarty, and his wife, Sarah Ball, who was a cousin of the mother of George Washington.

Ramsay, a native of Scotland, who settled as a trader and merchant in Alexandria in 1744, and early and fully identified himself with the colony of Virginia. His extensive commercial and shipping connections enabled him to supply much of the outfit to the military expeditions of Virginia from 1754 to 1763, and he served for a time as captain of a military company under Washington. Records show that his family was on terms of intimacy with the family at Mount Vernon.

Friend of Great Men

About this time the revolutionary spirit was running high, and Ann Ramsay became fully imbued with patriotic fervor. Her zeal took the form of collecting money for the equipment and use of the army, and so great was the confidence placed in her ability in this regard that she was made treasurer of all moneys collected for the purpose in the township of Alexandria.

So successful were her efforts that she turned over a sum exceeding $75,000 to the cause. Thomas Jefferson in his writings accredited her with being one of the most patriotic women in Virginia, and George Washington offered to assist in the education of one of her sons.

Mrs. Ramsay reared two sons to fight for the cause of American independence, and one of them, Thomas Jefferson, in the Continental army; the other as a colonel in the Virginia line.

When this brave woman died, on April 1, 1788, Washington attended her funeral, for his diary contains this entry: "Went to Alexandria to attend the funeral of Mrs. Ramsay on Friday last."

Splendid Work of D. A. R.

To come down to present-day women, the Daughters of the American Revolution have surely done their part for American independence. They have accomplished an immense amount of memorial work, and there is hardly a city or town on the Atlantic seaboard in or near which battles of the Revolution were fought where there is not some evidence of their work in recording the revolutionary deeds of their ancestors, their aim being to perpetuate the memory of the heroes who wrought independence for our country.

American Independence was manifested and sustained by the women at the time of the Revolution, as it was in later years, and as it is being manifested and sustained today in every section of our land.

ALTHOUGH an aging woman at the time of the Revolutionary war, Mary Washington labored incessantly with her servants in making clothes for the soldiers, herself knitting many pairs of stockings for their use. And upon his return home from the field her distinguished son never failed in showing reverence for his mother by visiting the little cottage in Fredericksburg, where she still gave him words of counsel and encouragement, which doubtless fulfilled their part in the great cause.

Two Brilliant Women

Then there was Lady Washington's brilliant friend, Mercy Warren, who warmly espoused the cause of her country, and whose letters of cheer to her husband on the field sustained him, while her dissertations upon politics of the time made her opinions sought by the greatest men. Thomas Jefferson, John and Samuel Adams

CURIOUS FEARS OF SOLDIERS

One Dreads That His Charcoal Burner Will Be Destroyed Although Indifferent as to Himself.

It is extraordinary what curious fears some soldiers have. One fighter always dreads that his charcoal fire will be destroyed by a shell. He always places the burner in the most protected part of the trench, but remains indifferent in regard to his own personal safety.

Another extraordinary fearer of a soldier at the front is that of having his bootlaces cut. He is terribly frightened of going through a wood, and would rather walk miles round it than half a mile through it. He has the fear that some day a tree will suddenly fall and crush him.

Many soldiers have a horror of losing their identity disks, or of being unidentified if they are killed, and buried in a nameless grave. One man is known to carry little scraps of paper in every pocket, giving his name and regiment, so that his body may be recognized if he is killed.

Swedish Drill

They were in the squad under training at a certain military center who furnished a contrast not uncommon these days. One was tall and wiry, the other short and puffy, and an hour of Swedish drill had so the lesser of the two to blowing hard.

"I can't stand much of this," he whispered. "I'm simply all out," and at that moment the drill sergeant indicated that he would give them another spell before they dismissed.

This was too much. The pudgy patriot felt it was time to protest.

"I'm really awfully sorry to seem un-military in addressing you, sir," he said, "but this Swedish drill is more than I can face in the present condition; besides," he added, dolefully, "I never knew we were at war with Sweden."

Real Fact

Three socially prominent women were sitting in a park dance pavilion in Kansas City last week when the floor manager approached their table and said: "Would you care to dance with the senior?"

"He'll be glad to dance," she replied with anybody.

Such tact should not go unrewarded. He had the manager gets a raise.—Kansas City Star.

Reason to Cry

At a golden wedding recently an entertainment was given in the surrounding tenantry of the aged couple. At the close of the proceedings the host rose and relieved his feelings in an eloquent speech.

"Look at that, now, Pat," whispered an old Irishwoman, nudging her husband's elbow. "Did ye see the poor old man's wife with the tears in the eyes of him?"

"Shure an' why wouldn't he be cryin'?" was her husband's retort. "I'm married to the same woman for fifty years!"

Particular Spot

"Did the man strike you in the weight of exasperation?"

"No, sir; just between the eyes."

The trouble with scandal is that people are all so willing to believe it.

GRIM GAS BATTLES FOUGHT

Asphyxiating Shells Fired in Great Quantities by Both Sides in Stigulges on British Front.

Andre Tudeus, writing of the battles on the British front, says there has been an expenditure of asphyxiating shells one day that six hours after the last deluge of them suffocating smells were still passed through.

As in a frightful carnival, in the manner of Edgar Allan Poe, one could see in the night on the slopes west of Fresnoz enemy regiments in masks, fighting and killing each other in the mud of black vapors, which were rendered more fantastic by the light of the moon.

The hand-to-hand struggle thus took on most singular forms. Throwing away their arms the combatants would fly at each other's throats and try to tear away each other's masks. Few prisoners were taken in these encounters, and the victors are fewer still. Death alone receives the lion's share.

Willing to Be Good

Albert Chevalier tells the following: "One night," remarked the famous comedian, "in a certain music hall show there was a thoroughly bad orchestra, the manager suddenly appeared on the stage and apologized for the absence of a favorite comic singer whose name was a great feature."

"The manager explained that he had every reason to believe that the artist had been positively appointed later on; and then, by way of throwing oil on troubled waters, suggested, in order to avoid a wait, that the auditor should be favored with a little music."

"As he announced this, a pathetic voice in the gallery was heard: "The manager," said the manager, "will be good if you don't mind the play!"

Brazil Losing Rubber Trade

One of the most striking economic changes in recent years has been the loss by Brazil of its dominant position in the rubber trade. Whereas a few years back, the world looked to South America for most of its crude rubber, it is now getting the larger share from the far East. The Brazilian product is obtained from trees that grow wild, and little has been done toward cultivation of the trees. In Sumatra, Ceylon, Borneo and other countries millions of trees have been set out and are now coming into bearing. This domestic product is said to be slightly superior to that obtained from Brazil, and the trees improve with age. The financial loss to Brazil through its decreasing exports has become a serious matter.—New York Times.

Would Always Know Him

An old Lancashire woman, having three sons at the front and not having news from any of them for a long time, received a letter the other day, and not being able to read it, she called upon a neighbor to help her. She accordingly began to read: "Same address. Dear Mother—I am." Then she made a stop to find out what followed, as the writing was so small, and the old mother exclaimed: "Yes, it's poor Jerry; he always stuttered."

The Idea

"Is money tight up your way?"

"Certainly not. Ours is a prohibition state."

If our congressmen have more evidence of patriotism and push and less of pork and politics the affairs of our nation might move with more celerity.

We wonder if the general public realizes that the Richland County Liberty Loan and Red Cross Week is a tribute to the power of the press. Without newspaper publicity neither would have been a success but Uncle Sam has long since learned that it pays to advertise.

If anyone is foolish enough to think that the state department will not take away our first grade character and that it is a mere idle threat he is much mistaken. We have seen too many communities mourning the loss of a charter not to believe they mean just what they say. It's up to Plymouth to either move on or fall back.

Our neighboring village of Shiloh is all roused up because the county commissioners have taken liberties with the name of that thriving and patriotic metropolis. Recently guide posts were installed over the northern part of Richland county on which their name appears as "Shiloh." The mayor, alderman, prominent citizens, and the editor of the leading daily have all in a righteous indignation and something is due to drop with a dull thud! It certainly is hard lines for them to be thus reprobated and cruelly deprived of their classic cognomen. We extend our sincere sympathy.

Did you ever stop to think that a man is known more by his avocation than by his vocation. In other words a man's character is determined largely by the way in which he spends his leisure time. The great evils which threaten the very life of our nation have at their foundation the very natural and normal desire for amusement. A man goes to a movie because he doesn't know any better way in which to spend his idle moments. All of which leads to the logical conclusion that it is highly important that every young man should be so trained that he will be able to use his leisure time in a safe and sane manner. The child who has learned to love to read books and enjoy good music has an excellent moral health insurance policy. With this ability and an ethical sense of development that the very appearance of evil is repulsive the boy or girl will be pretty safe morally.

There are three classes of electors who will decide whether Plymouth is to have a school building sufficient for her needs or must be crippled in her educational facilities—those having children in school, those whose children have completed school, and those having no children. Certainly every real parent is intensely interested in the educational interests of his child and will require no arguments to induce him to vote so that his children may have an adequate education. Those whose children have already been educated are sure to be selfish if they are not wise for their neighbor's children to have advantages equal to that which their own children received. Plymouth hopes the girls here have had the opportunity for a first grade high school education and the present generation is equally deserving. The man who has his children realize that the welfare of nation, state, and community rests absolutely on the public schools and that no other institution is so vital to the public welfare as its schools. He is certainly a poor patriot who would strike at the very foundation of the state.

WHAT PLYMOUTH PEOPLE SEEK

Found by a Plymouth Street Man, Who Tells His Experience.

What the anxious sufferer from kidney and bladder trouble seeks is not temporary relief—though that would be welcome enough; what is sought for is a lasting effect. Mr. Doan's Kidney Pills, tells us here how he has found lasting relief from Doan's Kidney Pills after long suffering.

C. K. Beaver, retired farmer, Plymouth, St., Plymouth, Ohio, says: "I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills for severe pains in the small of my back about four years ago. The pains were so bad I could hardly straighten up after stooping. Dizzy spells bothered me, too, and I had spells of nervousness and irritability. Two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of the pains in my back and the nervousness and dizzy spells were removed. Since taking Doan's, my health has been good."

Richland county is one of the 27 counties in Ohio which exceeded its quota for the military draft, as based on the Federal census estimate. Col. Hubert J. Turney, of Columbus, chief draft registration officer of the county, sent a letter to the chief of elections at Mansfield, congratulating them on the measure of patriotism shown by the citizens of Richland county. Turney also stated that Ohio would be the first state to exceed its quota.

Obituary.
Rev. A. F. Upp, of Cleveland, passed away at his home in that city Sunday, June 24, after a lingering illness. He was born in Richmond township, Huron county, Nov. 15, 1849. In his young manhood he was a teacher. Later he was engaged in the hardware business where the Nimmons & Nimmons Co. is now located. He was successful in business, but the call to preach the gospel was so strong, that he entered the North Ohio Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church and spent the best years of his life in preaching the gospel of his Lord and Master.
In his ministry, extending over a period of twenty-five years, he served the people of Hayesville, Loudonville, Savannah, First Church, Barberton, Crestline and Simpson church of Cleveland. Hundreds of people in these communities testify to his loving sympathy and helpfulness.
The funeral services were held from Simpson church, in charge of his pastor, Rev. L. H. Halleck.
Twenty-five Methodist ministers of the Cleveland Ministerial Association attended the services and paid loving tribute to their departed brother.
He leaves a widow who lives at 8215 Clark Ave., Cleveland; a son, W. A. Upp, of Cleveland, and a daughter, Mrs. H. D. Clarke of Geneva.
The interment was made at Greenlawn cemetery.
The following relatives from out of town attended the funeral: Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Upp and daughter, Adelaide, of Cleveland, Prof. and Mrs. T. D. Clark and sons, of Geneva, Mr. P. L. Upp and sons, of Waukesha, Mr. and Mrs. Rob't Nixon, Philip Nixon, Mrs. Chas. McDonough, Victor, Ruby and Aina Nixon, of Cleveland, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Bodley, of Galion, Mr. and Mrs. Neal Shepherd, of Mansfield, A. B. and Izora Beelman of Chicago Junction, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Armstrong of Attica.

The meeting of the Red Cross on June 25 was attended by sixty working members. The work was carried on in a very commendable manner. Four visitors were present: Mrs. A. T. Ferrell of Saginaw; Mrs. Rose VanHorn of Shelby; Mrs. Rose Vining of Swanton, and Miss Edith Jump of Cleveland. In the near future a committee will be delegated to go to Mansfield for further instructions in Red Cross and First Aid work. The next meeting will be held Monday, July 2. Help us to attain 500 members. H. T. A.

Many Women in this Condition Regain Health by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Convincing Proof of This Fact.

Ridgway, Penn.—"I suffered from female trouble with backache and pain in my side for over seven months so I could not do any of my work. I was treated by three different doctors and was getting discouraged when my sister-in-law told me how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped her. I decided to try it, and it restored my health, so I now do all of my housework which is not light to have a little boy three years old."

Mrs. O. M. Kinnis, Ridgway, Penn.

Mrs. Lindsey Now Keeps House For Seven.

Tennille, Ga.—"I want to tell you how much I have been benefited by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. About eight years ago I got in such a low state of health I was unable to keep house for three in the family. I had dull, tired, dizzy feelings, cold feet and hands nearly all the time and could scarcely sleep at all. The doctor said I had a severe case of ulceration and without an operation I would always be an invalid, but I told him I wanted to wait awhile. Our druggist advised my husband to get Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has entirely cured me. Now I keep house for seven and work in the garden some, too. I am so thankful I got this medicine. I feel as though it saved my life, and have recommended it to others and they have been benefited."—Mrs. W. E. Lindsey, R. 8, Tennille, Ga.

PRICES OF COAL

TIME IS RIPE FOR DEEDS, NOT WORDS, IN REDUCING COAL PRICES IN OHIO.

NEIGHBOR STATES MAY HELP

State Officials Fear Government Action Will Be Tardy—Governor's Plan Not Yet Announced—The Feared Fixing of Prices Would Be Discriminating

Western Newspaper Union News Service. Columbus.—How serious state officials here view the extortionately high prices that are now charged for coal is not recognized by those not in close touch with developments here, but it may be said that there is little concealment of the apprehension with which the situation is viewed. If coal prices range from $6 to $8 a ton to consumers at the beginning of summer, when consumption is low, the possibilities of unrestrained conditions by winter time when demand inevitably will be greater are enormous.

There is desire on the part of the state authorities to bring about a remedy. Little concealment is placed in investigations for it is recalled that prosecutions are now going on in the Federal Courts in New York and prices seem determined to go up rather than go down. Even while they are rising there is a sort of boycott on coal, as public authorities are not buying for future delivery and the householders have felt prices almost prohibitively high and cellars are not being stocked. Explanations have resulted in greater confusion, rather than a clearing of the situation, officials say, and for this reason plans for remedies will be sought by direct action. If necessary to convince the operators and others that the time is at hand for deeds and not words and that the political dangers from a continuation of the existing conditions are not to be lightly regarded.

What plan Governor Cox will submit to the special committee of the State Council of Defense is not yet known. It is probable the operators will submit an outline of the plan carried in these dispatches a few days ago, to apply the domestic consumers and the Government first and let the larger consumers take their chances.

To bring some measure of relief into the Federal Government can act may be those who expect to get a union of state action. The point is made that if Ohio seeks to regulate prices coal will be sold outside the state at higher prices and the competition will be created for Ohio operators to turn their products into interstate trade.

The other phase of the matter is that much of the coal consumed in Ohio is produced outside of the state and that regulation of Ohio prices would discriminate against the Buckeye industry. The alternative is either to wait for Federal action, which is, it is feared, will be tardy, or to seek to secure a concert of action by Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and West Virginia.

SUIT TO TEST THE NEW LAW, Which Would Make It Easier for the Owners of Mortgaged Property.

Columbus.—To test the constitutionality of the Kimball act levying a tax of one half of one per cent upon mortgages is a pending case, pending their trial from all other cases. The suit will be filed in the Ohio supreme court on the morning of July 3 next, the day upon which the mortgage becomes operative. The allegation is made that the opposition springs from the building and loan companies of the state. The new law is expected to pay the recording fees and will create strong competition from banks and other financial concerns which now deal in mortgages only to a limited extent.

The underlying principle of the law is to relieve mortgaged property in Ohio from double taxation. At present, when the property and the mortgage loan are taxed to the detriment of the borrower. It is asserted that a mortgage is not property but only an evidence of an equity in property and therefore a non-taxable intangibility.

NOW MORE THAN 300,000 AUTOS Owned in Ohio. Some $,000 Being Electric—18,000 Motorcycles.

Columbus, O.—Ohio has issued approximately 303,000 automobile licenses, so the records of State Registrar W. A. McCarty showed. Of this number some 8,000 are motorcycles owned by owners of electric and to dealers. A total of 18,000 licenses have been issued to motorcycle owners.

Ohio Builders To Protest. Columbus.—The Ohio Builders' Supply Association will send a delegation to Washington to protest against the arrangement made by the National Council of Defense giving preference to coal and ore shipments. A meeting will be held with Daniel Willard, the council, arrangements having been made through Senator Pomeroy. The builders contend that sand, gravel, cement and other supplies which may be shipped in open cars are as important to the country as ore and fuel.

PROPOSAL TO SPLIT GUARD

Causes Disaffection Among Officers at Columbus—Gen. Wood Asked To Select Regiments.

Columbus.—In military circles the question of whether there is to be another flare-up over the disposition of Ohio National Guardsmen again was brought to the fore through dispatches stating that certain Ohio regiments are to be assigned with regiments from Louisiana for service in France. State officials refused to discuss the matter, but enough has become known to indicate that disaffection again is smoldering. Apparently the matter of an Ohio division of the guard was in abeyance when the word was sent from the War College in Washington that the Adjutant General of Ohio was to select certain regiments to go with the guardsmen from Louisiana, and that if the Adjutant General failed to make a designation it would be made by the War Department.

STAND ONLY AS AMERICANS

Or Register as Alien Enemies, Cox Tells Vierck, Who Would Exempt All of German Extraction.

Columbus.—In response to a letter from George Sylvester Vierck, editor of the American Weekly, formerly the Fatherland, asking the Governor to give him authority to have exempted from foreign military service American-born German extraction, Governor Cox denounced half-way Americanism, and stated that the people of America must stand united in this time of war. He said further: "There should be now no German-Americans, French-Americans, Irish-Americans, Russian-Americans, or any other class of half-Americans. Those who can not register as full United States Americans, citizens with only one loyalty, may declare themselves as alien enemies. There can be no half-way course."

BUCKEYE NEWS NOTES

Columbus.—Eight months in the Delaware county jail was the sentence imposed on Federal Judge John E. Sater on Frederick Jerger, Martin Perry Socialist, who refused to register for the draft.

Columbus.—State Senator Howell Wright of Cleveland, lodged complaint with Governor Cox against the plan for a proposed $100,000 structure for use as a state building, and research work on the property of the home for the feeble minded.

Columbus.—Horace L. Chapman, one of the plaintiffs in large business enterprises in Ohio, is in a critical condition at his home here as the result of an attack of heart disease. His extreme age makes it improbable that he will be restored to health.

Columbus.—In the Ohio contingent which soon may be on European battlefields will be the third of three generations of fighting men. Governor Cox has just commissioned as a major in the United States Army, Captain John A. Logan, of Youngstown, as one of the three majors.

Bellefontaine.—Closing the Red Cross campaign in Logan county, there occurred last Sunday the raising of a flag two miles east of Bellefontaine. The highest point of land in Ohio, Governor James M. Cox of Ohio was present, at the request of the Red Cross, to make an address.

Columbus.—Warning against farm laborers going West for harvest work is contained in a bulletin issued by the Ohio branch of the Council of National Defense. There is no great need of harvest hands there, Croxton says, and it would be foolish for men to go there in expectation of big wages.

Columbus.—John Ingham and Peter Ingham are in opposition with the Public Utilities Commission against the Morgan Run Railway Co., operating in Coshocton county, on the ground that it has refused to place cars for coal at the plaintiff's mines because the complainants have desired selling coal to a buyer favored by the road.

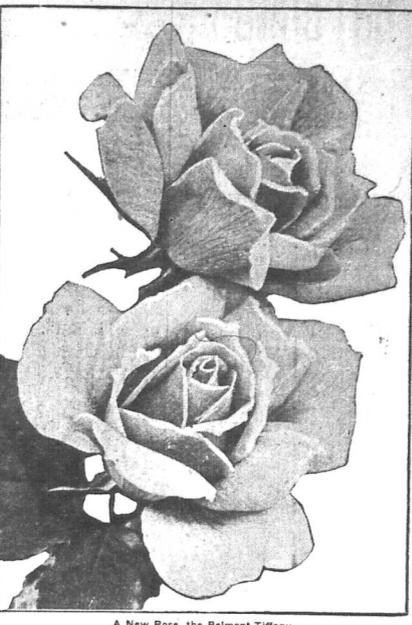

Columbus.—Application was made to the Public Utilities Commission for authorization for consolidation of the Youngstown & Sharon Street Railway Co., Mahoning Valley Railway Co., Youngstown Park & Falls Street Railway Co., Poland Street Railway Co., Mahoning Valley Southern Railway and the Mahoning & Shango Railway & Light Co.

Marion.—Harry E. Fegley, of Delaware, past Vice President of the Ohio Aerie of Eagles, is the new President of Buckeye Eagles. At the 14th annual state convention he was elected as the successor of Russell M. Knepfer, of Tiffin.

Columbus.—In a ruling given by Attorney General Joseph McGehee it was held that alien enemies in the state may be given licenses as boiler engineers, if they are of proper character. It is also held that alien enemies may be given licenses as boiler operators.

The HOME BEAUTIFUL

Flowers and Shrubbages Their Care and Cultivation

A New Rose, the Belmont-Tiffany.

FIGHT INSECT PESTS ALWAYS

By LIMA R. ROSE.

For the little white fly, use sulpho-tobacco soap according to the directions on the package. For rose bugs, in the evening place two or three ounces of quassia chips (to be had of the druggist) in a pail, and fill with boiling water—two or three gallons, according to size of the pail. Let stand until next morning, then apply the liquid to the plant with a garden syringe, getting the ten on all sides of the foliage and stems. If the ten is a liquid hand-hot it will be more effective.

A strong soap made up of any good white soap, if applied quite warm is discouraging to the bug population, and is especially good for the crane fly and the aphid.

Red spider affects the outdoor as well as the indoor plants in droughty weather, and is usually found on the under side of the foliage, causing the leaves to turn brown and to curl at the edges. If badly affected, strip the leaves from the plants and burn them.

Rose plants will take no hurt from this method, but some plants cannot stand being drenched, and must be sponged with soap, leaf by leaf, hand-hot.

Frequent syringing the whole plant with clear water will keep down many pests.

Asters suffer from root lice, which invariably kill them in a short time if undisturbed. These lice also attack chrysanthemums, clematis and like plants. Where these pests are at work there will be ants also.

To destroy the lice, dig the soil away from the roots and soak the earth with a solution of good soap water or tobacco tea.

The ants will leave, then the aphids are killed.

Hand-picking seems the only remedy for the blister bug, and it must be attended to several times a day. Sometimes a sprinkling with Persian daisy matman powder will rout them, but only temporarily, as it soon loses its strength, and they will return. The insect powder must be showered on the plant with the powder gun which comes with the powder, and fresh powder used every time this will kill every bug it touches, but it must touch the bug.

Jarring the plant or vine will cause the beetles to drop instantly to the ground, and they must be stamped or beaten to death at once, or they will make off rapidly, only to return in an hour or so.

Their season is July, August and the first half of September, and they are voracious eaters, soon stripping the plants. In appearance they are long, slim, grayish black, the grown ones being an inch in length.

They soon ruin clematis, goldenrod and many other plants.

LOOK OUT FOR THE BLACK BEETLE.

Be on the lookout for the black beetle, which does such deadly work among the asters. Don't let a day go by without an inspection of your plants. For if he comes, and his presence is not discovered at once, he will accomplish his full purpose before you are aware.

I have had plants ruined in a day by the ravages of this most destructive creature. As soon as one is discovered, prepare an infusion of soap and kerosene after the following formula: Soap, one-half pound and a teacupful of kerosene.

Shave the soap finely and pour hot water over it. Set it on the stove to become liquid. When melted, bring it to a boil, and add the kerosene. Stir well until an emulsion forms.

To one part of this emulsion add ten parts of water. Spray the plants all over with the mixture. If this is used as soon as the first beetle puts in an appearance it will generally prevent others from coming.

If they do come it will soon rout them, if you are persistent in its use and it is applied liberally. L. R.
