

A Tour Abroad

Let's get acquainted. We are to be traveling companions for three months. I am a small town man. I was born and reared in one of the richest agricultural sections of the nation, where farming has been reduced to science. I am a newspaper man by profession and training, but I have always had a fondness for the farm, and a good portion of my life has been spent in close, personal contact with the farmer. Until a few years ago I was a farm owner and I think I am familiar with all phases of farm life. It was not, however, one of those theoretical farmers who makes his money in town and spends it in the country. Early in life I had a consuming desire to see something of the home life of small town and rural people in other countries, and at the first opportunity I began to take periodical trips to distant lands. I lived among the small town and rural people and began to study their customs and habits. I had an idea that it was only through the producing classes that one could reach the soul of a nation. I found these people interesting. They have their social and economic problems but in a different form from ours. I found that the foreign magazine articles written by city-bred writers who had never formed a contact with the small town and rural dweller only touched the high spots. The foreigner visiting this country does not see England or France in Paris or Germany in Berlin. All cities are alike. After they reach a population of a hundred thousand size does not make much difference. New York or Chicago differ a little from London or Paris. People in large cities do not talk. They are suspicious and evasive. They have no interest in the world outside of the towering walls in which their lives are spent.

The Vexatious Passport.
Before the war there were no preliminary difficulties standing in your way. You could buy your ticket, bid your friends goodbye, board your ship and sail away. Now it is different. You must have a passport. You must appear before the clerk of a state federal court and make out your application. Some one must make an affidavit testifying to your family history. Two photographs accompany the application to Washington, with a fee of $10, and the state department issues you a passport. Before leaving America the consular office of the first country at which you will land must give you permission to enter, and as you journey from country to country you must present your passport to the consul of the country you intend to visit and get his stamp of approval. Without this permission from a foreign consul you are not allowed to board the ship. If you should succeed in passing the officials on this side you would not be allowed to land on the other side. Visas, as they are called, cost $10 for each nation, and European governments are reaping a rich harvest from American tourists. Many European nations are not as large as some of our states, with only an imaginary boundary line dividing them, but when you cross from one to the other you are penalized $10. American tourists have protested against the passport nuisance. Foreign countries say they are ready to abolish it if America will do likewise. It was an American idea and other nations followed suit or rather retaliated.

The Baggage Problem
Trans-oceanic steamships allow each adult passenger 20 cubic feet of personal baggage. Extra baggage is paid for at so much a pound. Seasoned travelers do not burden themselves with excess baggage. It is a useless expense and causes irritating delays. On my first journey abroad I carried a large handbag and a heavy suitcase packed to capacity. Realizing my mistake as soon as I reached the other side I stored the suitcase in a steamer ship warehouse and did not see it again until it was placed in my state room on the return journey. An ordinary handbag 22 inches long and 18 inches deep will hold a reasonable amount of baggage. I notice on a journey around the world. Luggage and stores are plentiful everywhere.

ARREST THREE ON LIQUOR CHARGES AT WILLARD

Charles Micu, in charge of the gasoline station of Steve Peglovitch of Willard, south of that city on the New Haven road and Peglovitch were arrested last Thursday on the charge of selling liquor and Tony Dannemiller was arrested east of Havana early Friday morning on the charge of transporting liquor. Peglovitch and Dannemiller were arrested last summer on liquor charges.

The arrests were made by two state officers, Deputy Sheriff Frank Adelman, County Road Officer Vinson and Patrolman Serbunty of Willard.

NORTH FAIRFIELD, Oct. 22.—The many friends of Otto E. Jennings, head of the Department of Botany at the University of Pittsburgh were pleased to hear that he gave a talk over the radio on "Nut-Bearing trees" which was broadcasted from the University of Pittsburgh Studio of Station KDKA Friday evening between 7:45 and 8 p.m. Prof. Jennings is a former well known Fairfield boy.

TYPHOID SUBSIDING

Wellington Epidemic Took Toll of 12 Lives.

The typhoid fever epidemic which has taken a toll of 12 lives in Wellington and Lorain county, is dying out rapidly, the state department of health announced.

The department reported that since October 1, only five new cases have been discovered and the last case reported was on October 6.

Officials said that a total of 142 cases were reported. Of these, 129 cases were in Wellington. There was also a small epidemic of 29 cases near Bedford and one in Cochoctuck.

The epidemics were traceable to milk supplies, officials said.

The last will and testament of the late Martha Bodley, who died at her home in Plymouth township recently, has been filed for probate.

She directs that all just debts and funeral expenses be paid and that Martha Bodley and Leona Bodley be each given $200. To F. W. Dotson she left $1,000 and the remainder is to be given to Kate G. Barnes.

It is requested that no appraisal be made and that the administrator, F. W. Dotson, be permitted to serve without bond.

Foreign travel we reached such across the Atlantic with the regularity of ferryboats. The rush season eastward is over after August and one large steamship line—the line on which I am traveling—is sending out five steamships to different European ports on the day that my ship sails. They depart at different hours up to 12 o'clock at night. Midnight sailings have become popular. Many passengers are attending farewell or theatre parties are reduced. I notice on a steamship folder in front of me that

Statement by Gov. Donahey In Defense of Primary Elections

Numerous citizens, partisans as well as independents, have requested me to outline somewhat comprehensively my oft repeated defense of the primary election system. The question is occasioned by the proposed amendment to our state constitution, subject to popular approval at the approaching election, which would authorize the General Assembly to abolish primary elections and restore in Ohio the system of political nominating conventions.

So far as I am aware, the main arguments being advanced against the primary system are:

That the people nominate candidates of inferior ability.

That many voters remain away from the polls on primary election days.

That primary election campaigns are expensive.

In view of the short period the primary election has been in force, the contention that the people nominate weaklings is premature and therefore not worthy of consideration. We have had statewide primaries for only 14 years while the convention system prevailed more than 100 years. Not all the candidates of the old nominating conventions were towers of strength.

The complaint that many citizens fail to vote at primary elections is deserving of serious attention, but fortunately these elections draw a far greater number than would be attracted by elections to name delegates to conventions. Nobody can convince me that more people would vote for convention delegates than do now directly for the candidates themselves. The most effective way to bring out a larger vote would be to liberalize the primaries by giving the people a chance to vote for nominations without having to disclose their political affiliation, a private matter, which many do not want to proclaim publicly.

The argument that primary elections campaigns cost too much sounds like the same identical objection which the people formerly had to the old convention system. It was money, more than anything else, that killed the nominating conventions. The reign of the old time money bosses—always supplied with unlimited funds by the interests seeking an inside hold on the government—is too recent to have been forgotten. I can cite instances of primary nominations costing very little, although, I grant, some nominations have been obtained at great expense. As long as interests insist on spending large sums to secure nominations of their own choice, let us have the expenditures out in the open at primary elections, instead of secretly in connection with boss-controlled conventions.

The primary system has broken the power, glory and prestige of old political bosses, who, in their days, had the influence of kings. We don't want a restoration of such kingdoms.

In essence, the question is whether the people of Ohio shall continue to exercise, or be dispossessed of, their unspiced right and present privilege of selecting the officials who are to administer their government.

English speaking people have not been in the habit of surrendering their sovereign rights, earned after long efforts, degree by degree, through centuries of struggles. Instead of abolishing primary elections, I believe the people of Ohio will liberalize and strengthen the system, thereby making it still more effective.

A CORRECTION

In last week's issue of The Advertiser, our Chillicothe correspondent states that two girls were held for "runaways," and that the "old clothing" worn by them was responsible for their apprehension. The girls wish it stated that it was because they were walking the streets of Delaware in the early morning that gave officers reason for suspecting them as runaways from the industrial home in Delaware.

Spent Boyhood Days in this Vicinity; Death Follows Auto Accident

Friends and acquaintances here of Lieutenant-Commander Willis B. Day were shocked to hear of his untimely death in New York City last Wednesday week when the naval officer was struck by an automobile while crossing the street. Mrs. Carrie Clark, 274 W. Third St., Mansfield, the only surviving relative of Commander Day was notified of the death of her brother. Funeral services were held Friday afternoon in Mansfield, and interment was made in Greenlawn Cemetery, Plymouth.

Born in Plymouth
Lieutenant-Commander Day was born at Plymouth, October 19, 1887 and died on his birthday aged 39 years. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvanus B. Day, pioneer residents of Richland county. After completing a high school education, he entered the Naval academy at Annapolis in 1916 at the age of 29 years. He was a classmate of Capt. J. C. Leonard, uncle of Wellington T. Leonard and Commander Martin Bevington, former residents of Mansfield.

In the year 1922 Commander Day graduated from the academy with high honors after making preliminary cruises for a period of two years. He made many trips to different parts of the world and was promoted to a lieutenant commander in the navy many years ago. In 1924, due to illness he was placed on the retired list where he remained until the World war came on when he was made an inspector of material in the United States navy, which he held until the close of the war.

Commander Day had been in New York only a few months when he met with the fatal accident, and was making preparations to come to Mansfield to spend the winter. He was a member of the Naval club, the Yacht club and the Machinery club of New York and was well and favorably known both in that city and in Mansfield.

Dear Mister Editor: I am going to make this to you because the last time I saw you a letter you wanted me to subscribe to your paper. The only time I read a paper is when I want to let pepul something. I dont need it to tel me nothing.

I hear pepul is tiking about bying the quarry for the water works. Now that ain't right. There is a lot of felers got many tide up in that staon quarry and if they dont git it out this way how is they ever-going to pit it out unless they set it to the scood bord for a high skool. I dont see why pepul want wels. Eny odd towne can have wels. Willard, Mansfield and most of the townes round her has wels. Plymouth skool be diferent.

The water ot to be good. The fish cold run and tin kans that has bin many years will make the water healty like putting a rusty nule in the chickens water dish. We need iron in our sistems. Of course the state mite make us put in a filtration plant but that wud jist git sum one a gob looking after it and goodnes noes folk are getting scarce.

If there aint enuf watur in the quarry you drill a few wels near by. Then every body will be satisfied. The pepul that want wels will have wels. The pepul that want a filtration plant will have it and the felers that want to sel the staon quarry will have it five handes.

If the watur cost to much we can put in elektric presser sistems and use our old sistems.

Dr. Landis Gives Interesting Talk

Philadelphian Holds Audience Spell-Bound Sunday Night at Presbyterian Church.

On last Sunday evening, Dr. Paul F. Landis of Philadelphia delivered a very informing and interesting address. Dr. Landis was an Overseas-er with a thrilling experience at the front, and a still more thrilling experience with vice, when Pastor in East side, New York. His members lived in flats, and it was necessary to climb five or six flights of stairs in order to visit them, and then climb over the roof of the flat to get to the next family. In his travels over the country from one large center to another he finds that the American home is fast becoming a place, where the folks stop to leave their automobile is being repaired.

The remedy for present-day conditions, he said, is to introduce the folks in the home to the Man of Galilee, and then have them listen long enough to hear what he has to say about things that are really worth while. Dr. Landis referred to a Business man in the east who had failed, when asked what he was going to do, he replied, "I am going home and get acquainted with my family." Following the introduction to the Man of Galilee, Dr. Landis stressed, Christ's Education, in various forms which is producing marvellous results where ever tried.

The choir, men's chorus and orchestra rendered special music for the occasion. Dr. Landis is one of the outstanding young ministers of the Presbyterian church, who goes up and down the land with eyes open, and not only points out the evils but helps churches. Y. M. C. A. men and boys organizations to apply the remedy that gets results.

YOUNG "GAG MAN"

REAL "OLD TIMER"

The Paramount Junior Stars, on their location trips to Lake Placid, N. Y., for winter sports scenes and to Red Bank, N. J., for ice-boat races, learned a lot from Cenedy Contractor Harry Sweet. As well as suggesting funny business for the Juniors, he plays a bit in "Fascinating Youth," and though some of them are his seniors in age, they all watched his work as they would a veteran.

Sweet was making comedies for Universal at the age of 17. By turning one out every nine days, he finally started in at least sixty two reels before he was 21. Then, he drifted to the Sennett studio, and went to work directing. That Sennett, the old master, entrusted him with Ben Turpin, and Harry Langdon, recently hailed as a "comedy find," to name only two of the comedians to whom he leveled his megaphone, indicating that Harry's comedy training was adequate. He stayed with Sennett for two years.

Feature length pictures lured, however, and Sweet left the short comedy field last year to produce independent comedy dramas. He made two: total cost—$10,000. They weren't sensations, naturally, at that cost, but they were features, and they gave him a greater desire for making real pictures.

When Director Sam Wood started work on "Fascinating Youth," which comes to the Shelby Opera House on Sunday, he asked for the best "gag man" in the industry. A wire went to Sweet, and he took the first train East.

"UP IN MABEL'S ROOM"

IS A PLEASING COMEDY

"One thing we learned from the stage play of 'Up in Mabel's Room' when we made the picture, was not to lose the plot," said Marie Prevost during the production of the Al Christie new comedy which will be shown at the Opera House, Monday and Tuesday. "That was, not to lose the plot of the play."

"The plot of the story is really a flimsy chemicse, given to Mabel by Garry Ainsworth. It is the reason for the fun, the sandwich of our picnic the pound of flesh of our Merchant of Venice. It is as indispensable to the story of ham is to eggs.

"One night during the New York run they lost it. It had grown soiled—for you see it was handled and tossed about a good deal for two hours eight times a week—and had been sent to the cleaners. When the next performance arrived it hadn't been brought back.

"They were in a pretty state of affairs. Other chemists could be found but the one had to have 'Mabel from Garry' embroidered on it, and there wasn't time for that. Anyway, the thing finally arrived and the show got off to a very late start.

"So we guarded against losing ours and holding up production by having the modiste make five of them, all exactly alike, and like the cautious bridegroom with a ring in each pocket, we were prepared for all emergencies."

Harrison Ford and Phyllis Haver are featured members of a strong supporting cast.

REAL ACTION IN FILM BASED ON RAILROAD ROMANCE

Real Western stuff! Tom Mix has it in "The Great K & A Train Robbery," Fox Films version of Paul Leicester Ford's thrilling story, which will show at the Castamba, Friday and Saturday.

It's a story of a cowboy-detective on horseback running down and capturing a gang of outlaws who have terrorized a great railway and driven its president to the edge of a nervous breakdown. Mix has the role of Tom Gordon, detective. He gives a great performance.

Tom rides the trail of the outlaws overhairs their plans and discovers that Burton Holt, division superintendent, one of the trusted employees of Eugene Cullen, president of the line, is the real brains of the bandits, while Bill Tolliver is only the able leader in their actual operations.

Tom's horse accidentally discloses his presence to the gang. The desperadoes leap on their horses and start to run him down. Boulders dislodged by the horses' flying hoofs roll down the mountain (the hairpin turn below and frighten the horse of Madge Cullen, daughter of the railway president. She is unseated and a foot catches in a stirrup so that her head dangles near the runaway's flying feet.

Tom disregards the danger of bull bats an rides to the rescue. His handkerchief marks his face and Madge mistakes him for a bandit and the outlaws for a sheriff's posse. She tries to escape but he is unwilling to leave her to the outlaws. He takes her on his horse and dashes toward the railway, with the gang in pursuit.

Cullen's car is attached to the rear of the train. Tom rides alongside and lifts her over the observation platform rail into the arms of her father who also believes Tom is an outlaw. Holt is absurd and Tom recognizes him, so that it is necessary for him to change his plans.

Cullen directs Holt to stop the train. The jerk is almost fatal to de Duxe Harry, a tramp who is riding in his hammock under Cullen's car. Harry proves to have been Tom's orderly when Tom was an army officer and the detective accepts his offer to aid in tracking the bandits. That night they go to Cullen's home to spy on Holt. He takes Harry to Cullen's car and puts him underneath, to overhear the plans. Then he dashes away to the gorge where the gang is to hold up a train carrying a fortune.

Tom routs the desperadoes and recovers the loot. He finds Madge in her father's car attending Harry, who is wounded, and their faces register possibilities of future happiness.

FEED CODLIVER OIL WITH WINTER MASH TO POULTRY

Enough experiments have been carried on in feeding codliver oil to poultry that specialists can positively say it is beneficial when the flock does not have access to direct sunlight.

"The greatest benefit is derived from winter feeding," G. S. Vickers, poultry specialist at the Ohio State University observes. "It is known that the oil increases production during the winter months. It improves the shell and decreases the mortality. There is some evidence that the hatchability of the eggs is increased by feeding codliver oil."

"Its value lies in aiding mineral assimilation. It probably also contains vitamins which are present in green feed. A laying-hen fed codliver oil is not likely to go down on her legs in the spring due to faulty nutrition.

"When there is difficulty in obtaining green feed that is rich in vitamins, feed about one quart to each 100 pounds of mash. On farms that keep 200 or more hens it is economical to buy the oil in barrel lots. It is somewhat cheaper this way.

"Be sure that the oil is a high quality light colored product. It has been more carefully prepared than the dark colored oils and contains vitamin A. The dark colored oil does not contain this vitamin."

WILD GEESSE PLENTIFUL
MOSCOW, Oct. 23—Phenomenal flocks of wild geese, blackening the sky, have settled on the Irtysch river between Semipalatinsk and Pavlodol. Both shores of the river are reported to be covered so thickly with geese that they appear blanketed with snow. Hunters have shot thousands of them. Village boys are killing them with sticks and selling them for five cents apiece.

20th Century Masquerade Party

The Twentieth Century Circle, and one guest, Mrs. Orson Hoffman were entertained with a Halloween Masquerade party at the home of Mrs. G. A. Arts of Sandusky street, Monday evening, Oct. 25.

The rooms throughout were decorated with fall flowers, marigolds, baskets and dahlias, black cats, bats, witches and other Halloween accessories.

The members represented different nationalities and came from many lands: There were also the twin cousins, Helen and Harriet, Miss Grace Earnest breezed in from Cedar Point. Beach in for bathing suits. Mrs. Elden Nimmons came as "Little Red Riding Hood, Mrs. J. T. Gaslick as a beautiful bride, Mrs. A. E. Willett and Miss Jessie Trauger as Parisian models; Mrs. Himes and Mrs. S. Brown as Quaker ladies, then there was bridget and the "coon" and last but not least was Mrs. Walker as "Queen Marie, the famous fortune teller of Rumania" secreted in the petals of the daisy.

The program was entertainingly given by Mrs. Jean Seville, who read "A Halloween Alphabet, Mrs. Helen Hart "Ghosts and Fairy Stories" and Miss Harriet Rogers "The Origin of Halloween."

Previous to the program, stunts had been given by Mesdames Southard, Postle, Flora Nimmons, and Willett. Miss Rilla Trauger and Miss May Fleming.

The committee of entertainment, Mrs. Seville, Mrs. Elden Nimmons and Miss Rogers, then invited the circle to the lower regions and Arts' cellar surely presented a "charity light" when we viewed Bluebeard's Earnest, seeing who could eat a doughnut suspended from a string, was won by Mrs. Seville. The prize was a rubber doughnut. Roll call was responded to, with humorous stories. The hostess served dainty refreshments with Mrs. Alberta Hoffman presiding at the coffee and Mrs. Lena Shutt at the elder bowl.

The circle will meet Monday evening, Nov. 8, with Miss Jessie Trauger.

Women's Clubs Held Meet at Shenandoah

The Richland County federation of Women's clubs which convened for the fifth year and which was held at the Community Hall, at Shenandoah, Wednesday, was by far the best ever held by this county.

Besides the regular business session and interesting entertainment by local talent which included instrumental and vocal music readings and a short comedy, there were two addresses of merit. The first by Arthur H. Nash, Cincinnati, was a masterpiece of practical everyday living and doing. He is familiarly known as "Golden Rule" Nash and the message he brought to the farm women's clubs was a combination of practical knowledge and wisdom, with a verification of his actual living, by refusing any compensation for his trip to Shenandoah. According to his "walk in life," he lives beyond the Golden Rule,—he lives the great commandment. Prof. Garber of Ashland, a pleasing speaker also presented excellent truths which were heartily accepted by the convention. The Plymouth orchestra added much to the entertainment of the occasion.

Donahay Urges the Observance of Dec. 6

In a short, direct statement to the people of Ohio, Governor Vic Donahay, directing attention to international Golden Rule Sunday, December 5, expresses the hope that all communities will organize for the day.

Dwelling on the purpose of the occasion to encourage international good-will and peace among people of the world, who, "figuratively speaking" will gather about a common table and partake of the same menu and cause observers to take stock of their God-given bounty and share their loaf with the less fortunate," the governor concludes:

"My earnest desire is that the people of Ohio will observe this splendid program and visualize this great ideal, and I anticipate your whole hearted and cooperation and indulgence in this plan for a better appreciation of the brotherhood of man and the benefit of those in adversity."

Governor Donahay is sending a letter to citizens who have been named Golden Rule chairmen in their communities, urging them to serve. Chairmen are being picked by the executive committee of Near East Relief which includes besides the governor, such men as Newton D. Baker, Foster Cleveland, Columbus; Dr. Charles F. Thwing, Cleveland, and Judge A. C. Shattuck, Cincinnati.

GREEN PEAS PICKED IN NORWALK LAST TUESDAY
Last week, Mrs. Ella Greenwald of 109 State street, picked green peas, string beans and about 11 quarts of red raspberries from her garden. Raspberries have been picked here at this time of the year, but the maturity of green peas and beans certainly is unusual. No killing frosts were reported in this district up to this time.

Vote for Bittenger Tuesday Nov. 2

Because he has laid out for himself a definite plan of action and has made his position clear on the great issues of the day, he believes in:

1. The foundation principles of the United States of America as set forth in the great documents of American Liberty.
2. A substantial reduction of all taxes in accordance with sound business principles to relieve the burden that now oppresses the farmer, merchant, laborer and manufacturer.
3. The placing of agriculture on an equal competitive basis with other industries.
4. Fair treatment for the soldiers and sailors of all wars and their dependents and immediate care for the disabled.
5. Energetic support of all measures beneficial to the interests of the 17th Congressional District.

We, the members of the 17th District Bittenger for Congress Club believe that a candidate should be elected on his merits and on the merits of the principles which he represents and not simply because he "wants to go to Congress." A man of principle is not afraid to let his principles be known. We urge the voters of this district to support a man whose principles are known; J. Freer Bittenger.

The Seventeenth District Bittenger for Congress Club, J. J. Welsh, chairman; J. L. Mason, secretary.

ERSKER OUT FOR TREASURER OFFICE

The Democratic candidate for county treasurer is Clarence H. Esker. He was born in Bellevue and for many years has been a resident of Norwalk. Previous to this campaign Mr. Esker has never taken an active part in politics and it may well be said of his candidacy that it is the office seeking the man as his nomination was made without his knowledge by writing his name on the ballot in the August primary while he was absent from the city for several months in California. For many years he was with the Maccebee in their state office. He is an accountant and this qualification was recognized by his friends in selecting him for this particular office and he will undoubtedly be favorably considered by the voters on election day, November 2nd.

SUNDAY GUESTS

Sunday guests of Mrs. Flora Nimmons were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Trauger and son Martin of Mansfield, Miss Kathryn Wagner of Calif. and Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Nimmons and daughter.

WILLS, ESTATE

All of the estate of Willis B. Day, except $1,000, is left to his sister, Carrie M. Clark, of this city. The will is dated April 27, 1923. The Mansfield Savings Bank and Trust company's named executor of the will. The instrument is witnessed by R. E. Hatcher and Effie M. Atton.

The testator sets aside $3,831.52 for his sister, Carrie M. Clark, which represents the share of her father's estate which he held in trust. In addition to this patrimony, the testator wills $12,000 to his sister.

To his former wife, Inez Day, of Detroit, he wils $1,000. If there is not enough to pay this bequest after the two sums are paid to Carrie M. Clark, Mrs. Day is to receive whatever of the $1000 the estate affords.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Trauger and son of Mansfield and Miss Catherine Wagner of Berkeley, Calif., were Sunday guests of Mrs. Flora Nimmons.

Mrs. Riley Zigler spent last week with her daughters, Mrs. Grubb and Mrs. Houseman of Cleveland. Mr. and Mrs. Grubb accompanied Mrs. Zigler to Plymouth where they spent a few days.

Mr. V. L. Khun was a Sunday visitor with friends in Lima.

Judge Charles C. Lemert, an able jurist for re-election to Court of Appeals, short term, should be re-elected.

NOT SERVING HIS COUNTRY WELL

Rabbi Stephen Wise, who not long ago brought the creed of his Internationalistic "mission" to the people of Cincinnati, is not serving his country well—the only country in the world where the Jews, from the foundations of the government, have stood recognized, as they deserve to be, as squarely equal with all citizens of the republic.

The distinguished rabbi devotes much of his time particularly to the foreign debts. He spent the summer in Europe, where he learned to appreciate the essential superiority of Europeans over Americans.

"When will the administration dare life the whole problem out of politics and above the level of partisanship and frankly tell the people of the United States 'the war debts are uncollectible and we must face the fact.'"

Well is for the nation that Rabbi Wise and the group of political preaching ministers who spend their days and nights thinking up arguments and reasons why the citizens taxpayers of America should be robbed and cheated in the interests of the "brave, suffering, noble" citizens of Europe, are estimated by the administration at their proper value.

PEACE AND PREPAREDNESS

There is a vital distinction between opposition to war and opposition to proper preparedness for war should it come, although an attempt is made by some misguided sentimentalists to ignore the distinction.

It is presented that instruction of youth in the means of national defense has a tendency to implant in the young the desire for war. The exact contrary is true, for training of this sort impresses the obligation of service in war-time, and that service involves the risk of life.

In fact, a campaign of opposition to war in the abstract is a totally useless performance; a vain fighting of windmills; for the number of people who have any taste for war is insignificant. It is realized now, as never before, that independent of loss of life and property, the sacrifices of war in public morale, and its reactions upon the efficiency of public service, represent incalculable sacrifices.

We can transcend the attitude of our people toward war in the abstract, but this goes for nothing if other nations continue their traditional disposition to appeal for force. So long as force is at large in the world the wise man and the wise nation will see to it that such force shall not destroy the just and peaceable in the interests of the unjust and warlike.

It is generally assumed by pacifists that war is exclusively an international problem. They choose to overlook the fact that our greatest war—the greatest of all wars prior to the World War—was the Civil War, and that international agreements cannot eliminate the danger of such wars, especially if the nation deliberately renders itself impotent from a military standpoint.

It does not take two people to make a fight if one of the two is intent on fighting. Supine submission on the part of a person attacked does not save him from aggression or from injury and possible destruction. The reputation for unwillingness to stand up for his rights may invite attack and cause him great harm.

Henry Ford's five-day week, like his five-dollar-a-day minimum wage, is certain to have a widespread influence on industry in general. In the case of Mr. Ford and his great industry the effect of general adoption of such a program would have an immediately beneficial effect, since an extra full holiday would mean an additional popular demand for motor cars.

Rents the country over have declined steadily for two years and in August, 1926 were six per cent lower than in July, 1924, the peak month. There has been a decrease of two percent since August, 1925, and of one per cent since January, 1926.

They are trying to get the Legion of Honor ribbon pinned on a French man of $1 who has played the cornet for seventy years. Probably he's stopped, and the neighbors want to celebrate.

Princess Beana expresses her desire to see some cowboys, and a section of Hollywood is being mobilized to give her what she wants.

Insurance company reports that deaths from alcoholism among its policy holders have increased 14 per cent this year. This may mean merely that people who contemplate drinking the sort of liquor they can get nowadays are foxg enough to get some life insurance first.

Many London shops now employ men mannequins, says a cable dispatch. Carelessly worded, of course—it would be more accurate to say "male mannequins."

Queen Marie says she likes buckwheat cakes, but acknowledges that she eats them one at a time. Well, she can't be expected to learn everything at once.

Headlines say, "Allies May Let Kaiser Seek Asylum in Greece." And the allies were probably careful not to consult Greece on the subject, too.

EDITORIAL

It has been said, "if you MUST talk about your neighbor, or your community organizations, if you must boast instead of knocking?" In your opinion things are all—dead wrong, put your shoulder to the wheel and, with aid and kindness, put them right; if you spend as much energy boasting, as many do knocking, things will be booming."

How can this, true as it is, apply to you; and your school? It can and should.

How many times has a student been heard to criticize his subjects, his instructors, the classroom work? And yet, if one investigates, it will be found that he is exactly the person who falls to cooperate in raising the standard above criticism.

It is the wish of the majority of the student body to keep P. H. S. as high as possible in the light of public opinion. See that your criticisms are followed by action.

This does not apply to students alone.

For a number of years the community has considered a "new school building." People have criticized the present one and its accommodations. We acknowledge this to be true, but why don't some people stop talking, criticizing and build one.

BASEBALL IN HISTORY

A new method of raising grades is in practice in the Junior class of American history. It has been divided into sides, one being known as the New York Yankees and the other the Cardinals.

For a perfect recitation the pupil scores a home run. One, two or three bases are given according to the recitation made. Frequently there is a strike out and as yet no home run has been scored. The New York Yankees won the first game but much interest has been shown in both sides and there promises to be keen rivalry.

Lecture On India Proves Interesting

Friday afternoon Mr. Dhalwant, India traveler, presented to the High School and Junior High Students, a lecture on the social and educational life of India. Besides being of educational value it was certainly interesting.

From discussion of the caste system, controlling the East the one formed the the Occidentals are of lower morale than the Occidentals. However it is found that the standard in the Indian homes of any class, is high.

That the American people are burning the candle at both ends; that Christianity in India is considered far more seriously than here, and last, but not least, that the people do not speak the English language used in books, were other facts that were brought out.

Mr. Dhalwant should be commended for his knowledge and understanding of both India and English life.

Girls' Basketball Starts With Bang

Twelve girls of P.H.S. met in Hamilton hall Monday afternoon for the first basketball practice of the season. Those trying out are Helen Becker, captain; Marguerite Boardman, Betty Bachrach, Emma Froom, Thelma Johnson, Emmeline Faie, Alberta Hale, Mildred Sheely, Mary Elizabeth Himes, Arjane Straub, Irene Pettit and Ethel Chappell. More names will be added to this list soon. Besides their practice, the girls also took some exercises.

"Girls' rules" will be used more this year than they have been in the past. The girls of P.H.S. have nearly all ways played under boys' rules, but have shown their ability to play under either rule.

A complete schedule has not been made but it is known that Shild, Lydia and "Tiro" are among their adversaries for the coming year.

The girls in Physical Education are learning to march to the time of music besides taking their daily doses. From this we take it that sometime, somewhere, somehow they expect to march.

Senior French Class Reads Short Stories

Minstrel Echoes As Given Friday, Saturday

Considering the limited time for preparation and the limitations in the way of stage and lighting effects, the minstrel was well done and very entertaining.

Aside from the usual jokes, fair singing and average dance numbers, several features stood out as really good. The first was Ruth Baldu's rendition of the song "Summer Nights." Her ease and grace upon the stage as well as her good voice made this number very pretty.

Another feature was "Shadow Land" with better lighting effects (such as are impossible here), this rendition of the song "Summer Nights." Her ease and grace upon the stage as well as her good voice made this number very pretty.

"Sleepy Head" was really a hit. After it had been sung by Emmeline Fane and the chorus, little Jane and Danny Henry came across the stage in their pajamas. Jane singing "Sleepy Head" while Danny dragged his teddy bear and stared at the audience. After their act, Deryl Cramer and James Rhine appeared, also in pajamas, and burlesqued the act of the two little Henry's. This was a very "cute" number.

Between acts Robert Shreck played several saxophone solos which were well given and well received. After their act, Deryl Cramer and James Rhine appeared, also in pajamas, and burlesqued the act of the two little Henry's. This was a very "cute" number.

Dorothy Straub as a pianist was excellent. In fact she was so good an accompanist that her playing never once detracted from the singing or dancing.

As a whole "Minstrel Echoes" was a success in its line. Such mistakes as were made were so well carried off that the interest of the audience never flagged.

Practically the same criticisms and commendations can be given for Minstrel Echoes of Friday night, as those for the Saturday presentation.

However, special note should be made of Willard Caldwell's instrumental and vocal numbers. Particular credit should be given him for the selection "Cherie, My Own."

Bill is near the head of the list when it comes to musical talent in P. H. S.

Fifth and Sixth Grades

The pupils of Miss Trimmer's room have elected a new health officer, which is Martha Landis.

First and Second Grades

The first and second grades are making word charts. The first grade will receive their first "text books" this week.

The Sixth Grade Literary and Citizenship Club

The Sixth Grade Literary and Citizenship Club gave the following program, Friday afternoon. Song, "America." Story, "Ruth Root." Recitation, "Mary Fazio." Song, "Star Spangled Banner." Dialogue, "Columbus." Song, "Cecile Dorian." Mary Payne, Katharine Turson, Ruth St. Clair, Mary Gobet and Rose Gaudaynne. Visitors: Mrs. Ritter and Mrs. Payne.

The fifth grade elected the following club officers:

Pres., Clara Fogel; Vice Pres., Doris Danis, Sec'y, Mary Gaudaynne; Treas., Andrew Douds; Chairman, Daisy Croft.

A project campaign for "Better Dental Hygiene" is being developed by both classes.

Few Boys Eligible for Basketball This Season

The boys basketball squad is scheduled to begin work the first of November. Those who wish to practice B. B. are required to have an average of "C". As a result of failure to secure this average "C" grade, half the B. B. candidates are not eligible.

The report makes the prospects for a successful team look far from pleasant. If there is not a change in the attitude toward studies, basketball at P. H. S. will be but history. Who is not more interested in the present than the past; especially in athletics? We certainly are interested in a successful team this year and we expect the boys to turn our dreams of a winning team into realization.

Physical Education

The majority of the high school boys being in the minstrel "Physical Ed." was not very well attended last week. All periods regularly used for this course were taken up with rehearsals for the show. However the boys in this production got their exercise in the various actions of the songs and dance. As for those boys who did go to class they learned to run via the hundred dash method. Doubtless we shall have several champion sprinters in High School before the year is over.

Vacation For Students, Teachers Meet Friday

Conferences at Cleveland and Toledo which some of the Plymouth teachers wish to attend, there will be a one-day vacation for the students.

Grade Cards Make First Appearance

On Friday last, the first six week term being ended, report cards were issued. These caused much comment especially as department grades were figured on a new basis of cooperation, good study habits and obedience. The result was that the highest grade given in department was a B plus and an average of B is necessary for exemption from semester examinations. This means that most of the students need to make their new year's resolution right now and proceed to live up to them.

All agencies employed to get to the root of the decay of rural churches are coming to the conclusion that the rural work needs scientific consideration. The chautauques, lyciums and Parent Teachers' Associations are beginning to solve some of the rural problems, but after all the church should be one of the leading factors in the moral and religious life of the community.

It is evident that the ministry of the rural church must discover a way of broadening their sympathies and ministrations, so as to bring them in closer touch with the problems which the calling for solution day by day, as the rural community awakens to the fact that this is an age of reconstruction, old modes of habits are becoming more and more obsolete as the young life drifts to the city or large town. It is an acknowledged fact that the rural church has always been more or less deficient in its provision of legitimate amusement, games and recreation. All this caused the youth to suffer social starvation, and it must be understood that this has reacted upon the youth, hence the migration to larger towns.

We are certainly in sympathy with the fact of our school in their endeavor to supply some of the things needed in young life, if the moral conscience shall be awakened and the life shaped for usefulness in after years. We congratulate Shiloh upon the program working out in our schools, the latest addition being the issuing of "The Tattler," the school paper edited and managed by our rising generation. Go to it and success will crown your efforts.

Tour Abroad

parties and the midnight hour is constant. Mechanical science is standardizing the affairs of man and giving its best talents to the comforts and pleasure of the human family.

Supernation of the Sea.

Man merely deludes himself when he looks at a supersonic in this so-called enlightened age. Every man is influenced in his affairs by superstition in one form or another. Superstition of the sea is as much alive today as it was a thousand years ago. Before me is a schedule of ships sailing from May to November and in the long list I do not find a single sailing date on the 13th. That our lucky day seems to have been avoided with scrupulous care. It is an example of applying psychology to business. Bookings on the 13th are light and sailings on the 12th are more profitable. In 1924 I began a journey to Europe and left my native town on the 13th. My two traveling companions were friends and fellow townsmen. The number of our steamship ticket was 113. The first hotel we stopped at was in London. The room was reserved two months in advance. The number was 113. We exchanged questioning glances but there was no comment. Two days later we took a bus to Stratford. One of my friends slipped down a seat. He glanced around cautiously across the hall and took another seat. Two weeks later the same thing happened on a bus in the Brussels. This caused comment. We joined a party of tourists on a three-day journey to Rheims and the battlefields. There were 13 in the party. The matter became a sore-spot. Our superstitions were aroused. The number 13 ran through the entire journey like a yellow thread. We returned home on the ill-fated Arabic that was almost lashed to pieces in a hurricane that smashed her decks, tore away her life-boats, crippled 150 of her passengers and came within an ace of sending her to the bottom of the sea with her load of human freight. We escaped without injuries.

Losing Your Identity.

The world usually hands back to you what you hand out to it. Many times you walk up the wrong aisle and make the mistake of carrying their home-made pomposity along and flaunting it in the face of strangers. If you want to get the best out of a foreign trip bid your identity good-bye when you walk up the same plank. Judge Smith of Illinois is plain Smith among strangers. Col Brown of Richmond is plain Brown to the Paris bellhop. Distinguished bearing has no market value among the Europeans. It takes the vein of the realm to give you entrée. With the foreign serving classes a 25-cent tip eclipses the 100 distinguished looking visitor that ever put foot on foreign soil. In 1923 I at the corner of a public building in Paris waiting to catch a taxi cab.

A distinguished-looking man, showing signs of agitation paced back and forth. He was plainly very much disgruntled. A word in English and he stopped abruptly with a remark about having been treated discourteously. He had asked for information and a young clerk abruptly turned his attention to another person. The distinguished-looking American was a nationally known figure. In his native city of more than a million inhabitants, prominent men tipped their hats to him across the street. In the public places of his city he was a towering figure. It was his first trip abroad. In Paris he was plain Smith. His case was typical of thousands of cases. I have seen pompous Americans walk down the gangplank on the other side puffed up like pouter pigeons. I have seen the same figures urag up the gangplank on the return journey looking like puffed-up balloons. The American who is wise enough to lose identity when he leaves home—who does not try to thrust his importance upon absolute strangers who merely regard him as one of the sixteen billion people in the world who has easy access to the world of approach—will always find a warm welcome in foreign lands, whether it be at the home of a prince or a pauper. The root of the trouble in Europe today is the pompous American who makes an offensive display of his high dollar in this land of cheap money. I was in Germany when the mark broke from 100 for the dollar to seven and a half million, when almost over night beggars became millionaires and millionaires became beggars—when farmers were cutting all they produced to beat the fall of the mark, and milk was fed to pigs while city babies were starving—and I think I know what I am talking about.

Labor Backs Atlee Pomerene

CLEVELAND, O.—Increasing numbers of labor organizations throughout Ohio are endorsing the candidacy of Atlee Pomerene, Democratic candidate for the United States senate.

Pomerene headquarters here are receiving many promises of support from every part of the state. This is taken by campaign leaders to indicate that labor voted under a misapprehension four years ago when it voted for Fees and against Pomerene.

One of Pomerene's labor friends has expressed it this way: "Labor bodies of Cincinnati, Columbus, Springfield, Hamilton, Dayton, Sandusky, Chillicothe and other cities have recommended your candidacy to the working men and women of Ohio in order to correct the mistake of four years ago."

"Pomerene became more popular with labor after his Labor Day address at Geauga Lake Park when he lauded the ability and good work of Samuel Compers, former president, and of William Green, president, of the American Federation of Labor. The Democratic candidates at that time also told labor of his position and his public record in the matter of problems and legislation in which labor was interested.

More than once during this campaign Pomerene has told his audience: "I believe in collective bargaining; I believe in union labor; I believe in good working conditions. I want to say that labor has accomplished what it has accomplished largely because of its conservative leadership in this country under the late Samuel Compers, William Green and John L. Lewis."

Pomerene, as a member of the senate, voted for the establishment of the department of labor because he felt that labor should have a voice at the counsel table of the president."

His votes in the senate show him voting favorably on seventeen out of twenty-one measures in which labor was interested.

ENTERTAINERS FOR DR. S. S. HOLTZ

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Nye gave a four-course dinner Sunday in honor of Dr. S. S. Holtz who celebrated his 76th birthday. The decorations were large yellow chrysanthemums, while a beautiful birthday cake had been prepared and decorated with seventy-six candles. The affair was a very delightful one and was enjoyed by Dr. and Mrs. S. S. Holtz, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Morse and daughter Carrie and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Nye.

The Alpha Guild will hold a "Penny Social" next Tuesday evening, November 2, at the Lutheran church. The public is cordially invited.

Mrs. Sarah Bevier Is In Critical Condition

The condition of Mrs. Sarah Bevier who is confined to her home by a serious illness, remains unimproved. Hope for her recovery has been given up several times.

Her many friends will regret very much to learn of Mrs. Bevier's serious illness and wish for her recovery.

P. W. Croninger Grows Large Irish Potatoes

While there is no contest being waged as to who can grow the largest potatoes, Mr. P. W. Croninger so far as we can determine, takes the prize. Mr. Croninger brought in four potatoes this week that weighed 6 1/2 lbs. They are of the blight-proof variety.

It is presumed that Mr. Dave Scrafield, who some days ago exhibited a few nice potatoes, will have to die a little deeper to keep up with the present record of potato growers.

All suits are now being tailored in our own shop. G. Sotzen, Shelby, O.

Farmer Buys Feeder Lambs

C. Frank Hopkins of Ripley township has just received a car of mighty nice halve feeder lambs, purchased thru the Huron Farm Bureau Service Company.

Hopkins says: "This method of securing feeders requires practically no time and effort on my part and I get a nice even bunch of feeders, no culls, long-tails, or bucks." Time and money spent chasing up a few hees, a few over yonder, etc., means a great saving when fall work is backward and labor scarce and hard to get.

The Huron Farm Bureau Service Company has recently shipped a car of hogs from Bellevue; total charges were 60c per hundred and shrink 2 1/2 pounds per hundred live weight.

A car of hogs shipped from Willard shows shrink 4 1/4 pounds per hundred and total charges only 57c per hundred. A light deck each on hogs and lambs was shipped out of Norwalk with total charges of 70c per hundred. These car shipments show a saving of from 20 to 30 cents per hundred over trucking. Then too—contrary to the general belief, the shrink is actually less on car shipments than when trucked direct to market.

E. E. S. CLASS HOLDS MEETING

The E. E. S. class of the Presbyterian church held its monthly business and social meeting Tuesday evening, Oct. 26 at the home of Mrs. C. A. Sells on Sandusky street, with Mrs. Harold Ruckman as assistant hostess.

After the regular program for the evening the social hour followed at which time those present enjoyed a reading given by Mrs. Jenkins, and contests, and at a late hour returned to their various homes, decorated by Mrs. Sells and Mrs. Ruckman good entertainers. test, to be held March 25. As an optional, Lucas, carried off 1st place last year, we are trying to better her now.

The oration is to be original, of 500 to 800 words, subject undesignated. A banner will be given to the winning High, and cash prizes to the contestant having highest score.

MUSICAL CONTEST

Perhaps the contest foremost in the interest of P. H. S. is the musical competition. March 15th. It is the first time we have entered in such a contest, but we boast quite a bit of talent so we expect results. The contest is subdivided as follows. (1) or chrestal selection (waltz and march) (2) piano solo (3) violin solo (4) boy's vocal (5) girl's quartet (7) girl's octet. It may be necessary for preliminaries.

Mr. Derr Issues Warning

The manager of the P. H. S. athletic association, Mr. Derr, announced to the High School on Tuesday that the contract by which we rent Hamilton Hall is in jeopardy. Unless students abstain from going there without an instructor and unless smoking in the hall is abolished, we may lose the use of this, our auditorium and gymnasium. Be careful, boys! (and girls, too!)

"OUR ALMA MATER" Corrine Scott

Alma Mater means sacred or foster mother. The phrase was first used by the Arabians who called their most sacred goddess "Alma Mater." Later the Romans adopted the expression and changed it to the form which we use today to designate our school and its joys.

It is evident from its origin the term applies to that which we respect and revere as a school.

Each of us has an idea of his own about school. What is yours? Is your school merely a place which is a great bore the greater part of the time? Is it an institution designed chiefly for making some one "work his head off"? Is it a place where teachers come to pick on you and show all the favors to the other fellow? If this is your school it is because you have made the conditions creating such a school. If you dislike work, have feebly back bones and go three-fourths of the way in being mean you cannot expect to find school a good place to be.

Or are you one of the students, who regard school as a store house of information, a working place for fine teachers, an inspiration, and a step in the preparation for a chosen profession? This is a real "Alma Mater" and one which each of us can have if we will only do our level best in making it.

There has been no great deal of discusson recently concerning the things wrong with our schools. In an article by our prominent educator, we receive the idea that the fault lies, not in our school system but in the students themselves. This man says that the modern student has lost all sense of reverence, and respect for his school. He has no back bone, no ideals and no aspirations.

Is our school of this type? Have we as students of P. H. S. enough respect for our school to stand up and defend it against slander? Have we reverence enough for our Alma Mater as a song to keep pit high above the level of other songs and in no way lower it to the standard of common ones? Have we enough backbone to stand alone and sing our devotion to our school or are our spines so weak that we are forced to depend upon the school to help us stand while we "aspire" to the standard of common ones? Let us begin today to take as an ideal the words of our "Alma Mater." Let us be true to our school at all times and in all places. If every student begins NOW to be loyal to his "Alma Mater" at all times and begins to love to respect it, we can have a school which will be a "light to our footsteps and a lamp to our pathway." And as earnest students of such a school we shall be an honor to our home, our schools, and our country.
