Lizzie Takes Us Home

Experiences Encountered On An Overland Trip From Florida
BY ELSA M. SEILER

LIZZIE TAKES US HOME

Chapter 18—More Grief

We slept well in the cool mountain air that night, and the next morning got an early start hoping to reach Cumberland, and possibly Unlvontown before night.

We had not gone far when Lizzie began to shimmy, and we looked for a garage, to have her behavior corrected. There was a restaurant and dance hall in connection with the garage, and I went into the former to wait until the repairs could be completed. The mechanic was eating his breakfast, and when that was finished he inspected the car and announced that we needed new bushings in the front wheels.

The Boss told him to go ahead and I stayed in the restaurant and read a magazine I found there, while the Boss watched the repairs. Bo was with me as there were two dogs connected with the place, and he showed a desire to fight. He was very uneasy, seeming to be afraid that the car would go away and leave him, and whined and fussed most of the morning. I bought some candy, played a mechanical violin, dropping in a nickel, and did all sorts of things to amuse myself, and how the time did drag.

I talked with the woman who owned the place, and her daughter, a tiny fairy-like creature, who looked to be about fourteen, but whom I later learned was nearly twenty. She won Bo's heart with the gift of a big bowl of bread and milk, and finally he fell down by the fire and went to sleep.

They told me that during the winter the snow had been so heavy that in crossing the mountains we had been obliged to "carry the flag." A car going over the mountain would travel with the flag, leaving it at the other side, at the foot of the mountain and the next car would take it back. Cars were not allowed to start unless the flag was on their side. At the moment there was only a single track and no place to turn out.

At noon we ordered sandwiches and coffee, and still the car was not ready. I finished the magazine, and it was not until three o'clock that we were ready to start. I was bitterly disappointed for we had been delayed so much that I knew we would not reach home before the first of the week, as we were making such slow progress.

We reached Cumberland, but Lizzie still continued to shimmy, in spite of the costly treatment she had just had. So we stopped at a machine shop and a mechanic there gave her another treatment. In the meantime I chatted with a man at a filling station and found that we could avoid the rest of the high mountains by changing our route. He gave us full instructions and we started out toward Frostburg.

Still Lizzie failed to walk steadily, and again we stopped at a garage and had her take another treatment. This time the mechanic seemed to find the seat of the trouble, and she behaved in a more sober manner.

We had been carrying our last year's license on the front of the car, as Florida provided, but one, and it was often a means of making friends when people saw our license and knew we were from the Buckeye state.

Out of Frostburg, we were stopped by a young motor cycle cop, who seemed to feel it was his duty to send us down for having our license on the front of the car. We had gone through big "ties" up to this time, talked with traffic cops, and had not been bothered, though this young fellow read our car duty very decidedly, and it was of us to argue and possibly be arrested on some trumped up charge in consequence.

We drove alone, hoping to make a few miles that day, over one hill after the other, and in fact it was just "one dam hill after the other" and the cold wind blew in the car, and we could see snow along the roadside. The day was dark, and we longed for a warm comfortable haven to spend the night. Finally on top of a hill we saw a large white house, and on the fence a sign, "Rooms for Tourists." I got out, went up to the house and the door was opened by a little girl in response to my knock.

I inquired if we could get a room, and she called her mother who said she would take up and also our canine companion. The man of the house showed us where to put the car in a

HIGH TENSION LINES OF OHIO POWER CO. TO BE USED BY B. & O.

It is understood that the high tension lines of the Ohio Power Company, for which surveys have just been made from Plymouth to Willard, will be connected up to the B. & O. shops at Willard for the purpose of supplying power for the heavier type machines now being installed at the shops in Willard. Most of the machinery will have individual motors. Nothing definite can be learned as to how soon the line will be completed, but it is understood that putting up poles will begin at once.

Automobile traffic was unusually heavy early Monday morning, touring from the south going up to the lakes to spend the holiday. No accidents were reported in the immediate vicinity.

The Fourth was observed very quietly in Plymouth, the promiscuous shooting of fireworks did not disturb the peace of the day, as only a small amount of noise was made throughout the 24-hour period.

Automobile traffic was unusually heavy early Monday morning, touring from the south going up to the lakes to spend the holiday. No accidents were reported in the immediate vicinity.

Accidental deaths over the Fourth of July end holiday mounted to twenty Monday night. Several others may die as the result of accidents.

Twelve lives were lost in traffic mishaps in the state in which automobiles figured. Two children died from burns and one adult lost an arm while arranging a fireworks display.

Two were drowned and three met death by other accidental means.

The day was an unusually warm one, the heat running up the mercury on the right side of the thermometer on Monday noon, when his cheek bone was crushed. Mr. Clark was in the act of looking over construction work going on at his home on Plymouth street, and had started across from one wall to the other when he realized that there was a possibility of the board breaking.

When he turned he made a step for the surface of the wall but missed his footing, striking his face on the top of the wall.

The shock and pain were so great that he was unconscious for several hours. A local physician was summoned who rendered first aid.

Just what injured Mr. Clark will suffer from the mishap cannot be determined. However, late reports from his home state that his condition still remains serious although he is slightly improved.

Falling from a board supported by two walls of a cellar under construction, W. A. ## Sweet Corn Prime Only Short Time

Pull sweet corn at the prime stage and eat it at once if you like it at its sweetest. A little practice with the finger tips and some close observation of the husk will enable one to spot the good ones.

The early varieties, as Golden Bantam, reach their prime 20 days after silking. The later varieties, Stowell's Evergreen and Country Gentleman, reach the prime stage, about 22 days after silking. Prime sweet corn should be mostly "milk," which contains the sugars and just a little dough to give it consistency.

The prime period lasts only a short time, about three days with the ordinary sweet corn. The sugars rapidly change to starch and the corn becomes tasteless and starchy as the ripening continues.

The selection of sweet corn, according to crop specialists at the Ohio State University, is being made for a variety that has a slow development of starch. This will keep the corn sweet a longer time.

More than half the sugar in sweet corn, experiments show, turns to starch within 24 hours after the corn is pulled off the stalk. If it is stored in a warm place the change is much faster. Gardeners say, "Have the water-boiling when you start roasting ears."

Sunday school at 10 a.m. Chas. Hammann, Superintendent. Sunday, July 18, has been designated as Sunday School Rally for Cass township.

We urge on every one who is not in the habit of attending regularly, to be on hand in time. If you know of some one not a member of any other school bring him along. We are not promising prizes for attendance, we never have the blues nor do we ever see red but we want every one in this township in one of the schools, next Sunday as well as every Sunday. You can be of help to us and we try to benefit you.

Sermon at 11. Subject—Christian Life a Race—Neb. 12:1-2.

Epworth League at 7 p.m.

At 8 p.m. the pastor will give the last illustrated lecture for the season, and we invite every lover of good pictures and interested in the wonderful work Uncle Sam and his missionaries have accomplished in the Philippines Islands to enjoy this wonderful lecture. Magnificent streets and highways, schools and churches mark the onward march of a high civilization in these our island possessions, since Old Glory has thrown its protecting folds over the same.

We invite you to our regular church services, if you are not a member of another church. We claim that the religion of Christ develops both a sense of moral obligation and a sentiment of worship, both so much needed in this age of commercialism and higher criticism. In all the ethical writings of the present as well as the past age, no writer has ever attempted to bring before the student a code of moral obligations, which can, by any stretch of imagination, be classed with the writings of Holy writ; as contained in the sermon on the mount. The sentiments there expressed have ever enabled mankind, emancipating the world from the thralldom of superstition and moral torpor.

These principles we stress in all our sermons. Come and meet with us. Be assured you always find a welcome at the church of the glad hand.

See Day When Telephone Wires in Cables Will Span the United States

Progress!
That is the story of the development of long distance telephone service.

The first line ran from Boston to Providence. Then came the New York-Boston connecting link followed by the New York-Philadelphia line. In 1888 a "long" span of wire connected New York with Buffalo and the telephone men began to dream of the telephone line that would connect New York and Chicago.

As in most cases where effort accompanies the dream, the reality is only a matter of time. That was 1892. New York-Chicago was joined. It was the coming of a great celebration among telephone men, Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, being one of the principal participants.

But the time came when there was a new dream. The lines connecting New York and Chicago were subject to yearly damage from sleet, snow and wind storms—sometimes the open wires would fail completely. The new dream visioned a cable, the wires protected from the sleet and the snow and the wind by a metal sheath.

Late in 1925 this dream also came true, with appropriate ceremonies.

Dreams? The telephone men are still dreaming and the dreams of today are of a cable that will join New York, Chicago, St. Louis and stretch across the mountains and valleys, the deserts and deserts, and finally reach the West Coast.

And when dreams become a reality—as eventually they will—they will run from coast to coast, the Atlantic-Pacific long distance telephone cable,

THE APPETIZING APPLE

There are hundreds of ways of serving apples and one should study to serve them in ways out of the ordinary.  Sausages and Fennel. Prick the sausages well with a fork. Place in a deep frying pan, pour water to cover the bottom of the pan, cover and cook over a moderate fire. When the water evaporates, remove the cover, turn several times, to brown well all over, turn out on a platter and keep hot while frying. Fry apples that have been cored and cut into thick slices in the sausage fat. Garnish the sausages with overlapping rings of fried apple.

Apple Sauce Meringue Pie. Prepare a pastry lined pie plate and use the following for a filling: To two cups of apples add a cup of cold sugar, a teaspoonful of cinnamon, a dash of nutmeg, a cupful of cider vinegar, two egg yolks beaten light; mix and pour into the shell, bake until set, cover with a meringue using the egg whites, brown and serve hot or cold.

Apple Cake. Take one pint of sifted flour, three level teaspoons of baking powder, a dash of salt, half a cupful of butter, one egg yolk well-beaten and a cupful of milk. Mix as usual, and one heaping cupful of dried bread crumbs, and the stiffened egg white. Bake in a shallow pan about half an hour. Serve with cream and sugar.

Apple Toast. Cut six peeled apples into quarters, then cut into slices. Put two tablespools of butter in a saucepan, add a cupful of powdered sugar and two tablespools of powdered sugar and two tablespools of water. Slew quickly, stirring the apples to keep from burning. When tender cut slices of bread one-half inch thick, dip two tablespools of butter in a frying pan and fry the bread slices until yellow. When crispied place on a dish, sprinkle with white sugar. Spread the apples over the toast about an inch thick and serve hot.

The Little Red School House

A few days ago a nation-wide spelling contest in Washington was won by a Kentucky miss who has secured all of her education up to this time in a one-room schoolhouse was regarded as so noteworthy that most of the newspapers who told about the spelling contest featured it in the headlines.

And yet there is nothing so remarkable about this after all. Up until recently the great majority of our public men acknowledged the one-room schoolhouse as their starting point, and there are still many in active life successful in one way or another, who hearken back to the same kind of an educational beginning.

Now of course we are building schoolhouses a great deal more modern in outline. In addition to the class rooms, there are assembly rooms, laboratories, gymnasiums, etc., not only in the cities and towns but out in the rural districts as well.

This is all well enough, and we ought to pride ourselves on our interest in education. At the same time, it must be remembered, that artistic buildings with all modern equipment, will not take the place of personal character, and individual effort. The teacher who doesn't want to learn, who has no ambition to become a useful citizen will fall in a modern classroom as easily as in a log schoolhouse, and the ambitious youngster will not be defeated by lack of all modern conveniences.

This does not mean that we ought to give up our modern sanitary buildings and go back to hewn log desks. But we ought not to lose sight of the fact that something besides modern equipment is necessary. The value of schooling does not lie entirely in the assimilation of facts. Discipline and character, building ought to be developed as well as scientific knowledge. This is of course in part up to the teachers, too. If they are earnest, then patriotic, practical Americans, then the pupils will get the right sort of training. But if they are infected with the virus of socialism, either pink or red, the youngsters are apt to get the wrong start in life, and spacious assembly halls and modern laboratories will not save them.

And we can be thankful that nearly all of our common and high school teacher are of the real American kind.

In the meantime the success of the bright little Kentucky miss in the Washington contest is proof of the fact that the little red schoolhouse on the side of the hill has not been entirely dispensed with.

One-Half Mill Levy Goes Into Platform

"One candidate for governor has approved the highway tax plan of The Ohio State Automobile Association," says A. E. Mittendorf, President of Cincin-

"Governor A. V. Donahue is announcing as a plank of his platform, that he stands for a significant state tax, the money to be used for the construction of roads on the state highway system.

"The half-mill road levy should never have been repealed." The State Automobile Association has long advocated its re-enactment into law. It would produce for state road building approximately $6,400,000 a year.

"Expect that all other candidates for governor will approve our plan of taxation. Every candidate can do so with good conscience, for the law is just and equitable."

The total tax valuation of all property in Ohio for 1925, as reported by President Mittendorf, is $12,679,776,500. A tax of 1/2 mill on each dollar would yield in exact figures $6,339,888.25.

Mr. Mittendorf says that 73 per cent of this money would come from the cities and villages; as 73 per cent of the taxable property is in cities and villages. Yet all of the money would be spent outside of cities and villages for the building of state roads.

"Farmers cannot afford to miss the opportunity of this law," continued the President. "They will be the largest beneficiaries. Why, a farm valued at $2,000, (and many are value no higher for tax purposes), would pay only $1.00 a year toward this tax, and yet all the road building with the money would be in a farming and rural districts.

"Though the cities and villages would pay 73 per cent of the tax, I have yet to hear the first complaint from them."

In the reading master put out by The Ohio State Automobile Association, it has been stated that motorists of Ohio are already taxed heavily and the equitable plan is to levy a general tax on all taxpayers or provide part of the money for road purposes.

Motorists pay personal taxes on their cars, and they pay also license and gasoline taxes, all of which amount to many millions of dollars. President Mittendorf calculates. Good roads benefit not only motorists, but all people of the state, since a part of the $6,000,000 spent each year by the state for construction and maintenance of roads should be paid by the general public and should be obtained by means of a state tax.

It should be remembered that the motor car owners, as a class, represent a substantial part of the real estate owners in the city and country. Therefore, it is safe to say that 75 per cent of this added tax would be paid by motorists.

"The proposal is economically sound," says President Mittendorf, "and we welcome Governor Donahue's support of it."

SMALL TOWN PHILOSOPHY

What you don't know costs you a lot of money. In real life the great villains seem to go scot-free.

Ben says: "When certain people find steady work, you know business is booming."

When a two-year old debtor finally pays his bill the money seems like pure velvet."

Some men are so very much at home anywhere that they make other people feel like company.

"FREE" SPEECH

England is notoriously liberal in the matter of freedom of speech, but when Mr. Saklatvala, the communist member of the house, began to preach mutiny to the army and navy he was promptly clapped in jail. He is the man whom the State Department excluded from this country, to the indignation of the radicals.—New York Evening World.

One reason we can chase dollars, as Europe charges we do, is that we have plenty of them around to chase.—Pittsburgh Gazette.

It sometimes happens that what the candidate thought was a call by the people was merely an echo of his own voice.—Detroit News.

An open-minded statesman is one whose stand is virtually anywhere in the broad ground between 100 per cent liquor and 100 per cent enforcement.—Detroit News.

One thing we can never understand about vaudeville is why a dancer thinks she is expected to sing and a singer is never content unless she dances.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

If it be prohibition that has checked the coming of British lecturers, that is a strong point in its favor.—Pittsburgh Gazette-Times.

GIRL SCOUT NOTES

The Girl Scouts held their regular meeting on Wednesday, June 30th, nine members present. The girls gave their retiring captain, Mrs. Jeffrey a beautiful little brooch in recognition of her work. Mrs. Seller making the presentation speech.

Some work was done in drilling and various items taken up and decided at the business meeting.

Captain Laretta Frone, of Woodlawn troop consented to work with the girls this summer, and we feel that we are fortunate in having her with us, as she has been making a special study of scouting during the winter.

We meet Saturday from 1st to at least eight girls who have passed their tenderfoot test so that the troop can be registered and belong to the national organization, with all its rights and privileges.

As we will work under the laws of the national body as soon as we are registered it will be necessary to those interested to know something about what they are.

Any girl between the ages of ten and eighteen is eligible to take her tenderfoot test, which must be done within two months after she joins the troop.

Any girl who is absent from three meetings without a written excuse will be dropped from the rolls, and if she is dropped twice is not eligible for membership in the future. She must be present at roll call at every regular meeting if she wishes to obtain the rank of member.

Our plans take in uniforms for the girls, the price of which, according to the national rules, must be earned by the girls, or at least part of it.

I hope that all the girls whose names are on the membership roll will try to attend every meeting, as there will be questions to be decided at every session, and if you want a voice in the matter it will pay you to be there, and also we are taking up troop formation and other questions of drill while Captain Frone is here to help us, so if you want to be a real first class scout, come and see all the good times we have planned.

E. M. SEILER, Captain.

WAIU Moving Radio Station At Columbus

Effective July 3rd, a bright, optimistic plan of the present transmission plant of the W. A. I. U. broadcasting station of the American Insurance Union was discontinued, pending the opening of a new plant now rapidly approaching completion on the Elks' Country club grounds, eight and one-half miles north of Columbus.

Part of the equipment now being utilized in the present plant will be moved to the new location and used in the construction of the new plant.

The new W. A. I. U. station has been designed by the plant engineers and being constructed under their supervision for the elimination of any detrimental harmonic radiation is to be used.

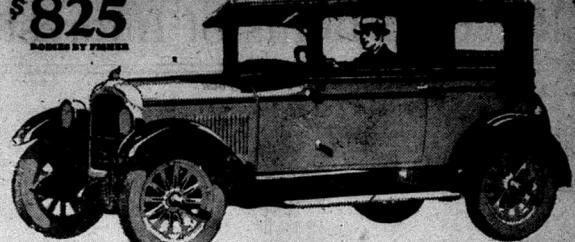

Modulation of the radio frequency currents will be accomplished along entirely new lines, covering an audio frequency range from fifty cycles to several thousand cycles, assuring listeners an absolute fidelity of tone and clarity.

During construction of the new station no programs will be broadcast. It is estimated that the transmitting plant will be ready for service by the 19th day of July, 1926.

Columbus And Cincinnati Will Have New Road

COLUMBUS, O.—With the awarding of the contract for the improvement of the section between South Charleston and the Green County line to W. H. Ringwald and son, Chillicothe, States Route No. 28, is either improved or under construction its entire length from Cincinnati to Columbus. Some form of macadam is used all the way.

Route 28, on its way from Columbus to Cincinnati, passes three county seats, London, Xenia, and Lebanon, and when completed, will be the best route between the Capital City and the Ohio River metropolis. It is somewhat shorter than the Three Cs.

It pays to keep the place clean, says Professor Shah, in cheaper insurance and possibly a farm saved. Never carry matches loose in the pocket; keep them in a metal case, then they will not fall out into the hay. Be careful where burn matches, cigarette butts, pipe ashes, etc., are left. Clothes and waste soaked with linseed oil and turpentine, left lying around after painting are extremely dangerous.

Plymouth Wins from Celeryville

Poor fielding brought defeat to Celeryville last Wednesday. Plymouth with but additional warriors made it too much for the Celeryville stickers. Plymouth's pitcher was one of her many points, and, for the first time, a little show for Celeryville. Nearly every Celeryville player is credited with an error for defeat. Her weakest batters were the heaviest hitters.

Plymouth fended the ball well but made enough errors to give Celeryville two runs.

Eating Greater Cause of Death Than Drinking

Drink is the second greatest cause of disease and death. Food comes first, then drink. Excluding alcoholic beverages, there are dozens of drink which are dangerous to health. It is determined, particularly to children. Milk is the best drink for children. Not only is it drink, but food as well—the most nearly perfect food known to man.

Milk is an all-the-year-round drink which children often drink before against drinking water. The consumption, however, may be overcome by the introduction of the mixed drink. Milk or diluted evaporated milk may be mixed with eggs or used in fruit juices or in some other way which distinguishes the fact that the drink contains milk. In the early months when the child naturally drinks more than in cooler weather, it is wise to vary the ways of serving milk, so as not to create a distaste for this important food.

In connection with mixed drinks, the following formulas for milk beverages may aid mothers in serving something new:

Iced Coco

2 tbsp. coco 1/4 cups evaporated milk
2 tbsp. sugar 1 cup hot water
1/2 cup cold water 1/4 tsp. vanilla
1/2 grain salt

Foreign Closers Subject to Disease

Red clover, many foreign cultures and not adapted to Ohio conditions and in tests at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station have proved very susceptible to disease. In the experiments, Canadian, Wisconsin and Ohio strains have very little anthracnose, while some foreign strains have as high as 60 percent of infected stems.

Dwarf Essex rape seeded in the corn at the last cultivation proved a profitable addition for the lambs on this lot in September and October.

Soybeans grown with the corn increased its value for lambing down, but their effect in cheapening the gains was not as striking as that of rape, when linseed cake and clover were fed with each combination.

Diseased plants are easily recognized from the description given by Curtis May, assistant in plant pathology at the Station. At first they are slightly wilted and a lighter green than healthy plants, he says. Later the leaves die, turn brown, dry and hang down on the petioles or leaf stems. Then the stems also die and turn brown.

The disease produces lesions on the stems and leaf petioles. These are bordered more or less with black and may have a grayish center. They also vary from small spots to an inch or more in length.

Spores are produced in these spots in great abundance and when the plants are wet, spread the disease to neighboring plants.

The difference in cost of native and foreign seed is more than offset by difference in yield and by the introduction of a disease that my have to be fought for. It is safer and more profitable Mr. May says, to plant home-grown seed.

Grain-Fed Calves Fattened on Grass

Does it pay to fatten grain-fed calves on grass? This is being tested at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station where forty of the steer calves that were viewed by stockmen on Ohio Livestock Day are now being finished on bluegrass pasture.

The feed of the several groups of these calves during the winter and early spring was varied from a ration of hay and silage by additions of corn and oilmeal. The records up to June 1 showed that the more corn or corn meal fed, the greater the gain in the ration, the greater the profit on dry lot feeding.

However, the calves were not marketed in June but were turned on pasture to determine how the different winter and spring rations will affect the economy of subsequent gains. The teaching of limited experience is that cattle that have been getting considerable corn in their winter ration should not be turned on grass, but should be finished in dry lot.

The calves on this experiment are now receiving ground corn and one pound of oilmeal each daily in addition to the hay pasture. They may be seen at the new beef cattle barn at the Experiment Station.

Ohio Orchard Day

Fruit growers are invited by the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station to visit the orchards on the experiment farm at Wooster, Friday, Aug. 20. The program for the day will include addresses by horticulturists of national reputation and inspection tours.

The orchards and vineyards are heavily laden with fruit and will offer an excellent opportunity to study varieties and compare the effect of various treatments and methods of cultural new.

The variety studies will include several hundred standard and new varieties of apples, peaches, plums and grapes.

The pruning experiments will show the effect on tree growth and fruitfulness of light and heavy pruning at different seasons, and how to prune the different fruits so as to preserve the best form of tree.

Spraying problems will be discussed and the trees and fruit will show the effect of different sprays.

Many varieties are self-fertile. They will not produce good crops unless pollinated by other varieties. Extensive experiments will show the effect of cross-pollination and the proper combinations of varieties for best results.

The relative merits of various cultural methods and of fertilizer treatments are revealed by the test plots which will prove of great interest to any practical grower.

Lambing Down Corn

The lowest and least economical grain in the experiment on lambing down corn was made by lambs which had access to standing corn and good bluegrass pasture, but no supplement feed.

Lambs that received a small amount of grain or cake, hay, or both in addition to the standing corn and pasture finished quickly for market and made greater profit than any of the lots from which these supplemental feeds were omitted.

Sunburn Management For Laying Flock

An early summer poultry management program outlined by the poultry specialists at the Ohio State University is as follows:

1. Summer egg production can be maintained by inducing the hens to eat a well balanced mash. This may be done by moistening the mash with water and feeding all the grain raw in the evening.

2. Gilt Care. The lactating hens bring a heavy prick now than in October or November. Most hens that stop laying in June or July never get back into full production until the next spring. Go over them two or three times a month, at night, while they are on the roosts.

3. Cage the broody hen with the culls and sell them if they go broody more than once. A hen that is caught the first day she takes to the nest and confined in a slatted bottom coop in a cool place with plenty of mash and milk can be brought back into production in about three days. If allowed to set three days, they will be out of production for at least ten days.

4. Chick mites will soon be getting troublesome. Paint the roosts with coal tar disinfectant. Used tractor oil is good but it does not last long enough. Dust or dip the hens with sodium boride.

5. Pasture is just as important to the laying and growing flock as it is to the cattle. It is time to move the brooder house and change range lest it become filthy and diseased. Chicks without plenty of pasture or good clean range cannot grow strong and vigorous. This leaves them without the stamina that is necessary to successfully resist roup during the damp winter months.

K. O. Stomach Worm And Swell the Profit

Knock out the stomach worms in your sheep now if the flock was not treated before being let out on pasture. On short pasture the flock may be heavily infested without showing any immediate effects of the worm.

During the summer the entire flock can be treated with profit every 60 days, says L. A. Kaufman, extension specialist in animal husbandry at the Ohio State University. The pest can be kept in check if the flock can be put on new pasture at frequent intervals.

The treatment suggested by the colony is a copper sulfate solution of nicotine sulphate (which is safe). In preparing the copper sulphate solution, dissolve two cans of dark blue copper sulphate crystals in one gallon of water. The nicotine sulphate solution is prepared by adding two teaspoons in one quart of water.

Lambs as light as 40 pounds should be protected with the treatment. Give sheep weighing 50 to 60 pounds one ounce of either solution, move both, 60 to 80 pounds, one and one-half ounces, 80 to 100 pounds two ounces, and all sheep weighing over 100 lbs. three ounces. Either an oil can or syringe works well in giving the solution to the sheep.

The university has found that the best results are obtained if the sheep are not fed for eighteen hours before treating and 6 hours after treating. Whenever possible, turn them out on pasture that has not been grazed by sheep two months previous.

Once equipped to treat the sheep can be treated at the rate of one a minute.

Danger of injury from poison ivy is reduced if you wash the affected parts with a thick lather immediately after exposure to the ivy.
