Rev. Courtland Miller Will Leave Pastorate at Columbus City, Ind., to Assume Louisville Pulpit.

Rev. Courtland Miller, who is at present pastor of the Lutheran church at Columbus City, Ind., will leave his charge there on October fourth to take up his duties as pastor of a large church in Louisville, Ky. Rev. Miller has been in Columbus City for the past seven or eight years, and during his stay there has built up the church to a high standard, it at present has a membership of over 800.

The call of the First Lutheran church of Louisville was received by Rev. Miller a few weeks ago and after much consideration decided to accept it, taking charge on October fourth. This church boasts of a membership of over 2500 members and is the largest in the synod of Indiana, Kentucky and Tennessee.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller and family have been in Plymouth for the past two weeks, but returned to their home last Tuesday.

WILLARD ATTORNEY FILES SUIT AGAINST BALTIMORE & OHIO

William G. Burwell, Willard attorney, has commenced an unusual lawsuit against the Baltimore and Ohio railroad at Willard. Back in 1923 and 1924 when that railroad was exporting great difficulty in getting a sufficient supply of water for locomotives, Burwell recommended that deep wells be drilled, the petition states. It is pointed out that the company at that time declared the plan not feasible. But the railway company eventually followed Burwell's suggestion and has solved its water problem, it is asserted.

During periods of dry weather, it has been necessary for the railroad to bring water from Sandusky Bay to Willard. However, since striking a tremendous flow of water a few months ago, this condition has been overcome.

America Moves to Aid Her Own Thousands of Orphans Left Homeless by Conflict

Told of Need of 35,000 Orphaned and Dependent Children of Veterans, Nation Comes Swiftly to Assistance Through Endowment Fund Being Set Up by American Legion—Child Welfare Organization Nearly Completed All Over Country and Help Being Given in Vast Number of Cases.

AMERICAN WORLD WAR SOLDIERS' HOMERLESS AND IN DIRE NEED, ARE BEING AIDED BY AMERICAN LEGION

There are no orphans, and they are being cared for, not in Belgium, not in France, during the greater part of the war, more than 250 children were in Germany. They were wearing these ill-assorted rags, these odds and ends of clothes, these shoes out of one sort from choice but from another one to the good old U. S. A., and they are the richest and proudest state of this rich and proud Union.

Not are they, by any means, the only American World War orphans. The surveys made by the American Legion and the United States veterans' bureau indicate that there are some 35,000 of them. Of these, 8,000 need help and attention more or less urgently. Then, there are several hundred emergency cases in dire need of immediate assistance.

To meet these conditions, a three-fold program of child welfare is being carried out by the Legion. The work involves home and school, and the child is to be maintained in its own home with its own parents wherever possible, placement in foster homes under constant supervision and strictest moral and financial investigation to determine that home and child are suited to each other, and where no other arrangement can be made, temporary emergency care in a Legion billet operated on the "rotating plan" with a "house mother" in charge of each cottage.

Ten thousand of these war orphans were aided to some extent, directly or indirectly, by the child welfare activities of the Legion and its auxiliaries during the past year. In twenty-six states the auxiliary alone helped 2,223 children. The Legion state organization in Pennsylvania cared for 200 children, a typical example of the work done by state and local Legion agencies.

Nearly two of the most extreme emergency cases, the only kind referred to the children's welfare division at national headquarters at Indianapolis, are being cared for by that division. About seventy-five of these children are at the three billets at Deer Lake, Michigan; Clarkburg, New York; and Lettsville, Kansas.

Where the Supply - Goodwin advocates common sense as a solution of world problems, but many people will consider the care of orphans to be more difficult than the discipline of Chicago Herald and Examiner.

Much Wheat Is Being Handed Through The Plymouth Elevator

Wheat prices have been changing daily since harvest began. New wheat brought $1.25 and has steadily declined until the present price is around $1.30 per bushel. A Toledo report says that seventy-five per cent of the farmers have unloaded their crops on the market. The wheat yield in this section was unusually good this year.

Interesting News From Shiloh

SHILOH METHODIST CHURCH
Sunday school at 10 a. m. Chas. Hamman, superintendent, followed by sermon.
Subject: Christ Within. The Hope of Glory. Col. 1:27.
League session at 6:30 p. m. No visiting sermon.

We are now preparing a lecture of greatest interest at this time of the history of our sister Republic across the Rio Grande, entitled Mexico, past present and future. This lecture will be illustrated on Sunday evening, September 5, with original views. How anxious we are that out of all this trouble there may come peace, truth and righteousness. Remembering that promise of peace was the dying legacy of our blessed Saviour, we naturally ask the question "What peace can this mean?" Angel choirs echoed the refrain on Behlema's plan and it is the peace every soul needs. This can not be found else, where but through the blood of our cross. Listen: Being justified by faith, we have peace with God. This is different from the counterfeit article in which so many of us are content to live, ye even to die.

The workings peace is all right, as long as the stream runs smoothly and no clouds mar the landscape, but when the murmuring of the cataract is heard and the storm clouds with such peace does not suffice.

Often when the cup of joy is filled to the brim, there is a sweet feeling of apprehension, that the contentment might be spilled, or the cup be dashed to the ground.

A false security, obtained in moments of emotionality may delight in saying peace, peace, when in reality there is no genuine peace, for like the writing upon the sands by the ocean shore, it will be obliterated by the first wave of adversity.

But thanks be to God, the peace which Christ gives to the soul, is deep, calm, lasting. The world with all its blameworthy can not take it away. It is for this peace we pray. It is this peace we characterize in our sermons. Come and meet us in worshiping the Prince of Peace. You are always welcome at the church of the glad hand.

NAMES STAGE AS ONLY ALL-AMERICAN IDEAL

WINNIE LEIGHTNER

Winnipeg, Minn. - Has become real-day of mine. You'll all my heart love to stay.

NEW YORK CITY—Winnie Lightner, musical comedy favorite of Broadway, declares that the stage is the only really all-American profession left in this country. Miss Lightner is a descendant of the earliest Dutch settlers. She was born in a little town near Harrisburg, in Lancaster county, Pennsylvania. "I am very proud of being a genuine American because there are so few of us left," Miss Lightner explains. "It is not that I mind foreigners coming to this country. I think as long as we have so much space and so much rich land, we scarcely have the right to keep out those who can hardly make a living in their own countries. "At the same time, it makes me a little sad to see all professions usurped by strangers. That is why I am glad that the theatre, where I have cast my own lot, remains comparatively safe. "Of course, every season, Broadway produces a number of plays by foreigners and a number of musical attractions, too. At the same time, our actors are, in the main, Americans. It is difficult, I think, for foreigners to entertain according to American standards. "Our audiences may take certain foreign novelties to their hearts for a while but they are certain to come back eventually to their own. It is only a three or four generation American who understands the psychology of a Yankee, whether that Yankee be of the farm or city. "It is hard for foreigners to interpret our music, too. I have often wondered what a foreigner would do with one of my pet songs 'Lonesome Melody O'Mine.' Audiences love it, but most foreign actors would spoil it.

GIRL SCOUT NOTES

The girl scouts met for their regular meeting on August 11, with fourteen present, in spite of the extremely hot weather. Mitty King and Thelma Kerman have passed their tenderfoot test, making a total of fourteen, who are now second class scouts. The tenderfoot pins were presented to seven girls who were present, and there are more who have earned them. They were absent from the meeting. Ethel Chappelle has now passed the second class test, and Capt. Seiler has also earned the right to the second class badge. The girls are ordering their uniforms, and before long I think the entire troop will be in uniform.

SILLS IN ANOTHER HE-MAN CHARACTER

"Milton Sills' best picture since 'The Sea Hawk' is the way those who have seen 'Puppets,' his latest First National starring vehicle, are describing this photoplay, which comes to the Shelby Castamba on Saturday. Sills in the role of the Italian proprietor of a little puppet theatre in New York's lowest East Side, gives one of the best screen performances of his career.

Gertrude Olmstead is seen in the leading feminine role, and an excellent supporting cast includes Francis McDonald, Mathilde Comont, William Ricciardi, Lucien Prival and Nick Thompson. George Archambaud, who has directed many First National successes, directed 'Puppets,' which was produced by Al Rockett, one of the makers of Abraham Lincoln. "Puppets" is the story of an Italian who has come to America and has made a success of life and has acquired a tiny puppet theatre in the Italian quarter of New York. He meets the one girl and marries her, only to depart for Europe within an hour after the ceremony to fight for his country in the world war. His wife hears of his death and falls in love with his dearest friend. At such a critical moment the husband returns, dead but alive to the danger to his happiness.

MANAGER PENS PALPITATING ODE

The manager of the Castamba Theatre, Shelby, has apparently been hiding his light under a bushel, or else hasn't been found out until yesterday when this light caught fire and emerged in the form of a bright little verse covering matters of headgear. The only excuse for this verse is that the Castamba Theatre will show Johnny Hines' new First National picture, "The Brown Derby" next Friday which happened to be the inspiration for the following verse:

A MATTER OF HATS
When you're down on your luck
And your brain's in a muck—
And your heart has it's troubles and cares;
Good fortune you'll net
If you'll go out and get
The Brown Derby that Johnny Hines wears.
It's a great little hat—
And a neat one at that;
You'll be ready to take on all dares;
Just forget you are dead
And put right on your head—
The Brown Derby that Johnny Hines wears.

It will chase away blues,
And the girl that you choose
Will come right out and say that she cares;
She'll agree on a flat,
If you get the right hat—
The Brown Derby that Johnnie Hines wears.
"The Brown Derby," incidentally, has just been released by First National.

The Value of Reputation

The value of a man is what he does, the worth he shows the world. He may be ever so good inside. If he doesn't prove it, he's worthless.

The value of a watch, a skillet, an automobile, is what it does, the worth it shows its user. It may be of highest serving power. If it can't prove it, it's useless. The reputation of any product is the known proof of its worth. The value of that known proof is that you can recognize it.

When you buy an advertised watch or skillet, you buy value with a reputable manufacturer's name behind it. You don't have to wait till you use it to know it. The qualities which made it advertisable have proved the worth for you. You need only ask for the product by name. Fastened securely to that name are quality, service, satisfaction.

The Sesqui-Centennial

As Seen By Miss Marguerite Boardman, Who Explored The Many Amazing Exhibits Shown at Philadelphia

Except for the Pageant, "Freedom," this completes the Sesqui. Freedom was given three times each week in the Sesqui stadium, one of the largest ever built. Stage crowds look small in it. The lighting is such that it is like day light. It seemed odd to be in "daylight" and then look up and see a full moon in a dark sky. At one end was erected a vast stage. After the old Greek idea, smaller ones were built on either side for less important scenes.

"Freedom" is one of the largest pageants ever produced. The work was staged by the famous It. H. Burrade, who is one of the most prominent producers in New York, and ranks among the first of the Theatre world. His title to this title is undisputed after seeing "Freedom." The cast was supported by such as Bolleahakoff, and Lorrina, Belle Story and Oscar Ragland. The music was from Sousa and Chopin.

This pageant is Philadelphia's tribute to the men and women famous in the world's history. It is the story of the battle for freedom, waged from Prehistoric Times to the Present which ends with all Nations signing a new declaration of "Peace on Earth. God will reward men."

The first episode was the Stone Age. Huge dinosaurs and bears roamed the field and stage, one finally being killed in an attempt to abduct a child. The methods of living in that age, were certainly unique, but far from Romantic, as is supposed. What is romantic about having to do away with an "ichthyosaurus" before finishing a proposal.

The trial for right and freedom was traced thru the Egyptian period of Ramees II with its gorgeous costumes and courtly temples—thru the Grecian Period with Alexander; the birth of Christianity; the fall of Caesar. The signing of the Magna Charta son expressed the feeling of the common and the rare of the Royalty that one could see Freedom moving forward. The costumes and lighting effects were beautiful. The stupendous number of participants and their cooperation was wonderful.

Then in order—Joan of Arc with her tribune, as she was burnt at the stake, the decapitation of Charles I. In the fall of the Bastille, flames shot upward as high as the stage, and the walls fell with a roar.

The discovery of America was staged, as Columbus planted the flag of Spain in the New World. Penn's treaty with the Indians followed—the Boston Tea Party, Paul Revere's ride, Patrick Henry, Valley Forge, the Proclamation of Emancipation and on to the Present.

A more wonderful production, I have never seen staged, except "The Miracle." Wednesday saw us begin our trip to the Historic points of the city. There were about seven buses, every one packed, and we had one grand time as you can imagine. It is really a wonder our chaperones had any nerves left after this trip.

First was Independence Square and Hall. The Square is higher than the street and has to be ascended by a covered. A statue of Penn. is in exact center. Near the entrance of the Hall from Independence Square, is the "Liberty Bell" guarded by two marines. The original wood hanger is yet used. It is so big and heavy and old that it makes one wonder at the ring it might do and has done. The room in which the Declaration was signed seemed too small for so great an event to take place. The furniture, in the rooms of the Hall, is very old. A portrait of each signer is found in a long dining hall, and on the landing of the stairs is a full length portrait of Lafayette.

To me, the rooms were peopled not with 176 school children, but with men who were determining the future of thirteen free states and doing so without any thought of personal danger. They are patterns for all who visit the Hall.

It was not possible to stop at the home of Betsey Ross, but as we passed it, it impressed me as being so small, yet so important. It stands low between two tall buildings and if one has imagination, its hominess is like a smile on a cloudy day.

Penn's grave and graveyard, altho historical, was far from perfect. Greenlawn is far superior both for the "Quiets and the Dead." But never the less, it is a graveyard that has produced history, so we were interested.

On our way to the old centennial grounds of 50 years ago we passed block after block of homes, similar to the Betsey Ross house, yet larger now used in the slum district. With dexterity men have changed history to money and instead of housing the "Quick and the Dead." But never aristocratic, they are now tenements.

Twenty minutes were allowed at the city museum and proved twenty minutes well spent. Everything was investigated from the chef-d'oeuvre to the history of dools. One room was devoted to tiny miniatures and minute pieces of jewelry.

Philadelphia is proud of the fact that she has the largest park, in city limits, of any city. Near one of the drives is located Penn's home. It is straight and plain, rather attractive in its setting of trees and flowers, but it would fit better in a street of like houses, rather than alone. In spite of the fact of Philadelphia's History, it is a rather a dingy city. Yet I suppose any town as old as it is, must be dark and discolored.

We had lunch that day at Camp Ohio, a camp for Ohio tourists, made possible by a Society formed of Bucks eyes living in Pa., at present. We were entertained nicely but had to wait for the Gov. who as usual was late.

I had had ideas of what Valley Forge was like, but when we reached the valley at 3 p.m., it was so different; and I realized that my ideas weren't possible. It is almost vast, an honest to goodness valley. As you reach the top of the hill, on entering you see acres and acres of short green grass, cut by a few roads and well marked with trees. Perhaps a mile away, is Memorial chapel, Washington's headquarters cannot be seen until you round the hill.

The valley is beautiful. It seemed miles before we reached the Headquarters. It is a small stone house, once a home, very attractive and trim, now situated near the top of a large lawn, and surrounded by a low stone wall. As you enter there is a small reception hall. On the right are two rooms, one used by the Gen. as an office, and a dining room. Near the back is a third room.

On the left side of the building is a covered arch, leading to the cellar. Had Washington resided there in summer, instead of the winter months, he would certainly have enjoyed his stay. But the winter siege was the final test of the men who proved themselves to be of steel character, and proved that "no spot on earth is so sacred in the history of the struggle for human liberty, as Valley Forge."

The memorial chapel at Valley Forge has been called the American Westminster. It is a glorious memorial for Washington and his men. Where Washington prayed yesterday for the nation, that nation today offers the same prayer for the Future. Each Sunday service ends with his prayer. Its windows, in Gothic style, represent the History of America, with millions of small pieces of glass, in the colors of America. The central window front is an intricate design of marvelous Gothic beauty.

Critics have pronounced the chapel the smallest, the most wonderful example of Gothic architecture in the world. The 48 carved panels of the ceiling, with the State seals, were the gifts of the 48 states. It has been stated—the Pews are the Pews of Paradise, its ceiling is the Roof of the Republic.

In the dim light of memorial Chapel one feels a deep reverence for God; business and work seems to pause for a time, to consider the need of God, as Washington, as he prayed, put faith in the power of God.

In the stretch of wooded lawn back of the chapel is the National Peace Chime. It consists of thirteen bells, the most perfect in America, of different tone and size, representing the 13 original states; and one large national bell, containing the 48 stars engraved upon it. Unfortunately Ohio has not paid for her star. Each hour from 9 a.m. until sunset hymns and patriotic songs are played and can be heard over the entire valley.

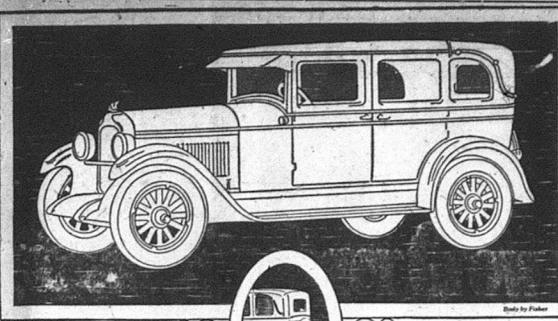

After a short tour of the valley, our picnic supper was served by Port Washington, near the top of the entrance hill. The mounds of the fort are rounded now and grass covered but from each of the five corners peers the eye of a cannon. There is a continual murmur and low roar in the air, for, if one listens carefully, caused, not by haunts of its defenders, but by numerous wasp nests in every canon. Strange to say, not one person was stung while we were there.

The Governor, the Ohio Senator and others spoke to us, in the fort on subjects corresponding to the things we had seen during the day. More than one, spoke of the humanness of Washington and his great soul.

And then just at sunset, the speaker was interrupted by the chimes of the Memorial. Soon after the sun went down.

On the way home, our car proved its reputation by singing and entertaining everybody. We sang war songs in honor of the soldiers with us, love songs in honor of the Captain and his wife and popular Jazz for those who had the blues. At the end of our trip we sang "The End of a Perfect Day." Lucille Henry was one of the prominent conductors of these songs, proving the worth of good voice.

One day of the week, we investigated the Wanamaker building, as guests. The art galleries on the top floor are marvellous. One room contains only two pictures, but each of these occupies one side; "Christ Before Pilate" and "Christ on the Cross." In the Flemish room we noted one portrait of a woman wearing a huge lace collar and every thread of that lace was distinct. At high noon we lunched and listened to the great Wanamaker organ.

During the afternoon we viewed the Camden slums from the top of a double decker bus, crossed the largest suspension bridge built, between Phila. and Camden, over the Delaware. On the return trip on the ferry everyone in our party searched for a quarter for fare and found in great amazement that it was four cents. We decided to make about four trips, but instead, that it best to go to the centennial grounds, that we were forced to ride nine in one taxi.

Friday morning we devoted to shopping and exploring in Phila. We discovered one negro woman directing traffic.

By 12:30, our train was pulling out from Phila. and we were returning home.

During the dinner hour, we stopped at John Brown's grave and fort. It is beneath an unusually high and wooded cliff. The scene was beautiful and it was the river that made it so. The Potomac, at that point is wide, shallow, with many large rocks projecting from the water. At one side for many miles, a channel has been made.

However our stay was cut short by a thunderstorm which came suddenly from over the cliff.

I sat up again all night, but not to view the scenery. There were many besides myself that were dizzy. Something had gone wrong with the food and the tracks, and we became seasick on a Pullman.

But when the train pulled into Columbus the next morning there were very few, but who wished the trip were not over. So many friends had been made, that in all probability would not be seen again, so that many had an idea in their minds, of a reunion in 50 years.

Well, the trip to the East is all over now, but it was made so wonderful for us, that I'm certain that during the next centennial, it will often be recalled.

So when my hair is gray (and long) and my occupation is knitting, and my great-grand children sit around me before a fire place, I'll say "What is the world coming to? Now in my day children didn't have to be entertained all the time, but if you insist, I'll tell you about the time I went to the Centennial seventy years ago. It was wonderful, and—"

Evening worship and song service Plymouth at 7:30. The mid-week services at New Haven have been quite well attended, and will continue each Wed. evening. The pastor will continue the study of Philipianis, then another book will claim our attention.

We are now two weeks from the end of the fiscal business year of the church. Let us all arrange to see that all business closes promptly, that the pastor may have his reports ready before starting to conference.

We belong to one of two classes of church goers. One class, folks are gladly surprised when we are present. To which class do we belong?

A speaker recently said "Temptation is usually taken as an inducement to do wrong. Why should not there be temptation to do right? This should be stronger than that to do wrong. We believe he is CORRECT."

We are promised the pleasure of hearing Judis Carpenter at the M. E. Church on Sunday August 29. We are sure all will be delighted to have the Judge with us, and we will plan to give him a good hearing. The pastor will probably be out of town that day.

Armenian Girls Arrive at Sesqui

Two Little Weavers Will Show Ancient Art at Sesquicentennial

Philadelphia—Two little Armenian girls, expert weavers from Beirut Syria, have just arrived in Philadelphia to demonstrate curveworking at the Sesqui-Centennial Exposition.

The life stories of these girls are tragic. Vartouhi Hovsepian, who is slightly the elder of the two, was deprived of her father when she was six years old by the thrust of a Turkish sword.

Her companion, Hittie Gulenia, kept, was five years old when her family received word that her father who had been forced into the Turkish army, was dead.

Both of these girls are products of Near East Relief care and training. They have been fed, clothed and housed for six years; they have received an elementary school education; and they have been trained as experts in one of the oldest and finest crafts in the world—the weavers—traditionally an art of their people for centuries.

Little Vartouhi, through an interpreter, had some opinions of her own to express.

"Gulenia and I are only two," she says. "They really have been thinking of me for a long time. Some of us in Syria, lots of us in the Russian Caucasus and still more of us in Greece. And America has taken care of us all and is teaching us all trades."

"I'm answer to a question, she spoke rapidly her eyes shining with bravely head-back hair, "I'm glad to be in America. I'd love to live and I'd like to see my father and I want her to see that I am grateful." Vartouhi and Gulenia, dressed in their native costumes, will be assigned to a large booth in the Palace of Education during the period of the Exposition, and then will return to Syria, although several offers of adoption already have been made to displace them here.

Their setting will be like a bit of their adopted Syria transplanted, for the architecture of the booth will be in Syrian style, yellow stucco, stonework in blue and gold, with oriental archways decorated with stripes of black red. A feature of the display will be an exhibition and sale of rare Armenian art objects—specimens of another art nearly lost to present-day civilization, for the people of Kutahia, where the pottery originated, were practically wiped out during the war and its manufacture has only recently been revived by an Armenian skilled from his native village to Jerusalem.

Pulitzer Prize-Winning Comedy Now On At Ohio

With the summer season coming to a close comes the announcement that Robert McLaughlin of the Ohio theater has saved one of the choicest plays for the fall. Beginning Sunday night, August 15th, he will present as one of his regular summer productions Leo Carrillo in Sidney Howard's Pulitzer Prize winning comedy, "They Knew What They Wanted."

This play closed the regular winter season last year at the Ohio and was perhaps the most successful of all the shows presented there during the 1925-1926 season. Although it played at 45 prices the house was packed every night and many were turned away toward the end of the week.

Ervin Reunion

The thirty-first annual reunion of the Ervin family was held at the country home of Elmer Ervin, Saturday, August 14. A count taken during the day showed that one hundred and fifty were present.

After partaking of a bountiful picnic dinner, the meeting was called to order by the president and the following officers elected: pres. Clinton Moore, secy. and Treas. Amanda Moore, Entertainment committee, Mrs. W. Gross and Miss Ferguson.

STATE FAIR FOR 1926 WILL BREAK RECORDS

Will Excel in Diversity and Number of Exhibits AUGUST 30 TO SEPT. 4 Total Premium Awards of $125,721 To Be Distributed—Expect More Than 6000 Animals to Show

Columbus, Ohio.—(Special)—Continuing the usual progress of the last three years, the Ohio State Fair for August 30 to September 4 will surpass in most respects every exposition of the past. In diversity of exhibits, in the number of displays, and in the size of the premium list, the 1926 Ohio State Fair is out to establish new records.

Considerably more than one-half of the total premium award had been assigned to the livestock department. This means that more than 6000 animals will be shown at the fair.

Of the $125,721 total awards, $79,565 is to be apportioned to the livestock. This is classified as follows: Horses, $18,020; cattle, $27,455; swine, $11,951; sheep, $11,912 and poultry, $4,187.

When compared with the 1925 fair, the total premium awards are announced in this basis: Sheep program, $19,490; young meat and poultry, $10,000; total, $1,170; vegetables, $550; dairy products, $325; fruit, $28,248; flowers and honey, $1,100; miscellaneous products, $100; paints and news, $1,870; boys and girls club work, $11,990; grants, $6,700; baby contest, $250; total, $1,170; total, $1,170.

According to Director Truax, the Ohio State Fair is universally recognized as presenting the world's largest and foremost display of sheep, horses, cattle, swine and poultry. Exhibitors prepare to meet the strongest competition in the world when coming to Ohio and a ribbon on it at this fair represents the pinnacle of achievement.

When upwards of six thousand animals were shown in the best of swine, cattle and sheep departments at last year's fair the management believed that it had achieved a record that would stand unchallenged for years to come.

WOMEN TO HAVE FAIR DIVISION

Exhibits and Demonstrations; Many Canvases in the Art Display

COLUMBUS, OHIO.—With its series of educational features, demonstrations and working classes, the livestock and poultry division, department at Ohio State Fair—August 30 to September 4,—is being developed into a phase that will have wide spread appeal to all Ohio women.

When it was discovered three years ago that interest in open sections of canned and baked goods, wearing apparel, and other items, was diminishing the management substituted a series of working exhibits to show how various articles are made rather than to display the finished products.
