WELL-PATRONIZED

The public dinner given by the Women's Missionary Society of Mt. Hope at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Zeigler Wednesday was a decided success both financially and socially. The regular program was given in the afternoon with the president, Mrs. Oscar Stout, leading. One new member was added to the roll. The Thanksgiving for the Women's Society and Light Brigade amounted to over $60. The program for the coming year will be completed before the next regular meeting. The Mission Study class will meet Friday evening, Dec. 16 with Mrs. Zeigler.

A NEW GIRL

Word was received by friends of the birth of a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lorenz in Defiance. The little lady will be known as Mildred June. Mrs. Lorenz was Miss Vesta Sonastine.

AN ACCIDENT

Mrs. Ross Fair had the misfortune last Friday to run a needle into the palm of her hand, breaking the needle. After an x-ray examination by Dr. Stevens of Mansfield, the piece remaining in the hand was removed, and the wound is healing nicely.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

A good attendance came out for the December meeting last Friday evening. The town and country committee put on a "still hunt" for individual members attendance with much better results than the newspaper notices of recent months have been getting. Several different projects were discussed—too indefinite to report now.

COMMUNITY CONSCIOUSNESS

One of the best evidences of the progress of a community is the evidence that it has a program; can stand alone when its best interests are conserved by so doing and does not yield to the blandishments of other sections, which because of their greater numbers may incline to the opinion that they are superior in every respect. An instance reported recently well illustrates the point at issue. When a swain from an adjacent Ohio burg invited a Shiloh girl to accompany him on a drive these words met his ears. "I cannot go with you for then it would be all off with my Shiloh friend." The proper, prompt decision of momentous questions is a great accomplishment for the individual of the community.

(Sent by Sec. of C. of C.)

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Miller and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Havilands were in Mansfield on business Tuesday. Guests at the home of Miss Anna Benton Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Moser and Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Gebhart of Ashland.

ENTERTAINS WITH TURKEY DINNER

The International Harvester company entertained their salesman at a turkey dinner in Toledo Tuesday. Guests at the home of Miss Anna Benton Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Moser were in attendance from Shiloh.

SUDDEN DEATH

Harry P. Jacoby died suddenly Thursday afternoon while assisting in some work at the home of W. C. Keineth a neighbor. Many conflicting stories are told as to the direct cause of his death, but he fell from the ladder on which he was working and had expired when those near rushed to his aid. Mr. Jacoby had lived in this community about two years having been in the grocery business in Greenwich many years before trading with Otto McCarron for his farm. He was forty-three years of age. The funeral services were conducted Sunday at 2 p. m. at the Christian church in Greenwich by the I. O. O. F. and K. of P. The sermon was given by Rev. L. C. Emerick of Jeromesville, a near friend of the family.

Those in attendance at the funeral from other places were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jacoby and Mrs. Ada E. Jacoby of Wooster, brother and mother of the deceased, A. C. Croty, Earl Croty and Mrs. Michael Croty of Mansfield. Mrs. Jacoby's parents were unable to be present on account of illness.

Is It Well With The Lad?

By DR. G. R. MENTE.

No. 7
The poet was distinctly inspired when he wrote those immortal verses: "There is a time, we know not when, a place we know not where that deeds mark the destiny of man to glory or despair." The Almighty give each of us a vision of the importance of the lad, for he will be the man of the future. Teach him while still open to persuasion and while still beneath your care, never to be satisfied with a haphazard way of living, but to reach out for greater things to possess—for no one has ever attained such high altitudes or standards of living that there was not something higher to work for. I believe this is one of the boons granted us by our heavenly Father, for there is no joy in life which can compare with the knowledge of the possibility to attain the highest standards and work toward them. He who is content to simply live cannot possibly conceive of the real zest and joy of life. Therefore, admonish him ever to place his standard high, for it will never be a strain on his spiritual, mental and physical powers to be at the top of one ladder; only he who is satisfied with low ideals will lose the real beauty of living.

The only real strain on the soul is the effect of pulling away from God as this getting out of harmony with the infinite. In every period of the world's history the lad had his place and his mission. Not long ago in one of my New York exchanges of two Brooklyn school boys installing and operating a wireless telegraph system of their own, connecting their homes. Now these youthful electricians, perhaps, the greatest of the world renowned Marconi was only 14 years of age, when on the sunny slopes of the Italy he erected his first wireless station, in which common tin boxes played a very important part. The lad is full of possibilities. Are we going to assist him to develop them? It was the boy, lad or young man that was to be the world's first conception of the hydraulic crane, while Eli Whitney invented the cotton gin at the tender age of 18. Do not, for a moment, neglect that lad who asks why and how—do not discourage him, for that lad of today is made of the same stuff as the boy of yesterday, and he needs only a patient observance of the common rules of honesty and truthfulness to go on and win out in the battle of life.

The average American leads a very strenuous life, too often the home is neglected and the lad drifts away unawares. Let me say right here, it matters little how beautiful the temple we erect to religious service, it matters not how grand the Halls of Learning, it matters not how complex the mills of industry, if the home is neglected, everything will lose its value. Jesus was a teacher, the people who knew him best called him a teacher, and so he called himself a teacher, and he at one time said very emphatically: "Suffer the little ones and forbid them not, for they are the heirs of the promise." Are you impressing this great lesson on the lad? No, every one is successful in attempting to teach the lad, for no one can be a teacher except his personality makes him attractive. Do not become discouraged, do not find fault, rather pray and take God with you in partnership—give the lad to understand that you not only talk but that you live the clean and pure life so needed in this great age of commercialism. Do you know if you keep on sinning, if you keep on playing, if you keep on associating with young life you will keep young. Let us rejoice for the Great Teacher has promised to be with us always. Instead of speaking of him in the past tense, or in the future tense, as we are apt to do, let us speak of him as ever present. The every day Jesus, the living Jesus, the Great Teacher, the Friend and Brother.

BASKET BALL

Lucas high met and defeated Shiloh high boys on our last Friday evening. Both teams played a very fast game. Shiloh used good pass-work but was unable to connect with the basket. The score at the end of the first half was 16-11 in favor of Lucas. The Shiloh boys showed great improvement in the second half and the final score was 27-20. The following players represented Shiloh: Dick, Ruckman Paul, Ruckman Bob, Brumbach, Ruckman Dick, King.

HARMON ROTHILSBERGER

Last Friday night we played Lucas here. The girls won and the boys lost. The girls game was exciting and very good. The final score was made by free throws. This makes the third game the girls have won and we hope they keep up the good playing. Those who played Friday night were: Dick, Moser, Kinsel, Downend, Clinker, Griffith, Firestone and Patterson.

Yule—the Tide of Happy Hearts

by Frances Morgan

TULY burrs and stinging nettles are found in the loveliest flower gardens—and, sad to say in this world there are folk who harbor a natural born hatred of the beautiful and fine things of life.

They seem out of tune with their fellow men. Their faces are seen at every happy gathering and they'd rather go glooming through life forecasting disaster than to wear the lightest, cheerfulest heart in Christendom—in other words, they are half happy only when sad.

And yet (oh, Joy that it is true!) there is one season when those sour curmudgeons have a hard time enjoying life. This is the season of Yule—the Tide-of-Happy-Hearts.

Our ancestors had numerous ceremonies pertaining to Christmas that are half forgotten today. Snuggling shoulder to shoulder in a mussy corner of an ancestral nursery for at least a century have reposed a half dozen faded volumes. A diligent search through them brought to light a veritable feast of interesting, ancient legends and "curiosities." The books in question were issued in 1827 by William Tegg & Co. of London, at 85 Queen Street, Christ.

That it was on Christmas Eve in the year 1247 that a certain daring son of a noble house, one "Robin Hood," hid good by in his doughty comrade, "Little John," and breathed his last beneath the ancient oaks that witnessed their bold escapades.

There was a pretty superstition connected with the decoration of houses with evergreen. It was believed that wivian sprites might flock to the branches and remain unrippd by frost until a milder season.

The popular expression, "sub rosa," meaning anything told in confidence, was derived from the old custom of guests wearing chaplets of holly, mistletoe, ivy and rosemary at the annual festivals where a rose generally was hung over the tables. The expression, "beneath the mistletoe" is said to have the same derivation.

And then we learn of the old superstition that even fell on their knees on Old Christmas, January 6. The belief was based on the medieval notion that the cattle in the stable, witnessing the nativity, fell upon their knees in supplication.

Those who know something of the times of Charles II are familiar with the astonishing menus served guests by the noble hosts of that day. And those among the readers of these lines who imagine they will dine sumptuously when partaking of their roast turkey, cranberry sauce and all the "fixings" when the day of days arrives, should meditate on the following account of an almost unbelievable Christmas pie which is told about in the Newcastle Chronicle, January 3, 1770. "Read it, my friend, and blush with mortification at your own unsophisticated gastronomic desires!"

"Monday last was brought from Howick to Berwick, to be shipped to London, for Sir Hen. Grey, bart., a pie, the contents whereof are as follows, viz.: 2 bushels of flour, 20 pounds of butter, 4 geese, 2 turkeys, 2 rabbits, 4 wild ducks, 2 woodcocks, 8 snipes and 4 partridges; 2 masts' tongues, 2 curlews, 7 blackbirds, and 6 pigeons. The Christmas pie was made by Mrs. Dorothy Patterson, housekeeper at Howick. It is near 9 feet in circumference at the bottom, weighs about 12 stones, will take 2 men to present it at table; it is neatly steeled with a case and four small wheels to facilitate its use to every guest that inclines to partake of its contents."

John's Merry Christmas

By Frank H. Sweet

JOHN shifted his position a little, so he could ease the d'evil's side more firmly on the crutch. Then he put up the strong er right hand, which still was very pitiful and frail, and formed it into a trumpet.

"Merry Christmas!" he yelled. It was on a wharf and a great steamer had come in. John leaned against an upright near the gangplank.

Today the big steamer brought many passengers, and among them was one who had been through far countries and who had been gone many years. John picked him out, as he was big. This man's eyes were eager in their search for signs of his native land.

And then, just as he was descending the gangplank, came a heavy "Merry Christmas!"

Another call was on the boy's lips when the man's hand dropped gently on his shoulder.

"That for me, my boy," the stranger asked—"a welcome home?"

"Yes, sir," he answered, truthfully. "I picked you out from the others first—though the 'Merry Christmas' was also meant for all the other returning traders, too."

The big man looked down at the puny boy, and something more than curiosity swelled in him.

"What's your name?" he asked. "John." "John—what?" "Nothing—just John."

"But you must have some other name."

"I never heard of any," with a grin. "One name's enough for a street ur-

"Merry Christmas!" He Yelled.

chin who lives 'round in any old place. Why," amusedly, "I know a good many boys with only one name—yes, and some with a make-up one like 'Stub-Fat,' 'Big-Mouse' and 'the one.'"

"Indeed!" And you know others with two names or more who need help, I suppose?"

"Yes, with a slight frown—"though some of us are asking for help. We can jog along all right."

"You know where they live?" "Lots of 'em, but we—"

"Christmas," reminded the stranger with a rare smile, which was very much like John's. "Every boy and girl wants things—presents, you know at that."

"Oh, that way—yes."

"John," gently, "how would you like to be Santa Claus?"

"John broke into a ringing laugh. "Why, Santa Claus is big and fat and has white whiskers."

"Not always. I mean for us to pick out nice things for all the boys and girls you know, and then we will take a car and distribute them where you say, letting the chauffeur carry them in."

John's eyes glistened. "You mean all that?" he demanded. "You got enough money?"

"Plenty for that. And, John," with a little catch in his voice, "I have been away from my country eight whole years, and just got back. I was hungry for my native land, and when I heard of some playing 'America,' and saw the flag, and then heard you call 'Merry Christmas' right in my face, I suddenly felt at home again."

"I heard it in an other way, John," seriously, "I find you are a great traveler in your heart. After we make our rounds, I want you to come and stay with me at my hotel a few days, or maybe longer, and I will tell you some interesting things about the far countries I've been in. Would you like it?"

"Would I?" with an ecstatic look on his face. "Would—I?"

A Christmas Song

By TUDOR JENKS

WHEN mother-love makes all things bright, When joy comes with the morning light, When children gather round their feet, These Christmas Babe, We sing of Thee!

When manhood's hours are bent to thought To learn what sum of old have taught, When eager hands seek wisdom's key Wise Temple Child, We learn of Thee!

When doubts assail, and perils fright, When, grasping blindly in the night, We strive to read life's mystery, Man of the Mount, We turn to Thee!

When shadows of the valley fall, When sin and death the soul assail, One light we through the darkness see— Christ on the Cross We cry to Thee!

And when the world shall pass away, And dawn at length the perfect day, In glory shall our souls made free, Then God enthroned, Thus worship Thee.

A Christmas Prayer

O God, who makes us glad with the yearly remembrance of the birth of Thine only Son, Jesus Christ; grant that as we joyfully receive Him for our Redeemer so we may with sure confidence behold Him when He shall come to be our Judge, who now liveth and reigneth with Thee and the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end, Amen.

Christmas Greens

The use of evergreens at Christmas time dates back to Roman times, when the early martyrs screened their windows with evergreens that a censorious government might not know they were celebrating the holiest time of the year.

Red lights don't mean "danger" to bees, and therefore may be used to examine the colonies in winter, without disturbing the members.

Santa Taking Orders

Airplanes flying low frightened that they refuse to lay, the owners chickens at Batavia, New York, so have complained to the state police.

And when the world shall pass away, And dawn at length the perfect day, In glory shall our souls made free, Then God enthroned, Thus worship Thee.

At Christmas Time

By Rosa Russell Ingels

Like a golden treasure chest thy memory is to me. There is a lack that bothers it fast, which thought the magic key.

Comrades of the years are there, friendly face and master mind, should tested true and kind.

Some struck a spark—then abate, some lingered close and long, some sounded the sacred deeps, some sang a single song.

We say turns now at Christmas time, thy treasures to recall, with smile and tear, and tender prayer of gratitude for all.

The modern version runs as follows: "Woman's place is anywhere but home."

VOLUME II We Publish the Truth, the Whole Truth, and Nothing but the Truth

Number 8

P. H. S. basketballers took a sound drubbing at the hands of the fast Willard team Friday night. The score was Willard 35; Plymouth 10. Our boys played a good game but they were no match for the Little Big Seven Leaguers. Willard presented an almost impenetrable defense which kept our boys out of accurate shooting distance. Nearly all of our points were made by means of long shots. Their offense penetrated our defense with ease and scored basket after basket. Paden was the high point man, scoring fourteen points for the winners.

The score:

Willard—35		G. P. T.
Trush, f	1	0	2

Many outsiders have remarked about the excellent school spirit in Plymouth High School. Are we living up to the reputation we have? Or is it the school spirit on the decline? We have a good High School, (in spite of the building) and we have some good teams (in spite of the gym) so haven't we much for which we can be proud? Let's back the school in all her enterprises and prove that we are worthy of our name, P. H. S. students!

SOMETHING NEW

The student council stumbled upon some new entertainment for morning exercises, or rather, Mr. Miller gave them an inspiration. Monday morning each student was given the opportunity to make out a question on etiquette. At the end of the three minutes the papers were gathered up and Mrs. Harstema answered them before the assembly. The council is striving to raise the standards and manners in P. H. S. If the school will co-operate they may receive benefits with respect to matters on etiquette.

P. H. S. GIRLS vs. W. H. S. GIRLS
Plymouth girls played Willard girls for Willard's opening game. Plymouth lost by 12 points the score being P. H. S. 9—Willard 21. P. H. S. girls tried very hard but could not be used to such a floor. The next game is at Lucas and we're going to try to do our best and beat them.

In American Literature we were asked to write a story concerning the sea. Among those which were turned in was this one:

"TREASURE"

Two taxi drivers were talking to each other in "Mike's Place." One had been telling the other about a movie he had seen the night before. It was about pirates.
"Who did you say was the leader of them pirates?" asked one.
"Captain Kidd," answered the other. "Aw, quit yer kiddin' me, he ain't no pirate. He belongs to a gang of hijackers over on the East Side."
"Naw, that ain't the one. The boys that I'm talkin' about lived in England in the time of King something or other. He was the head bootlegger of the Spanish Main. The Spanish Main was the place where all the traffic was, on the Atlantic Ocean. Well, this here Cap'n Kidd would get his name together and get in his ship an' go out an' get a load of jewels, hooch, rum, and other stuff they'd use in them days. Then he'd go to some desert isle and fix up a hide-out and bury the treasure so the bulls wouldn't have nothin' on him if he got jugged. He'd take a couple of men and go out and bury the treasure; then he'd crank the men to keep them from squawkin' on him. If any bloke got to askin' too many questions he'd throw him in the drink. Well, one day while Cap'n Kidd was shootin' crap with some other big bootleggers one of his spies steams in and said that a gang of hijackers was gettin' ready to swipe some of his treasure that he had hid. The Cap jumps up and beats it out the front door and flags a taxi and went down to the meeting place of his gang.

"He got the gang together and beat it out to his yacht. This here yacht was regular battleship with cannons and all. Then they rush off to his island.
"Just as they are hunting parking space they see another ship, leaving the island. This makes the Cap'n sore an' he orders, 'Step on it!' Well, they was going about sixty per and the Cap sends a bullet across their radiator. They don't stop then so the Cap'n shoots' again. This time he hit the ship right in the center. It must have hit the gas tank because she blew right in two. Then they go up an' pick up the survivors and take 'em on board an' make 'em walk the plank after tellin' 'em they shouldn't try to double-cross him again."

Progressive Santa

LONG years ago old Santa came
With reindeer, in a sleigh,
Slid down the chimney, 't was some toy,
And then he drove away.

In later years he rode a wheel
And came in through the door.
'Twas out of date for him to use
The chimney any more.

A motorcycle next he bought—
How his fat sides did shakel
He had behind him firmly tied,
His pack—all he could take.

And after that his auto car
Swooped way out by the gate.
He told his chauffeur he'd be back
Before so very late.

This year I'm sure we shall not hear
Him chugging down the lane.
He'll swoop down on us from above!
He'll come by airplane!

And after that? Oh, goodness knows
Just how he'll come! I know
Perhaps some time he'll send his gifts
To us by radio.

"What's all the noise in the dining room, sister?"

"Yes, she passed the buck to him and got his goat."

The high tension electric wire line is now at Delphi corners. The well known Delphi church has disposed of its Delco plant and the new current will take its place this week. The entertainment put on by the young people in for the benefit of the public—all are welcome. Come out and hear them and also see the new lights.

Ivory M. Smith who has been nursing a broken home for the past weeks was after Sir Rabbit last Saturday.
Coon hunters were out shooting coon last Sunday. There is a penalty for even carrying a gun on Sunday. There is danger—stop—enough said.

Mrs. Anna Watts, Mrs. Dora Knight and daughter Gladys and Mrs. Cecil Watts attended the funeral of their aunt, Mrs. Ed Rang in Akron last Sunday. Mrs. Rang was the mother of Kenneth Graver the boy who grew up in the Henry Lutman home while being in Ripley years ago.

What might have been a very serious case of shooting with intent to kill happened in the home of H. W. Barker, one of Ripley's appreciated pioneers, while he was attending the annual Bank meeting in Greenwich, Dec. 5 in the afternoon. It is reported that the husband of his first housekeeper appeared and walked in to the kitchen and found Claude R. Lewis a friend of the family visiting, whom he assaulted and shot at with intent to kill as charged in the affidavit. The ceiling was bullet pocked as well as the side wall, when Joseph Hoya, the assaulter left. The warrant was sworn out and given to sheriff C. D. Trimmer, who has the prisoner in Norwalk jail. H. W. Barker and his splendid son do not stand for anything in their house. The housekeeper got away.

Rev. Harris Gillispie of the Willard church spoke in Delphi and North Fairfield last Sunday morning and we can truly say "he delivered the goods" so to speak. His sermon on Stewardship was a classic. He was buoyed up in his discourse by the splendid attention and by his good sized rural audience.

Marlin Yutsey will spend his holiday vacation with relatives in Johnstown, Pa.

Rev. J. W. Harris and wife and Altono Kelley, wife and children of Ashland were callers at the J. W. McCullough home a week ago. Mrs. Kelley is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. McCullough. Mr. Harris is a layed in the wood Holiness preacher and he makes it pretty stirring with us when he talks. He believes in a Salvation that saves to the uttermost.

T. B. Black spent a few weeks in his Delphi home. He is now with his son Ross in Medina.

The trustees of the Delphi church are raising the cost of the new electric lights by popular subscription. All will be offered the opportunity to contribute. If any man whether in the church or out, has any possessions or talents, the church adds a value to them—the subscription paper will be handed you. The Pastor has been with us for three months. Treasurer S. E. Gleason reports he is one-third paid. A part of the money has been getting his services "on tick"—credit business is becoming a thing of the past—elevators, gas and electric lights and telephone lines have almost completely dispensed with credits. The stewards have ordered the treasurer to make a full report of the membership and pass it in the vestibule of the church so that all may see what they have done in giving a fair portion of God's Blessing for the past quarter.

The prayer meeting last Thursday evening encountered a cold blizzard on the outside, but on the inside of George Young's home we found it warm and cheery—we had met the Biblical requirements of "Where Two or three are gathered together, in my name, and we all received the blessing." At the close of the services, Mrs. Mary Young who is an ardent believer in high class entertainment, presented, Rodebeaver and Harry Lauder, both popular and well known vocalists, who highly entertained us for the next hour, assisted by Mrs. Loitelle, who sang the Rosarie very pleasingly to our Catholic tendencies—we are called Methodist Episcopal or Episcopalian—one writer has said we are on the middle ground between Protestants and Catholics. You will note we say in our church. The prayer meeting this week Thursday evening will be held in the church—we are anticipating a royal spirit!

CHRISTMAS SURPRISE
Illustration by Edman

JACK HANDEL was as proud of his wife as a man could well be. She was young, pretty, lovable and good-tempered. What more could a man ask? And yet Jack missed just one thing: Elsie could not cook—at least, not a bit like his mother used to. Jack tried very hard to keep Elsie from the knowledge that her cooking was not all that it should be. And whenever anything tasted at all like he wanted it to, he gave her very generous praise. Which was the wise and diplomatic thing to do, of course, but Jack did not do it for this reason; he did it solely because he loved Elsie and wanted her to hear pleasing things. And he did not want her to know that as a cook she was a dismal failure. Often he congratulated himself that he had succeeded in hiding his feelings from Elsie. But, alas! for the density of the matter, lately Elsie had seemed to be very busy, and several evenings they had to go to the little restaurant near by for their evening meal. She had been going out quite a bit and pleaded fatigue. Jack went with her quite willingly, as even the restaurant food was better than Elsie's; but she was more troubled at heart; it was not the kind of life that he wanted.

Consternation filled him one morning when Elsie announced that she was going to give a big Christmas dinner and invite his mother and other guests. He pleaded with her that the work would be too hard, that she must not do it, that they would go out somewhere; but all his efforts to make her change her mind were in vain. Elsie was obstinate; she was determined to give the dinner.

Jack had many misgivings in the week that followed, and when Christmas morning dawned he was more than nervous. But he tried to hide his feelings from Elsie as much as he could. She would not allow him in the kitchen at all, but she would help a little with the laying of the table. Jack had to admit to himself that it looked very inviting indeed. If it were now real food to put on it now, how proud he would be of Elsie. At ten o'clock, when she was put on, Jack opened his eyes wide as he took his first mouthful of turkey and dressing. It tasted better than anything he had ever tasted before. Surely Elsie had not cooked it? But then he knew that no one but she had entered the kitchen that morning.

After dinner Elsie whispered her secret. She had been taking cooking lessons from old Mrs. Mason for the past month and this dinner was the result. Mrs. Mason and Elsie had kept the secret well, for Elsie wanted Jack to have a real Christmas surprise. That he had it was very evident. And even the guests marveled that a bride of a few months could cook such a wonderful dinner.

Our Christmas Shopping and the Joy of Giving

THE joyful season of the year has come. The Christmas spirit sweeps through the Christian world. With a wealth of kindly thoughts it has brought the time of Christmas. The universal custom of giving gifts makes everybody richer and nobly poorer. The Christmas spirit is a sacred thing that sanctifies the humblest things of life. It kindles generous love in the untutored breasts of men. It brightens the dreary homes of earth and hangs the star of hope above the palace and the cabin. It leads to light and life the nobler trails of men. It is the finest asset of civilization.

Christmas shopping is but a kindly way of thinking about friends and friendships—a concrete expression of human love and hope. It brings a sweet and subtle joy to those who give and happiness to whom it is given. It builds a fire on the cheerless hearth and re-warms the feet of home and kin. It lifts the burdens of the heavy laden and to every pilgrim reveals the star of Bethlehem. Gifts rightly given enrich the giver.

Out of the over-bending heaven came the spirit of giving. Heaven is always giving. Heralded by angels into the night of Bethlehem came the gift of life and joy—the richest—the rarest gift of earth or heaven. That giving quickened the generosity of rich and poor. It prompted the return of the best that men have to give. The rich gave gold, frankincense and myrrh, but the poor outrank them far and bring the alabaster box of love.

From that manger cradle the Christmas spirit has wandered far and wide. The spirit of Christmas—the spirit of giving has followed the star down through the ages and the world is vastly richer. Speed, unhampered the Christmas joy and let the giving of gifts speak the language of human souls. Fare forth to the temples of sale where dealers are—distressed priests at the altars of trade and you lack the price of jewels remember that nothing is too cheap or poor to bear the warmth of friendship and sincerity.—William L. Gaston

Americans Carry 101 Billions of Life Insurance

Nearly three-fourths of the world's $101,000,000,000 in life insurance is carried by citizens of the United States. Leroy A. Lincoln, general counsel for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., said at the 21st annual convention of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents, held at New York last Thursday.

"Slightly more than 71 percent of the insurance in force throughout the world," he reported, "is carried by American companies. Companies of Great Britain carry about ten percent. Japan and Australia have increased their totals rapidly, but in Russia, where all insurance company assets were seized by the Soviet government, there is no indication of progress toward life insurance."

$1,700,000 Spent To

Advertise New Ford

The new Ford has been heralded into the world with one of the most remarkable advertising campaigns ever known.

The campaign, which ended Dec. 5, for the present, cost $1,700,000 for five days. Full page advertisements were carried in about 2,000 daily papers, or virtually every daily in the United States and Canada. Individual dealers, through additional advertising, brought the figure to $1,700,000.

No such advertising appropriation, it was said, has ever been made for so short a campaign. It was confined entirely to daily newspapers.

WHICH OF THE SIX?

THERE were six Santa Clauses in Sterberville, standing before various department stores and banks, and it began to trouble young Jackie Carter that there should be so many. Which one of the six was the real Santa? There were certain things he wanted for Christmas and he didn't care to take a chance on asking the wrong man. He thought of giving the same list to all six, but while that would probably bring him his toys, it would not disclose the identity of the real Santa and he began to have a genuinely over-awing curiosity to know which of the six was the true Kris Kringle. After many anxious nights of tossing uneasily on his pillow, he hit upon an idea. He would ask each for a different toy and of course the one he received would be from the true Santa Claus.

Early Christmas morning young Jackie stole quietly down the stairs, alive with excitement. Cautiously he slipped into the living-room where the Christmas-trees in all its trappings stood among piles of toys. And there—Jackie was amazed—there were all six toys he had asked for. "Well, what do you know about that?" was all Jackie could say, and delighted to have them all, flew upstairs to tell his mother all about it.—Marion Regan.
