

GO-TO-CHURCH TO BE FEATURED HERE

COMPLETE CANVASS WILL BE MADE TO AID IN SECURING A GOOD ATTENDANCE DURING THE MONTH OF MARCH.

The Plymouth Ministers' Association visited the High School at the chapel period yesterday morning to enlist assistance in a carefully planned Go-to-Church campaign for the month of March. Under the leadership of Miss Helen Becker, president of the Organizational Literary society, and William Caldwell, president of the Chionian Literary society, everyone in Plymouth over 12 years of age will be asked to sign a card agreeing to attend one of the churches as many times as possible during that month and to keep a record on a card furnished them. Of course the two societies are eager to see who turns in the most cards.

While this is called a contest, the real purpose is to obtain an accurate record of the number of people who attend church during this one month and to emphasize the duty and privilege of church attendance. It will be interesting to know what proportion of the village attend church. Perhaps, too, it will set a definite time and a definite goal before us. A little friendly rivalry between the churches to see which secures the highest percentage of attendance should cause no hard feelings. Since each one keeps their own record, there will be no possibility of unfairness without deliberate falsehood or forgery. It is hoped that everyone within the age limit who expects to attend church during March will sign a card and keep a record.

CARD OF THANKS

To Whom It May Concern: One of the happy thoughts that enter into the hearts and lives of men is that thought of being remembered by his fellows. Going into the home of a friend in time of sickness, bringing words of cheer, ministering to the wants of those who were sick and needy, was a principal institution by that great Man of Galilee, who went about doing good.

I take this method of extending my heartfelt thanks to all who have called at my home in the past few days, and have spoken words of cheer and comfort. And especially to the members of the Old Men's Home, who so nobly remembered me with the most beautiful basket of choice fruit at this time. I can only commend you to the kind keeping of Him that rules the destinies of all men. Trusting that these kind acts may be only stronger cemented together, and increase a deeper sense of friendship one to another in this life. Again I extend to each of you, my brethren, a very grateful feeling of my heart. After Supper Fellows and all be rest at the Home.

Very respectfully,
GEO. C. SNIDER,
West High Street.

Lincoln --- the Emancipator

(By REV. W. H. GIBSON)

Once in a generation, or series of generations, there is called a Man to lead a nation of people to a high conception of Truth or Right or Liberty. There was once a Moses, for whom had been prepared a way through the hard experience of a people, to be a leader. He was able to understand the people whom he led, by his knowledge of what they needed, rather than what they wanted. Seldom will a people leave the leadership of the President, with the leeks and garlic and onions, for something that holds promise for better things. Moses held out these promises all through the journeyings of the Wilderness, and we wonder that he did not break and become discouraged at their constant complaining and desires for the flesh-pots. Yet he faithfully led on and on toward the Land of Promise.

Lincoln was often faced with apparent defeat, but one thought ran as a deep current beneath all he did, as he saw the rock upon which the nation was sure to split, unless the bark was guided aright. He was misunderstood, hated, and misapprehended. He was taunted until some of the enemies were taught to think, spreading until his faith reached toward a day, when slavery would forever be banished from his fair land.

Slow progress marked the way. Defeat (apparently) was his, and when honors of a membership in the Senate could have been had with only a modest compromise, he would not compromise, consequently was defeated. He was obsessed with a passion, and declared that whether he, or some other would have the honor, the time would come when the wrong would arise one who would complete the task that he was beginning to feel must be accomplished.

Like the waves, that may beat for centuries upon the cliff, and finally see it crumble and fall, so these torments were pressing upon the people the waves of his simple eloquence, becoming more and more convinced that the day would come that this in-Glad-are we that he lived to guide the ship of state through the turbulent waters of the world, and was permitted to wield the pen that struck the shackles from a nation, and preserved intact the Union and brought a race of men to face the world as men. Quoting S. Parks Cadman, "It is not in the fact that we are white men and colored men, but that we are men, that the hope of the world now lies." Sixty four years ago the physical liberty of our colored brothers was declared. Set free, with naught but their bare hands and heretofore dependent hearts turned loose to shift for themselves, they could in a land that was almost totally hostile to offering any advantage, they have forged toward the front with what small opportunity they have been able to grasp, until Christian people began to assist them in their quest for freedom.

As far as a meager means end, later schools for higher learning would permit schools were established through the Huron and Richland College and school for nurses, and others, touching every department of life, fitting boys and girls for fields of usefulness and with the training they have received are making remarkable progress in all fields of human endeavor.

The arts, sciences, poetry, literature, banking, commerce, education and almost every field has been entered into commendable results. The Department for Education for negroes of the Methodist Episcopal church has been responsible for a large share in fitting these for their various fields of activity. In Morrilton, Tenn., there was a little Baptist church, later it was a slave market, where was sold for $195, a boy. During the Civil War, this building was in turn, a lodging house, hospital, jail or whatever use to which it could be applied. After the war, it was used as a school for white children, later fell into hands of the Freedmen Aid Society, and a school for negroes was established, to become what is now, Morrilton Normal and Industrial Institute, and has flourished for nearly 50 years. Other buildings have sprung up on the campus, and today, this boy who was sold there for $195, is one of the honored professors of the institution.

Twenty-five years ago, there were but 20,000 negro business enterprises in the U. S. Now there are more than 70,000. There were then 10,000 retail merchants, now 25,000. Then property holdings amounted to but 300 million dollars, now such holdings amount to more than 1 billion, 700 million dollars. Time and space forbids the statement of further interesting facts, but suffice to say, this the passion of his great soul, born when but a small boy, was endeavored and he became the Moses to lead others through a National conflict that preserved the nation whole, and liberated the captives to a life of culture and progress.

BUCYRUS ON THE LINE

Residents of Bucyrus may now talk to London over the phone, if they so desire, at the rate of 37¢ for a three minute conversation. This new service was opened last week.

AIMEE SHOULD PREACH

Indignation has been caused in the state of California over the fact that the famous Aimee Semple McPherson case cost over 100,000 and five lives. Many are at a loss to why so much prominence was given the case.

MORE PROHIBITION

Five hundred bottles of whiskey and champagne, boxed and labeled "automobile parts" were seized Friday at a railway freight station at Dixon. The liquor is valued at $3,000 and is being held for the owners. It was confiscated when a bottle broke and leaked.

LEGAL HOLIDAY

The Peoples National Bank will be closed all day, Tuesday, February 22.

New Rate For Light Users

A reduction of three cents per kilowatt on light consumption was made at the last meeting of the Board of Public Affairs. This is a flat rate with a minimum charge of $1.00 per month. The new rate went into effect February 1, and the reduction will be made on all bills payable March 1. The old schedule was 8 cents for the first kilowatts and 6 cents flat rate, with a minimum of $1.00.

The "Light" department has always been a financial success at the 8 and 6-cent rate, and very few complaints were reported to the board. However, a surplus is on hand which may be sufficient to tide over any deficit which may be shown for a while, but which may not keep the system on a paying basis unless it is reduced, but long basis remains yet to be seen.

A representative from the state auditor's office is here this week checking up on all books of the various departments of the village. A complete financial report of the village will be at hand when his work is completed.

NOTICE

There will be a public meeting of the Girl Scouts at Norwalk on Tuesday, February 22, when the regional director, Miss Mitchell will be present. Any one interested is invited, and we hope that cars will be provided to transport all the Plymouth troops. If you have a car and are not busy on that date, we will appreciate it if you will take some of the troop to Norwalk. Please phone Mrs. Selter, R-81.

OBITUARY

FRED MILLS

Son of Jno. and Mary Smith Mills, was born at New Haven, O., on May 6, 1875, and passed to the land of shadows on February 7, 1927, being 51 years, 9 months, two days old. Mr. Mills spent his early life around New Haven where he is well known, coming about 12 years ago to Richland County following the occupation of tilting the soil.

On September 9, 1897, he was married to Miss Clista Casner, also of New Haven. Mr. Mills has been sick for some time and for about a year unable to attend to his duties around the homestead, yet he was always cheerful, and faced the approaching end in quiet submission to the Father's will.

Beside the widow, who has the prayerful sympathy of a host of friends, there the three brothers: Merwin of near Shiloh, Michler of Sandusky, Brayton of Plymouth and one sister, Mrs. Maud Tucker of Sandusky who with a number of friends and neighbors are convinced of the truth of the philosopher of long ago, who asked the question: "What is man, that thou art made of him?"

Funeral services were conducted by Dr. G. R. Mente of Shiloh at the M. E. church, New Haven, and the body laid to rest in the New Haven cemetery. Peace be to his ashes.

CARD OF THANKS

The undersigned would take this means of expressing her gratitude and sincere thanks to the friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted during the last illness of her husband, the minister for his consoling message, the singers for their touching tribute in song, to the friends who so willingly placed their automobiles at the disposal on the day of the funeral, and for the many fine floral offerings.

Husbands Prefer Wives Who Go In For Careers

JEAN JOYSON
 "COME ON WIFE I'LL PUT YOU OVER"
WIDEVILLE FAME

SO SAYS JEAN JOYSON, WHOSE SPOUSE PUT HER ON THE STAGE

NEW YORK CITY—Are husbands getting reconciled to wives with careers? "They certainly are if my experience is any criterion," says Jean Joyson, vaudeville headliner.

"It's no secret to any of my friends that I never would have been on the stage at all if it hadn't been for my husband. I had studied voice all my life and was accustomed to sing at charity affairs and for friends, but it never occurred to me to think seriously about the stage.

"Anyway, I should never have thought myself good enough for a stage career. But my husband, bless his heart, thought so much about my singing that, without saying a word to me, he decided I ought to have a wider field for it. We had no children and he was not selfish enough to want me to stay off the stage merely because I was his wife.

"He told Sophie Tucker about me and had me sing for her. I did not know that I was on trial and never dreamed that Miss Tucker was passing judgment on me and deciding from my rendering of the song hit, 'While the Years Go Drifting By' that I was would do for vaudeville. Yet that was just what was happening and before I knew anything about it I had been booked and there was a contract ready for me to sign.

"In six weeks, I had recovered from my surprise, was successful and wondered how I ever managed to live without my career. And I owe it all to my husband. In belief and sort I believe that he has shown well eventually make a real partnership of marriage and end divorces."

A Tour Abroad

Copenhagen, Denmark. Denmark has an agricultural triangle—butter, eggs and bacon—that points to three different roads that lead to national prosperity. Prior to 1850 Denmark was a grain growing country but the introduction of improved farm machinery in the American west where grain was produced at a minimum cost forced the little Scandinavian nation to change its type of agriculture. Denmark had hit bottom in its rural population was migrating to other countries where the farm offered greater opportunities in the form of a diversified agriculture. The government took cognizance of the situation, encouraged the establishment of agricultural colleges and through the medium of these colleges began to preach the gospel of diversification. The effect was almost instantaneous. Long and short courses in plant breeding, land preparation, hog breeding, poultry raising and other present were offered free of cost to old and young who were ambitious to raise their standards of living. At scattered over an area of 16,000 square miles in addition to the big agricultural college in Copenhagen where graduates of the district colleges are given post-graduate courses at a tuition fee of only $10 per year. Many adults take advantage of the free summer courses at both colleges.

Before the war when England, France and Germany were rolling in wealth and demand in these countries and shoulders sold at fancy prices and the supply could not keep up with the demand. The Danish hog breeding experts in the several agricultural colleges hold a consultation. Here was a field worth exploiting. By the simple process of crossing and re-crossing several different breeds they succeeded in developing a hog with a long slender body and extremely big ham and shoulders. It resembled the long bodied German dachshund. As a ham and shoulder producer it was a ham hog without an equal in the world. The Dane built up an immense ham and shoulder trade in England, France and Germany which he lost when the war left these nations so poor they scarcely able to buy the cheapest of meats. The field was invaded by Australia and New Zealand with a cheap quality of side meat. But the Dane was undaunted. Once more the nation's hog experts put their heads together and this time they developed a hog of the opposite type—with small hams and shoulders and a very large body. They were after the bacon. They re-entered their former field with the heavy-bodied hog and soon regained the post-war business they had lost when their former wealthy customers were no longer able to buy the higher-priced hams and shoulders.

The Small Danish Farmer

Peter Jespersen, eight acre farmer, stood in the doorway of his little thatched-roofed, stone flagged cottage and watched me and my interpreter as we strolled through the quarter of four seated surly that took us to his home. His attitude was one of curiosity mingled with a feeling of uneasiness. Foreigners in Peter's geographical range were rare. The big Danish homestead stood like a sentry on the outposts had already given the alarm, and re-enforcements against the form of Peter's quarter old cheeked spouse with two chubby-faced children clinging to her apron strings. With a grating glint in his back bristling like porcupine the dog defended the 30 feet of ground that separated us from his master's residence. If necessary to die in defense of the home that gave him food and shelter. My interpreter was one of Peter's distant relatives and recognition was followed by greetings pleasant to behold. Peter knew only two English words and to me he extended a welcome hand with a cordial "Goddorn."

Peter Jespersen is one of 20,000 small farmers who live on small tracts of land varying from 2 to 18 acres. Here he is able to provide a comfortable living for his family with his cows, pigs and chickens, and so his case is well worth studying. Tall, raw-boned, sun-bronzed, he presented a picturesque picture as he stood on his threshold dressed in a blue blouse, corduroy trousers and wearing a brown cap and wooden shoes. He is slow of speech and movement but lurking somewhere in the expression of his mild blue eyes one finds the wisdom of a philosopher and the courage of a lion. I was sure to sense the spirit of the "Wild Dane" tamed, but ready to flare up on slight provocation.

Transmuting dirt from Gold

"No, I am not getting rich," replied Peter Jespersen through the aid of the interpreter, "but I am getting along fairly well and laying up a little money each year for an old age pension. I sell my produce through the cooperative associations and buy through the community co-operative buying association. The farmer, one doesn't worry me. My end is the producing end and I am satisfied to let the other fellow do the selling. I always get the top of the market, so why worry? We were standing by a field of sugar beets ready to be harvested and Mr. Jespersen estimated the yield for 75,000 pounds of raw beets to the acre, are capable of performing a great amount of physical labor. Women of in length and 12 inches in diameter.

They grew so thick that scarcely an inch of ground was visible. An acre of beets will force a cow 20 days and 75 pounds of beets has enough food value to produce a gallon of milk. Before the snow falls the beets are cut up by machinery, dried in the sun and stored in the barn. With a small mixture of cotton seed cake imported from America they make an excellent winter cow food. Mr. Jespersen has a cow, 15 lbs. fat, and a flock of chickens which netted him last year the net sum of $1,246.00. His farm supplies his table, he does his own work and his overhead expense is practically nil. He finds time to earn extra money on the outside by working for his neighbors who have larger farms than his. He is an expert in the use of the acme of comfort. Pretty pictures adorned the walls, with here and there an ancient tawling piece that had come down from a peasant ancestor. A beautifully carved grandfather clock with yellowed dial and big wooden hands filled a corner of the sitting room and in another corner was a huge porcelain decorative heating stove that reached almost to the ceiling. Mid-winter in Denmark is like a warm blanket. The sun was ground from December till April. People and cattle are housed under one roof and the ice-cold living rooms are heated with huge stoves. Every community is found a peat pit with which women are digging. Peat is a substance rich in oil formed of decayed vegetable matter, like moss or peat, and is used for fuel. It is the size of two bricks, compressed in peat blocks. It is found in nearly every farm in northern Europe. Peter Jespersen's home life and farming methods are descriptive of the life and farming methods in Denmark. As acreage increases so does the size and number of the buildings, but some life and farming methods are the same in every home and on every farm from the smallest landholder to the largest.

I invariably asked this question: "How do you like the cooperative system of marketing?" The invariable answer was, "It is the life-blood of agriculture. We could not exist without it. We produce and the association sells. We do not worry with the selling part. We know that we will get the best market price for our produce." One big farmer told me that he had not looked at a market report in two months. Confidence is the foundation on which co-operative marketing in Denmark is built. Ninety-eight percent of the farm products are sold co-operatively and each member of the association from the smallest to the largest producer, has a simple, child-like faith in the officers of the association. Co-operative marketing is not an experiment. The system has been in operation nearly 50 years and forms an important part of Denmark's national life. In the early stages of its development it met with the same difficulties through which co-operative marketing in America is passing at the present moment. If the Dane's early experiences had been typed on sheets and broadcasted over America we could not have followed in his footsteps so closely.

The Robust Danish Woman

Civilization follows woman like a dog and follows her. That of the world before it was touched by the influence of woman. The Danish woman has just obtained in the social and economic life of the nation. She is a home-maker and home-builder. Denmark is a nation of small farmers. The Danish woman is scarce. Housewives do their own work and the Danish woman is very industrious. Strong, healthy and robust they 75,000 pounds of raw beets to the acre, are capable of performing a great amount of physical labor. Women of in length and 12 inches in diameter.

rare. Sometimes you see them in the cities. But in both city and country roups and lip-sticks are practically unknown. Cosmetics could not enhance the beauty of the Danish woman. Outdoor and indoor exercise give a slow to cheek and a sparkle to the eye which store-bought beauty cannot touch. Bicycle riding is a popular sport and the lower neither limbs of both sexes are abnormally developed. Even in the most fashionable places I found no signs of roups, lip-sticks or make-up. The red lips and ruddy cheeks are natural. But the women are incessant smokers. Young girls accompanying their parents smoke and drink in public places. I have traveled over a good portion of the civilized world but it is the first time I have seen women smoking cigars in public places. I was dining in the main room of a fashionable Copenhagen hotel. Opposite my table were two grandmothers and two grandfathers. The women were smoking long, black cigars with the ease and abandon of veteran smokers. I thought my eyes would pop out and roll round on the floor like marbles. "Heavens!" I exclaimed due to an American government official with whom was dining "are there women smoking cigars?" He laughed and said "Yes, it's the custom." He said "After dinner we'll walk through the promenade and I'll show you lots of women smoking strong, black cigars." I didn't see a single highly-rouged fatty passed smoking with ease a highly perturbed cigarette and bowed gracefully to my companion. He watched her retreating figure long and silently. "See," he said, "she is touched and she is an American style. She is just back from America where she has been visiting friends. She is trying to get into clean airs. Before she went over she smoked small, mild cigars. Now she smokes the cigarette." She had become Americanized.

God's Most Neglected People

AVERAGE PER CAPITA COST IN OHIO HOSPITALS FOR INSANE ABOUT 50 CENTS

Editor's Note—This is the fifth of a series of articles that will appear each week in this newspaper dealing with Ohio's problem of increasing insanity. These articles are sponsored by the Ohio Association for the Welfare of the Mentally Sick, which has but one objective, namely, more scientific and more sick patients in state hospitals and the rapid rehabilitation of these unfortunate.

Because of an old fatalistic belief of "Once insane, always insane," the non-medical mind of institutions for the care of the mentally sick has been of greatest interest, and consequently the per capita cost price idea has prevailed in the minds of those who are responsible for the administration of the institution.

The per capita cost price of our various institutions varies considerably, depending upon size, location and farming facilities.

There are four important items entering into per capita cost price. First, that of salary and wages paid employees; second, that of food; third, that of general plant maintenance; and fourth, that of heat, light and water.

What Survey Shows
A recent survey made of daily per capita expenses shows the following: California, 50c; Michigan, 52c; Pennsylvania, $1.02; Massachusetts, 62c; New York, 78c; Colorado, 79c; New Jersey, 79c and Indiana, 51c. Although complete statistics are not as yet available, Ohio will run between 70c and 80c.

When we consider that the average cost price per capita in the average general hospital is from $3.50 to $4.50 per day, we can readily appreciate how our asylums are being conducted, so far as this one item is concerned. The average per capita cost price of maintaining jails throughout the country is greater than that in our state institutions for the care of the mentally sick.

What does a low per capita cost price mean? How does it reflect upon the patient personnel?

Also includes Personnel
As before stated, the per capita cost price includes personnel. To get so low a per capita cost price one must have very low paid personnel.

A survey of our state institutions for the care of the mentally sick will show just what is being paid, and were it not so serious a matter, it would be ludicrous. The superintendent's salary is set by law at $3,500 per year. That is, he receives $3,500 for the first year he is superintendent. No business could operate under such a system, for if he is not worth more than $3,500 at the end of 10 years' service, he should be relieved.

Start at $125 Per Month

The assistant physicians start in at $125 per month and maintenance. If you should ask your family doctor what he thinks of a salary, he would tell you that the man who has spent at least 16 years of his life and $10,000 in obtaining the necessary education to be permitted to practice medicine would be displaying very poor judgment to accept a position that paid less than the average hold carrier receives.

Every state hospital in Ohio is provided with one trained nurse, who has under her protection the nursing care of from 1,500 to 2,500 patients. Those of you who are trained nurses will appreciate the difficulties of this trained nurse, who conscientiously tries to carry out the teaching she has received in her training course. The chief nurse receives a salary of from $75 to $100 per month and maintenance.

Now comes the attendance personnel. Formerly they were called "guards." The name was changed because it sounded better. We average one attendant to every 15 or 20 patients in our state hospitals of Ohio. These attendants start to work at $35 per month and maintenance for women and $45 per month and maintenance for men. After a period of two years their salaries are increased $10 per month.

Attempts to protect candy and food in wrapped packages have been successful through the use of a new material called cellophane. It is made of cloth without pores. Cellophane is a beautiful plain transparent wrapping, and it is also used on perfumes, powder, soap, drugs, etc., completely protecting them. As it contains no animal matter, cellophane does not decompose, and it is bacteria-proof.

The Embroidery Club held their annual banquet in the church parlors, last Tuesday evening. Their husbands were the guests. Several delicious dishes were served. Rev. S. S. Struyk was the toastmaster. Soon after the supper, a short program was given, which made the participants seem much younger than they really were. After the program a few snaps were taken, which made them feel even more happier. The only question now is whether the pictures are good enough for human eyes to behold. The Misses Grace Burma, Mattie Cok, Newmeyer and Jennie Crane were maids of honor.

Mrs. Gerrit Wiers was a Monday visitor of Mrs. Warner Vogel.
Mrs. Fred Vogel, Mrs. Tom Shaarda, Mrs. Sam Danoff and Miss Tena Workman attended the Wooster Girls Club concert at Shelby last Friday evening.
Raymond Newmeyer, Engel Cok, John Postema, Rudy Holthouse and Clarence Wiers were entertained at a quiet party in Mansfield given by friends at that place.
Mr. Tom Shaarda and Bill Burma were in Cleveland Tuesday on business.

R. C. SNYDER TELLS OF TRIP TO EUROPE

Mr. R. C. Snyder, editor of the Norwalk Reflector-Herald spoke of recent trip to Europe before a large gathering at the W. S. church at New Haven last Thursday evening. He gave a brief review of Switzerland telling of its beautiful scenery and ancient spots. He was the Ohio delegate to a newspaper conference at Geneva, and also attended some of the sessions of the League of Nations. He said that France's debt should not be cancelled, for if it should they would only use the extra money in preparing for another war, and everywhere there was talk of the next war. He told of the effects of war on France and Belgium and of France's attitude toward America. The lady and gentlemen life of England contrasted with the life of the same class in this country. Many humorous but good points were brot out. After the program and speech the P. T. A. held a short business session.

NEW HAVEN SCHOOL NEWS

SENIOR PARTY

The Seniors entertained the High school and New Haven faculty at a Valentine party in the Portable last Friday evening. Several contests and games were played. Lunch was then served and the party brought to a peaceful close.

SURPRISE PARTY

The Junior and Senior classes and the High school faculty were entertained by Mrs. Will Dufy Monday evening at a surprise valentine party on Ralph Dufy. The surprise was such a success that he was almost overcome with humiliation. Kenneth McGinnis and Miss Harris were the King and Queen of the party. There were several hard-working contests. The good time was brought to a close by a lunch and the inflicting of penalties to those deserving.

The Student Council and faculty are working hard on plans for a permanent student council in the High school. So far all is well.

St. Valentine Day was duly celebrated in the grade rooms. There were several well-filled boxes. The young students went home with happy heart, and especially the teachers, for they received their fill too. The first and second grades were given a surprise when Mildred Woodworth treated them all to Eskimo pies and heart shaped cookies.
Mr. S. A. Porter, Ralph Dufy, C. D. McGinnis and Clarence Vogel, assisted by the High school faculty, evening at the Presbyterian church parlors at Willard.

LYON'S FATE IN HANDS OF THE SUPREME COURT

Jim Lyon's fate now rests in the Supreme court of Ohio. Lyon's attorneys appeared before the court last week to make their final argument for a new trial. It will probably be thirty days before a decision is made by the court. Lee McGrath, a brother of the slain man, died recently at his home in Topeka, Kan. He attended the Lyon murder trial at Newark.

Overdoing?

Hurry, Worry and Overwork Bring Heavy Strain.

MODERN life throws a heavy burden on our bodily machinery. The climatic organs, especially the kidneys, are apt to become sluggish. Retention of excess uric acid and other poisonous waste often gives rise to a dull, languid feeling and, sometimes, to back-aches and headaches. That the kidneys are not functioning perfectly is often shown by burning or scanty passage of excretions. More and more people are learning to assist their kidneys by the occasional use of Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic. Ask your neighbor!

WASHINGTON RELIED ON DIVINE PROVIDENCE

Washington's faith and courage during the trying days of the Revolution were sustained by his belief in a Supreme Being, according to Quaker O'Taylor, who has an interesting article in the current issue of the National Republic, relating incidents which show Washington's belief in Divine guidance.

According to Mr. Taylor all through his illustrious life, Washington referred to the Providence of God. In a letter to his brother, written a few days after Braddock's defeat he said:
 "By the all-powerful dispensations of Providence I have been protected beyond all human probability, or expectation; for I had four bullets through my coat, and two horses shot under me, yet escaped unhurt, although death was leveling my companions on every side of me."

In a letter to Governor Trumbull of Connecticut, in 1775, he said: "As the cause of our common country calls us both to an active and dangerous duty, I trust that Divine Providence, which wisely orders the affairs of men, will enable us to discharge it with fidelity and success."

About the same time he wrote General Gage, of the British army, in answer to a letter from him: "May the God to who you then appeal, Judge between America and you. Under His Providence, those who in-fensed the councils of America, and all the other inhabitants of the United Colonies at the hazard of their lives, are determined to hand down to posterity those just and invaluable privileges, which they received from their ancestors."

In a circular to his officers, in 1775, Washington said: "The success of such an enterprise depends, I well know, upon the All-wise Disposer of events, and it is not within the reach of human wisdom to foretell the issue."

A letter to Joseph Reed, January,

1776, reads: "How it will end, God, in His great goodness, will direct. I am thankful for His protection to this time."

Valley Forge, May 30, 78, was the date of a letter, which read:
 "To paint the distress and perilous situation of this army, in the course of last winter, for want of clothes, provisions, and almost every other necessary essential to the well-being may say existence of an army, would require more time and an able pen than mine; nor, since our prospects have so miraculously brightened shall I attempt it, or even bear it in remembrance, further than as a moment of what is due to the Great Author of all that we care and good that have been extended in relieving us in difficulties and distress."

To Benjamin Harrison, Virginia, December 30, 1778, he wrote: "Providence has heretofore taken us up when all other means and hopes seemed to be departing from us. In this I will confide."

No other low-priced six will ever give you this

It is not beyond the realms of possibility that some day there will be offered a newly created six, closely approximating in basic design and price the Pontiac Six as introduced a year ago.
But even if that car does make its appearance, it will lack one powerful inducement to ownership that is of paramount importance in contemplating the Pontiac Six:
Its design and construction will not have been proved by millions of miles of actual service in the hands of thousands of owners. And that is essential, even in a car which was tested and developed as the Pontiac Six was for over three years prior to its announcement!

Design and construction so convincingly demonstrated means more than the elimination of fundamental weaknesses. It means a mind from one year's end to the other—and that is what buyers have a right to get, no matter how much or how little they pay!

RED CLOVER BOWLS

Drainage, lime, phosphorus, and inoculation decide the success of alfalfa on Ohio farms. Where these are made favorable to alfalfa it is no harder to grow than ordinary red clover.

The lime content of the soil is most important in growing alfalfa. Certain parts of Ohio have soil that are naturally rich in lime, but most of them are deficient in that respect, and are known as acid soils. The test for lime is comparatively simple, Wallace E. Hanger, extension specialist in farm crops, points out, and the local S. M. Hughes teacher or the county agent is generally equipped to make the test.

Alfalfa will not stand excessive moisture. Where the natural drainage is not sufficient lime will in most cases make it dry enough for this crop.

Most soils in the state are low in phosphorus and many failures of red clover may be attributed to this deficiency. Usually an application of 200 or 300 pounds an acre of fertilizer high in phosphorus will take care of the phosphorus needs for a year or two.

Inoculation is now much more simple than it was a few years ago. It is no longer necessary to use soil or to inoculate the legume has grown. Commercial inoculation takes less labor and is just as efficient if the directions of the manufacturer are followed.

ORGANIZE DISHPAN TO SAVE VACATION

It's possible to save three weeks' time a year by using method in washing dishes.

Washing dishes the old way consumes three times as much time as the new way, Geneva M. Bane, home management specialist at the Ohio State University, points out.

The old way, the dishes are brought from the dining room as they can be carried in the hands; they are set about the kitchen in no order at all. After they are washed they are carried back by hand to the dining room again. Tests showed that it took 45 minutes to wash the dishes this way.

The new method Miss Bane describes is one where everything is done within a few movements as possible. In the test, the dishes were all brought from the dining room at the same time on a wheeled tray; they were cleaned and stacked at the right of the dishwasher in an orderly way. After being washed, the dishes were placed at the left of the dishwasher.

The wheel tray was placed to receive the dishes as they were dried and all of them wheeled to the dining room at the same time. Only fifteen minutes were required to finish the job. There were 72 pieces in each set. The work was all done in the same rooms in each test.

POOR SEED SHIPPED FROM OTHER STATES

Read the labels in buying seed for crops this spring. Some so-called marvelous mixtures are truly marvelous for their low grade. Professor C. J. Willard of the department of farm crops at the Ohio State University observes.

One widely advertised pasture mixture sold to contain clover and timothy was composed of very low grade seed for the most part. A large part of the clover seed was made up of a very cheap annual yellow sweet clover that is separated from wheat as dockage, and is worthless as a pasture.

Seeds sold in Ohio are always safe. The Ohio seed law requires all seed to be labeled. It must state the relative purity of the seed, percent germination, percent of weed seeds in the whole, and name the noxious weeds present.

This protection is not afforded the farmer who buys seed direct from outside the state. Such shipments need not comply with the Ohio seed law. Professor Willard points out.

Unless every lot clearly labeled as to contents, germination, and purity it is best to buy other seeds that are so marked. Seeds, after all, concludes Professor Willard, have a market value and cheap mixtures must necessarily contain cheap grades of seeds. Very often low priced mixtures are a means of getting rid of poor quality seed at more than market price.

Library Notes
The Library is growing steadily. Usually there is a slump in circulation during the holidays. This year our record has been quite surprising. In December, 520 books were loaned in January 577 books were loaned. The total number of books given to or purchased by the library is now 1530. Besides these books we have 100 volumes from Mansfield and 190 volumes from Ohio State Library. A collection of 40 juvenile books has just been received from Ohio State Library. Many of these are for children of pre-school age.

This library is a branch station of the Mansfield County Library and as such receives books both from Mansfield and from Ohio State Library. It is supported entirely by funds received from three sources, gifts, fines and rentals. Gifts of course you know about. Fines are charged on all books kept fourteen days. A book may be kept for fourteen days and renewed for the same length of time. If a book is kept longer than this a fine of 1c a day is charged. A small collection of late fiction is available at a rental charge of 5 cents per week. These books are not renewable and a charge of 2 cents a day is made for each day the book is kept after seven days.

The work is done by volunteer workers. This means that no remuneration of any sort is given or expected monthly reports are made to Mansfield and an annual report is required by the Ohio State Library.

The library is free to any one living in this community. We ask all adults to sign an application card and 10 years ago, and his estate is now to be liquidated.

WATER SUPPLIES — HERE AND ELSEWHERE

Now that Wheeling's medicated water supply has resumed its obnoxious cold-weather chlorine taste—a taste prevailing, even in coffee, tea, soup and other liquid preparations—note may be taken of the fact that the Department of Water Supply of New York City is recommending the sinking of 100 artesian wells in Kings, Queens and Nassau counties, Long Island at a cost of $14,000,000, in order to supplement and better the city's water supply, the wells to be driven 700 feet into the ocean sands and estimated to supply 150,000,000 gallons daily.

Good water is a necessity to any community and to secure an adequate supply, New York, at a cost of approximately $175,000,000 went 100 miles deep into the Catskill mountains, and by drilling an 18 mile tunnel, tapped both the Schorarie and Neopaus watersheds, covering a range of 600 square miles which even in dry weather was promised to turn into the reservoirs some 1,000,000,000 gallons daily to care for the city's 800,000,000 gallon consumption, and by means of the dams installed, create a storage supply of 20,000,000,000 gallons available at all times.

But the Gilboa and other dams are not now doing their part. Much water is being lost by bottom leakage, because of which during the summer months just passed New York was threatened by a water famine. The utmost economy had to be practiced and now the more for the supplemental 150,000,000 gallon driven wells supply. And thus, does the most expensive water system of the age appear to be failing, unless some means of stopping the reservoir leaks is soon discovered.

Wheeling went into the water supply business upon a far more expensive scale than necessary, and it may be that the chemical-mechanical scheme which was adopted over the driven well system, as in vogue at Martins Ferry, will yet be tried.

The water as a present provided for Wheeling is clear and makes bathing and washing a pleasure, compared to the old days of muddy seas when the Ohio was on a rampage, and even the chlorine taste may be "stomached," but for how long? Unless the Government passes legislation preventing the running of mine refuse and mill acids into our inland streams and unless all cities and towns forego using them as sewers by finding other means of disposing of municipal sewage, our streams are certain to reach such a stage of contamination and pollution that it will soon be impossible to filter and purify such waters either in a manner sufficiently economic to be supported by the taxpayers, or in a way that will not render the supply wholly undrinkable through the increased use of concentrated chemicals.

And as the day when cities may be compelled to handle their sewage otherwise than at present is far distant, The Register is quite firm in the belief that Wheeling, like New York, will, before that time, be forced to seek a new source of water, and the best supply available is the naturally filtered water that flows through our wet present gravel beds, to tap which the system that was refused in preference to the chemical-mechanical plan now operating.—The Wheeling Register.

It would be well for every taxpayer, or any citizen interested in better water for Plymouth, to read this over again. This is only one of the many similar letters that can be produced showing that filtration plants for city water supply is a method doomed. If possible to get wells for supply when cities that spend large sums of money, to get the best and then fail, why should little towns attempt to try? Can it be possible after the people have so clearly expressed their desires on the water question, denouncing the quarry supply that some of our council men still say nothing but the quarry? Can it be that some people have eyes and see not, feelings and feel not? Can we trust any leaders who do not work for the good of the city of the voters? Must we resort to the worst water supply we can find? Put the town to a lot of expense to fit this water for our use? Scarcely a filtering plant but what the winter does some damage. Filtering water does not remove germs; you must use chemicals. Something strong enough to eat out your plumbing fixtures, as this is the case. Compare this to good well water. If you cannot see, hear, or feel, you have no chance left—you can taste. If one gives a horse water, one pail out of a well and the other out of the best filtering system, the horse will take the well water. No difference how often you change the pails. We call this "horse sense."

It seems strange that any further arguments are necessary to decide the water question. Do we relinquish our rights when we vote? Do we assign our rights to the officers we elect? Are officers not sworn to protect our rights? Can the officers say "Yes," when we by majority, say "No?" Can they spend our money, and obligate us as they please? As soon as we have officers that will give the majority of the people what they want, and should have, that water question will be settled. The State would be glad to see us have wells. Any filtration plant would be an expensive gift for PLYMOUTH.
