Meeting Next Wednesday Evening at M. E. Church Will be Inspirational

"A Feast of Reason," and for each and all, so long as standing room is available, at the Methodist church, on Wednesday evening, March 9, at 7:30 o'clock. A union service, for the Rev. J. W. Oborn, D. D. of Chicago, Stewardship Evangelist from the Chicago office, is too big a man to be confined to one church of a community, so all the churches, and many of no church will want to hear this interesting speaker, for he comes highly recommended by pastors from some of our largest city churches. So, we all want to enjoy this occasion as a community. There will be an offering taken to cover the expenses of the speaker.

Father and Son Banquet Here Well Attended

Shelby Man Gives Interesting Address; Program a Pleasing One.

The Plymouth Division of District Number One, Council of Religious Education of Richland County, held their Father and Son Banquet on last Monday evening.

About one hundred fathers and sons gathered in the tastefully arranged, dining room of the Chamber of Commerce, to enjoy the bountiful repast, carefully prepared by the Junior class of our High school. Rev. W. H. Gibson returned thanks.

A three-course appetizing dinner was served. The dinner consisted of Fruit Cocktail, Roast Beef, Mashed Potatoes, Gravy, Pickles, Buttered Rolls, Fruit Salad, Pie with Whipped Cream.

Coffee

Oliver Cline as Toastmaster, in a few well-chosen words, presented Ray Keller, the president of District Number One, who addressed the fathers, on the subject of "A Son's Appreciation of a Father's Love." It is a great thing to be a father," he said, "but it is also a great thing to be a son." The thought he expressed in his talk was as follows: "In return for our father's love, we, as sons, pledge, not silver or gold, which many of us have not, but to live clean lives, by keeping our thoughts pure, by speaking only kind words, and by doing good deeds. We promise to stand for the hard right and work the easy wrong; to play fair and work hard; to be ready to help others at some cost to ourselves."

Mr. E. R. Baldus responded in behalf of the fathers. He said by each

Good Support Is Given to the Minstrel Show

Shiloh's Home Talent Affair Goes Over Big; Audiences Enjoyed Program

SHILOH—When the curtain rose Thursday evening for the first night of the Minstrel show, the stage revealed a fine representative class of community men, and a capacity house greeted them with a magnanimous ovation which was a true indication of their anticipated successful entertainment.

Each number on the program could receive special praise without flattery and the program was so diversified as to please the most exacting critic. The Interlocutor, Floyd Dowmond made a handsome appearance and pleased his audience.

The music furnished by the Shiloh Hi Orchestra with Miss Reva Miller at the piano and Ruth Rosenberry director, deserves high commendation not only for the good class of music furnished for the entertainment, but also for the rapid progress they have made since receiving instructions from Mr. Rosenberry.

Miss Jeanette Firestone made a beautiful picture when impersonating Miss Liberty.

Friday night the attendance was also splendid considering the inclement weather, and, as on the preceding evening, each number was heartily enjoyed. At the conclusion of the Friday evening entertainment, Rev. McRoom in a few appropriate remarks presented Miss Floy Rose, the pianist, a beautiful basket of roses, as an appreciation of her efficient work in aiding to make the show a success.

The comedy dialogue between Leola Hamman and Wood Arnold was well delivered and added much to the merriment.

It was the consensus of opinion that it was one of the best minstrel shows ever in town.

Tiro Plays Here Tonite

Thursday evening, March 3, the independent basketball team of Tiro, O., will meet the Plymouth Fords at Hamilton Hall in an attempt to get revenge for the defeat that they suffered from them last week.

The Tiro team has a rather high standing in the Crawford County League and should put up a good battle against the original Ford team. Last week at Tiro only a few of them were there, but with the aid of Valkenburg of Willard and Reynolds of Shiloh, the team put up one of the best passing and basket shooting combinations that has been witnessed this year.

Tiro jumped to an early lead but were able to hold it for only a quarter before the half the score stood, Plymouth 30, Tiro 13 and at the final blow it stood 43-27 in favor of the Fords.

The basket shooting of Becker, forward and Valkenburg, center, helped the Ford team. Each collecting 17 points.

Plymouth Girls Take Tournament Trophy

Boys' Team Defeat Lexington, But Lose to Lucas, Forfeiting Chance at Cup

Plymouth was again well represented this year at the county basketball tournament held Saturday at Madison school. The girls' team of the local high school brought home the trophy. The teams were given a warm reception Monday morning at the school, and a general celebration lasted for a time.

Local ball fans were interested to a great extent and when the results were made known here much praise was given the team.

The following scores and comments are taken from the Sunday edition of The Mansfield News:

Plymouth Triumphs
Plymouth girls ruthlessly slew opposition to cope with their divisional competitors and in the finals with Lucas, humbled that team in a well played tilt which displayed technique interspersed with a great many trills which were shown as an extra entertainment for the fans.

Plymouth raced through a cleanly contested tilt and took the game in an easier fashion than the score indicates. After a fast first half which ended in a tie to ten deadlock, the contest brought out many entertaining basketball points. Lucas often worked the ball into Plymouth's set for only to have their attack be changed to a defensive stance when Plymouth intercepted the Lucas passes. It worked both ways though Plymouth gained their three point advantage in the third quarter and held it to the mark of the final gun.

Fate, substitute forward, was smitten upon by the three Fates, and she gathered five baskets. Together with H. Becker's timely shooting and Sheely's performances, this trio just about won the game for Plymouth though the defensive work of the guards was very good.

Sturgeon led the Lucas girls with six baskets and was assisted by Darling who came through nicely in the final half.

The lineup and summary:

Woman Killed By Fast Train

Laura Armstrong Meets Instant Death Sunday Afternoon as Train Hits Auto

Laura Armstrong, 31, was instantly killed Sunday afternoon when the Ford coupe she was driving was struck by a fast westbound Baltimore and Ohio train, at Newmans' Corner, north of here.

The impact of the collision drove the car upon the pilot of the engine and was carried several hundred yards. Miss Armstrong's body was found inside the car with almost every bone in her body broken.

The crossing is one of the worst in this section, view of the tracks being obscured from three ways until almost on the rails.

Miss Armstrong was well known in Plymouth, having graduated from the high school here. For the past few years she was employed at the Baltimore & Ohio roundhouse as engine clerk. She resided in Steuben with her father and always drove to and from her work.

The news of the tragic accident cast a gloom over her many friends whom she had won by her many womanly charms and pleasant disposition.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home in Steuben.

Mrs. Weatherby Badly Injured

Thrown Thru Windshield of Auto Last Wednesday at Mansfield.

Mrs. E. E. Weatherby suffered a very serious and painful accident last Wednesday night when she was thrown through the windshield of the automobile in which she was riding. An examination showed that Mrs. Weatherby suffered a broken nose, a badly cut and crushed face and an eye injury which may cause the loss of its sight.

The accident occurred at the intersection of West Third and Sycamore streets, Mansfield. Both streets have rather steep grades at this point and an embankment makes it difficult for northbound traffic on Sycamore to see down grade traffic on Third street.

Mrs. Weatherby's daughter, Mrs. Lou Stambaugh, was driving the machine when the mishap occurred. She states that when she reached the intersection she observed a speeding machine without lights about to cross at the same time. In applying the brakes suddenly to avoid a smashup, Mrs. Weatherby was plunged through the windshield. She was later rushed to the hospital.

Mrs. Weatherby is a former Plymouth resident and many friends here will regret to learn of her misfortune.

Tiro Boy Has Narrow Escape

James Clawson, 23, was struck by a Pennsylvania train about ten o'clock Saturday morning at Tiro and suffered severe injuries. He was removed to the Memorial Hospital in Shelby where it was found that he received several fractures, a broken leg and other injuries.

Clawson was driving a roadster and in some way failed to see the approaching train which was moving slowly. However, the machine was carried about 100 yards before the train came to a stop. The automobile was badly wrecked.

A Tour Abroad

PARIS

The journey from Copenhagen to Hamburg is tedious and tiresome. You have to take a map of Denmark. You will observe at a glance why it takes a fast express six hours to run from Copenhagen to the German border—a distance of only 150 miles. The southern end of Denmark is cut into several islands and the trains are ferried from island to island. The ferry boats will take a train of ten coaches. The train runs onto the boat without a pause. In a few minutes the wheels are jacked clear of the tracks, the front and rear ends are raised and the boat slides away from the dock. On the other side the train is under way a few minutes after the ferry touches the docks. The passenger does not leave the coaches. It is a fine system and works well in fair weather. I do not know what the weather was when the weather is foul. The ferry boats are a part of the Baltic Sea. The longest stretch of water is between Denmark and Germany where the ferry crosses the lower end of the Baltic Sea. It is three hours across the body of water and you lose sight of land. Half of the lower end of the Baltic Sea. It is three hours across the other half to Germany. When the ferry boat reaches the half-way point the Danish flag comes down and up goes the German flag. Densely populated European nations are jealous of every foot of space they own either on land or water. It is Sunday and the passenger list is heavy. The ferry boat dining room down stairs is crowded to capacity. Both Danes and Germans are voluptuous holiday eaters—and drinkers. Orders are being shouted in several different languages as the ferry crosses the water. The moment a seat is vacated it is filled by a hungry and thirsty passenger. The scene warms and I climb the stairs to the promenade deck at the top of the ship. It is quiet here. A few passengers sit or stand at various places and look at each other in a dull, listless sort of way. I speak to my friend in English. English young girl not more than 18 years of age smiles and with a bluish gasp: "That sounds good to me." She is from Massachusetts and is traveling alone from Sweden to Italy by way of Berlin and Vienna. Home-sickness written on every feature. She has been before the cast return to America. She is a student. The boat lands at two docks in different directions. When I told her roughly that I rolled down her cheeks. Home-sickness is a terrible disease. It is an ailment that has been known to have been strong men give way under it.

Oceans of Holstein cattle

Germany and Denmark are as much alike as two drops of water. Until 1848 that part of northern Germany known as the Holstein and Schleswig sections belonged to Denmark. They were traded to Prussia for a few empty titles.

The ship spent the rest of his days in prison for the unequal trade. It is Sunday and I think the Holsteins are having a family reunion. The land is covered with oceans and oceans of Holsteins. In the two hours' ride before dark I have seen half the Holsteins in the world. The sight is not new but it is interesting. Three years ago I spent several days in this delightful country and I am passing familiar ground. Here, as in Denmark that the system came in to full flower. The old countries are slow to change and I do not note any improvement or changes as my train dashes through the little towns or by the small farm settlements where the houses are grouped and end in a circle. The group settlement idea originated before history was written—when men lived close together for mutual protection. Group settlements are found in all foreign countries.

The German Sawing Wood

Germany is making a quick recovery from the World War. It will be the first country in Europe to reach the top again. It is because the German is saving wood and saying nothing. He is at work. German industries are running almost to capacity. It has been three years since I was here, but in that time there has been a marked improvement in the cities. My last visit was made at the most critical period in the history of the new republic. The day I entered Germany I bought 600 marks for a few dollars. The price of the mark was 24 cents. I remained here four weeks, and so rapidly did the mark decline that by the day I left, I was buying seven and a half million for the dollar. For once in my life I had had more money than I had started out with. But the nation was passing through a grueling period—a period without a parallel in the history of the world. Farmers, in a desperate effort to beat the fall of the mark, were eating up all they produced and feeding their milk to the pigs while city babies were starving. Bread lines stretched out in every direction. In these lines wood cutters' women half-clothed in shredded silks, and men, used to the luxuries of the world, with hair combed through tattered shoes. Bread riots were breaking out every hour and armed forces were sent to quell the rioting which often resulted in the death of several men. I was frequent in the streets of these cities. The people became so hardened by these frequent claims that when the rifles cracked they instantly sought the shelter of a doorway. The rioters attacked taxis in the streets and overturned trolleys. I was lunching in a cafe in the heart of Berlin. The waiter cracked near the doorway. The waiter hastily pulled the curtains to the street windows. When I attempted to look out he warned me that the sight of people dining in the cafe angered the mob. The last sight I saw in Germany was the rat-tat of machine guns was heard throughout the night. The police were unable to control the rioters.

One Sense a Peaceful Atmosphere

But now all this has changed. Germany is once more at peace with itself and the world. The mark finally went the way of countless currencies following the close of the civil war in the states. Germany has a new currency called the "Rentenmark." It has the value of the old pre-war mark—20 cents. The "Rentenmark" is backed by first mortgages on the property and rents of the republic—hence its name. With the disappearance of the old mark and the introduction of the "Rentenmark" the cost of living which had been very low under the old mark jumped to a point of extreme and for several months Germany had common sense hating. But its economy has been restored to a point to a common sense basis and white wages are still low as compared with other countries. The cost of living and the German is getting along fairly well. His ships are being lost and he is replacing the ships he lost at the close of the war. It has been charged unofficially that one of the causes of the war was the fact that Germany is making a determined effort to regain the prestige she formerly enjoyed as the largest sea power in the world.

Travel Still at the Peak

Germany is a nation of travelers and railway travel has been confined here since here in 1923. The stations and railway trains are packed and jammed night and day. Three days before I left Germany I went for a sleeping reservation on a Paris express. The hour of departure was 11 o'clock. The train had not started. I got aboard and took a chance. The sleeping car conductor walked his hands and shrugged his shoulders. He looked angry and hurled the liberal tip I offered him, but he was helpless. He offered me a berth in the third class sleeping car. I had seen a third-class sleeper and I went with him and looked. The little rooms were as at right angles with each other, the same as in the first class sleeping car. There were three berths on each side of the aisle. The berths had no mattresses, no pillows, no covering. The sleeper merely stretched out on hard boards and pulled his blanket over his head. There was no door to the room. I have crossed rough spots in my travels, but this was the roughest I have ever seen. There stretched in front of me the prospect of an all night journey in a dirty compartment with three Germans and two Frenchmen already asleep with mouths agape. In my despair I stroled to the rear of the train where I found a first-class coach with empty compartments. The lights burned low. I placed my baggage in one of the compartments, pulled the curtains and stretched on the long cushioned bench. At 11 o'clock I was awakened by a roar that sounded like a small tornado. A huge German train conductor stood over me and bellowing like a bull "Out out out all he could say. He would not argue, but when I offered him $250 in American money his frown turned to smiles. I kept the compartment on the 20-hour journey to Paris. How the railway workers in Germany repeated each time conductors changed at the Belgian and French frontiers.

Stings of War Disappearing

Our express dashes by Cologne and is entering the territory where only a few years ago competing my legs buck and forth in a deadly struggle for supremacy. The country was laid waste. Mighty shells towered and dived to powder. When the armies had swept onward the only signs of life were vultures perched on shell-shattered tree trunks like sentinels keeping vigil over a city of the dead. Now all this has disappeared. Shell-tattered lands have been leveled and are once more producing the food that will perhaps make good and strong for future armies. Towns are being rebuilt and in a few years all signs of war will have disappeared. But our train has entered the station in Paris and gray-coated, red-capped portiers have flung up the wide tourist windows for the coming of hussars. The Station of the North (Gare du Nord) is a human beehive. It will take five minutes to reach the seats where you will glance into another mob of travelers, pushing, shoving, quarreling and laughing like men gone wild.

A herd of long horned cattle, once so numerous in the West are to be preserved by the Department of Agriculture in Oklahoma. This will probably occasion another outbreak of protest from our professional pacifists.

NEILAN OWES FILM SUCCESS TO HARD WORK

The wide acclaim with which "Everybody's Acting" has been greeted by both press and public, serves to focus attention on the man responsible for the picture's success. Marshall Neilan, affectionately known as Mickey to all Hollywood, wrote, directed and produced the story, which is an original for the screen. This picture may be seen at the Temple Theatre, Willard, Ohio on Sunday.

If it had been at all necessary, Mickey could have stepped in and acted in the picture as well. Movie-fetters of a few years back still recall that Neilan gained his first motion picture fame as Mary Pickford's leading man. Later he was a star in his own right. There have been times in the past when he has been associated with a production in all four capacities—as author, actor, director and producer.

DREAM REALIZED

It is given to some people to dream, plan and plant, then be put aside while others reap where they have not sown and gather where they have not scattered abroad. It was so in the case of David Moffat, one of the conspicuous men in the life and development of Colorado.

He dreamed of a railway line from Denver to Salt Lake, built over and through the mountains, a tunnel miles long to pierce the high cliffs, a line that would reduce the rail distance between these cities by nearly 200 miles and open up a great country, left untouched because transportation could not be snappled.

He had been one of the great developers in Leadville, was a millionaire many times, president of a powerful bank in Denver, had been one of the strong men in developing the larger interests of that city, felt certain the railway line could be financed.

The line was surveyed, it pierced with 37 short tunnels the rocky portions of the mountains, it fell, 50 miles, it climbed toward the heights, it was a magnificent scenic route, a wonderful bit of engineering. Then he found trouble. After spending his own millions he was unable to finance the costly tunnel construction. It was his bitter experience to feel, low his fortune, die penniless in a city he had helped to make great.

His tunnel idea survived and is nearly completed, others took up the unfinished work, a tunnel more than six miles long has been bored thru the base of James Peak, and trains will run through the mountains, it will be the highest craze. Through that tunnel Denver will receive a great supply of pure mountain water enough for all domestic needs and a great store for irrigation to produce more wealth. Through the tunnel trains will speed along as he dreamed, and a great service to the nation will be given, because he dreamed and fought even if he did lose.

David Moffat died defeated, but the idea to which he held fast has won its way. It will be the Moffat Tunnel, will bear his name, a tribute to the dreamer. He failed, but the vision that inspired him survived. He marked the way, a territory vast as France will be opened, rich in natural wealth, the contribution of a man whose body rests in an unmarked grave. Here, as in other instances, is shown the victory of the dreamer.—Ohio State Journal.

We hardly think it will come to burning at the stake in this country again but there is undeniably some sentiment for a return to the good old ways and we know people who think Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler would make a dandy bonfire.—Ohio State Journal.

FORDS LOSE TO FAST

COLLEGE QUINCY

The local Russell and Reynolds Ford Basket Ball Team bit off more than it could chew when it met the Theta Nu Epsilon Fraternity team from the Northern University at Ada. With the locals unable to break up the exceptional passing of the visitors, it was only a question of time until the college boys could locate the basket. At first they made many unsuccessful efforts but in time they were able to spot the bucket regularly. However, the old saying that the strongest defense is a good offense was carried out. Whenever the Ada lads attempted to slack up the pace, the Plymouth youngsters staged a rally and poured the pill through the iron hoop.

This was a game in which no individual starred. Every player on both teams played hard consistent basket ball. While local fans may have been disappointed that their team did not win, those who appreciate the fine points of the game enjoyed the exhibition of skill and brains on both sides. At that it was not a bad game to lose. The final score was 52 to 36.

GO-TO-CHURCH CAMPAIGN GETS UNDER WAY

Canvassing was begun for the Go-to-Church campaign Sunday afternoon. The workers report good results. They were well received and got over their territory rapidly. It is not expected, however, that their canvass will be 100 per cent perfect. Some may be away when they call or some territory overlooked. Do not wait to be asked.

Go to church anyway. You will find a supply of cards there. Fill out a yellow card so the churches will know who to look for. Take a green card and keep your record so they will know how many people attended church and how often.

The encouraging feature of the campaign so far is that newcomers in the community are showing a disposition to attend our churches. We are also glad to receive cards on which people pledge themselves to attend church elsewhere. We hope these will keep their records and hand them to one of the local pastors. This will help make our record complete.

CAR OVERTURNS ON SHELBY ROAD

A Studebaker sedan driven by Miss Ruth Roush, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Roush, riding in the rear seat, turned over on the Shelby Plymouth road Sunday afternoon near the home of Boyd Harver, just north of the Hazel Grove Boulevard. The road was quite slippery and the machine skidded from the road into the ditch and turned completely over on the top with the wheels in the air. Miss Ruth Roush managed to get out one of the doors and assisted her father and mother from the car. Mrs. Roush was slightly cut about the face and her glasses were broken and Miss Roush and Mr. Roush escaped without injury. Only one glass was broken in the sedan and one door damaged. Otherwise the machine did not appear to be damaged. The Roushs were called and brought the car back into Shelby—Shelby Globe.

COUNCIL HAS BUSY SESSION

Other than the regular routine business Tuesday night, the Village Council had various matters under consideration. A petition was received from the property owners of Portner street asking for the paving of that street with a cement material. No action was taken on this petition and it was tabled for later action.

A quantity of slag has been bought and will be used in repairing of several streets in the town. A traffic light for the Public Square will be installed at an early date. This will aid considerably in directing traffic.

It was recommended by council that a new water tank be constructed. The Board of Public Affairs will no doubt take this matter under consideration. A new truck was ordered purchased for the street commissioner to aid this department in its work. All members of council were present and the meeting was a busy one.

Father and Son

stance: The logical big brother for any boy is a boy's own father. The father should set such an example that a boy may be inspired to lofty ideals; that the boy may build up a character that will bring joy to the community in which the boy was reared; that father and son may walk through life as pals on the King's highway. As fathers, we may not have silver and gold to give our sons, but let us give to them something better, let us give them our pledge that we will be BIG brothers to them through life.

The toastmaster, then, introduced the speaker of the evening, Professor Lewis, Principal of the Shelby High School. The subjects of his very interesting and helpful address was:

"The Boy's Future Values."
Professor Lewis stressed the following vital points:

1. The Physical Value—To have a strong body for the future, the boy's physical activities should be directed early in life. The boy should be taught correctly, how to develop strong muscles, endurance, courage and skill, through regular habits, proper exercise, fresh air, sufficient sleep, wholesome food and clean living.
2. The Moral Value—The boy should be properly directed in his play. He should be directed to play fair. Dishonest habits are often formed on the playground, why? Because the teacher does not take enough interest in the boy to play with him. The teacher should be with the boy on the playground and see that he plays fair, not by nagging, but by directing. Just
3. The Mental Value—Today educators are giving Intelligence tests. From these tests as a basis the mental value of the pupil is directed. The pupil is directed to do, not what he can not do, but what he can do.

The Physical, Moral and Mental future values depends largely on being properly directed.

A Father and Son's Banquet, inspiring as this one proved to be, will, no doubt, spur the community to work for larger and better things.

Revival At Delphi Soon

Other Interesting Items of the "Four Corner": Send Your News to Catlin.

Several 100 per centers were knocked out in Sunday school attendance last Sunday. Snow banks were too large to climb. Only 13 were present. Rev. Leonard Smith and Sgt. R. O. Boardman were among the fallen. Assistant Superintendent Floyd Cole and teachers Elsie Young of Norwalk and Olive Barker are retaining the perfect record. Mrs. A. E. Houchen taught the young people's class. One week from next Sunday night Revival services will begin in Delphi. Every body should tighten up their belts, so to speak, and get ready for the battle with his Satanic Majesty, for the reviving and saving of souls. Try praying at home and when about your work and surely the victory will be yours.

Girl Scout News

Plymouth troop met for their regular meeting on Monday evening with twenty-eight members present, and one new recruit, Ethel Baird. Two members were absent on account of sickness. Formation was held at 7:15 sharp, followed by the business meeting.

After the business meeting the sewing groups were formed. Mrs. Schrock is directing eight girls who are making lamp shades of different kinds. The apron group is beginning to show results and we hope in a short time to have some pretty things to be sold at the bazaar.

We are greatly in need of a sewing machine and a cupboard. Anyone having either of these articles which they will sell for a small sum or donate to the troop will be doing a great service toward helping the girls to learn to sew. The cupboard is to be used for storing made articles, and also for supplies, so that our rooms may be kept neat and tidy.

As our meetings are held in the evenings and also as there is now a membership of thirty-one, the captain has found it necessary to make the following rules: Any girl who wishes to leave before the meeting is out, must bring a request from her mother, and no girl can leave the rooms during the evening without permission from the captain or lieutenant. This is done so that any mother will know just when her daughter leaves the rooms for home.

E. M. SEILER, Captain.

Library Notes

The library has broken another record. In February, the shortest month of the year, 664 books and magazines were loaned. This is about eighty more than we have loaned in any one month before. And you may be interested in knowing that our circulation for the entire year of 1926 was 5983. The circulation for the first twelve months the library was opened was 1478.

The library is open more hours per week now than ever before. It is open both afternoon and evening of Monday, Wednesday and Friday and in the evening only on Thursday. Afternoon hours are from 3:00 to 4:30. Evening hours are from 7:00 to 9:00. Mrs. Earl Richmond, Miss Caroline Beaudoin and Miss Pearl Elder have joined our forces in the last few weeks. Because of the extra help we hope to do better than ever this year.

Twelve of the fiction best sellers for the last month are in our rental collection. If you are interested in the late books ask about them.

We have ordered "The Story of Philosophy," by Will Durant. This book was the best seller in general literature last month. We have also ordered "The Meaning of a Liberal Education," by Everett Dean Martin. If there is sufficient demand for books of this kind we will try to get several each month. Should you be interested in the two mentioned above have your name put on the waiting list for them.

We recently purchased a set of "The Book House for Children." This set comprises six volumes of the best of all literature. The material was selected by Mrs. Miller, a college graduate and an English teacher, for the use of her own little daughter. These books are for children, but we believe that the fathers enjoy them. They are too expensive to be missed. If you have never visited the library make an effort to do it this month. You will be repaid for the effort it takes.

GENERAL MOTORS' LATEST ACHIEVEMENT

The New and Finer

PONTIAC SIX

$775

Oakland today announces an entirely new line of Pontiac Sixes, notably enhanced in beauty, incorporating numerous refinements in design, and carrying new low prices.

New Fisher Bodies

Never in any low-priced six has been achieved such commanding beauty and luxury as in this latest achievement of General Motors. Lending luster to even the Fisher tradition of mastery craftsmanship, the new bodies by Fisher are longer, lower and superbly executed to the slightest detail.

All New Duco Colors

All body types are finished in new combinations of Duco colors. Original and fresh, these colors range from Beverly Blue and Black on the Sedan to Cherokee Gray on the Sport Cabriolet.

New Beauty and Style

Pontiac Six beauty has always been outstanding. But now in these new and finer models has been achieved not only new beauty but also an arresting rakishness—the results of a deeper radiator; larger, heavier, and more sweeping crown fenders; and more massive headlamps. Windshield and body pillars are narrowed to conform to the accepted custom-built vogue and to provide a wider arc of visibility. Window ledges are smartly recessed and finished in a contrasting color.

Mechanical Refinements

In addition to the numerous elements of greater beauty and style, the new and finer Pontiac Six introduces many new features and refinements in engineering design—such as tilting-beam headlights with foot control, new transmission and brake levers, steering wheel with aluminum spider, a clutch even smoother and more positive in action and an oil-sealed universal joint.

Two New Body Types

Two entirely new body types of characteristic beauty have been added to the Pontiac Six line. These are a dashing, youthful Sport Roadster, finished in Lucerne Blue, striped with Faerie Red; and a 4-passenger Sport Cabriolet, with Brevort Green top and fenders, and body in Cherokee Gray, striped with orange to rival in smartness the highest priced cars of the day. Come in and see the New and Finer Pontiac Six!

The Public Forum

Opinions expressed under this heading are those of the contributors, not of The Advertiser.

ANSWERS TO QUESTION

Following are the answers to the questions which appeared in the Public Forum of last week's issue:

1. Why are school teachers in the retail seed business?

Ans.: Teachers are not in the retail seed business. It is true that some garden and flower seeds were distributed to the people of the districts who were fortunate enough to have children in school. These seeds are tested and adopted to this particular climate and soil and are sold for a small amount above the actual cost of shipping and packing. Furthermore, it is not compulsory for any person in the district to purchase these seeds nor is any pupil compelled to take them home. The teachers of the Plymouth Public Schools felt they were doing the general public a favor by sending home this small package of seeds to see if you wanted to purchase your spring supply. How many of your grocers call on you to buy these your daily supplies of food and necessities? None of them, but you wish oftentimes they would relieve you of this particular burden.

The school is not provided with a gymnasium, nor an auditorium and for this purpose the pupils and teachers are trying to provide these conveniences which my friend, have failed, as a taxpayer, to do. We have to pay for this purpose $350 per year, including rent, lights, and other necessities. We would like for the public to offer suggestions as to how this money might be raised.

2. What law permits teachers soliciting funds for any cause except thrift deposits?

Ans.: Common law would permit school teachers to solicit a small amount for floral offerings as a token of respect, to a pupil or relative, in case of sickness or death. It funds for any other purpose except this have been solicited in the schools, it is not to our knowledge.

3. Why are teachers selling magazines to pupils?

It is in keeping with the up-to-date particularly interested, allow these magazines to be sent to their addresses in order to lower the subscription and postal rate. These teachers make no profit on the magazines and consider it a favor to the pupils.

4. Why do pupils have to study at home? Is it supposed to have study periods at school?

Students do not have to study at home unless this is made necessary by their own neglect or conduct. If pupils will make good use of their time at school they will not have to study at home. However, it is better far, for them to stay at home and study than for them to loaf on the streets and not study.

5. Why are children rushed from school room to outdoors for the fire drill while wraps on? Is it better for them to stay at home and study than for them to loaf on the streets and not study?

Answer: The state law requires that the schools shall conduct fire drills and that these drills shall be conducted in the same manner in practice or drill as they would be in case of a real fire. Common sense requires that teachers do not have to stop and bundle children in their wraps before removing them from a burning building. No one knows when it does ring whether it is for a fire drill or for a real fire. The conduct of everyone is the same in either case and wraps in to insure the safety of your children in case of fire. It is to avoid such catastrophes as occurred recently in a theatre in Canada.

6. Why do teachers subject pupils to drafts from windows?

Answer: Teachers do not intentionally subject pupils to drafts, but since the school building is not equipped with a modern ventilation system and since the rooms are crowded to capacity, it is impossible to keep all children out of all drafts at all times.

7. Why are pupils supposed to contribute to health funds?

Answer: Pupils are not asked to contribute to health funds. They have in some cases organized clubs in which they pay dues. The amount of dues, what the money will be used for, and other details are determined by the members of the club.

8. Why do teachers take recitation and not teach?

Answer: The first step in teaching are explanation and creation of interest. Those are the teachers' tasks and they should be made brief for the children. Little hearings some one else talk. Children, like grownups, learn by doing, by using their brains to think out the lessons assigned them. Children are not like phonograph records which can record the teachers' lecture and can reproduce it when needed. You wouldn't try to learn to play the piano by having your teacher play for you or lecture to you while you did nothing but listen. You wouldn't try to learn French by having your teacher tell you about it while you did nothing but listen. You must practice. So it is with the piano. The teacher must hear how you're learned the lesson that he assigned you. You must practice speaking French to learn it. The teacher must hear you so that he can correct your mistakes in thinking and speaking French. So it is with school children. They learn only through doing. That is why teachers hear recitations.

9. Why do parents send their children to school?

One hundred minutes per week is devoted to physical education in each room as far as is practical, limited to some extent by our equipment. In some rooms because of crowded conditions, to follow the schedule of twenty minutes each day is difficult, but the sum total of one hundred minutes per week is devoted to this kind of work in other ways.

10. Why no daily calisthenics in all rooms?

Modern society is becoming so complex that the seemingly unnecessary subjects twenty-five years ago is today a reality. We are following a course of study approved by our county superintendent and the state department of education. Is it possible that the writer should know more about the necessary and the unnecessary than people who have devoted their lives and fortunes to the study of the educational problem?

11. Why not do away with the unnecessary and do the necessary?

Modern society is becoming so complex that the seemingly unnecessary subjects twenty-five years ago is today a reality. We are following a course of study approved by our county superintendent and the state department of education. Is it possible that the writer should know more about the necessary and the unnecessary than people who have devoted their lives and fortunes to the study of the educational problem?

12. Why not slip back to 1850 when they taught essential studies?

If I were to ask the question of the writer, "Why not use the old-fashioned buggy instead of the automobile?" he would probably think I was morally unbalanced. Essential subjects of 1850 have given place to the more up-to-date subjects of today, as the old buggy has given place to the automobile.

13. Why are obscene markings permitted on toilet walls?

Answer: Most of the markings on toilet walls were inherited. We hate to see them as much as you do. Although redecorating and cleaning walls is not part of teachers' duties, we have given considerable thought to a plan whereby such offense will be eliminated. If possible we will put into operation soon.

14. Why don't teachers attend chapel?

Chapel is only held in the high school. Teachers do attend this function which takes place about 9:30 a. m. on Monday and Wednesday mornings. It may be that the writer had reference to the Course in Bible literature. The High school teachers have a meeting during the recitation of Bible class. Other teachers attend in their respective rooms.

15. What's the matter with the schools?

Answer: We, the faculty, feel that there isn't anything seriously wrong with the schools, or we should start at once to correct the defects as far as within our power. We are, however, always trying to improve. Every teacher is conscientious but human; we make mistakes but are only too glad to correct them when called to our attention. We are glad for the opportunity which these questions have given us to come to a better understanding with our patrons. We feel that only the highest motives prompted the writer to ask questions such as we have just answered. We are glad that the writer was interested to such an extent.

We sincerely hope that such interest can be turned to some material benefit to the school and community.

We thank you.

Lexington Fall Out
Plymouth won the most decisive victory of the morning play when Lexington was trounced, 28 to 9. The first half was a defensive duel and while Plymouth cagers registered eight points they prevented Lexington from breaking into the scorebook. The half accordingly ended 8 to 6. Stork and Meyers shot from all angles and sections of the floor to bring Plymouth's total up, while Zsack, Dean and E. Hildebrand amassed nine points for Lexington. A sidlight in this game was the play of Zsack, midjet Lexington guard. He sank two fielders from beyond mid-floor.

Plymouth Decisively Beaten

Precision and skill marked Lucas' high victory over Plymouth in a Saturday afternoon. Lucas raced through the Plymouth defense for a host of goals, Mowers and Letter garnering ten points apiece and Zody getting seven.

Lucas was the possessor of a ten point lead at the half the score being 17 to 7. Stork blossomed out in the final half and pocketed two goals while Root got one. This scoring boomed Plymouths total to 13.

At no time was the Lucas quintet in danger of losing the lead or the game. The things sewed up safely both on the offense and defense and the trimming they gave the erstwhile leaders of Richland county basketball was a thoroughbred one.
