KUHN RECEIVES ENDORSEMENT

A. C. Morse Praises Kuhn For His Business Ability and Also Past Records.

That Bert Kuhn, candidate on the democratic ticket for commissioner of Richland county, is a capable and efficient man for the office, is brought out in a communication received by this paper from A. C. Morse, president of The Ohio Seaman's Fish Co. Mr. Morse is not a politician nor has he an interest in politics other than what he states in his letter. The fact that Mr. Kuhn can point to his past record with a certain degree of pride, will no doubt bring him many votes in the coming election.

The letter in full follows:
Shelby, Ohio, U. S. A.
October 8th, 1928

Plymouth Advertiser,
Plymouth, O.

Gentlemen—
The people of Richland County are approaching the time of casting their vote for county officials for the coming term. One of the most important offices we will have the opportunity of voting for is that of "County Commissioner." So far as the people of Richland County are concerned there are no more important positions than the office of County Commissioners, who have a great deal to do with the expenditures of large sums of money and responsibilities of the improvement carried on from time to time within our County.

We now have the opportunity of voting for an experienced man, experienced from the standpoint of proper handling of County affairs, this man being Mr. Bert Kuhn, well known to the entire resident people of the county. Mr. Kuhn entered into County work back as far as 1901 at which time he was appointed Deputy Sheriff, 1901 to 1906. He continued in the services of the County from April 9th, 1924 to January 1925, following which time he was elected to "City" again. His highest vote of any candidate running for this office. Mr. Kuhn's long experience in County affairs has, naturally, fitted him for service to the people of the County in maintaining the high standard of efficiency that has developed in the office of the County Commissioners of our County for the past number of years. We are all interested as voters to elect to our County offices men of experience—experience in business matters being the most valuable asset that we have.

I am not in politics, never have been and never expect to be, but I am interested in the proper selection of men of experience and ability to assist in handling the affairs of the County in all matters relating to the office of County Commissioners at Mansfield. It is my conscientious opinion that Mr. Kuhn will receive the proper support from the voters at our coming election.

Yours very truly,
A. C. MORSE

NEW THEATRE FOR NORWALK

NORWALK—Incorporation of the Melba Amusement Company at Columbus was considered as the second step in bringing to Norwalk a new $115,000 theatre.
The company was incorporated for $35,000 with Joseph M. Solomon, Edwin Solomon, both of Lorain, and Miss S. Spangler, of Norwalk, named as incorporators. Solomon operates theatres in Lorain and other Ohio towns.

The company has an extended option on the Case property, a brick building on Main-street near the public library.

GIVE THE BOYS A TALK TONIGHT

Tonight at the supper table would be a good time to discuss Halloween pranks, and talk the matter over with your boys. Tell them there is no fun in absolute destruction of property and that they can have fun and wholesome fun in a nice way. Tell them that it's wrong to willfully take away valuable pieces of furniture or other things around the home. And you might add that village authorities are going to make a great effort that before you cur your foolish pranks before Halloween and after. There will be extra help and every precaution will be taken to see that property is not damaged, and this is just a warning to the boys and a suggestion to the parents.

FIRE DESTROYS B. & O. DEPOT AT BOUGHTONVILLE

Fire, which caused the destruction of the Boughtonville depot Monday night late, caused much excitement in that locality as the blaze could be seen for miles away, and caused many spectators to be on hand.

The blaze, origin of which is unknown destroyed the B. & O. depot and firemen from Willard with the aid of volunteers, prevented the flames from spreading to other nearby structures.
So intense was the heat that the heavy rails near the depot spread, and trafficking was tied up for some time. A wrecking train from Willard was held in readiness in case a derailment of trains occurred. The fire department was called from Willard and chemicals were used. Boughtonville has no fire-fighting apparatus.

NEW HAVEN LADY SUFFERS SERIOUS ACCIDENT

Mrs. Hattie Loveland had the misfortune to be seriously injured Sunday evening while crossing the Street near her home. An automobile driven by an unknown person striking and throwing her to the pavement, bruising her severely, although not having any broken bones, will be confined to her home for some time. The motorist stopped and carried her to the home of Emmett Barr, placing her in a chair out on the porch, saying he would return with a Dr. that being the last seen of him. No one saw the accident except a passing motorist who failed to secure his number.

TO GIVE ADDRESS NEXT THURSDAY BERT RUCKMAN MEETS DEATH

Animal Husbandry Will be Discussed at Meeting in Smith Hotel.

Dr. Walter Kreeck, formerly of the University of Wisconsin and an expert on animal husbandry, will give an address here at the Plymouth Hotel from 1:30 to 4 p. m. Dr. Kreeck is being brought to Plymouth under the auspices of the Plymouth Elevator. His talk will be of much interest to the poultryman, the dairyman and the Swine Grower, and many interesting facts will be brought out in his discussion.
Mr. Kreeck was born and raised on a farm in Milwaukee County, Wisconsin. He has had extensive experience in managing and operating successfully a large stock farm. He understands exhibiting, feeding and breeding of live stock and poultry.
He graduated from the University of Wisconsin. Taught Animal Husbandry and Extension Work at Purdue University, Indiana, for four years.
With this background of practical farming experience, and scientific agricultural knowledge, he can appreciate the farmer's problems and is qualified to give sound practical information. Mr. Kreeck has also had three years of experience as County Agent in Tippecanoe County, Indiana.
During the time Mr. Kreeck was doing County Agent work the boys and girls in his county under his direction won more State Fair premiums than any other county in the state.
The farmer who has problems to overcome in the production of poultry and live stock may feel at liberty to ask questions as an "open house" meeting will be in order after the address. The subjects discussed by Mr. Kreeck will be handled in a practical manner and many definite suggestions will be given that can be put into practice at small cost and with a very profitable result.

The meeting here is being sponsored by Messrs. McDougal and Sebring, operators of The Plymouth Elevator, and they feel that the community will be benefited by attending this meeting. A splendid musical program will be arranged, and everything will be free and nothing to sell.

Heart Attack Is Probable Cause of Fall Which Resulted in Tragic End.

Benton Howard Ruckman, 71, lost his life in a tragic manner Tuesday evening when he fell from a wagon the wheels passing over his head and crushing the life out of him. Floyd is getting ready to enter school on Plymouth Friday and it is predicted that the "snare-rib and All work" sausage won't last very long. Mr. Downend's famous home made sausage has enjoyed wide popularity and last year it will be remembered as having the best output of fresh meat in Plymouth. Floyd has a knack of doing just the right stuff into them and don't they go great with a couple hot cakes in the early morning hours.

SCHOOL SAFES BLOWN

Last week thieves gained entrance into the Shelby High School and made away with a hundred dollars and now reports come from Galion that the safe in the High School building there was robbed last week also and that the small sum of 50c was obtained. There seems to be a mania for the burglary of school safes and in every case almost the damage done to doors, windows and other property amounts to a greater sum than the loot taken by the thieves.

ARTHUR FRAKES BADLY BURNED

Among Prisoners Caught in Dormitory Fire At Columbus Pen.

Arthur Frakes, 27-year-old Plymouth man, is recovering from serious burns received when the dormitory at the brick plant of the Ohio penitentiary was destroyed by fire early Monday morning. Seventeen prisoners who were with Frakes perished in the flames. Frakes was severely burned about the face, head, neck and both hands.
Frakes was sent to the state institution for non-support on November 2nd, 1927. He was bound over to the Richland county grand jury from the local mayor's court on Aug. 25, 1927. He formerly lived in Vinton county.

Trusty Hero in Prison Fire

"Michael" O'Malley deserves all the credit for helping the prisoners who escaped from the fire that destroyed the Junction City penitentiary plant. Michael Klare, 36, Cleveland convict, declared when brought to the penitentiary hospital.

"I was awakened about a 1 a. m.," Klare told Warren Thomas, the dormitory was filled with smoke. I knew something was wrong and started to arouse the other prisoners. After I had awakened several they awakened the others.

"Then hell broke loose. Someone yelled he had seen flames, and then most of the 270 prisoners began to shriek and call, pray and curse."
There's only one exit. That's an iron door leading into the dining room.

"O'Malley had forced his way from an outside room into the dining room, and while the prisoners were raving within the barred dormitory, O'Malley was working with his bare hands to get the door open."

"How long it took him, I don't know, but the flames had eaten their way from the basement through the dormitory floor before the first of us escaped."

ATTACHMENT IS DEvised TO CUT STALKS REAL LOW

Federal Engineers Plan Knife For Borers Lest in Stubble Which is Too Long

One-fourth of the corn borers in the original stalk of corn, were still snugly enmeshed in the 5-inch stubble after the field had been cut. Ohio entomologists found on a recent visit to borers-infested districts in Essex County, Ontario, that before cutting, the average borer population per stalk in the field was between 25 and 30. The stubble left after cutting contained approximately one borer for each inch of its length.

To control the corn borer by clean-up measures, engineers of the United States Department of Agriculture have asserted, it is necessary for the stubble to be cut at or near the ground level, in order to avoid the necessity for another operation to dispose of the stubble.
Since standard corn binders cut 4 to 6 inches from the ground, the engineers suggested to devise an attachment which would cut the stubble closer. Such a device has been developed and thoroughly tested, now having the approval of all agencies engaged in research and control work on the corn borer. Frank A. Bunker Knab has asserted, it is necessary for the stubble to be cut at or near the ground level, in order to avoid the necessity for another operation to dispose of the stubble.

Designs for constructing it to fit two of the most popular makes of corn binders have already been worked out. Plans for the attachment may be obtained from European Corn Borer Control Headquarters at Toledo, Ohio.

GIRL SCOUTS MEETING

Girl Scouts meeting Monday evening was particularly interesting because of our able speaker Mr. Reed. He told us much about animals that will help us to pass our Zoologist test. Another matter that we tried to settle was that of keeping our Scout Rooms clean and heated. We have decided to let two girls be responsible for the rooms each week Ellen Anderson and Lois Teal will be for next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Crum and son Jimmy were Sunday guests at Mr. and Mrs. Frank Oriswell.

A GREAT ACHIEVEMENT

IMPROVED COLD WEATHER PERFORMANCE Resulting from the

CROSS-FLOW RADIATOR

The cross-flow radiators in the cooling systems of the Pontiac Six and the Oakland All-American Six reduce to a minimum the evaporation of water and alcohol. An automatic thermostat prevents water circulation until the engine reaches correct operating temperature. As a consequence the engine warms up quickly and less choking is needed, reducing dilution of crankcase oil. Because of the protection the cross-flow radiator provides against losses of water and alcohol, the Pontiac Six and the All-American Six require less attention in winter than other cars. Also, through their thermostatic control, they reveal far better performance than other cars in their fields when the temperature is low. The cross-flow radiator is available only on the Pontiac Six and the All-American Six. Come in and see it. And learn while you're here of the many other advancements which only these two great General Motors Sixes provide.

Is THIRTY the Love? Deadline!

James J. Montague was born in Mason City, Iowa, but soon migrated to Oregon. While there, he worked on the Morning Oregonian. Arthur Brisbane saw some of his editorials and made overtures which resulted in Mr. Montague's coming to New York. That was the beginning of seventeen years in the service of the Hearst organization, during which period Montague was managing editor of the New York Evening Journal, writing a daily verse and still does under a heading which is almost identical—"More Truth Than Poetry." He covered all the big stories, winding up with the peace conference. When Disney resigned from the Hearst organization he became associated with newspaper syndicates and added to his duties as writer for the Sunday papers a weekly humorous story, and in his spare time turns out a daily editorial. He fills his days by penning an occasional magazine story. Mr. Montague is now thirty, and is married.

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE
Thackeray accounted for a famous British general's popularity with women by explaining that he allowed them to give him money. There is no doubt a comparable attitude which is engendered by the bestowing of favors. I have known elderly theatrical managers to bankrupt themselves trying vainly to make stars out of their wives. And the more money they lost the more ardent became their affection for the pretty little dumb belds who never could learn to do anything but stand still and look beautiful.

If love means unselfish devotion—and it ought to—men who are past thirty are more capable of possessing it than men under thirty. And their capacity increases as they reach their mature years—which often are years of indifference. The younger man's hand thinks a good deal about himself. When his "passions" once have lost their brutal force, as Tennyson said in a poem, he begins to wonder what kind of a break he is getting out of wedded life. He "looks out the window" oftener than an older man does. He thinks fondly of the girls he might have had, and is prone to imagine that they wouldn't have taken him as a matter of course so early in the game, and scolded him for leaving cigarette ashes around the house and spending so much time on the golf course.

After that he begins to feel sorry for himself, and the fine edge of the romance is over. But there is something almost maternal in the affection of a man of more advanced years, and there is no greater love than mother love. He is transported to think that this lovely creature—even though she were a goddess—would or more when he married her—has really consented to let him give her flowers, and take her to the theater, and sit at her feet at musical meetings while she tries on costumes. He thinks up little surprises to delight her. He gets out of the weekly make-over and goes to the hairdresser around the golf course with him every day. I have yet to see a young man doing that more than a couple of times in a year.

Most young men are fairly swollen with conceit if, before attaining thirty, they have accumulated enough money to support a wife in reasonable comfort. Such a man wants her to listen and understand him when he brings home the figures on the balance sheet, and tells her how the advice he gave the sales manager resulted in a record business for the year. He expects that she will be thrilled with all the shop talk which he can get to use to flatter her, and that she will even remain attentive when he relates the struggles of his early youth.

And when she yawns through his conversation, suggests going out to the theater or the movies, he begins to think that he is not appreciated, and she is not as beautiful or as intelligent as he—over as she was in the days of the courtship. He may get used to her after that, and regard her with a sort of desperate love, but it would be somewhat inaccurate to term that sort of feeling love.

The word "date" means to love, and the word "datard" means an old gentleman. Perhaps there is some etymological connection between them. Anyway, men who get married after thirty, while they are far more easily the victims of female fortune hunters, are far less likely to try to break out of the trap, and far more apt to glory in their fetters. When there is a break it is usually due to the lady, for she is always romantic, and seldom can help regretting that she didn't meet John Barry more a little earlier, about twenty. I am not so sure. Nobody is, or ever has been. Yet I know of a number of men who have married after thirty and who still believe that in the fifty husbands have the physical attractiveness of a movie star, the strength of George Yumey, and the mentality of all the world's greatest thinkers—including philosophers—rolled into one. It is the material instinct in them that makes them love the men they marry, and that is a sort of women, inherit maternal instincts too. That is what makes them ardent lovers after thirty, provided their marry girls do not try to break them, but continue to be enthusiastic. Far be it from me to enter an academic argument with such a sort of early enthusiasm and preference, and whenever Mr. With Durant, in details of equipment all I can say is that I believe he is wrong. He has

SIMEON D. FESS THEODORE E. BURTON

Such representation will be assured by the election of Simeon D. Fess to the long term and Theodore E. Burton to the short term in the United States Senate.

Seldom has any state the opportunity to send to the senate two such statesmen and scholars, men of such wide experience and ability and so prominent in the nation's councils.

Each has the confidence of the people. Each will uphold President Herbert Hoover. Ohio owes it to itself to vote Nov. 6 for Fess and Burton, candidates for the United States Senate on the Republican ticket.

CHAPEL

Chapel service was conducted Monday morning, October 8th, by Rev. McBrum. The scripture lesson was taken from the eleventh chapter of Luke. His talk was centered around the verse "He that seeketh diligently and earnestly shall find." The lesson that was brought to us was that any task may be accomplished if one makes up his mind to accomplish it.

THE TATLER

The Shiloh school paper "THE TATLER" will come off the press next Monday if the arrangements of the business staff work out as planned. This will be the first issue for the present staff and from all indications the paper will measure well in contents and arrangements with its issues of other years.
The business staff however are very desirous of getting a good yearly subscription list from the pupils and parents of the community. Our goal is 150 paid up subscribers. Their rates are as follows: for patrons where no delivery is necessary—five issues for 20c; where delivery is necessary—five issues for 25c; and to out-of-town subscribers where it is necessary to mail the copies 30c. Call either Chester Trumbull, Dale Kaylor or the school office and leave your subscription.

MAKES CHANGE IN DRESS

The Shelby Globe has gone to considerable expense and effort to give its readers one of the best papers in the state. The management has spent thousands of dollars to bring the paper up to a high standard and this is proven in Saturday's issue with the enlargement of the paper from six to eight columns and the new type face, known as Ionic, which has also received approval of the most noted eye specialist in the country, claiming this type to be the easiest on the eye.

The addition of the new Duplex automatic printing press not only gives the advertiser an improved service, but also makes more space for reading matter, and the precision of this press enables the best of printing

There are few towns in the state less than 10,000 population that can boast of a home paper such as The Daily Globe, and a word of praise should be extended to the community, the merchants and to the owners of The Globe in the effort they are putting forth in making their paper one of the best.

The Advertiser joins in with the readers of The Globe in extending congratulations on the improvements and wish for the management years of continued success in the publishing field.

WHAT ALLS CONGRESSMEN?

All congressmen are not statement of efficiency. Many of them have been better politicians than legislators, and with few exceptions our best congressmen have been poor politicians. That is why many men who are the making of valuable legislation were made one-termers, while inferior men have been kept on the job, this being due in large measure to the inability of so many voters properly to separate party from chaff or to subvert party prejudice to the public welfare.

In reviewing some of the causes leading to congressional inability or unwillingness to legislate promptly, not to say wisely, leads to the opinion, however, that this condition is due to congressmen rather than those who elect them, and that it is the making of wrong legislation for their jobs, and that leaves much unsaid.

A congressman may be unfit to legislate but the inference that he is therefore incompetent generally is not justified. The truth is congressmen are specialists in a particular line of aspirants is not borne out by facts and again it is true that voters know how they will vote and political slash will not sway anyone from his intentions.

condition. State dry officers fired upon the car thinking it was carrying contraband liquor. The driver of the car fearing the officers were handbills, refused to stop. . . . After the Niagara Falls episode, Chief Prohibition Commissioner Fernald came forth with a statement that "this kind of work is going to be stopped". It was questioned at the time whether or not he meant anything by the statement and the last few weeks seem to bare out the fact that he was only talking.

British scientists believe he has solved the mystery of life, says a cable, but it doesn't say which mystery, and there are so many. One of the spottest of all is "why the citizens of the United States should become so excited every four years over the election of a president."

It don't seem quite fair that the bootlegger's funeral always has more flowers than the customer's.

The size of Chicago's population is apt to make us forget that Illinois is an important agricultural state whose farm property is valued at slightly less than seven billions of dollars. How Illinois farmers view the rural presidential candidates is, therefore a matter of deep concern to political observers. In the rural sections of Illinois, as pointed out by one political writer, there are signs that the farm discontent is not as bad as it has been painted and that while here and there, Smith farm votes come to the surface, they are the exception rather than the rule. What is true of agricultural Illinois may be said for other farming sections. The great wave of unrest which has been issued by political aspirants is not borne out by facts and again it is true that voters know how they will vote and political slash will not sway anyone from his intentions.

The Political Parade

By Harry R. Blackmon

Washington, D. C. — Six weeks ago Herbert Hoover returned from California to be confronted with the assertion that the Republican party was on the defensive in the east, and that herculean effort must be made to save the states along the Atlantic seaboard from going over to the enemy. The campaign program of the Republican party in the east since that time has been to get Mr. Hoover's stand on the important issues of the day before the voters, and the effort so far has been no more intensive than in states further west. Today the Democratic party is fighting the defensive battle in the east according to the press although its leaders launched their drive in this section far in advance of the Republican counter effort. The hope of Democratic leaders in the east is now confined to two or three states, in every one of which Republican strength is reported to be increasing every day. That much progress in six weeks is a fair indication of the strength of the Republican ticket and of the failure of the Democratic candidate to sell to the nation an uncertain program for the future.

Eighty-six newspapers which are listed as Democratic or independent in their political preferences have come out editorially for Hoover and Curtis, according to a recent tabulation. They are located in 15 states, from Minnesota to Texas and from New York to San Francisco.

In every instance, their preference for the Republican candidates is based upon a sincere conviction that Herbert Hoover, with his remarkable record of administrative experience gained in tasks of unusual difficulty, would be a much more capable president than the Democratic nominee from the standpoint of the home, industry and agriculture.

A California presidential candidate has certain advantages which even astute politicians apparently had not realized before Mr. Hoover was selected. In order to direct his campaign from an eastern headquarters, as both parties usually do, the California contender must make two transcontinental trips, one from his home to the east and the other back to the west coast to vote, for California laws do not permit absentee voting. Thus he is able to cross the country at its beginning of the campaign and at its close, greeting and speaking to thousands and thousands of voters en route.

The glittering but vague proposal which Governor Smith dangled before the farmers of the northwest at St. Paul promises to become a boomerang before the campaign is over. Senator Borah and other able Republican orators have pointed out to agriculture in that section that the essential feature of the McNary-Haugen plan, the equalization fee, demands a high protective tariff on all farm products if it is to be effective at all. Governor Smith gave his audience no assurance that he favors tariff duties any higher than those of the Underwood act, which left every commodity produced in the northwest open to destructive foreign competition.

Reports from that section indicate that farmers are rapidly realizing the extent to which they have been imposed on by the candidate who worked out his theories of agricultural aid in New York City. Probably some of them recall that ancient admonition: "Beware of the Greeks bearing gifts."

There is very tangible evidence of mutual admiration in the strong endorsement of Mr. Hoover's candidacy by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh. When Col. Lindbergh, returned from his epochal, trans-Atlantic flight, he found one man in Washington to whom his ideas on the development of commercial aviation had immediate and tremendous appeal. That man was Herbert Hoover, who probably visualized the possibilities growing out of the Lindbergh flight more clearly than any other government official, as well as the great expansion of flying facilities necessary to prepare for the commercial conquest of the air. Lindbergh's inspiration and Hoover's organizing ability have combined to produce, within a year's time, a nationwide service by the federal government for the assistance of commercial aviation.

We should grow up together till we all come in the unity of the faith and of the knowledge of the Son of God.

THIS WEEK'S WINNER
The above picture is of the Huron County Fertilizer Co., located at New Haven, O.

Few industries combine the function of conservation and production for the good of the community as much as this company. It solves the problem of the disposition of dead animals in a sanitary manner. At the same time it furnishes the farmer a pure high grade tankage for hog and poultry feed at most reasonable prices.

Stringent state laws now discourage the burying and feeding of dead animals. It makes it particularly imperative, therefore, to have some other means of disposition. There are only two: Cremation and rendering. This plant is equipped with the latest scientific machinery. Few people, outside the farmer, realize the prompt and convenient service which this company offers in the removal of dead and disabled stock.

CHAPEL

During the first few weeks of school most of the morning assembly periods were devoted to rearranging and getting plans underway for another successful school year.

Now since everything is running along smoothly, we have resumed our Chapel services. Chapel is only held once a week and for only a short period. The Student Council chooses speakers for their services. It has fallen the lot of the High School teachers to start the ball "a rolling."

Last Wednesday morning we were greeted by Mr. Miller. All we High School people know that whenever Mr. Miller comes before an assembly to make a little talk, no matter how short it may be, it always contains some worthwhile suggestions for our betterment. He used as a guide a verse from Proverbs 27: "Faithful are the wounds of a friend, but the kisses of an enemy are deceitful." He spoke of the profane and undesirable language that is used by some of the pupils around the town. He repeated what a college professor had said, "God gave us our mouth, our lips, our teeth and our vocal cords to make and shape sound into words, and it is not a sign of the slightest sense of appreciation to spit the thanks back into the Lord's face in form of a foul oath."

BAND AND ITS VOICES

A meeting was called Friday for all those interested in band work. Fourteen turned out and they all were very interested. The speaking of instruments something was said concerning the "Old Town Band" and the instruments they used. We talked of this and decided to look these up or find some one who knew their whereabouts. We heard rumors that there were some horns in the attic above the Chamber of Commerce rooms. We investigated and found two base horns (a B flat and E flat). We learned that all the instruments, whether in this town or other's near by, had been bought partly by the Chamber of Commerce and partly by public donation. All the people having authority over them have expressed their willingness for the High School to use them. We understand that once there was enough instruments for a complete "Band," but they have been destroyed or misplaced so that we are unable to find them.

We were given authority to "Round Up" all these instruments that were in this or neighboring towns have taken the authority to keep. We were asked to make it if those having these instruments would bring them in or those knowing where some of these instruments are would please inform us.

GIRLS' SUFFER DEFEAT

The P. H. S. girls were soundly whipped by the Shiloh girls in a tennis ball game Friday evening. The score was 27 to 0. Our girls were entirely outclassed and outplayed from start to finish. There are no balls to be given. The girls couldn't hang on to a batted ball and when they finally did get it they didn't know where to throw it. Their hitting wasn't bad but it can be improved. They couldn't produce enough hits to score. When they did hit it they couldn't get far as they should. The Shiloh girls set out hold of that ball and struck it and when they wanted to it went right where it should go. As base runners the girls make good scoundrels. They get the ball and they would stay on the base till they saw whether it was caught or not and then they would slide in. This made it just too bad. But we have a chance to beat them yet for they come here for a return game Friday evening. So strut your stuff girls and show them they're not the only toads in the town.

KRAZY KRACKS

In history class Mr. Jenkins was explaining the principle of an old muzzle loading musket.

Mr. Jenkins: "You understand that instead of having a muzzle and breech the old muskets were in a solid piece?"

Doris F.: "Why, er didn't the guns have any holes?"

Ouch!

Bill: "I bumped my crazy bone!"
Joe: "Comb your hair and the bump won't show."

John: "Do you like English?"
Harry: "Yes."
John: "Why?"
Harry: "Hail I can speak."

Teacher: "In which of his battles was Morgan slain?"
Pupil: "I'm not sure but I think it was his last."

What?

A Comedian: "Look here I object to going on right after that monkey act."

Manager: "You're right. They might think it's an encore."

Two teachers were listening to the band. Said one: "That is something from Wagner's I think."
Said the Other: "I think it's a nocturne Chopins."

Said the first: "I'll go look on the statement of you."
And back she came to her friend with the word: "Were both wrong. It's a Refrain from Spang."

And How!
First Teacher: "You remember that baseball game I lost quite a while ago?"
Second Ditto: "Yes."
First Teacher: "I won yesterday I put on an old vest and what do you think I found."

Second same: "Your watch."
First Teacher: "No, the hole through which I must have lost it."

BETTY LOU

"Tick-tock," dropped the clock from its cozy mantel. Now, it lacked ten minutes of five. Betty Lou uttered a deep sigh and turned to wait on an elderly lady. As Betty Lou's face was revealed, the lady gasped in amazement. A cry and then she sank to the floor in a dead faint. Betty Lou hurried around the counter and ran to the aid of the lady. Other clerks viewing the scene hurried one after another, another after smelling salts. The lady soon revived and stared absently at Betty Lou. She started to talk but was forced to keep quiet.

Suddenly the clock chimed five. As Betty Lou ran for her wraps, something kept saying to her, "What is the meaning of all this? Who can this lovely dressed lady be?" She stopped and made up her mind that she was going to take this lady home. Having obtained her wraps she hurried back to the place where the lady was. Taking her by the arm she passed out of the store. There before Betty Lou's eyes stood a beautiful limousine. She stood and stared amazedly. The chauffeur, seeing his mistress, came to her assistance and the three walked out to the car. After they were seated in the car, Betty Lou sat as if in a trance. Was she dreaming or was she really enjoying all this luxury?

The lady gave a few words of instruction and slowly the limousine was lost in the traffic. On they drove and Betty Lou sat gazing out of the car window. Nothing was escaping her eye. Why, she had never even known there was such a beautiful scene in the city! After what seemed but about ten minutes, the limousine drove up at the entrance of a most magnificent mansion. Could this be the lady's home? Betty Lou sat rigid and when James came to assist her out of the car she was too happy for words.

The lady took Betty Lou's arm and they passed up the walk and into the mansion. Betty Lou was speechless as they passed from room to room. Could anything be so lovely? Why had she never thought that she would ever be able to see such beautiful things? At last the lady broke the silence and in a gay voice replied: "We will have tea in the sun-room dear, and then possibly we may get acquainted." She then linked her arm in Betty Lou's and together they went into the sun-room. The butler entered and served tea. Soon after he left the room and Betty Lou who had fairly recovered by now said in a weak voice: "Madam, why are you so good to me, and what is the meaning of all this?"

"Well, my dear, you see, when I saw your handsome face today, it seemed to make me think my dear sister had come back again. She was ten years younger than I and at the age of sixteen she met a young man, who in reality was nothing but a swindler. Although our parents objected, she persisted in seeing him. Then one day she could not be found anywhere. Our parents were frantic to think that their daughter had been taken from them. A few days passed and one evening on picking up the newspaper I saw the record of their marriage license. Mother became a nervous wreck and father spent everything he had trying to find her. Then one day we heard that the man she had married was caught selling liquor. This made matters worse and at the end of the year mother died, heart-broken. Soon after that I married Floyd Allen who was a promising young man. We took father to live with us and not long afterwards he too passed away. Lloyd was making good and was then President of his father's factory. We never gave up our hope of finding my sister. Then three years ago we learned that she had died and left a beautiful daughter

That day, but Betty Lou has determined to go for her daily swim. Throwing her bathing cap on the sand she immediately approached the water. Oh, how refreshing the water was and on she swam. She said no one overhead nor did she hear the cries from the beach. On and on she swam thinking to herself that she was now really enjoying herself. The waves came so high and so strong that Betty Lou could hardly get her breath. She struggled to go back but alas she had become too weak to resist such. Then, alas, she was taken by Betty Lou down to the beach. Then darkness and Betty Lou felt herself sinking then strong arms seemed to lift her up then she knew no more.

Many hours later she opened her eyes and averted into the handsome face of a young man. Beside him stood Nancy and Mrs. Allen. Why what was the meaning of all this? Who was the handsome stranger? She remembered about the huge waves and then sinking into strong arms. Suddenly she stammered, "Why Auntie, what was the matter?" Then Auntie came up to her hand and softly said, "Dear, I nearly lost you. If it hadn't been for Mr. Warren, you would have been here now. So you see you have him to thank. Nancy and I must go now. I want you to be friends with Warren."

"Oh, Auntie, don't worry about the trouble I'll treat Warren Saunders, she replied with her handsome face widened into a smile.

Mrs. Allen and Nancy left the room. Warren started to follow, but was checked by Betty Lou ordering him to stay. Gently he closed the door and moved a chair up to the bed. Betty Lou looked up into his eyes and softly murmured, "Oh, Warren, how can I ever thank you?"

"Never mind and that, dear, rest yourself and then I am going to ask you a favor of mine."

Betty Lou soon dropped off to sleep and the last thing she remembered was that Warren still held her hand. The next morning she was up and around again at her old routine, but now she must leave some time for Warren. For they were very intimate friends now. And most of Betty Lou's nights were spent with him. Sometimes walking in the garden, motor-boat riding, dancing, etc. The weeks passed and the summer was nearly gone. In a few days they were going back to the city. Dawn brought the day of their return. Betty Lou and Warren strolled through the garden came upon a rustic bench, covered with vines. Here they sat down for their last chat. As Betty Lou thought, suddenly Warren gathered Betty Lou in his arms and whispered softly, "Dear, will you marry me? I will be sure we can be happy. For I love you with all my heart." Betty Lou slowly raised her head and looked into Warren's eyes. Then it was that shy question she murmured, "But Warren, you would hardly ask me such a question if you knew about my past life."

"Never mind, dear, I know all about it. If for your auntie told me. Let's forget the past and live only for the present. Now promise me, Betty Lou. And Betty Lou, with her eyes looked into Warren's contented face. Suddenly she was gathered up in a long embrace and their lips met in a token of real love.

SCHOOL AWARDS ARE ANNOUNCED

The list of the premiums awarded the village schools and rural schools at the Richland county fair, has been completed by Mrs. Charles Solomon, secretary in the office of County Superintendent H. H. Phelps. A copy will be sent to the schools. About one hundred and twenty-five copies will be made on the mimeograph. The list contains ten one-half typewritten pages.

Lucas schools lead in the amount of the premiums, having won a total of $50. Madison high school won first prize for the high school exhibit but the total is less than the total of Lucas, being $33.50. Bellville won a total of $5; Butler village schools $24; Lexington $37; Weller high school $10; Plymouth $9.50. Not all the high schools had exhibits.

East Mansfield won the most money in the grade schools, getting a total of $40. Lincoln Heights school won $17; Woodville $8.50.

The report has a long list of the one room rural schools which won premiums on their exhibits. The display this year was unusually large.
