GREENWICH GIRL IS REVUE WINNER

Miss Virginia Sweet Chosen as "Miss Cedar Point" in Contest.

Miss Virginia Sweet, of Greenwich, O., 18 years old and 108 pounds of bronzed feminine charm, became the choice of three judges Saturday night for the honor of becoming "Miss Cedar Point" to represent the resort in the state beauty pageant there next month.

She was ranked first among 15 entries in a contest conducted by E. C. Pollock, in conjunction with the G. A. Boeckling Company in the Coliseum dance hall at Cedar Point. Fully 2,000 persons witnessed a parade of the girls—all in bathing suits—around the pavilion.

Miss Sweet will be a senior this year in the high school at Greenwich, and last night's was the first contest of the kind she has ever entered, she said. She stands five feet two inches in height, is well proportioned, has medium brown curly bobbed hair and was highly attractive in her bathing suit of red. Her eyes are of deepest brown, bordered by long dark lashes, and her smile reveals a set of perfect, white teeth. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Sweet, Greenwich.

One Sandusky girl was entered, Miss Harriet Curr, daughter of Mrs. Dolly Curr, Hancock-st.

Besides Miss Sweet, the following competed:

The Misses Jennie Helmbrock, Mary Bizzack, Anna Archer, Dorothy Kane, Florence Long, Helen Hendrick, Naomi Diehl, Harriet Carr, Glenella Jones, Vivian Price, May Hoeler, Charlotte Newman, Margaret Salts and Jessie May Daugherty.

Judges included Alford J. Bird, Pittsburgh, Paul B. Mason of The Register staff and Ed. L. Wiles, also a Sandusky newspaperman.

Miss Sweet will join between forty and fifty others to compete during the Ohio Elks' Association's convention at Cedar Point in August, for the honor of becoming "Miss Ohio," the selection automatically entering the successful girl in the national beauty pageant in Miami, Fla.

Special Meeting

A special meeting of the village council will be held tonight to decide just what plan to take to care of the surplus water on Sandusky street. The watershed on the north end of the town has been a problem for some time and especially during the heavy downpours when streets become flooded. W. R. Glasgow has four plans to submit to the body at the meeting tonight. The improvement will probably be carried out this summer.

Store Fronts Painted

Two store fronts have been greatly improved in appearance the past week. They are the Hatch Shoe Store and the Weber Cafe. The paint is of an ivy color and certainly adds to the appearance to the south side of the Square. There is quite a variety in color over there, and color they say is all the rage. There were yellow, gray, light green, red, white, ivory just plain black and gray.

The McIntire building next to the post office is getting a new roof this week also. A tin roofing material is being used and the work is in charge of H. L. Kendig, local plumber and tin shop man.

POOL COMPLETED

C. E. Heath has just completed a swimming pool on the property next to his residence, and it is one of the most modern in this section. The pool is supplied with fresh water at all times, spring board and slides for the kiddies. Many of the youngsters have had the pleasure of taking a dip in the pool and it has certainly been a source of pleasure to them during the hot weather.

CATHERINE REED CLASS PICNIC

The members of the Catherine Reed class of the Presbyterian church held their annual picnic at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. George Hatch on Tuesday. The members arrived in the afternoon and at five-thirty were joined by their husbands. A delicious picnic supper was served on the lawn and thoroughly enjoyed by all. Mrs. E. F. Beck who was recently married was presented with a gift from the class.

A pot-luck dinner will be served at noon hour and members are requested to bring their own salads, dishes and also a covered dish.

The meeting is also open to the public and anyone interested in the work of the W. C. T. U. will be benefited by attending.

Word comes out from Delphi that there will be an old time ice cream and watermelon social to be held there on Tuesday evening, July 24th. There's going to be plenty of real good-old-fashioned ice cream and enough watermelon for all. The general public is cordially invited to attend this event which is to be held at the Delphi church. Let's go.

KILLED CHICKENS

In some manner a skunk was locked in the chicken house at the Emerson Dickson farm Friday and the next morning about thirty-two chickens were found dead. It is reported that the discovery was not made until the chickens had been let out. In the late afternoon the skunk again made its appearance and went into the house where it got into a nest and went to sleep. Mr. Dickson was called and shot the animal.

FARM WOMEN LEAVE KITCHEN

In 15 Ohio Counties Housewives Are Getting Vacations From Duties.

Out of farm kitchens into camps, under canvas, where somebody else plans the meals and cooks them, where there is time to stay ashore in the morning and go swimming in the afternoon, to read and study and sing when the spirit moves. In fifteen Ohio counties this summer, farm housewives are making that change, in the camps which are arranged by county agricultural or home demonstration agents.

Two of the camps were held in June. Six will be held during the latter part of July. Seven are scheduled for August. Right in the harvest season, some of them. But experience has shown in the past three years that the family managed to get on for four days, the average length of the camps, even if the threshers came while Mother was away.

Testimony from women who were in the camps last year is to the effect that the most generally appreciated feature is the fact that some one else plans the meals and does the cooking. Now comes the opportunity to lie in bed a little in the morning. Then the pleasure of reading and studying about subjects into which there had never been time or energy before.

CALLING CONTEST TO BE FULL OF FUN

Many Diversions Will Be Featured at State Fair This Year.

Among the diversions which will be found at the Ohio State Fair this coming year is a series of contests in old-time dancing, harmonica playing, old soldiers' contest, and a combination horse racing, chicken and husband calling contest.

The Old Dancers' Contest will be held, as will all other contests in this group, in a pavilion which will be constructed especially for the contestants.

Two prizes will be offered each day, one prize of $5.00 for the best couple in the Waltz and a $20.00 prize for the best set of four couples in the Square Dance.

Although the contest is open to anyone the Judges will be instructed to give special consideration to persons over forty years old.

Competent judges and good callers will be provided by the Fair Board.

The Judges' decisions are to be based on accuracy of step, time, grace, quality of leadership and in the square dance greatest consideration will be given the co-operation of the couples and will be final. Smoothness of action in the set and the ability to quickly and skillfully interpret the call will also be watched in the later dances.

The Board suggests that sets be organized in the various communities before coming to the Fair, but there will be no objection to sets organized spontaneously. Following the dancing contests, an opportunity for social dancing will be offered and good music will be provided.

Old Fiddlers will compete in the same branch as the dancers and will be judged on the accuracy, tonal quality, carrying power and inspiration of the playing.

A first prize of $10.00 and a second of $5.00 will be awarded daily to the winning players.

Choice of music is left to the musician and he may play alone or may have an accompanist on the piano. Three minutes will be allowed to each player.

Entrants in the Harmonica playing contest may be of any age or sex. Like the contestants in the Old Fiddlers' Contest, the Harmonica players may choose their own selection, play either with or without accompaniment and will be limited to three or five minutes according to the size of the entry list.

They will be judged on the same standard as the fiddlers.

In the Calling Contest the Hog Callers will compete on Monday evening in the Coliseum. Sheep Calling will be held on Tuesday evening. Husband Calling, Wednesday evening, Chicken Calling on Thursday evening, and Cow Calling on Saturday evening.

Quality of voice, carrying power, uniqueness of call and results shown by the audience's applause will determine the winners.

First prize in the calling contest will be $5.00 and second will be $2.50. Persons desiring to enter any of the contests will receive application blanks by writing to The Ohio State Fair, in care of the State Department of Agriculture, Columbus, Ohio.

Five Box Stationery from 25¢ to $1.00 per box—at Judson's.

ONION ACREAGE REPORTED LESS THAN IN 1927

Onion growers of the Willard marsh will be interested to know that the annual meeting of the national onion growers association at Kenton this week, it was estimated that 43,000 acres of onions have been planted this year compared with 45,000 acres last year.

The Sevierville marsh between Lima and Kenton, is 17,000 acres in extent. The Hog Creek marsh near Ada, is much smaller. The Willard marsh in this county comprised about 3600 acres. These three marshes are very heavy onion producers and the Sevierville marsh is said to be the largest in the world.

SOUTH IN REBELLION

Those who profess to see no serious revolt among the Roman Catholic Clerical ticket among Democrats of the South are simply blind. They don't see because they don't wish to see. There is a revolt, and a very serious revolt. It has already attained proportions which threaten defeat of the Smith-Robinson ticket in several Southern States.

In Texas, men and women who have been prominent and active Democrats and their families have repudiated the action of the Houston convention. Likewise in North Carolina, Tennessee, in Virginia, and elsewhere. Bullying tactics are being resorted to by the Smith gang in an attempt to whip these outraged Democrats into line. In some of the States, the party chairmen are threatening to stop Democrats who refuse to support Smith from participating in party primaries. Such tactics are typical of Tammany, but they will have no more effect than a scarecrow of those courageous men and women who are far better Democrats than any of the Tammany crew. To them principles and the finer traditions mean far more than so-called regularity that must be maintained at the price of swallowing a liquor-soaked, backsliding candidate who is as far as the pines from the traditional principles of Democracy. When Jefferson was nominated and Jackson defended:

"There are tens of thousands of other good Democrats like the fearless Democratic editor of the Texas Tribune, who has repudiated the Houston convention's action and declared that in opposing the Smith-Robinson ticket that daily is being put up to us all their arrears. If this is not done it is understood that the subscriber will be liable for the amount and interests to pay when convenient."

Democrats know Tammany's history. They know how that infamous organization knifed Cleveland, derailed Bryan, opposed Wilson and played the traitor to John W. Davis. With such a record, it comes with poor pride to Tammany to cry "bolo!" and try to whip Southern Democrats into line under the lash.

PRINCIPLE OR PARTY?

There are two major issues in 1928 political campaign which go to the very heart and soul of America. They are prohibition and immigration. With one is bound up the sanctity of the Constitution; with the other rests the future of the American race, whether it shall continue to be a race of real Americans, or become a mongrelized race.

So far as the prohibition plank in the platform adopted by the Houston convention is concerned, it is farcical in the light of the Presidential candidate selected by that convention and the declaration which he immediately made on the prohibition issue. So far as the plank is concerned, it would be satisfactory if the nominee of the convention were a man who could be trusted to make good the pledge which it made. The plank declares for the enforcement of the prohibition amendment and the laws subsequent thereto. But what does that pledge mean to Smith who immediately served notice upon the convention that he would work for the repeal of the prohibition laws?

What sort of enforcement is to be expected from a man who did not give a minute in serving notice that he was going to continue to serve the distillers and saloon interests by making possible the return of the liquor which has been outlawed? Of course the nomination of Smith is half the story. Shrewd saloon keepers in every shop in the land know which liquor is sold. Of course every brewery, every distiller, every ex-saloonkeeper and every ex-bar-tender joined in the cheering. Why shouldn't they? With reference to the liquor question, there is one thing for which Smith is to be commended. At least, he was frank enough to put the convention and the country on notice as to exactly where he stands, that he is on the side of the repeal of prohibition, on the side of the ex-saloonkeepers and bartenders who are anxious to get back into the business now outlawed. He has helped to make the issue perfectly clear, and if there be some in the country who are willing to take their stand with the ex-saloonkeepers and ex-bartenders and against the home and the church, they know where to go and what to do.

Smith is not as yet been frank about immigration issue as he was about prohibition. It is to be hoped that he will be. But whether he does deal with this great issue honestly and frankly, or evades it, or tries to evade it, informed people know where he stands. He stands for the immigrant and against the native American. He stands with those who have opposed him and his restriction from the beginning, and who have sought by every means at hand to defeat the purposes of the immigration act.

So far as the immigration plank in the platform adopted by the Houston convention is concerned, it is farcical. It is just so many words. It doesn't mean anything. It is true that it declares that "laws which limit immigration must be preserved in full force and effect," but in the same sentence it is declared that "provisions contained in these laws that separate husbands and wives and parents from children," etc., are "unnatural and not essential to the purpose or the efficiency of such law." This is the old cry of "divided families."

The plank is ambiguous. It does not say whether these "divided families" should be reunited by permitting absent relatives to come into the country within or outside the quota. The point is vital. If they were permitted to come in outside the quota law, there would be an unending flow of new aliens coming into the country, and the whole purpose of restriction would be defeated. It has been estimated this would permit a half-million new aliens to come into the country annually. And every unit produced would create another "divided family" to be separated, and there would be no limit to the number of aliens who might come in. The country would be overrun with them, and in twenty-five to fifty years the number of foreign-born would outnumber the native-born in America. Most of them would come from Roman Catholic countries. Most of them, no doubt, would be ignorant paupers. The standard of citizenship would be fatally lowered. In fact, within a half-century the proud American race would become a nameless mass of polyglots.

On this great issue Smith has not spoken. But he does not have to speak. His recent speech speaks for him; his Tammany affiliation speaks for him; so do his environment and native sympathies. No Tammany member of Congress ever dared support a restriction act, if he wished to, because Tammany gets its votes from the alien masses in New York City. Smith is an officer of Tammany, he is a creature of Tammany, he is a tool of Tammany, and against restriction instinctively, as well as because Tammany is against it and because his political life is owing to that crowd.

Aside from the fact that Alfred E. Smith is a professionally loyal member of the Roman Catholic church, which has throughout all history whenever it could do so set itself up as a superior power, a sort of super-government, aside from the fact that he is a creature and tool of Tammany Hall, reeking, rotten, corrupt Tammany, aside from the fact that he is instinctively un-American by tradition, by training, by practice, Al Smith's stand against prohibition and the Constitution, and his position on immigration are enough to forever damn him in the eyes of real Americans.

Al Smith cannot stand for the saloons and beer halls and also stand for church and home. He cannot stand for the Roman Catholic alien immigrant from Europe and stand for native Americans.

He has chosen to take his stand with the liquor crowd and with the aliens. He therefore cannot expect to receive the support of law-loving, peace-loving, liberty-loving, home-loving American men and women, whether they be Democrats or Republicans. There are times when issues transcend any and all political parties. Such a time is at hand. Fellowship Forum.

In the matter of desserts there is a notable tendency to eat desserts which have been bought or which many manufactured ingredients have gone, rather than to use the fresh or canned fruits and their juices, which came from the very farm where they are being eaten.

Miss Ogle insists that from the standpoints of health and economy, the farm menu needs revision, with more emphasis upon the things which grow on the farm itself.

Nobody would accuse the farmer of eating too much, but there is evidence that he spends too many moments for food. As compared with the income of the industrial family living in the city, the farm family's income suffers heavier burdens for food, and is called upon to supply less clothing. But this doesn't tell the whole story, because the cost of some of the food which is consumed by the farm family is in the form of labor and land—that is, much of the food is produced on the farm where it is consumed.

According to statistics in the publication of the rural economics department of the Ohio State University, the average Ohio family with an income of less than $2500 a year spends from 30 to 50 per cent of that income for food. The farm family usually spends 40 per cent or more of its income for food—including expenditure of time and effort in producing some of the food.

About half of the food which the family consumes is produced on the home farm, thus calling for the expenditure of about 20 per cent of the cash income of the family for manufactured articles of food. Considering that the principal business of the farmer is to produce food, this seems too much to Miss Leda Ogle, nutrition specialist in the Extension Service of the Ohio State University.

Green vegetables, either direct from the garden or stored, fresh milk and eggs and milk products; fruits in various forms—these are the things which Miss Ogle believes should go to the tables of the rural homes in Ohio, to replace foodstuffs which have been purchased with that very scarce article, cash.

Furthermore, there is a strong tendency toward the use of ready-prepared and cooked cereals and breakfast foods, which are more expensive than the kinds that have to be cooked. Miss Ogle says,

Farm families are frequently subsisting with fewer green vegetables than the dietitian would recommend. Miss Ogle has discovered this from the reports of farm women who engage in some of the cooking projects managed by the county home agents and the extension specialists. Consumption of milk on the farm is fair

Hot Weather Makes Us Hunt 'Cream And 'Coke'

The hot weather of the past few weeks has certainly put the hum in the ice cream and pop business. One sign reads: "We don't know where Ma is but we have POP-od ICE." The local ice cream plant, operated by Steele Brothers, has been enjoying a good run of business during the hot weather and the demand is on the increase. It is stated by the owners that about 90 per cent of the reunions and picnics held in this section always ask for Plymouth Ice Cream. There is every reason to believe that Plymouth's Own Ice Cream is better than the ordinary kind, for there is only the parent of all ingredients used. In the morning the milk is rushed to the plant where it is cooled and in a few minutes is in the process of being made into frozen delicacy. It is very probable that besides the favorite vanilla and honeymoon flavors, that strawberry, banana and peach will soon be on the market at the demand for these flavors is steadily growing.

For those in the community who do not know the various firms that produce Plymouth cream they are given here: Willard, Martin's Bakery, New Haven, C. E. Davis Grocery, Shiloh, Noble's Place, Green Front Restaurant and the White House; Shelby, Pastime Pool Room, United Dollar Store; Plymouth, Wine's Restaurant, Beckwith's Confectionery, Weber's Cafe, Palace Restaurant and the Point Filling Station.

Special orders for large and small quantities can be taken care of at the factory.

WOOD CARVING CONTEST TO END SATURDAY NIGHT

Down in Brown & Miller's display window is a piece of art in handcarving, and to those who have viewed it, they are surprised that anyone had the patience to carve and put together a picture frame, about 10 by 12 inches, in which there is over 500 pieces of wood. Along with this display is a handcarved fork and spoon. H. F. Brooks, a moulder in the local plant, is credited with the works shown, and Mr. Brooks does it with just an ordinary knife.

The display is being shown in connection with the Winchester Wood Carving Contest which is being conducted by the local hardware store. Anyone is eligible and a copy of the work "Winchester" must be secured in order that it may be traced onto the wood and then carved. To the five best carvings turned in the winners will receive a handsome and durable Winchester knife. The contest closes Saturday night at 9 o'clock.

Now boys, get busy and receive one of these knives. It's not hard to do, just a matter of a little time, patience and a sharp knife. Be sure to turn your carvings in not later than nine Wednesday night.

What Will Seven Cents Buy?

Not very much in these days that's certain. A loaf of bread used to cost five cents but it has doubled in cost several years ago.

But there is one thing seven cents will buy that represents more now than ever before — and that's twenty-four hours of telephone service.

Seven cents a day — that's what your telephone costs you and it brings you a return in time saved and convenience that many times that sum could not bring invested any other way.

Montague Glass was born in England at Manchester, July 23, 1877, but when he was thirteen years old, in 1890, he came to the United States.

He attended the College of the City of New York and from there continued his studies at New York University, where he became interested in journalism. For some time he devoted his time to newspaper work, until 1910, when he decided to go into the advertising business in Pittsburgh. Montague Glass has also written many plays and books, among the latter being "The Man Who Would Be King." He is the author of the dozen books which his inquisitive brain children. Mr. Glass, readers may be interested to know, is married and at present lives in the south of France.

BY MONTAGUE GLASS

"My nice got married last night to Max Treumann but he didn't love her," Abe Potash announced the other day.

"Why, I thought he was crazy about her!" Morris Perlmutter exclaimed. "What makes you think that he don't love her?"

"Well, he was thirty years old last week," Abe said, "and Will Durant, the author of 'The Ten Best Philosophers of 1927,' says that it's impossible for a man of thirty to fall in love—or for a woman neither for that matter."

"And how old is this here Will Durant?" Morris asked.

"I don't know exactly, but I suspect he's twenty-seven or twenty-eight," he replied, "which when he gets to be about thirty himself, Mawruss, he'll give out another statement pushing the age limit five years further, so that by the time he's seventy, you understand, he'll say that no man over seventy-five can fall in love, and if he's bed-ridden at that time, he'll be holding hands with the trained nurse and telling her confidentially that he meant eighty-five."

"Maybe you're right, because I don't know what the age limit for philosophers is when it comes to falling in love," Morris said, "but I do know that many a millionaire of sixty or over has fallen so dangerously in love with a prima donna of forty that his relations have been thinking of getting out on an injunction to prevent the millionaire's fortune from being passed on by the prima donna to her next husband or anyhow to the Casino at Monte Carlo."

"But you couldn't call that falling in love exactly—so far as the prima donna is concerned," Abe remarked.

"Why not?" Morris asked. "Which I ain't no author of 'How to Be a Philosopher in Ten Lessons,' or any such book as that, understand, but at the same time, Abe, I don't see no reason why a prima donna of forty-five shouldn't fall in love with a millionaire of sixty-seven—not if I was on the jury which was trying the breach of promise case anyhow."

"But what this here Will Durant calls falling in love is where a man or woman couldn't eat or sleep for fear of losing the party of the second part," Abe said.

"Well, that only goes to prove that Durant may be a first class, A-number-one philosopher, but he ain't practical, because, Abe, flowers, theater tickets, meals in restaurants and automobile riding has become so expensive nowadays that a man under thirty ain't got the money to show true devotion," Morris declared. "You can't show true devotion with one box of mixed chocolates and two bonbons every Saturday night in these times, Abe, otherwise somebody over thirty will come along and show true devotion with a ten-dollar pair of seats for the Folies and dinner at a Park avenue restaurant before the show and how is a young fellow of less than thirty going to meet such competition unless he forges checks on his employer's or something?"

"There's a whole lot in what you say," Abe agreed, "although you are talking about falling in love from the standpoint of a business man and not a philosopher."

"Maybe I am," Morris said, "but even people in love are more business-like than they used to be, Abe, and you'd be surprised at the number of romantic young ladies under thirty who, when they have fallen in love with a young man and then discover that he ain't got the price of a square-cut diamond engagement ring, fall immediately out of love again."

"Furthermore, Abe, there is even lots of cases where a young man under thirty was absolutely devoted in love with some girl as far as his earning capacity permitted and even went into debt for orchids at twelve dollars apiece, understand, until he finds out that her father, instead of being one of the principal stockholders of the United Independent Electric Light companies of Delaware, Maine and New Hampshire, is only the head bookkeeper of such a corporation. The consequences is that the next week, or even sooner, he is equally devotedly in love with the daughter of Max Jonas of Jonas, Biermiller & Lasky, the raincoat manufacturers."

"Then you don't agree with Will Durant?" Abe asked.

"I don't say that I do, and I don't say that I don't," Morris concluded. "But to my mind, Abe, nothing makes a man look so youthful and loverlike in the eyes of a beautiful young girl, than when he comes round to see her with a spray of orchids in one hand and a square-cut six-carat solitaire diamond ring in the other."

SUMMER HealthTalks

PREVENTION
 Sponsored by the Ohio Public Health Association

Prevention is never quite so distinctly shown to be better than cure as in those cases where there is no cure.

Once a man develops rabies, he dies. There is no way on earth to save him. But rabies can be prevented practically 100 times out of 100 if the Pasteur treatment is taken in time.

Except for careful nursing and good hygiene there are no "cures" to aid the natural resistance of the body against typhoid fever, smallpox, scarlet fever, measles, or whooping cough.

But smallpox can be prevented by vaccination, typhoid fever by immunization, and serums are being perfected for immunizing against scarlet fever, measles and whooping cough.

It was a great discovery that gave diphtheria antitoxin to the world and made diphtheria one of the most curable of diseases. Even more important is toxin-antitoxin which, by preventing diphtheria, will some day make a cure unnecessary. Tetanus antitoxin will cure tetanus in some cases; not all. But that same antitoxin, given before the disease develops, will almost无疑 kill it.

About as long as humanity has been looking for a method to turn lead into gold it has been searching for miraculous medicines. It is these methods of prevention that are the real miracles of modern medical science. It is a good deal easier to stay well than to get well. And it is more comfortable.

A smallpox vaccination every seven years, typhoid immunization every two or three years, diphtheria toxin-antitoxin treatment for all preschool children, tetanus anti-toxin for punctured or suspicious wounds and strict attention to the law regulating sanitation will, in a few years, put these plagues into the lists of things gone, and for practical purposes, forgotten.

MANY AERIAL TOURISTS STOP OVER IN COLUMBUS

Columbus, Ohio.—Columbus may not be the center of aerial navigation, but that it is a popular place for tourists of the sky is certain. Hardly a day passes but what some visitors drop in from some far away city to spend time on business or social matters. During the past week one California father with his two daughters stepped from a magnificent plane to do some shopping, and later guests from Des Moines, Iowa, dropped in on business matters. Airplanes over the city are a common occurrence, and the hum of the motor fails to attract even passing attention of the thousands that hear them. During one week not less than twenty visiting planes drove over the city in addition to the many "excursion aerial trips" which are being liberally patronized by those who seek thrills and excitement.

Columbus, Ohio—James T. Begg, Republican candidate for Governor, has been placed squarely up against the buzz saw in his first state-wide political campaign. During the last week, Ohio Anti-Saloon League men challenged him to do the assembly of the Cleveland Times-Sentinel that he is a "moisture wet." In a speech at Youngstown, Attorney General Turner charged that the Times-Sentinel endorsement means that Begg is aligned with the public utilities interests of the state. Turner elaborated on this statement by declaring the Cincinnati paper is owned by the Taft, and that the Taft's also own the Columbus Gas and Electric Company and its subsidiary, the Logan Gas Company, which serves seventy-three towns and villages in Ohio. So far, Mr. Begg has not replied to either challenge. With both Begg and Turner branded as wets, the stock of Myers Y. Cooper of Cincinnati, dry, took a jump. The feeling about the State Capitol is that at this stage of the game, Cooper is leading for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

IF AL SMITH
I'm just a plain old Democrat,
I've been one all my life,
Not much on style and folderoles,
And things which stir up strife.
I'll (though you dub me a fool)
Tote water to the elephant
If Al Smith feeds the mule.

I've voted every ticket straight
Without a sigh or wall,
Rode true with all the nominees,
Though some were kind o' stale;
But durst it all old Al's too much,
I'll have to break the rule,
Feed peanuts to the elephant
If Al Smith feeds the mule.

I love the South with all my heart
And memory keeps alive
The sacrifice supreme it made
From sixty-one to five;
But, Heck! Ole Al's too rough a bird
I'll—never mind the rule—
Tote soughn to the elephant
If Al Smith feeds the mule.

I'm drier than a desert drought,
I'm more than dry you see.
Ole Al is wet, I fear, for me.
And so to keep from seeing snakes
I'll—though you dub me fool—
Tote water to the elephant
If Al Smith feeds the mule.

KING VIDOR SCORES HEAVILY ONCE MORE

Man Who Made "Big Parade" Has Achieved Tremendously Again in "The Crowd," With James Murray and Eleanor Boardman.

King Vidor has scored again! The man who made "The Big Parade" for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer last year has made a "big parade of peace times" in "The Crowd," playing at the Temple Theatre, Monday and Tuesday.

The grim horrors of war which formed the background of "The Big Parade" are lacking in "The Crowd," but there is a background of everyday struggle for very existence that is not as spectacular as war but every bit as interesting.

Since Vidor entered the picture industry years ago it has been his ambition to make a great special production for the millions of picturegoers who form the great middle class of Americans. To depict upon the screen the daily struggle in the uphill battles of life where a man cannot even resort to arms in his desperation but has to struggle with heart, soul and body against an enemy which never gives way so much!

as an inch.

Vidor has attained his ambition in his new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, "The Crowd." Just as he dwelt on the little bits of human interest in "The Big Parade," he has dwelt upon them again in this great picture of peace, the story of which he wrote.

Big Profits

Have Been Made and Will be Made at

BAY VIEW

On Sandusky Bay

In only three years lot values have advanced from 100 per cent to over 400 per cent and still going up.

Every unsold lot has great future for the following reasons:

1. Bay View private colony is popular and successful.
2. All lots near water and have shade trees.
3. New bridge across Sandusky Bay open for traffic this year.
4. Martin's and Barrett's road contracts for repaving and widening have been made.
5. Nearly $2,500,000 in public improvements being made joining Bay View. This will be reflected in future lot values.
6. Bay View will soon be restricted in use to lot owners only.

The big woods has been subdivided and is now being sold for cottage sites at ridiculously low prices.

Bay View is a going concern. It is an assured success. There is no gamble in its future.

Now is the time to buy and make the big profits.

Drive out Sunday and walk through the woods. You will like the shade, the birds and the big trees. You can't see it by just driving past.

Take route 12 from Sandusky and follow arrows to Bay View.
