60-TON ENGINE OPENS NEW ERA FOR F-R-H. CO.

New Plant Addition Now Under Consideration for Manufacture of Engine

Last Thursday was a day of unusual interest at the plant of The Fair-Road-Heath Co. for it was the opening of a new era in the locomotive field. From the president down to the machinist helper everyone was wondering just how the big Diesel locomotive was going to turn over, and when the huge machine was transferred from the floor to the tracks of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad all doubt faded out as the engineer turned the switch and the giant motor heaved forth.

This type of engine is the first to be built at the local plant and much interest from over the entire country has been centered on its outcome, which so far has proved most favorable to the engineers in charge. A large crowd was present Thursday afternoon to see the locomotive tested out, and everyone was elated at its beauty, power and ease of operation. Friday the engine was driven down to Carey where it will be weighed and its appearance at the various towns drive quite a bit of comment. The engine weight is 60 tons.

The engine is finished in green, trimmed in black and gold, with railings of brass. The appearance in front and rear is the same, as it travels both forward and backward at the same rate of speed. It is equipped with an 8-cylinder Diesel motor in the front end while the rear part is filled with air and fuel tanks. Various gauges and instruments tell the engineer what speed he is traveling, air pressure, and any disturbance that might arise.

This is the first direct gear drive locomotive ever built in this country, and a colorful future is predicted for its use in all lines of industry. The speed of the engine is around thirty miles per hour, and it is stated that they can be built to travel at a rate of forty miles per hour. In the initial test the locomotive pulled a string of thirty-one freight cars, part of which were loaded, on a three-fourths of one per cent grade at a good rate of speed.

Several officials from different railroads of the country as well as other parties connected with big industries have been here watching the demonstrations of the engine and all are amazed at its power and speed, and predict a wide use for it. The engine has been in operation for several days and officials and engineers for the past two or three years and the finished product has at last been realized and the local plant no doubt will receive its reward for its effort to better conditions in the commercial world.

The first of the 60-ton engine is to be shipped to one of the largest manufacturing plants on the Pacific coast where it will go into heavy service. The local plant has already started the construction of another one of the same type except that it will be driven by two gasoline motors instead of the Diesel type. This locomotive is already sold to a shortline railroad in the south.

The 60-ton Plymouth locomotive is made for a different service than that of the gas-electric locomotive inasmuch as the Plymouth engine is built for heavy haul work. This gas-electric is capable of only a high speed and light loads. However, with the necessary changes the Plymouth locomotive can easily develop a speed of forty miles per hour.

Officials of the local plant state that plans are now under way for a speedy expansion to take care of the new type engine. The new engine will require heavier machines and cranes, and when the new addition is complete it will be modern in every way and capable of handling the heavy work which will require it.

Plymouth people wish the local concern continued success in the development program which they have entered into and the best of wishes and good luck is being extended to the officials by the citizens of Plymouth and vicinity. Other nearby towns are watching the local plant with keen interest and with the advent of this new engine Plymouth takes another step in the industrial ladder of the world.

FAMOUS PASTOR PASSES AWAY

Filled Pulpit in Old Stone Church at Cleveland for 22 Years.

Rev. Dr. Andrew Barclay Meldrum, died Sunday evening at Cleveland Clinic hospital following an operation last Thursday.

Dr. Meldrum was a pastor for forty years, twenty-two of them at Old Stone church, Cleveland. He was in good health for 71 years up until three weeks ago, when he had an attack of gallstones at his country place near Oberlin. He had retired there three years ago, but continued as pastor emeritus of Old Stone church.

Kirkcaldy, in Fifeshire, Scotland, was Dr. Meldrum's birthplace and all the rugged characteristics of a Scotsman were his except the famous Scotch "closeness." He was celebrated for his generosity and gave all the income that most persons like to live in pocket money—to wit, marriage fees and education of his children. The total of these gifts was between $15,000 and $30,000, for he united upwards of 3,000 couples.

It was in 1874 Dr. Meldrum wrote in his biography, that "the determination to become a minister came to me during the first year of my life with the death of an only and dearly loved brother. I was 17 and teaching school in a little country village in Canada."

Dr. Meldrum is known to thousands of radio fans his sermons being frequently broadcasted.

Mrs. C. S. Soller was a member of his congregation for many years during her residence in Cleveland.

ALL WE KNOW

Well, all we know is just what we hear and see as we go from pillar to post around the square.

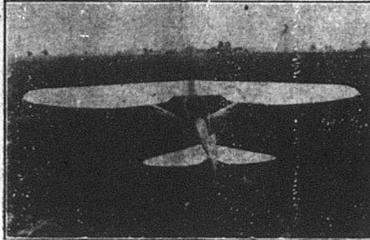

This week we notice Doc. Holtz is driving a NEW second-hand humphire. Upon investigation, we find that Doc has literally raced to death "Tom Paine" who almost threw a back tire and started to wheeze like she had the whooping cough in rebellion. He therefore put her out to pasture, so to speak, in the barn, for good service.

Doc says except for a few grants and groans, and the color, he wouldn't know but that it was Old Faithful, anyhow, he says, it is just the other twin.

F. A. DRONBERGER PAYS

F. A. Dronberger of Cleveland was a Plymouth visitor Monday and he paid a visit to this office while the editor was out, and probably it was a good thing for we certainly would have inquired about that fish story which appeared some time ago in the Cleveland News.

Dronberger is an old former resident of the good town of our, and his many friends were pleased to see him here again.

AMERICAN MOTH MONOPLANE

Instrument boards such as used by Colonel Lindbergh in his trans-Atlantic flight and by Lieutenants Matland and Hegeberger on their flight across the Pacific, will be shown.

SILVER IN CHARGE TO DISTRIBUTE MAPS OF OHIO

By Chas. W. Rife

Columbus, Ohio—Harry D. Silver, former assistant state auditor and manager of the primary campaign for Mervyn Y. Cooper, was selected to manage the coming campaign for Republicans, while Arthur A. Nixon, of Dayton, is the new chairman of the state central committee. Capt. Thaddeus Brown was after the place secured by Silver, but refusal of the committee to name him was taken as a slap at the machine that was built up to nominate Burton and Begg. Burton won because of his personality and ability but Begg was defeated and with the additional defeat of Corp. Brown the old Willard faction is again in control. Democrats of Ohio re-elected Henry G. Brunner, of Mansfield. Now that both party machines have engineers chosen the political trail is able to start on its voyage that will keep it going day and night until the November election.

Columbus, Ohio—Want an up-to-date map of Ohio? Showing all the state, county and national highways. If you do it can be secured free of charge from Harry J. Kirk, state highway director, whose address is Columbus, Ohio. The new highway map is one of the best ever published and shows not only all the main traffic lines of the state, but gives maps with the entrance and exit of leading cities of Ohio. On the reverse side is explanation of the various routes with their numbers. Only a limited number of these maps have been printed, but they will be mailed free to all who care for them. Just write Harry J. Kirk, state highway director, and tell him to send you his latest map. Kirk will pay the postage.

COUSIN DIES

Jack Bevier received word Saturday morning of the death of his cousin Will Bevier at his home in Mr. Morris, N. Y.

TWP. OFFICIALS TO ORGANIZE

Richland County Officials Among Those Already Organized.

The Ohio State Association of Township Trustees and Clerks announce that sixteen counties in Ohio have signed up for membership in the organization and that many more have in their application. The association is made up of trustees and clerks of townships, and its main purpose is to keep the rural voice represented in the legislative bodies of the state. Below we reprint a clipping which will give some light on the movement now in progress:

"The recently formed State Association of Township Trustees and Clerks is due to the wide-spread sentiment which demands recognition of the desires and needs of rural Ohio. The very little that Ohio's 1400 scattered townships have found it difficult to express themselves effectively—to make known their real opinions in matters of government. And hence the township which, from earliest times, has been the foundation of our local government, is today the "neglected unit" in governmental affairs.

Neglected, that is, except at shearing time. For the townships have been periodically sheared of their governmental powers until there is very little wool left.

Yet there are not lacking persons impatient of the shearing process, who now propose to take the whole hide. Their slogan appears to be: "A centralized system of government for rural Ohio."

From time to time, bills have been introduced in the General Assembly which propose to abolish the township as a unit of government. Odd as it may appear, this proposal is made in a State where people living in cities enjoy the "largest powers of local self-government, through the adoption of home rule charters."

It is difficult to reconcile the principle of "home rule for the city folks" with that of "centralized rule for the country folks." But perhaps it is not necessary to be consistent.

Anyone proposing to restrict the city's powers of self-determination would arouse the local luncheon clubs, the chambers of commerce, the city press—in short, he would encounter an opposition that would be both vociferous and effective.

Hence those who seek to remodel our present system according to their own notions of efficiency, usually direct the batteries of their reforming zeal against the township. That governmental unit is more or less indefensible, and quite inarticulate. No luncheon clubs to raise the voice of protest, no chambers of commerce to sound a warning to them.

In short, since the township is almost as silent as the oyster, not a few persons have persuaded themselves that it might just as well be swallowed.

The new State Association of Township Trustees and Clerks, acting in unison with the County Associations, will help the townships to become articulate. These organizations will enable rural citizens to better express their wishes and ideals. They will demand from the advocates of centralization an answer to this question:

"Home rule in largest measure is a good thing for city dwellers, why take from the rural communities the small powers of self-government now left to them?"

We predict that when rural sentiment becomes better organized, there will be fewer knights to enter the lists as champions of centralization for rural Ohio.

History records that the lance of the knight became less popular as a weapon when the yeoman learned the use of the pike.

COMMENTS ON NATIONAL NEWS

Peppy Comment on Things That Happen Throughout the Country.

Who's the road hog and who has the right to the road? The questions are not easily answered, but the real cause of the road is ordinarily easily discerned. It is one who usually ignores traffic regulations of nearly all forms and persists in taking more than his share of the road. He drives recklessly and at high speed. He passes you on the road and immediately cuts in ahead of you, too quickly for safety. He comes up to a street or railway crossing and instead of remaining behind your machine pulls into your left, while if some other poor fool does the same thing on the other side of the crossing, traffic cuts in ahead of you, too quickly for safety. Her husband's addicting to fireworks mentioned by a young woman as one reason why she wishes the divorce courts to terminate a marriage not yet a year old seems no very great grievance providing the weapons were not used objectionably or illegally. The husband "continually maintains an arsenal in the storage of many and various types of guns," it is alleged. Collecting firearms has been a hobby with many a good and harmless man. Another allegation is that the husband would put a gun under his pillow and another beside the bed. These allegations are not "Zealous determination to protect a wife's life, person or effects from marauders could account for that." Certainly American homes were never in greater need than now of preparedness for self-defense, at least on West High Street to Mr. Ted Jenkins Saturday Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins had rented the same property for the past six months.

HOOVER'S POLITICAL FAITH Portland (Ore.) Oregonian

In his speech accepting the Republican nomination for President, Herbert Hoover did far more than declare a series of political principles, he expressed the aspirations of the American people, the gratification of which is his ambition. He hopes to cap his splendid structure of achievement with the work he has set for himself as President. In undertaking that work, if summoned to do it by the American people, he is moved by the same spirit that moved him in 1914 to devote himself to the aid of the millions of victims of war. The knowledge and experience he acquired in many lands as a mining engineer, the efficiency he displayed as secretary of commerce, are to be devoted to the national service, not solely for the nation's material gain, for "our growth in spiritual achievements must keep pace with our growth in physical accomplishments."

In this spirit Hoover reviews the achievements of the Republican administration of which he has been a member and defines the manner in which he proposes to deal with the problems that now confront the nation. The United States "has been made a better place to live in, and the aim is to make it a still better place. The administration's achievements have been mainly in the economic field, but they have served that other purpose for four-fifths of tax reductions have been on small incomes, and industry has been fully employed through increase of foreign trade to a volume more than double that of pre-war years. Construction leadership has "recreated and stimulated the energies of our people." Gifts of hundreds of millions to churches and to the afflicted have proved that we as a nation are not selfish and have brought us "nearer to the final triumph over poverty." That is the spirit in which Hoover aims to carry on the work of the last seven years.

That speech was the profession of a noble political faith. Hoover seeks the Presidency through desire to put it into action. His whole career demonstrates that, if given that opportunity, he would strive with all his powers to translate his faith into accomplished facts. When war broke out, he no sooner saw the need that something be done than he set to work to do it. A clear thinker, tireless worker, full of zeal, possessed of high ability and varied experience, he does the things he undertakes to do. That is the type of man for President.

MOVINGS

Mrs. Jennie West and Miss Ida Cheesman are moving today from the Seville property on Plymouth Street, to their newly purchased and remodelled home at the corner of Park Avenue and West Broadway, formerly known as the Agnes Beelman family.

Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Veach and family have moved to Ft. Clinton where Mr. Veach has been transferred and holds a responsible position. They formerly resided in the Reynolds property on Mills Avenue.

THE TRAFFIC PROBLEM

We have often wondered why Norwalk let its West Main street, remain in its present condition when so much heavy traffic passes over it in the twenty-four hours of each day, and the rougher the street the more noise and so this Norwalk citizen has a right to complain, and statistics as given by the observer strikes us as good food for thought on the traffic problems of the country. The article is reprinted from the Public Forum of Saturday's Reflector-Herald:

Many times the mention of the noise made by automobiles, trucks, and all night traffic on our streets has been mentioned in the Reflector-Herald and I have been taking note of the conditions on West Main street to get some idea of how much traffic there was in the "wee small hours" of the night.

On one particularly warm night when it was rather difficult to sleep and my clock told me the hours from midnight on, and traffic kept rumbering on. The heavy solid tires shook the house or rather jarred it and so I was wakened.

At three a. m. I determined to see how many vehicles passed the house. So, I sat by the window for one hour and began to check them up. Seventeen heavy trucks, nineteen automobiles, and one solitary motorcycle chugged by, a total of thirty-seven sleep destroyers an average of one in a little less than two minutes, and added to that a train of two electric freight cars. Might have been worse.

The following Sunday afternoon as I sat on the porch at home so many kinds of motor cars of all kinds was passing that I had a curiosity to know just how many would pass in a given time so, I began to count on the second, at four o'clock and continued to until five o'clock, one hour (60 minutes) in that time, six hundred and seventy-five (675) had passed by.

This awakened a train of thought which set me to computing and I figured that each car would travel fifty miles which would not be too high an average for each one. At that rate the six hundred and seventy-five cars would pile up a mileage of 33,750 miles or about once and one-third times around the earth, that during the day if each car used an average of ten gallons of gasoline they would use 6,750 gallons of it. Amount of money not take so much but others like the heavy trucks, interstate buses and some others would take more, so ten gallons would not be too great for the average.

One hour and one place of vantage on a main travelled road. One census, concise of the amount of traffic in our county alone, saying nothing about the amount for the State and Nation.

In connection with this I wish to say that our Main street pavement was laid about 1890 and stood the traffic of countless thousands of vehicles of all sorts.

When the brick was laid they were just a common hard red brick 2x4x8 and laid on a common sand foundation of the sand found in the street and were laid edgewise with a sand filling between (if I remember rightly) and during this time it has carried immense traffic to which it has been subjected. It has been said that more than 22,000 army trucks passed over it during the war, some heavily laden with war material and some running light, with their solid rubber tires, that shook some of the houses so as to loosen the plaster on the walls, but the pavement stood the impact with very little damage to it.

How the times have changed. In looking over some of the old ordinances of the city here is what I found. At a meeting of our City Fathers on July 20th, 1874 an ordinance was passed which said, in regard to the speed of horses on our streets.

"That it shall be unlawful for any person to run, trot, rack or pace any horse or horses within the corporation of Norwalk, Ohio, at a speed faster than six miles per hour."

Speed, well I should say. It makes no provision for the doctor who goes to a hurry a pace, or to the fire companies who are called out to a fire. It makes no provisions for emergencies of any kind. And there is a fine attached for failure to comply with the law.

Surely the world does move. But has that ordinance ever been recinded? Who can tell?

Ring Lardner was born in Niles, Mich., in 1885, and attended Armour Institute of Technology at Chicago. After starting as a reporter on the South Bend Times, he became an editorial writer on the Chicago Daily News, Chicago Examiner, Chicago Tribune, Boston American and Chicago American. Since 1916, his articles have been widely reprinted in newspapers throughout the United States. He has also written several syndicated columns, including the famous YOU KNOW ME. He has written the Saturday Evening Post. Since 1924 he has been a regular contributor to magazines and short stories that secured his position as one of the best modern humorists. Mr. Lardner is married, lives in Great Neck, L. I., and has four children, all boys.

By RING LARDNER

Professor Durant's pronouncement, which started this brawl, reminds me of the familiar story of the two Scotchmen, all named Sandy. It seems that one of them was walking along the main street of Glasgow without an umbrella in a driving rain storm. He was arrested by a bairn (police) and locked up in the Kiltie (jail). He sent for his friend Sandy.

"Weel, Sandy," said Sandy, "wot be you-a-oll' doing in the kiltie?"

"Ah be here for trekkie! In de rain wot no umbrella," said Sandy.

"But, mon, they canna put ye in jail for dot!" reemonstrated Sandy.

"They canna, but they ha'!" cried Sandy.

A man, says Doctor Durant, cannot fall in love after the age of thirty. All right; he can't. But does he? I will recount a case which recently came under my personal observation and leaves the answer to the jury that tried it.

George Gadget was a junior at Groton. It seemed kind of funny calling him a junior, because he was recently three years old. He had been a student at Groton for fifty-nine years. He wasn't as dumb as this sounds; he was merely economical. Staying there saved him the expense of going back to rooming. And besides, his instructor in spelling, who was a great hockey fan and loved to see Groton win, kept flogging him so he couldn't graduate and leave the school without a capable goal.

Gadget had never gone with girls. He was looked on by his buddies as a stick, therefore, when he got up in reading class one morning and announced his engagement to Miss Taffeta of Landrum, New Jersey.

Miss Taffeta was an alumna of Bryn Mawr where she had been a classmate of Jane Addams and Mrs. Whiffen. She was not elegant, one Dartmouth had just elected her Snow Queen of its winter carnival. In fulfillment of her duty in seeing that the snow was on the streets of college towns, she visited Groton and met Gadget.

"Hello, girly," said the matter. "I hear you are a misbegutter." "And I hear you are a confirmed spinster," retorted Gadget. "Let's celibate," suggested Miss Taffeta.

The pair thus began their acquaintance in a spirit of rally, but in less than a week their relations had lost all semblance of mere good fellowship and they were acting like two or more turtle doves. Gadget sent her candy, flowers, dancing tickets, new electric light bulbs, tooth paste and hair restorer. She sent him a patent bear hugger and spent an hour under his window every night, trying to tune a guitar, but most of the while she just sat out in front of the kids' hotel and languished, doing it so well that the school regents asked her to remain at Groton as language teacher.

They were married and George asked her where she would like to go for a honeymoon. She inquired whether he had ever been at Niagara falls. He replied that he had been there when it was just a leak; in fact he had telephoned the plumber about it. If the plumber had got there promptly, there wouldn't have been any trouble. Personally he would just as soon watch the water run in to the bathtub, but if she wanted to go there, he would pay her expenses and while she was gone, try to brush up in his spelling. He wanted to graduate now, and get out in the world and make his way.

George Gadget did not marry Hazel Taffeta for money. She had none. He did not marry her for social position. She had none. He did not marry her to obtain a housekeeper. He had no house. He did not marry her for her looks. She was terrible.

Finding a Link

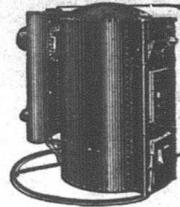

Since the name of George Rogers Clark, conqueror of the old Northwest, has sprung into prominence there are many who claim some distinction because of ownership of a thing: Clark once owned, or touched, or became an ancestor fought with Clark, or because Clark camped one night near an ancestor's home. But the strangest, and not at all unusual of all claims, is the George Rogers Clark memorial commission says, is that of a number of persons who insist they are descendants of George Rogers Clark, when Clark lived and died a bachelor.

MRS. AMELIA PETTIT GREEN DEAD

Mrs. Green was a life long resident of this place having been born and raised on a farm about a mile east of town. She had been a great help for many years, but bore all her afflictions and trials with true christian faith, working in her home, her church and its departments when physically able.

She will be greatly missed as a teacher of the Progressive class in Mt. Hope, in the Missionary society and in her home.

She was a graduate of the class of 1884 and is the first member of that class to be called.

She is survived by her husband Isaac Green, one sister, Mrs. Nancy McLaughlin, a niece Mrs. Gladys Owns of Shenandoah and two nephews, Charles and Delphos Caton of Mansfield.

The funeral services were conducted Sunday afternoon at her late home by her pastor Rev. L. A. McCord and her body laid to rest in Mt. Hope cemetery.

The stories are judged according to the best way in which the description of the firm and its merchandise are written and the appeal it makes to the public. ## Wheat vs. Fertilizer

All other things being equal the farmers who fertilize wheat liberally will produce the most profitable crop. Liberality in this case is not reckoned in terms of pounds of fertilizer per acre but in pounds of plant food per acre. There is a variation of more than 3c per pound in the cost of plant food contained in the various analyses, and you want to buy the analyses which furnishes the most pounds of plant food for a dollar. We find that many buyers fail to do this simply because the dealer does not offer the service to which the buyer is entitled. We are always glad to take up this phase of fertilizer buying in detail with those who are interested in getting the most for the dollars spent.

SUMMER Health Talks

HEALTH CAMPS
Sponsored by the Ohio Public Health Association

Hundreds of Ohio children have been spending the summer in free air camps for pre-tuberculous children. These camps represent an organized community effort to prevent tuberculosis, while it can be prevented.

Children are chosen to attend health camps because they seem exceptionally likely to contract tuberculosis. Some of them are anaemic and under-nourished: Some of them have been exposed to active cases of tuberculosis.

Not one child out of a hundred fails to gain weight in camp and to grow brown and healthy. But there is no magic to account for it. Long hours of rest are the first consideration. The children go to bed early, sleep at least ten hours and rise early. They are encouraged to play games that do not take too much exertion. They must sleep or rest every afternoon.

Meals are nourishing and simple and consist almost entirely of milk, fruits, vegetables and cereals. Fruit, or milk and crackers are served at a set hour every morning and afternoon. The children sleep in fresh air and are out of doors every minute if it is possible for them to be. Most important, they go to bed at the same time every evening. They get up at the same time every morning. They play and study at the same hours every day. Most times are always the same. Everything is done that can be done to keep the children content and happy. That is all there is to the system. There is not an item of it which cannot be duplicated at home after camp is over.

If the child lives at home as he lived at camp, he will stay well. If he does not sleep long hours, if he stays indoors all the time, if his diet is largely meat and fried foods, if he is allowed to become excited, restless and overactive, he will lose the pounds he has gained and his health will go with them. The real value of the camp depends on how well the child and his parents have learned these lessons.

Honoring the birthday anniversary of their daughter Leah, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Bachrach invited a number of friends and relatives to the Bachrach parties for a six o'clock picnic supper on Friday. Twenty guests were present to enjoy the supper and evening.

MILLER-SHAFFER REUNION

Following a beautiful picnic dinner at the noon hour, a business session was held, wherein Mr. Frank Miller of Mansfield was reelected president and Miss Abigail Swinford of Olivesburg, secretary. ### THE SOCIAL CIRCLE

The Social Circle O. E. S. were delightfully entertained on the afternoon of Aug. 22nd by Madames Anderson and Norris at the latter's home, on West Broadway.

These parties are presenting a spirit of sociability and good fellowship and the members who fail to attend are certainly missing some pleasant afternoon.

The Circle will meet Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 5th at the home of Mrs. J. Shreck, Plymouth Street.

Organize Riding Academy at Oberlin

Frank Bevier left today for Oberlin where he plans to open a riding academy in the college town. I. A. Lombard of the Plymouth Hotel expects to join Mr. Bevier at a later date, and both gentlemen intend to make their home in Oberlin.

Mr. Bevier has always been a lover of fine horses, and he states that he is taking over seven animals that are adapted to this class of outdoor sport.

Mr. Lombard, it is stated, has not completed his plans as yet for the disposal of the local hotel, but several prospects are looking over the place.

Oberlin, as a college town, is well known throughout the country, and society leaders are bringing back horseback riding, and this form of outdoor sport is becoming more in vogue.

The best wishes of their many are extended to Messrs. Bevier and Lombard in their new business venture.

WIFE CHARGES MATE BEAT HER

Habitual drunkenness and beating his wife while drunk, are the charges Frances Washburn makes against Ray Washburn in her alimony petition filed in common pleas court by Attorney James V. Will.

Mrs. Washburn makes the further complaints that her husband remains out all night without telling her where he has been; that he spends his earnings for whiskey and is unable to hold a job because of this habit.

The plaintiff says they are the joint owners of real estate and household goods in Plymouth, the real estate standing in her name. Carrie Loring, who claims an interest in the household goods, is threatening to dispose of them, the plaintiff avers.

Mrs. Washburn asks for temporary and permanent alimony and that Carrie Loring and Washburn be enjoined from disposing of the goods. She also asks for a division of the property, but not for a divorce. The Washburn were married July 7, 1910. — Mansfield News.

RECKLESS DRIVERS

Marshal Burkett was busy again over the week-end warning motorists of the hazards of speeding and reckless driving through town. R. D. Stover and Max Van Allen of Willard were summoned to appear before the mayor on a charge of reckless driving, and also a Crestline man. The enforcement of the law requiring proper lights is still in effect and several motorists over the week-end had their lights repaired.

"PAINTED PONIES" ONE OF GIBSON'S LATEST PLAYS, AT DEISLER WEDNESDAY

Hoot Gibson is coming to the Delaware theatre next Wednesday in what promises to be the biggest hit of his career as a movie cowboy.

Much of the film was made at the famous rodeo at Saugus, Calif., where cowboy prodigies in all branches of lasso-work are seen in camera shots that have created wide comment for their unusual thrills. Gibson himself, who plays the role of Buck Simms, champion cowboy of the north, dropping into Toptown to compete for the southern trophy, does some hair-raising steer riding of his own.

Pretty Ethylene Clair, who appeared with Gibson in "A Hero on Horseback," will again favor the silver sheet with her unusual good looks, for she is the little girl who runs the merry-go-round that gave the story its name, "Painted Ponies."

As the story starts, Bucky gets into trouble at about the same time he gets into town, for it is no small crime in Toptown for any stranger to fall in love with the pretty gal—not while Pinto Pete, the bully, lives, breathes and shoots fair to middlin'.

WHY THE DELAY?

We understand there is a pile of plank near the R. & O. overhead bridge on West Broadway, and it is said by some that they are intended for use in a new bridge, but why the delay? If over a bridge needed repairing this is one, and perhaps it would be wise for local officials to request a little action on the matter.

VISIT SOUTHERN OHIO

P. H. Root and daughter Miriam returned home Sunday after a week-end trip to Ohio Caverns and a visit in southern Ohio which included Serpent Mound and Mineral Springs. Mr. Root says that Serpent Mound offers a beautiful sight, as it is kept up by the state department and a lookout is nearby from where one can get the best effects. Mineral Springs is also an unique place as three different kinds of water pour forth from almost the same place. "The country is very pretty at this time of the year and southern Ohio offers many scenic spots which makes one hold the state a little closer to heart," says Mr. Root.
