SHRINERS' MEET

Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Root and son Thomas left today (Wednesday) for Cleveland, where they will join a company of approximately 250 who are anticipating a successful trip to the Pacific coast to attend the Shriner's convention in Los Angeles.

Two contingents of 125 each from over this section of the state have chartered special trains with all the comforts and accommodations desired.

While seasons will not start until next Tuesday, extending over June 4, 5, and 6, festivities will begin as early as next Saturday night. Some 100,000 Shriners are arranging to attend their fifty-fifth annual convention from over the States.

The first delegates and visitors are expected Monday. Shriners will come by special motor, train, airplane and automobiles. One hundred special trains will arrive before the convention opens.

Oriental parades, pageants, formal balls and an electrical pageant are some of the features planned. Forty illuminated floats will participate.

Mr. and Mrs. Root and son are also taking the Coast to attend the convention to Alaska with Seward as a base and an inland trip by train. They will probably be gone throughout the month of June.

The steamship "Alentian" with a crew of 125 and 15 passengers, started on a summer cruise and sailed Saturday. No lives were lost. It was this same boat on which passage was booked for the Shriner's convention and Mrs. Root and party for a week Saturday night, so they consider themselves quite fortunate that the accident happened prior to their departure.

On May 24th at the Mather Quadrangle, the play "Dangerous Toys" was given by the Sophomore Class of the College for Women in Cleveland. The play was written by a committee selected by the faculty and consisted of the following: Isabelle Smith, Ruth Goodfriend, Ruth Kohl, Marguerite Mueller and Betty Back.

The cast included about 100 girls, who were in various choruses as "Ballettettes," "Cocoettes," "Graveyard Shufflers," "Pirates," "Back to Eden," etc.

The play was pronounced the cleverest one yet and much credit was given to the writers of it.

The purpose of the play was to plant the tree of truth which is the Sophomore in honor of the Senior Class and they must put on an original play.

Mrs. Sam Bachrach attended and spent the week end at Park Lane, the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Ida Kornhauser.

Otto Kinsel and Ott Curson are doing the work.

COFFEE PLANT STARTS

The baccalaureate service of the Plymouth Church will be held Saturday evening at the Lutheran church and Rev. E. B. McCroom delivered a most impressive address. The voting in this campaign has for some time been very brisk, but during the past two days has picked up exceedingly. The public may expect to see many surprising changes among all candidates in the list from now on. The different workers are waking up generally to two outstanding facts—the value of the prize and the absolute necessity of getting on the job at once—Delay is fatal; procrastination means ruin. At a time like this no candidate can afford to slumber. The end of the campaign is in sight, and it is foregone conclusion that the winning votes will be secured between now and next Thursday night.

Today Mrs. Jas. Rhine, a bright and intelligent candidate is in first place. She is not a kicker, or a bluffer, but goes merrily along, taking a rebuff with a smile, and her success is a matter of fact. She has many friends throughout the territory who are backing her to win, and are not slow in giving her their subscriptions. Her standpoint is not surprising for tomorrow some other candidate will take advantage of it. At any rate she went into first place today. A little continued plugging did it. Throughout the campaign this sort of thing may be expected, because there are always dark horses in every race. It is all a matter of getting some "goicks" while others are "coasting" in.

CLUB C

Our Special Salesmanship Club Plan

By our Salesmanship Club we mean just that. We have divided the salesmen into four clubs, choosing them at random with no particular idea of territory in order that no favors will be shown in any way. By this method everyone will have the same opportunity of securing the special ballot given away in the following manner: We have divided the workable time into two parts, viz: from 2:30 April 25th to 11:30 PM, from May 1st to June 1st. We will give four special ballots; one for 400,000, and one for 200,000, one for 200,000, and one for 200,000.

amounts almost to desperation and we confidently expect during the next few weeks to see such balloting as will break all records. Ambition is good to see anywhere, and the good nature prevailing is another indication that the campaign is proving a marked community success.

By getting hold of a position in the front ranks some candidates will assure themselves some advantage for the finish. The last few days will find all candidates wishing they had put in a little more time and effort in the earlier stages. Opportunity never returns.

Today we have an offer after several hundred thousand prize will be given to the candidate who offers which was in effect last week and yet again a great deal larger than any future offers. The wise candidate will take advantage of it.

HAROLD MAURER RESIGNS SCHOOL TO TAKE UP MEDICINE

Harold R. Maurer, who for the past four years, has had charge of the Plymouth High school, has resigned his position with the schools there and will take up his study of medicine at Cleveland.

Mr. Maurer received notice recently that his entrance qualifications were among the highest received and that although he had made his application late and there was a waiting list of several hundred, he was admitted as one of the seven freshmen for next year. The study of medicine and surgery has been Mr. Maurer's ambition since he was a boy.

He has done much for the Willard High School in the way of organization, creating a high standard among the classmen as well as athletics, and his work has been highly appreciated among the patrons of the institution.

MRS. J. W. MILLER DIES SUDDENLY

Mrs. J. W. Miller died suddenly at her home here Saturday night from a heart attack which was apparently in good health up until the last few minutes, as she had called Mr. Nimmons to her home to talk over some business matters with him. Shortly after 9 o'clock Mr. Nimmons called at the house, and just as he was being greeted by Mrs. Miller she suffered a stroke and never rallied. Mrs. Walker and Searle were summoned, but there was nothing they could do, death coming about 10 o'clock.

Rev. J. W. Miller, who was attending a Presbyterian convention at St. Paul, Minn., was contacted by telephone and he arrived home Monday evening. The tragic part was that Mrs. Miller was leaving for St. Paul to make a mother-in-law visit who was in a critical condition, a final farewell. But the Creator works in mysterious ways.

Mrs. Miller before leaving, was final arrangements were made for her funeral services which will be held Tuesday afternoon at the Presbyterian church with Rev. A. B. Allison, pastor of the Shelby Presbyterian church, officiating.

The interment will be in the Elmwood cemetery, and Chas. G. Miller was in charge of the services.

She was the wife of Wm. H. Longstone who was born at Mountstown, Ohio, June 1880. She was a graduate of the High school at Youngstown. She attended the University of Wilmington and received the highest degree and honors there. She also attended Holyoke College at South Hadley, Mass.

Mrs. Miller, in her early life, had ambitions for missionary work and her college training was along this line, including teaching, nursing, and other essentials necessary to this type of work. She was a field worker for several years in a natural manner for few people knew that Mrs. Miller was a great grand-daughter of David Crockett.

She was united in marriage in 1901 to J. W. Miller and to this union three children were born, two daughters, Lucille and Jean, who died at an early age, and one son John, who is now a member of the church. Her brothers, three of whom are located in the Canadian Northwest, and who were also members of the church, and one brother who resides in Youngstown. One sister, Mrs. Agnes Livingstone, who is well known as an invalid mother, Mrs. Agnes Livingstone, who has been critically ill for some time.

Her heartfelt sympathy of the bereaved community is extended Rev. Miller in his bereavement and loss, and the place of Mrs. Miller was held by the community and her work was exemplified by the beautiful floral offerings and kindness shown.

Mrs. Miller was associated with her husband in the work at West Alexander for fourteen years, and for the past seven years she has labored among the churches in Plymouth. The natural gift of coming into contact with the young people of the church, in which she was so active, taught them will be an everlasting monument to her memory, and her work will be remembered by the many of the church members.

Sunday morning Memorial services for our nation's heroes were held at the Methodist church with a large attendance present. The three churches of the town united in a union service, and his custom is being given much consideration each year. Rev. A. M. Himes gave a talk on why we should cherish the memories of our heroes and how we can continue to preserve the true American spirit in the years to come.

The special musical selections were received with much approval by the audience, and the service as a whole was one which was thoroughly enjoyed. Members of the American Legion were present in a body, and a token for their deeds were bestowed upon them by the speaker.

LOCAL TEACHERS ARE REAPPOINTED

The Plymouth schools are finishing a most successful school year. This success is in no small measure due to the excellent spirit of cooperation and the high caliber of the teaching staff and faculty. All the teachers have been asked to remain for the coming year.

Mr. Fisher, who leaves us to complete his preparation for the coming year, has been asked to remain for the coming year. The faculty and high school students gave a farewell party last Friday evening.

Due to Mr. Fisher's leaving and the reorganization for the new six-year high school, several teachers are being shifted in the high school subjects.

The placing of teachers promises to be as follows: First Grade, Miss Nye. Second Grade, Miss Sturtevant. Third Grade, Miss McClellan. Fourth Grade, Miss Danner. Home Economics, Miss Gill. Sixth Grade, Miss Trimmer.

High School English and Reading, Miss Fenner. Commercial, Mr. Derr. Science, Mr. Reed. English and Latin, Miss LeFevre. Home Economics, Mr. Allison. Manual Training and Mathematics, teacher to be hired.

Superintendent, High School Principal, Mr. Jenkins. Superintendent, Mr. Miller.

BAD WRECK

Two new Fords caused what might have been a tragic wreck Saturday night. The cars were stuck together on State route 98, about five miles south of town.

One Fred Griffith, who was driving a new Ford Sedan, was returning from a trip to Troy Saturday evening about 9:30 p. m. He was driving about fifty feet from the driveway to his home here when he was struck by a new Ford sedan driven by Wilbur Hesse. Mrs. Griffith was thrown from her car, and her three children who were in the car were also thrown from the car, it is reported. However, none were seriously injured.

The occupants of the Ford radiator, including Mrs. Griffith, Clara Singsler, and Opal Sorwine, and a young man from Greenview. They received minor cuts and bruises, and it was just the hand of luck that none were killed outright in the mishap.

The sedan was somewhat damaged while the Ford radiator was so completely jammed until it is beyond repair. Paul Russell towed in the roadster while the sedan was taken to Troy for repairs.

WILLARD HAS BURGLARY JOB

WILLARD—Four youths of Willard are being held under suspicion of being the ones who, Sunday night, burglarized the William Glick clothing store, taking merchandise valued at from $500 to $600. The names of the young men are: Clarence Moore, 24, Pomeroy road, near Charles Heller, 78, and Lee Kinney 21.

Besides the merchandise, $12 in cash was taken from the cash register. Finger prints of the boys have been taken and will be compared with those of the boys who were arrested through which the burglar or burglars gained entrance. The boys were arrested at Sandusky by Police Capt. Henry V. Ringholt, and returned to Willard by Patrolman Wm. Alvin Buehler. The robbery Monday morning. The persons burglarizing the store were taken from the cash register, phone book in the clearing of the Griffith-Meier meat market, crossed a roof and dropped to the store room.

SEED CORN MAGGOT

IS FIRST ON DECK

Leads Advance Guard of Pests Which Attack Corn in Spring

As the advance guard of insect pests of new corn, the seed corn maggot is the first to neutralize legislative farm relief by destroying the crop in the very teeth of senators and representatives.
"The seed corn maggot is a small, rootless maggot found inside the seed coat of the swollen and germinating kernel," says T. H. Parks, extension specialist in entomology with the Ohio State University. "It resembles the house-fly maggot in some respects, and cabbage growers would say, at first glance that it is the cabbage maggot. However, it limits its work to kernels of corn, peas, beans, and sometimes sprouting potatoes."
"These maggots develop from eggs laid on the soil surface by a fly, and the little larvae crawl their way to the kernels, which they enter and through which they tunnel. In a few days they have so badly damaged the seed as to stop all growth and produce decay before the plant even appears above the ground surface."
"If the damage is severe enough to compel the farmer to plant the crop over, it is seldom repeated, because the maggots have by that time changed to the resting stage and the adult flies which come out later, are too late to find suitable kernels for the maggots to infest."

"No remedy is available. Planting over is the farmer's only recourse when a field has been damaged by the seed corn maggot. Quick germination tends to lessen the chances of injury. For that reason corn shallows planted in warm soil is less seriously damaged than that planted deep in cold ground."

MEMORIAL SERVICES

The two churches of the village united for Memorial services Sabbath morning and met at the Methodist church. The address was delivered by Rev. Norman Crawford and the music furnished by a union choir. The edifice was delightfully decorated with plants, large baskets of flowers and bouquets. One very sad omission in the service was the presence of old soldiers belonging to the three-ago, Mr. Ewing, ninety-three years of age has not returned from spending the winter with his daughter in Texas. Mr. Eld June will be ninety years old in June and is scarcely able to leave his room while Mr. Phillip Snyder is confined to the Sandusky hospital with a fractured hip and slowly slipping away. Loving tribute was paid these men during the service.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT

A very serious and painful accident occurred to Harry June at an early hour Monday morning. While driving a Whippet car were going to Shelby after the week end away got stuck on the June road which has been partially cindered and lies north and east of the center of Greenwich. Mr. June got his team to aid them and in some manner when the car was released from the rut it bounded across the road and ran over Mr. June breaking one limb in two places and above the knee. Dr. Smith was summoned from New London and as soon as he was removed from his home to the Memorial hospital at Norwalk. One year ago Mr. June spent a long time at the same hospital suffering from injuries he received when a tractor he was driving at the Wooster bridge ran away with him. Just how seriously he is hurt otherwise had not been reported at this early hour.

Decoration Day-1928

Sixty-one years ago, on May 30th, 1867, veterans of the Civil war honored their deceased comrades with impressive ceremonies. It was in response to an order issued upon May 30th of that year, by General John A. Logan, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, and the date selected was significant because it coincided with the time of discharge of the last Union volunteer of the war.

It is not in human nature to remember deep wounds indefinitely, so with the passage of the years, and the rapid disappearance of the men who fought in that sad, internecine conflict Memorial Day, or Decoration Day, has been transformed into an occasion for paying homage to the boys who laid down their lives in the moment.

In order that America could fulfill its world mission as the exponent of the great democratic experiment. The holiday aspect has been intensified, as our wars fade into history, but there always remains, and will remain indefinitely, that indelible core of respect, love and honor for the men whose supreme sacrifice made this glorious nation a reality.

On Thursday, this week, we renew our pledge to those who have come to their eternal rest. What they have erected with their labors and their lives will not be destroyed. The structure they helped to found in the dust demolished neither from within nor without. That is our generation's solemn promise to them who lie in the dust. Time will not erase their memories from the hearts and minds of the living.

CLIONIANS WIN P. T. A. CUP Last Wednesday afternoon the Annual Literary Cup Contest was held at Plymouth High School. Contests were held in five different types of literary endeavor: Essay, declamation, oration, short story and debate.

THE 1928 contest was won by the Orythians but the Clionians claim the victory this year by the very slim margin of twelve points. The score was: Clionian-2365 pts., Orythian 2353 pts. The seven grade teachers served as judges.

The winning essay, oration and short story appear in this issue of the Post.

BLUE RIBBONS Ever since the County Health Work was started, Plymouth has been in the forefront in the number of children who have qualified for Blue Ribbons. To get this coveted prize, children must meet certain health standards and in addition have passing grades in school work.

THE trouble, of course, lies not in the point of view, but in the completion of a college course is not an end in itself but really a "commencement." It is a commencement of a new and higher experience, and elevation to a plane above that upon which one has been living.

This word was originally employed in this sense to signify the granting of an academic degree, upon receipt of which the scholar enters upon a career as a man of learning.

Many an old book speaks of a student as having "commenced" Bachelor of Arts or Master of Doctor, as the case might be, on a certain date. The emphasis is not on the accomplishment of past years, but upon the newly opening vista of usefulness in a more advanced field of activity.

In a sense, one's life as a scholar only commenced with the taking of a degree.

WINNING ORATION Vance Snyder WORLD PEACE The need for peace among the nations of the world was never so great as at the present time.

With scientists and inventors of all lands working together, the development of great ocean vessels, the use of the radio, the rising industry of aviation and all other factors, which tend to draw nations closer together have shown the need for world peace.

A century ago a war involving not even three or four nations, as in the case of the coalition against Napoleon had disturbed the equilibrium of the rest of the world. The nations at war naturally were seriously affected, but due to the slowness of travel, less hardship was inflicted and nations separated from the contending countries by a large body of water hardly gave a thought to the trouble.

In the great war of 1914-1918 the dreadful effects of modern warfare were made manifest. Zepplins aided slaughtering innocent children and old people. Submarines sent neutral merchant vessels and passenger ships of neutral nations to a watery grave. Poison gas and many other modern inventions caused untold suffering among men.

The League of Nations retained their present preparation for war. The only real type of world peace that has been known to us in the past is the one using the world community plan. At this time it is impossible to see the plan.

UNLESS the individuals composing the nations of the earth have changed their attitude toward the world community plan practiced, an attempt must be made to bring about peace by other means. This can be done by mere treaties for the value of the scrap of paper was shown in the last war.

One of the most prevalent causes of war is arbitration. The value of this has been proven many times in recent years and many disputes have already been satisfactorily settled. An example of this method within the last few weeks is the case involving the Canadian run-cumner. Differences of opinion concerning points of law have kept the U. S. and Canada from coming to a settlement, so it has been agreed to submit the question to arbitration.

The League of Nations fostered by one of our most illustrious statesmen Woodrow Wilson. His name, as its name suggests, a League of Nations. Its purpose is to discourage war, not only by arbitration, but by outlawing any nation taking the part of the aggressor this nation would be forced to wage war against the rest of the League. The U. S. is not a member of the League and one of the greatest dangers in case one of the League members should attempt to make war would be in the fact that this nation might receive aid from the U. S. This would undoubtedly bring on war between the U. S. and the League of Nations.

Despite these attempts before the dawn of peace will be able to descend upon the nations of the earth unless must be taught to think peace. Peace must be made a word to be revered. Peace must be taught from childhood in the homes, the schools, and the churches of all lands. This will probably take generations but when it has been achieved only then nations will be able to lay aside all implements of warfare and look forward to true accomplishments in a world of peace.

In Memoriam

THE Clouds of Battle-smoke have cleared, the echoes of Shrapnel-shot have died away, but the memories of the valiant can never fade. As long as Old Glory waves above American soil, true patriots will reverence the heroes of sea fights and land fights grim and great; fought to make and save the State.

Tomorrow is Memorial Day the day when genuine Americans REMEMBER. Let us do honor to the Dead. It's a real duty.

This space, given in memory of our fallen heroes, is contributed by those who do not forget:

HAINES LEARNS USEFUL PUGILISTIC ART Star Scores Another Big Hit in Role of College Boy Champion Boxer.

"Dramatic are sometimes consists of soaking one's knuckles in alum and water."

So remarks William Haines, and thereby, he says, he's divulging the secret of how he was able to enact the prizefighter's role.

The famous star of athletic roles, after invading football, baseball, even polo, clashed with a professional in the ring in "The Duke Steps Out," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's comedy-drama, with talking sequences and dialogue, now playing at the Temple Theater Willard. All his success in his histic encounter he says he owes to the alum.

"Jack Roper, the fighter I fought with in the ring, showed me the trick," explained Haines. "The alum hardens the knuckles so you can't skin or hurt them—and this lets you keep your mind on your acting. Also, in my case, it let me use my mind in concentration on how best to avoid Jack Roper's fists. He didn't know how to pull his blows, never having been in pictures before. He told me to hit as hard as I liked and said he'd try too hard. They say I made a great fight on the screen—it certainly felt like it from where I stood. Once when Jack hit me on the ribs I rang like a drum."

Haines took intensive boxing lessons from James Collins, began directing the new production, which is adapted from Lucian Cary's Saturday Evening Post story, Roper was his teacher, and they rehearsed the fight dozens of times, then staged it before the camera and microphone in the Hollywood station.

HERE'S A REASON

COLUMBUS, OHIO—Every time a bank cashes a check which is drawn upon a bank located in another city, it is in effect making a loan of the amount of money involved without receiving any interest. For the bank which cashes the check uses its own funds to do so and must wait from one to six or more days before receiving the money or its equivalent from the bank upon which the check is drawn. The result is a tremendous, daily loss to the institution which performs this service for its customers.

These facts were set forth here today at the annual convention of the Ohio Bankers Association by R. W. Putnam, President of the Security Bank & Trust Co. of Red Wing, Minn., and Vice President of the Minnesota Bankers Association.

Mr. Putnam, who was dealing with the management problem of the smaller banks, presented to the Ohioans the results of surveys which had been made in Minnesota in regard to these losses on the part of the banks and urged that some steps be taken to reduce or stop them.

The bankers of other states have made some progress in educating the public as to the seriousness of the situation. Mr. Putnam said, this is particularly true of Minnesota, Iowa and Illinois, where nominal fees are charged by the banks for the cashing of checks drawn upon out-of-town banks.

Since it is generally recognized that in order to be in the soundest and safest possible position, a bank must earn reasonable profits, it is important in Mr. Putnam's opinion that some measures such as these be taken by other banks.

"Cost analyses shown that on an average every out-of-town check handled by a bank costs from 3% to 4% to take in over counter, see it through the various departments and get it into the mails ready for dispatching to its destination," said Mr. Putnam. "In addition to this cost, the bank lends the depositor the use of the money until it is collected without charging interest. This represents merely one of the ways in which banks are furnishing free but costly services to their customers."

Most chrysantheums and pompons in commercial greenhouses should be placed in permanent positions on benches or in beds, during June.

MODERN BOOKS WHICH WILL INTEREST THE BUSINESS OR PROFESSIONAL MAN

A Radio Lecture Broadcast from WTAM, Cleveland, Ohio, (1070 kilocycles, 290.2 meters) by Harry L. Ridenour, Head of the Department of English, Baldwin-Wallace College, Berea, Ohio.

In this day of magazines and newspapers, tabloids, and patent medicines, almanacs, special publications for people of every profession and calling, sermons in the guise of novels and novels used for material for sermons, books on travel, horticulture, plumbing, evolution, and tonorial artistry, there is no doubt that everybody reads.

Many Have No Time
There is the further evident fact that many who love to read do not have the time to keep up with the profession for business life and professional life naturally make huge drafts on their nervous and physical energy and vitality, so that their spare moments for reading have to be used to the best advantage.

I desire to suggest to these professional and business men certain books which I think may be of interest to most men. I may assure the women that most if not all of the books named are as interesting for them as for men. The books mentioned are not professional books, and this is not in any strict sense a series of book reviews. If I may be able to make the books sound interesting, that is the objective, rather than the giving of critical evaluations.

We are in an age of biography, and books of travel. Ludwig has attained an enviable position among the biographers of the day. Probably his most popular book is his Napoleon, published in 1926. Most readers of history do not like Napoleon; but many of these who do not like him still have a sneaking admiration for the man who was able, from not very promising beginnings, to reach the position of power and commanding eminence that was his for some years. We always wonder why one man is able to do so much, and another so little.

Giant in Energy
The Napoleon who marched through the pages of Ludwig's book is a giant in energy and in constructive ability, but somewhat dwarfed in the more spiritual and enduring qualities which are necessary for permanence of power. The author interprets for us. He does not give us facts without the side-line touches which show us the meaning of the facts.

We get a good picture also of Josephine, and we can see what she had to endure. Published in December, 1926, over two years ago, this book is still vigorously popular. The January, 1929, Bookman's Monthly Score places Napoleon third in popularity in the list of books of the general, non-fiction group.

Ludwig is Criticized
Criticism is given Ludwig because it is said that he is issuing his books too frequently to allow him proper time for reading and research. Whether this be true or not, the Napoleon is generally recognized as a valuable volume. This charge of writing too rapidly, can not be made against the man whom we are now to consider. Lytton Strachey, whose latest volume Elizabeth and Essex, was published December 1, 1928. Perhaps seven years ago the author brought out his most famous biography, Queen Victoria. His latest volume is having a splendid sale, in spite of some unfavorable criticisms, seventy thousand volumes of this book having been sold the first three weeks the book was on the market.

Strachey gives a very clear, even though little wooden, presentation of the "Good Queen Bess" with her red hair and her disposition, which was red. Essex, with all his faults, helps us to see the kind of thing the sixteenth century courtier in London was up against. Admirers of Lord Bacon and his essays will get new lights on the character of this man who has received so much acclaim for his practical wisdom.

Elizabeth died in 1603, and Strachey labors under some difficulty in trying to make her and her courtiers live, for times change, and institutions that were common in that day require footnotes. But the book is more than worth-while.

Byrd's Skyward
If biography is interesting, autobiography if well written, is more so. Our current interest is the picture which Richard Byrd gives of himself in Skyward, the story of a boy who determined to get ahead. He persisted in his determination to become an aviator when the odds were decidedly against him. His stories of the North Pole trip or the flight to Europe are told with considerable interest. Of special interest is his discussion of the financial side of such undertakings. With Byrd's own experiences now in the South Polar regions, his men will find pleasure in reading this story of a man who has achieved, and will not quit.

For those who are tired of the harassing exploits of Richard Halliburton and the mental weariness of Trader Horn let me recommend a realistic picture of life on the Mississippi River, during the days of the lumbering industry. Acting on the "Mississippi," by Charles Edward Russell. Some of the pictures of the life of the people who were guiding those huge rafts down the river over the bad spots, through the bridges, and the rapids, are unforgettable, and you will remember the songs and the riots on the boats, the raft races and the great pilots. Acting on the Mississippi, who would stop everything midnight on Saturday and the Bad Men from the Mississippi River, the connerifers and the tall stories.

I wish to commend two books which deal with the American scene of the last twenty years. The first is in pageant by William Allen White. This book, recently published, gives a political and governmental field of the past forty years. Mr. White, as a newspaper man, writes from the point of view of the reporter, and the pictures are very intimate, and quite remarkably frank. Coker, Cleveland Bryan Harrison, McKinley Roosevelt, Wilson, Al Smith, Big Bill Thompson are some of those who are dissected and pieced together again for us. Listen to this brief summation of Roosevelt: "Great heart he was—passionate, brave, generous, kind, and wise; a great heart that revived to righteousness a nation that was faltering in greed, languishing in indolence. Great heart he was, untouched by the years until he died; always young, ardent, with the merry heart which maketh glad countenance. He made his little day a great epoch."

He sums up Taft thus: "The American people who chastised him, oblige him chuckle as he rubs the red spot where their rage had blistered him, loved him for his merry countenance. There (on the Supreme Court bench) he sits, one of the high gods of the world, a smiling Buddha, placid, wise, gentle, sweet, and as noble as a man may be in this poor worm-eaten earth." The book is not filled with mere bouquets. There is plenty of stinging and some vitriol. White nearly skins some of those whom he discusses, but we feel that he is always trying to hold the balance with an even hand.

The blurbs for the last book I shall mention might well be the statement of the old 10-20-30 shows, which advertised, Sixty Thrills in Sixty Minutes. In the words of Will Rogers, this book would push current news of holdups and police raids over among the patent medicine advertisements. The author is Lowell Thomas, the book: Count Luckner, the Sea Devil, realistic story of the experiences of the enemy raider which did so much damage to Allied shipping during the late war. You'd have to take my word that it is a thriller, for only a reading can give you any conception of the breathtaking episodes in the life of Count Luckner, the blockade-running in a heavy storm; the search of Luckner's old "wid-jammer" for a British ship, whose command was fooled into thinking that the capturing of eleven or more ships in the Atlantic, and the transfer of their crews, and the sinking of the ship, without the killing of a man on either side; the splendid treatment of the prisoners; the capture of more ships in the Pacific; the constant fear that Allied cruisers would sink their boat; the wrecking of the boat by a tidal wave on an island in the Pacific, and their further adventures make up a story that is so good to be believed on their behalf; read it yourself, and

The New Pontiac Big Six is scoring a tremendous success. All previous Pontiac production records have been surpassed.
