

NEW HAVEN BIDS WERE REJECTED

All bids that were received last Thursday by the New Haven Board of Education for improvement of the school building were rejected by the board, as stated by Clark L. Hoff...

The board now has under consideration of checking over the plans and specifications of the improvements and revising them somewhat and will advertise for bids again. The fact that the bids were rejected will delay the addition to the school, and there is a probability of the work not being completed for at least another year.

The board is composed of Floyd Sparks, president; John Moon, vice-president; L. E. Sawyer, clerk; Richard Chapman and J. G. Waldhouse.

LOCAL BOY HAS NARROW ESCAPE

Merrill Yutzi had a narrow escape from a probable fatal accident early Sunday morning when his machine, a motor Ford sedan, struck a guy wire that had fallen across the road near the bridge at New Haven on State Route 17.

Friends were soon on the scene and assisted the injured man, and the machine was later towed to Russell & Reynold's garage here. Sometime Saturday night, reports state, a pair of spies driving a large machine, ran into a telephone pole at the bridge, breaking it off at the edge of the embankment, which caused the pole to drop just low enough in order to let the guy wires hang over the road to make them dangerous.

PHILLIPS BOYS IN SMASH-UP

Herbert and Ernest Phillips had a narrow escape from a possible fatal accident Sunday when the motorcycle on which they were riding was wrecked as a result of a tire blow-out. The Phillips boys had motored down to Mt. Vernon Sunday, they started en route to their old home place, Columbus, to the road which they thought was the right one, they started to turn off the main highway, but discovered that it was the wrong road. A few minutes later they started to pass a machine when a tire blew out, wrecking the motorcycle to go into the ditch, and also causing a motorist to wreck his machine. There was a collision of any kind, it is reported.

The accident occurred on the Mt. Vernon highway, and two automobiles, driven by Mansfielders, figured in the smash-up with the result that several of the party received cuts and bruises. The Phillips boys were summoned to appear in court Monday, the outcome of which is not available. However, both boys deny the story which has been circulating about them, claiming that the tire blowout was the direct cause of the smash-up, and that it was not their fault of the two automobiles being wrecked.

Silliman Home Is Scene of Wedding Anniversary

The home of G. B. Silliman and family was the scene of a merry gathering Sunday, July 21st, honoring Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Long's 52nd wedding anniversary.

Their children had planned a surprise for their relatives and friends to the number of 64, gathered to help celebrate the occasion, coming from Columbus, Cleveland, Newark, Bucyrus, Tiro, North Fairfield and New Haven.

A bounteous picnic dinner was served, after which a picture of the group was taken. The hour for departure having arrived guests were again seated at the table to partake of ice cream and cake.

All expressed themselves as having spent a very enjoyable day. Those attending were: Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Long, Luora Long, Margaret Long, Louise Long, Dan R. Long, Harriet M. Long, Anna, Mufford, Gladys Blair, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Mehring, Elizabeth Long, Emerson Long, and Robert Mehring, Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Long, Mr. Ross H. Long, Kathryn Blair, Mrs. Walter Stumm, and Lester Lode, Lakelle, North Fairfield; and Dorothy Long of Plymouth.

Mrs. Willey Garrett received word of the death of her father at Proctor, West Virginia. Mr. and Mrs. M. T. West, Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Garrett, and daughter Donna Mae and Doris Marie motored to that place Saturday.

WAS KIDNAPED

WILLARD, O.—Local police are investigating the report of a kidnaping of a Willard woman at one of the main intersections of the downtown district here late Monday evening. The kidnaping was of short duration, however, as the victim reported her escape shortly after she was seized.

According to the story told here by the police, she had just left the local telephone exchange, where her husband, a night operator, to secure a lunch for her daughter. This, she said, was at about 10 o'clock Monday evening.

As she was passing the corner of Myrtle avenue and Maple street, she was stopped by two men, one of whom was large and the other was of a stature, stepped out and grabbed the woman by the arm and in a moment she was taken to a motor car which was parked a short distance down Maple street.

She says they then drove out of the town until they came to Guinea Corners, where they stopped and ordered her to get out of the machine. As she stepped out she broke away from their grasp and started running toward town. The smaller of the two colored men started after her, while the other returned to the machine, she asserts.

Fearing that her abductors would follow in the car, she states that she started cross-country running through corn fields and pastures for a distance of about two miles. Reaching the residence of F. G. Bogner, who lives here, she called on Mrs. W. Weaver, who she said she screamed and called for them to let her in.

It was realized that the matter and claiming that they had been before on insignificant causes the Bogners did not heed the call, but neighbor, W. P. Weaver, who was attracted by the shouts, arrived on the scene and persuaded the Bogners to open the door to her, while an examination revealed that Mrs. Gallentine had several cuts on the arms and on her arms that she had several bruises and that her clothing was torn. She could not account for the reason other than that she received them during her flight.

The police were notified by the neighbors that Mrs. Gallentine had telephoned her husband, who is an officer. Officers Max Valkenburg and Sylvester Davis answered the call and took her to town. Her wounds were dressed by E. E. Ewing. Mrs. Gallentine could give little definite information as to the police officer, other than one was a tall colored man and the other was a short white man. She said they were very intimate as to their intentions, but that, in answer to her query, said they were not going to kill her.

ELEANOR SEARLE TO GIVE RECITAL FRIDAY EVE, AUG. 9

One week from tomorrow night, Friday, August 9th at 8:15, Miss Eleanor Searle will give her benefit recital in the Lutheran church here. During the past year she has had many New York engagements. It is considered most important was staging the prize winning composition of Ernest Bloch, "America." This Symphony number was played simultaneously by nine symphony orchestras over the United States. In New York where Miss Searle sang, it was rendered in Carnegie Hall by the New York Philharmonic-Symphony Society under the direction of Leopold Stokowski. She was also a member of the Philadelphia Chorus which sang several concertos in the city of Philadelphia. Miss Searle's recital last year was one of the most pleasing entertainments of the season. Her recital next Friday evening will be fitted with many favorite musical numbers.

FIRE TRUCK TESTS PROVE SUCCESSFUL

Plymouth's new fire truck was tested out this week by the fire department and the officials there. The truck is satisfactory in every respect. The body and equipment are mounted on a chassis which has developed power-actuated by a Model A Ford engine. It has plenty of speed and getaway, and plenty of room for the crew. A little more satisfied when the fire siren sounds. The equipment includes about 200 feet of extension ladders, 100 feet of hose, lanterns, axes, buckets, etc. The bumper has a capacity of throwing a stream of fire 200 feet on the ground or about 150 feet high. A fire department, under direction of Fire Chief W. C. Martin, is getting acquainted with the new equipment and they will be well trained within a short time.

Editorials

To those who have called in or handed us news items the past few weeks we acknowledge our appreciation. After the summer is over and we snatch a week end or two, we're determined to give our readers the best newsy paper in this entire section. So, folks, if you have any items, help us out by calling or sending them in.

Now that Plymouth has its new fire truck we'd suggest to the Village Council an improvement in our water mains and especially our WATER SUPPLY. We'd hate to see the laddies go on a fire and have to quit on account of the hose being plugged with mud.

It's always something to spend your money for. The Public Square is badly in need of a coat of tar. The crevices in the brick pavement are getting bigger each day, and a dollar spent now will probably save hundreds later.

Dr. G. R. Monte of Shiloh is contributing a series of articles to this paper, the first of which appears in this issue. You will find them very interesting and educational, too.

Plymouth with its famous old hospitality and its pleasant surroundings has entertained numerous tourists and vacationists the past month, and from reports, there are several more who intend to visit the old town within a few weeks. The folks here are a fine set, and those who have come away like to come back occasionally.

Dayton Danner has at last come to the point where he can take a rest. "Dany" has been on the mail delivery route out of Plymouth for twenty-five years, and Uncle Sam has put him on the pension list for this long service. Here's to you, Dany.

WILL THE MALE STRUT

This fall, the fashion dictators who tell us to-morrow what the well-dressed man will wear, say blue ensembles will be the thing. There is no reason on earth, they insist, why ensembles should be for women only. The result is, you may have to buy a pair of blue shoes to match last fall's blue serge.

Sedate males who cannot thrill to the idea of bird egg blue footwear, would like to believe that the last atrocity cannot be put over on the sex. We would like to believe—some of us—that men are, well, mainly enough to resist. We would like to have faith that figuratively, the fashion creators who decree blue shoes will talk themselves into a very sickly shade of blue in the vain effort to show us in any color save the conventional black and tan. But the record is against us. History is against us. Psychology is against us. Nature that in most animal life has decreed that the male shall strut in fancy feathers is against us.

There's just one hope. These fashion dictators have not yet determined which of four or five shades of blue will be selected. Maybe—and this is just a faint hope—they will become so thoroughly deadlocked, they'll have to compromise on black—Raleigh News and Observer.

Men seem to work best when they are slightly fearful, but not too fearful of what the future holds in store for them.

Bank insecurity or positive security blights the human spirit. Progressive citizenship is found neither in the ranks of the hopelessly poor nor the idle rich.

The middle ranks give solidarity to society. A man is in ideal circumstances when he feels moderately dissatisfied with his present standard of living, but is confident that he can improve his position by increased diligence and added application.

Most of us in the United States are in that situation, and that is the chief reason why this country has come forward so rapidly.

So far we have refused to make undue concessions in return for the luxury of security. We have emphasized opportunity. We believe and we teach our youth that there is more joy in the tangle of risk than in the apathy of security. This gives tone to American life.

Few retail Americans are content always to be safe. No industrial enterprise in this country is so big that the proprietors are not dreaming of expansion. No push-cart merchant is without hope of setting up business in a storefront. No boy is without the wish and expectation to improve the record of his father.

Out of this restlessness, this desire to turn today's luxuries into tomorrow's necessities, is hatched the spirit of achievement.

This spirit cannot be beaten. The office boy who will take this copy to the printer was speaking the other day about his ambitions. He had to leave high school in his third year, and the only job he could find was behind a soda fountain. After six months that looked like a blind alley, he quit and went to a place where he thought he might wedge his way into the kind of work he desired.

"You know my hopes are pretty big," he said, "but I won't give them up until I've had a chance to test myself."

That spirit cannot be beaten.

If our homes and schools can turn out a half-million boys like that each year we will have an asset that will be worth more than all our coal mines. And if we can keep this spirit alive so that when men get a few thousand dollars tucked away, their first thought will not be to dig themselves into a safe deposit vault and to limit their energy to the trimming of rose bushes, we may expect unceasing expansion of opportunity, and the realization of our fondest dreams.

THE TIPPING HABIT

Average people, or at least average Americans do not like to be considered pennurious. That's why many of them whose incomes are often less than those of the people they tip bestow gratuities, which in any amount are not deserved and which usually are twice or four times the amount that should be bestowed. Nobody likes to be considered a tight-wad. Some are so sensitive that a mere look from a waiter who has served him, and who has not received a tip, or less than the amount expected, or from the check girl who takes and hands out hats, really feel humiliated.

The whole tipping system is bad. The diner who spends a dollar or two for a meal, at hotel, restaurant or dining car, ought not to be expected to give tips, or hand out additional money to retrieve his hat.

If the price of the meal is not sufficient to pay for serving it then prices should be advanced.

If waiters, maids, Pullman porters and check room girls are not paid decent living wages by their employers let the latter advance prices to patrons, relieving the latter from all blame of responsibility incident to the service and at the same time freeing their employees from the humiliation of being subjects for charity.

GREAT MOULTING MYSTERY

The Puzzling Phenomenon of Moulting May Be Used as a Valuable Guide When Culling Flocks to Eliminate Poor Egg Producers.

A rather amusing story has gained considerable circulation among poultry fanciers. Young Mrs. Newlived stopped the local veterinary on the street and demanded that he come over immediately to inspect her flock of blooded leghorns. A lot of them, she said, had suddenly become afflicted with a strange, apparently contagious malady.

When asked for a description of this peculiar disease, she explained that, on a few other, they had ceased laying and then began to lose their feathers in a most alarming fashion. Starting with the neck feathers, they had successively lost in turn the body feathers, then the tail feathers until they were practically nude and truly pitiable objects. The young woman was naturally quite relieved when the old doctor informed her that it was just as natural for her hens to shed their feathers at a certain time of the year as it was for certain kinds of trees to shed their leaves in the fall. They were simply molting and would recover shortly without any great effort on her part.

I shall make no effort to vouch for the truth of this story. I do not hesitate to say, however, that I have often been amazed at the comparative lack of knowledge even among a great many experienced poultry raisers on the subject of moulting. For example, there is considerable difference of opinion even among experts as to whether the molt affects and controls egg production, or whether egg production controls the molt. Some contend that a hen stops laying because she is getting ready to molt and others maintain with equal spirit that the hen won't molt until after she has started with the business of egg production, for the time being at least. I myself am strongly inclined toward the latter theory and I am supported in my belief by a great many qualified observers who also have given the matter considerable scientific study.

The exact sequence is of no particular moment to practical poultry raisers, however. The fact remains that moulting does not start until after egg production has ceased, only in exceptional cases, regardless of which governs the other. Just why hens are committed to this peculiar habit of shedding their feathers once a year is another matter which has been the subject of a great many prominent treatises by learned scientific men. The average poultry raiser is, however, mainly concerned with the fact that this molting phenomenon may serve as a very valuable guide in the culling out of poor layers from the rest of the flock.

Most authorities now agree that the hens which start molting earliest and keep it up longest are the poorest layers. Good layers seldom start molting until later in the fall and are completely finished in from six to eight weeks. Less productive hens, on the contrary, may start as early as June, July or August and siddle around for three or five months before they have regained something like what President Harding would probably have called "a state of normalcy."

While nearly all feathers are molted at one time or another, the most reliable guide is the manner in which wing feathers are molted. High producing, late molting hens molt faster than one feather at a time, or else they molt only a part of their feathers, carrying others over to another year. On the other hand, poor layers molt one feather at a time so that the process may require a long as 24 weeks. Most poor layers take very nearly this long to complete the molting of their wing feathers, so it can be seen that this is a very accurate index of production.

Although the alleged disfigurement of young Mrs. Newlived's related at the beginning of this article is doubtless more or less of an exaggeration, there is no escaping the fact that a hen during the molting time is really very much out of condition and should receive extra food and attention. The care and feeding of hens at this time might be the subject of a separate article in itself. I shall, therefore, let it suffice to say that molting hens should have plenty of good shade, nourishing food and ample protection from bad weather. A good mineral tonic should also be given them so their appetites will be whetted for an abundance of food. They should also take the necessary nutriment to offset the strain on their system, grow their feathers again and get back to laying.

Feed a variety of good, sound grains, such as oats, wheat, corn and bran. But do not feed too much corn, as that is too heating. Feed also, some sunflower seed and linseed meal. Also a little more of meat greens, bone or meat scraps than is usually fed and give plenty of milk, if possible.

Comparisons Prove It

America's finest medium priced automobile

In a most thorough analysis of motor car values today's Oakland All-American Six is compared with 20 other medium-priced cars in 878 individual comparisons. In these 878 comparisons, Oakland proved distinctly superior on 451 items or 51.37 per cent. All twenty cars combined were at best equal to Oakland on 382 items or 43.50 per cent. And thirteen of the twenty cars included in this group are higher-priced than the Oakland.

We are prepared to give you the complete returns from this analysis. Let us show you the 878 comparisons which prove Oakland America's finest medium-priced automobile.

What these features mean to you:

- Large piston displacement is needed to develop high power at moderate engine speed.
- Moderate axle speed is an important factor in the life of a car.
- No name in automobile coach building means so much to Fisher. Fisher bodies are famous for style, beauty and roominess. In addition, they hold up well under the most severe conditions, VV wheel-and-axle, and adjustable drivers' seats.
- Piston Displacement—The Oakland is greater than 12 of the 20 cars in its price field. Of the 8 remaining cars, 7 are much higher priced than Oakland.
- Fisher Body—Only Oakland and two other cars in the field offer body by Fisher. And one of these two is nearly $100.00 in price than Oakland. Of the 18 cars which have such knowledges, 11 are priced above the All-American Six.

Prices, $1145 to $1275, f. o. b. Pontiac, Mich., plus delivery charges. Springs, axles and shock absorbers included. General Motors Time Payment Plan available at minimum rate.

Consider the delivered price as well as the list when you compare values. Oakland delivers includes only reasonable charges for handling and for financing when the Time Payment Plan is used.

ADELMAN DRIVES 800 MILES ON WESTERN TRIP

Frank Adelman, head of the Firelands Oil Co. and a former deputy sheriff, returned Tuesday night after attending the national Elix convention at Los Angeles, Calif., as a representative of the local lodge of Elix of which he is a past exalted ruler. Mr. Adelman was accompanied by a group of relatives. He drove 800 miles in his Cadillac.

Mr. Adelman reports that driving over the Rocky Mountains and the Coast Ranges is no easy task. Not only are the grades very steep and long but there are so many sudden twists and turns and so many dangerous blind curves, that the driver must keep his eyes closely lined up with the road.

In driving over the desert from Salt Lake City to the California Line, drivers at times must endure 125 degrees of heat. Although Mr. Adelman and his party were gone a month, rain fell on only one day of their trip.

Mr. Adelman and his companions were much impressed by the Mormon Temple at Salt Lake City. He stated that although the great domed structure is nearly as long as a city block, whippers may be heard throughout the building and the experiment successfully tried of making a falling pin heard.—Reflector Herald.

Prof. Bach, descendant of the great musician, and head of the Wittenberg School of Music, was a visitor of J. A. Root and Dr. Searle last Tuesday.

Mr. J. A. Sittler Jr. of Columbus, son of Rev. Sittler, President of the Ohio Synod was a week end visitor in Plymouth.

Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Lofland and son Paul returned from Plymouth Shore for a few days visit here.

HIGHLIGHTS:

Harlem—that strange black metropolis in the heart of the world's greatest city! The intriguing scenes and sights of its pulsing streets, its jazz and night clubs, its hidden retreats. A human drama taken from the front page of the newspapers—a strong man terror who kills with one punch; a girl manager in the grip of environment; a youth "framed" into Sing Sing. Characters that fill across the news horizon daily and disappear into the void of the law.

Sing Sing—and the Death House! Reproduced on the screen as it really is, inhabited by the people who compose its transient population. . . . thinking, talking, fretting, active people. . . . condemned people.

A great dramatic climax. . . . Ban- brott, the killer, facing the victim of his last Londoner in the fatal corridor in the death house. The fate of his victim mirrored in the killer's sardonic face. Suspense. . . . cold, hard, breathless drama.

The greatest emotional scene ever conceived—a wedding in Sing Sing's condemned row. Once in a while, you read about such a thing in the newspapers with amazement and wonder and a catch in your throat. Now you will see it. Love's greatest gesture! . . . Eminent performance of The Lion's Club at Delser Theatre, Wednesday and Thursday, August 1-15.
