TIRO HATCHERY WILL OPEN IN MANSFIELD

The Tiro Hatchery, which has been in operation at Tiro for the past fifteen years will open a plant in Mansfield about January, 1930.

The property at 25 Beasley st. has been purchased by the Tiro hatchery for the installation of an incubator of 34,900-egg capacity.

The Tiro hatchery has been operating 15 years. The company's proposal to start a hatchery in this city because of the excellent facilities offered by the railroads for shipping, and because Richland county poultry raisers keep good records of chickens with high egg production records.

"We will pull poultry flocks free of charge," Pfeleider stated, "if the owners of thoroughbred flocks will get in touch with me. We want to buy eggs from the best flocks. The culling of the flocks will be done this fall, by experienced poultrymen. The chicks are shipped when about a month old."

"We ship within a radius of 600 miles," Pfeleider said. "We have shipped as far as Texas and Florida. However, the greater part is sold locally."

Song Recital Was Pleasing

A large audience greeted Miss Eleanor Searle last Friday evening when she gave her recital and she was received with much admiration by the music lovers in this community and nearby towns.

Miss Searle's ability drew wide comment from many out-of-town visitors as well as the music lovers at home, and the skill and ease in which she handled her numbers was amazing to all. Her voice possesses a very remarkable range and is unusually flexible.

The program Friday night contained songs of many varieties and opened with a group of old English and German, followed by "Ballade" from Paganini, and numerous lighter English, French, Italian and German numbers. Her renditions were thoroughly enjoyed and the recital ended with a beautiful array of flowers including baskets and bouquets, and these expressed to a certain degree the high esteem in which she is held by the home town folks.

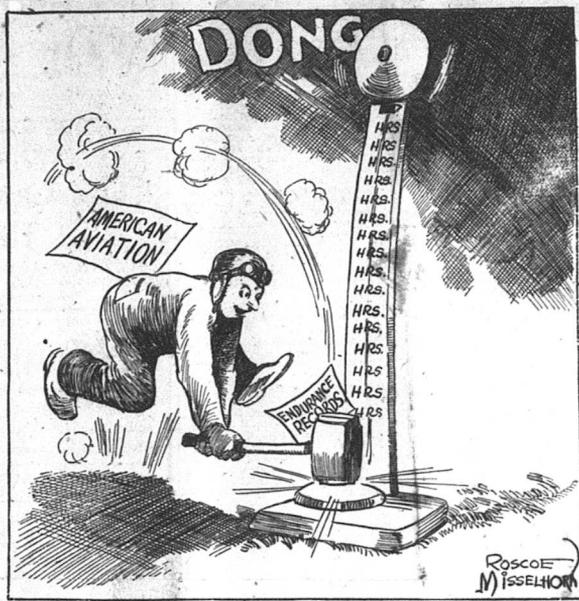

Miss Searle was assisted in her recital by Misses Mary Jo Pate, Mary Elizabeth Himes, Miriam Root, Emma Pate, Madeline Smith, who were prettily attired in evening gowns and who acted as usher, while John Root acted as the emcee.

There were many out-of-town visitors here for the occasion.

EVERY STATE REPRESENTED IN STATE FAIR

The progress that has been made in every industry, 350 manufacturers and merchants from all parts of the United States will exhibit their merchandise at the Ohio State Fair, which opens August 23rd.

While Ohio manufacturers and merchants are the most numerous, nearly every state is represented in the list of entries.

In the mammoth display of machinery, located in the open lots and sheds, farm machinery will be the chief display. Every type of machinery, including sprayers, brooms, threshing machines, tractors, trucks, harvesters and numerous others, will be exhibited.

Many of the articles will be manufactured on the Fairgrounds so that the process may be understood. Prominent among the other exhibits in the outside machinery group is that of the Harmon Coal Company of Columbus. This company will produce a tiple, one-sixth of the annual size, showing the approved methods of cleaning, grading and sizing coal.

The Manufacturer's and Merchant's Building will house a more diversified group of displays. These will be given over entirely to the exhibition of Columbus. This company will produce a tiple, one-sixth of the annual size, showing the approved methods of cleaning, grading and sizing coal.

The structure which is located near the Columbus building, has been entirely redecorated. Besides the new roof, a larger number of booths have been added, and walls painted. The old-time Bailey, trimmed in ivory, presented a pleasing background for the colorful displays of merchandise.

Entries in the livestock show, valued at $3,000,000, are rapidly nearing the 5500 mark, not set in the season of Perry L. Green, director. While all the entries have not been recorded, officials are confident that this number will be passed. Cattle, with Holstein and Jerseys as the leading breeds, surpasses other classes in number. The sheep show is second.

With 30 sheep entered from Ontario, Canada, and an exhibit of wool from the famous flock of the Earl of Toileto, head, the list will be given upon request.

BROX OIL AT SHEBY BURNS

Shelby firemen experienced one of the most disastrous and thrilling fires in years early Sunday morning when the fire alarm at the Central station rushed the firemen to the main office of the Brox Oil Co. on South Broadway, where it was found that the flames had gotten well under way and that the battle to save nearby buildings was going to be a hard one.

Herbesh Byers and William May, firemen, were badly injured, Byers receiving burns from a spray of hot oil and May sustained a severe cut on one arm.

The damage to the building, trucks and loss of contents will $50,000, partially covered by insurance. The oil tanks, drums and trucks, filled with oil and gasoline, made the fire a real hazard to battle. The offices and oil station, located in a frame building, surfaced with a composition, was soon enveloped in flames, and it was only through the heroic work of the firemen that prevented the blaze from spreading to nearby structures. It took six hours of continuous fighting to get the flames extinguished.

The blaze was discovered about 6 o'clock Sunday morning by an employee of the Shelby Ice Co.

RETIRES AFTER 25 YEARS AS MAIL CARRIER

Back in the days of 1904 when Sam Nimmons, former Plymouth resident was serving the local office here as postmaster, when there was more just and right for Mr. Danner can by a horse and buggy rather than a Model T Ford. Back in those days Dayton Danner will remember, for it was on January 1st, 1904 that Mr. Danner began his service with Uncle Sam as rural mail carrier out of Plymouth.

And on July 31st, the last trip was made by Mr. Danner, for it was the end of his 25 years of continuous service, and after serving time this long for Uncle Sam you are not on the position list, which is no more than just and right for Mr. Danner can by a horse and buggy rather than a Model T Ford. Back in those days Dayton Danner will remember, for it was on January 1st, 1904 that Mr. Danner began his service with Uncle Sam as rural mail carrier out of Plymouth.

When Mr. Danner first began his route, it was 25 miles long. The route covered the Spring Mill road and over to North School, then back to the Bus road and then west to Sabara Turn, Baswood school and the Fenner road. Then Mr. Danner made his first trip in July he stated that there were only two original families who still live along the route when he started back in 1904. And they are Will Fenner and F. L. Kemp.

Carrying the mail at first was a long and slow task for a horse and buggy was used the first six years by Mr. Danner, when in 1910 he purchased his first automobile, Maxwell. This he used for 11 years and then he bought a Ford which was used for the last five years.

While Mr. Danner was mail carrier he has seen many changes enacted during the quarter of a century, and he says that the people in general have changed with the time. The first United States postmaster was Robert N. Wald. The engineer's estimate of all work totals $1,773,760.27. The proposed Bellevue road crossing, estimated to be $1,773,760.27. Following the collision the victims from the Ford sedan were taken from the machine and getting them to the hospital.

LOCAL PEOPLE SEE ZEPPELIN

Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Phillips have just returned after a visit through the east. They were at Lakeshore where they saw the giant Graf Zeppelin of which a good description is written in the "Lions Den" column. They are interesting one and Mr. Phillips in relation to it, says:

We left Plymouth Sunday at about 7:00 a. m. proceeding to Mansfield and from there to Wheeling, W. Va., and by Loudonville, Lucas, Sandusky and Toledo, Ohio, to the Ohio river at about 3:00 p. m. and crossing at Wheeling we went east over the National Trail, U. S. Route 40.

We reached Cumberland Pass at about 7:00 p. m. and found it a beautiful place, the road winding thru a cut in a mountain, following the Cumberland river with sheer bluffs of solid rock rising several hundred feet on each side. Cumberland pass seemed to be one of the most beautiful spots in the Allegheny region.

We spent the night in the midst of the mountains, the air being very cold and snappy. We covered 320 miles the first day and came up Uniontown hill, one of the most difficult of the mountains, going east, handily in high gear.

The second day we proceeded east on Route 40 to Frederick, Md., of Barbara Fritchie fame, thence to Baltimore. Proceeding from Baltimore we arrived at Philadelphia early in the evening. After a shopping trip in Philadelphia we went toward Atlantic City by way of Camden, crossing one of the largest suspension bridges in the world, the one which was first erected the second night in Camden.

We were up and away at about 6:00 o'clock, and were in Atlantic City in Atlantic City at about 8:00 a. m. We found Atlantic City to be a beautiful place, the air being very cold and snappy. ## RIGHT and WRONG USE OF WEALTH

by Rev. G. R. Monte, Ph. D. Shiloh, Ohio

History again and again calls attention that the curse of any people has ever been the possession of gold by the few, while poverty knuckled at the doors of the majority, reducing life to a state of dependant slavery; and while many have been carried away by the language of the French communist Guiltier who at times in an address to the crowds implored them to enrich themselves at the expense of the wealthy citizens, we are glad to quietly listen to the advice given by the philanthropist Peabody, when he says that the prayer to the Father be one of a desire of the deepening channels of a common brotherhood, that manhood, which is after all only granted to us as a trust fund, to be left behind at the hour of our departure, to be used for the glory of our universal Father and the general welfare of mankind. No man dare deny that we want to keep our hearts beating in sympathy with the common pulse of humanity, we must never permit ourselves to be the slaves of earthly goods, the chief of which is satisfying when the chill of death creeps over us, and the facilities beginning to grow numb, should suggest that everyone of my readers might become rich in deeds of kindness rather than in money, at the expense of honor, leaving to posterity the curse of dishonesty or the curse of the miserly gold. How often we read in the public Press. He died leaving millions to some "Col" or "Gen" and the money was the same time it is a well known fact that while in the flesh his was the most miserable of "millionaires," not worth a penny as the Almighty courts wealth.

The great teacher so beautifully and yet clearly tells the story of Lazarus at the doorstep of the man of unlimited wealth, bedridden only by the dogs at the door of wealth and earthly success, but how sad the last chapter of that wonderful story, the rich man stripped of all his earthly glory, a supplicant for mercy at the hands of the once a wealthy beggar. Thus we learn that earthly possessions are not always points pointing the loblivity of soul.

I heard a renowned physician long ago relate the following story: He attended a dying man, and he was working in his death struggles. Nothing the doctor could do seemed able to quiet the dying man, whom the world had looked upon as a favorite of heaven; he was nervously clutching at something vague, opening and shutting his hands as they were growing cold in death, grasping at something mysterious; finally the medical man could stand the agony no longer, could turning to the son asked him if he could throw light upon this frightful picture of an agonizing soul, the son who had watched the struggle broke down and said: GOLD, GOLD, it is Gold that keeping the soul fettered to the dying body, for every night father would before falling to sleep fondly handle some of his bank scrips and fall into peaceful slumber. Quietly the attending physician slipped a banknote into the nervous twitching fingers of the man, the hand closing upon it with a vise-like grip, his narrow, starved soul went in to space. It seems almost impossible that men could become such slaves to gold that they could not die the way across the mystic stream has been obtained by gold. Let us

WORKOUT IN GYMNASIUM HELPS STAR KEEP TRIM

A gymnasium workout a day keeps the doctor away. That is Clara Bow's motto and she sticks to it. The workouts take place in the "IT" girl's own gymnasium at her home in Beverly Hills. The place is fully equipped with rowing machine, punching bag, weight pulleys, medicine ball, man clubs, dumb bells, jumping ropes and handball court.

Miss Bow put in a particularly arduous training session for her circus performer's role in "Dangerous Curves," her new Paramount talking picture, which comes to the DeLuxe Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday August 21st and 22nd. The part called for her to do a number of difficult stunts, which could only be accomplished by a more than ordinarily good athlete.

A half hour each day in the gymnasium is her regular between-pictures schedule. When she is working before the camera she cuts that time for a moment, utter a silent prayer that our desire may not lead us into such dreadful abyss of shame and future sorrow; let us think more of eternity, for how little the value of earthly possessions will amount to before the judgment bar of the future has often been revealed to us in distant writ, how often we have seen after passing from these earthly scenes to be unable to call attention to the recording angel, and find that a large bank account which in the last second we had to leave behind. How often we hear some declare that if they had but known of their own, how much good they might do in the world; this is unwarranted language, for God never calls upon us to do the impossible, and no man is expected to overstep his limitations and I am convinced that the one cup of cold water will bring as much satisfaction and reap as rich a reward, as the building of colleges or endowing of great institutions; it is after all the little hidden secret: In as much as you did from an unselfish motive unto one of the least of the great things of humanity, ye did it unto the great master teacher of all Truth. It may be impossible for the majority of us to give a fortune to relieve the strained relations of the money market of Wall Street, but we all can have the blessed satisfaction that like Peter and John we may bring sunshine into the life of some despairing child of God, by calling attention that the silver and gold we have not, we are willing what we can do in the name of Jesus of Nazareth, so assist them to arise out of the dismal pool of despair and walk in newness of life; thus we are assured that the final day of reckoning will not bring before our vision the value of the gifts bestowed, but the spirit causing the bestowing of the gift. If we study the recorded word of God we shall soon come to know that in the sight of the Eternal the widows mite outweighs the rich man's gold, hence the great boon that can be bestowed upon our fellowman is to attempt to bring into the life of everyone the personer of Jesus, the man of Galilee, who went about doing good, hence I assure you if human touch counts in the struggle for existence, and I think it does, and the majority of men are and have been common poor folks, that that class while furnishing the heavier of timbers upon the mountains and the workers in the quarries has been attending a temple that shall stand eternally in the heavens. ## School nurse says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "The basic rule of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking a pill, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when a pill should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."

It is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a box of it on hand every day and have reasonable resistance. Get the genuine.

The following announcement of the coming wedding of Miss Kathryn Andrews will be read with much interest, as she is the daughter of a former Plymouth resident, and a granddaughter of Mrs. B. F. Criswell. The announcement is as follows:

At an attractively appointed bridge-supper event held last evening at the home of Miss Kathryn Andrews, the interesting announcement of the date of the hostess wedding day was made.

The announcement was made on dainty favors which were at each guest's place at the table. Miss Andrews, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Andrews, of 1320 Harding Boulevard, will be married Wednesday, September 11th, to L. Burton Rivers, son of H. B. Rivers, of Mile City, Montana.

The evening was delightfully spent in playing bridge and the favors were awarded to Miss Claire Stritzinger, Miss Mary Bickins and Miss Martha Targart.

The pink color theme was effectively used in the table decorations. Large cakes, on which were placed miniature brides and bridegrooms, adorned the table. Vases of garden flowers were also used in the table decorations.

Included among the guests present were: Miss Sadie Bickins, Miss Jane Matlack, Miss Kathleen McCracken, Mrs. Robert Rush, Mrs. Harry Steinbach, Miss Mary Tubel and Mrs. Walter Heck, of Conshohocken. Miss Andrews was a teacher at the Roosevelt school.

WE MUST FACE THE FACTS

The heavy casualties in the state each year caused by automobiles should receive serious thoughts from our State Highway Department. We do not mean that this department should shoulder the responsibility of all the fatal accidents that occur over the state during the year, but we would like to see this body put into effect a code of stringent laws and enforce them in regards to operating an automobile.

A few statistics from an insurance company has come under our observation this week, and in looking over a list of the states and their ratio of deaths caused by automobiles we see the state of Ohio is listed with the "higher ups," registering a total of 554 deaths for the first four months of 1929. It is estimated that from July to September there will be 85 deaths a day in the state caused by auto accidents. The first three months of the year showed a fatality toll throughout the country of 5109 persons. An increase of 30 percent is shown for the second three months, bringing the total for the six months of 1929 to 11,700. It is said that unless the fatalities are checked that the year's death toll will be approximately 25,000.

We hope that the auto owners in and around Plymouth will read these facts and consider them. Perhaps hundreds of wrecks could have been avoided "had this or that been fixed before starting on the trip." The safest and best way to help cut down the fatalities is to look over your car at intervals, check the brakes, look after your tires, and consider everything that might have a tendency to go wrong while driving. The only and best suggestion that doesn't cost anything is: "Don't take a chance." Keep this in mind when you're on the open road. . . . consider the other fellow. . . . and let's cut down the death rate caused by automobiles.

FARM RELIEF

We are not engaged in the great and magnificent business of farming, we are no specialist in this line, we do know that an agricultural problem exists among the farmers, and we do know that it is almost an impossible feat to get the farmers to cooperate. Farm relief? What is it? And why do the farmers want relief? We have perused opinions of other country's financial wizards, we have read with interest how the farmer's problems can be solved, and we have gone so far as to ask the opinion of real dirt farmers on the proposed farm relief. And yet we remain befuddled.

However, through observation and opinions of the farmers, the only relief they care about is taxation. And that alone is about the only thing that will relieve the farmers, especially those in Huron and Richland counties. Taxation and land valuation are far out of proportion, and until this evil is eliminated the farmers in this section should expect no immediate relief. The farmers should organize not to get relief, but to put in office who have their interest at heart, and who will give them farm representation.

EXCESS OF SENTIMENT

Is it not possible that excess of sentimentality in behalf of real offenders against society is contributory to the increase of crime? Golden rulers and prison reformers with facts, together with the law's interminable delays, paroles, pardons, commutations of sentence, or their entire suspension, may justly be charged with strengthening crime and weakening justice. Criminals and the element obviously inclined to crime take advantage of this. They figure they may evade apprehension or penalty, or benefit through the many methods of interference with the degree of punishment that should be imposed.

Punitive measures should have a three-fold object. It was said of oil, "The way of the transgressor is hard." At this time there are too many possible well-meaning, but erring people who would make the criminals way easy. "Let mercy temper justice," but not to the point of permitting offenders escape proper penalty. They must be made to feel the consequence of wrongdoing.

As far as possible the punishment should be made correctional as a second cause for its imposition, but results along this line have not been as successful as penologists have predicted. And it is undesirable that curtailing of sentence to minimum measure may often lead the early paroled prisoner to continue in the path of crime instead of reforming him to at least the extent of deterring him from future transgressions. In most instances the corrective influence of the parole remains to be demonstrated for while a considerable number of those to whom such clemency has been extended may and do again get into the right path, their comparatively short incarceration may be the influencing cause leading others to take a chance on commission of crimes, hoping to escape detection, or at least to suffer no severe penalty.

And perhaps the most important feature in connection with the penalizing of offenders is the protection of the public against the criminal element. That is why punishment of this class should be swift, adequate and unrelenting. We have had too much temporizing with crime, too much sentimental twaddle about the "reforming" of many of those who do not land behind the bars until some years after they should have arrived. The time to reform those of evil tendencies and vicious inclinations is before, not after, they are caught red-handed in prison offenses.

Existing conditions prove this. It may be we have too many laws magnifying into crimes or serious offenses such acts which at best should not constitute more than misdemeanors, but for which extreme and unreasonable penalties may be imposed. So also, we have had numerous laws based on common sense and justice which are too laxly enforced, or which are too inequally interpreted in the imposing of sentence for their violation.

Whatever the cause of the alarming increase of crime and to such extent that the prisoners of the country, federal and state, are crowded far beyond their capacity, it is apparent that a different policy as to crime and criminals is necessary and it may be hoped that through the investigation and study of the situation by the special commission now at work something may be accomplished in the way of re-establishing respect for law and a better enforcement of it. — Mansfield News.

A court has decreed that a cow in the road has the right of way over an automobile, which is just as well, because the cow would take it anyway.

"Grand Opera" says Mr. Insull, "is a matter of musically cultivating the tastes of the people." And it is also a matter of going so that the other folks who go can see you there too.

Every man is sure of death and taxes and that he'll have to share when he wakes up in the morning.

A Greeting From the Governor

GOVERNOR MYERS Y. COOPER

For ten years President of the Ohio Fair Managers Association.

Late in August each year Ohio becomes "fair minded" in keeping with the State Fair. It is as if, after a year of industry, progress and thrift, the people of our great state pause to contemplate the wonders wrought by God and man. The occasion is fraught with pride of commonwealth, the quest for knowledge and the spirit of carnival.

Ohio is one of the greatest states of a great country. It ranks among the leaders in widely divergent branches of human activity. The State Fair is the tangible evidence of our proudest boasts for our State. Here may be seen and studied the best accomplishments of agriculture, industry, commerce.

The State Fair is predominantly agricultural in import, as it is intended to be by the law giving it existence, and the expectations of those who journey to the mecca from town and farm, far and near. The largest crowd in all history is expected to attend the approaching Ohio State Fair, at Columbus, August 26-31. With the most stupendous educational program in its long history, the fair has become a dozen times bigger than 1923 State Fair will eclipse in attendance the record of all previous events in fair event of the country. It will be largely attended because it is to be so well thought attending.

Modern science in farming is one of the things that the State Fair is designed to teach. The Ohio State Fair has long since become an enduring institution, something essential to the farming industry, therefore necessary to banking, commerce and manufacturing.

The Ohio State Fair offers opportunity not only for the farmer's improvement and enjoyment, but also promotes the interest and individual development of the farmers' wives and the children. It tends to arouse a demand from the country for general civic improvement, better sanitation for the home, and sound schools and pleasant environment for the community. The Ohio State Fair is an immense university, where everybody can attend. Every Ohio citizen should enroll as a member of the Ohio State Fair Booster Club and make this year's State Fair bigger and better than ever.

As an official and active member of state and county fair organizations, I have been intimately affiliated or associated with fairs everywhere over the state for many years and it is my earnest hope and expectation that the 1929 State Fair will eclipse in attendance the record of all previous events in fair event of the country. It will be largely attended because it is to be so well thought attending.

MYERS Y. COOPER, Governor of Ohio

LOCAL PEOPLE

points of improvement could be noted between the Graf Zeppelin and the Los Angeles. The crew were dressed in blue uniforms with a flat topped cap with a gold Z in front. After about two hours with the Graf Zeppelin we headed north, and ferrysed across New York harbor, past a certain large lady of a greenish color holding aloft a torch, who landed in lower Manhattan.

After turning up and down Broadway and Fifth Avenue we went through the Holland Vehicular Tunnel to Newark, N. J. enroute to Elizabeth, where we stayed all night.

The Holland Tunnel is one of the greatest pieces of engineering we saw while in the east. I should estimate it to be about two miles long and is constructed of white glass brick. It is very well lighted, and is used solely by motor vehicles passing from Newark, N. J. to New York or vice versa. It passes directly under the Hudson River.

The next morning, after a short trip back to New York, via the Holland Tunnel, during which we took a ride on the subway, we started up the Hudson, seeing the Palisades. Ferrysing across to Yonkers, N. Y. we went to the Pennsylvania to cross the trestle to Peekskill.

At Peekskill we took the Bear Mountain road crossing Bear Mountain Bridge. This road and bridge are beautiful. The road leading to the bridge seems to have been carved far up on the mountain from solid rock, giving an excellent view of the Hudson for miles in each direction.

We followed this road some times known as the Roosevelt Highway or U. S. Route No. 8 thru the entire length of Pennsylvania to crossing passing thru the Black Forest and the "Lambert" of Gene Stratton Porter fame. We stopped at various places on the way home, once to see the Lobo wolves at Kana, Pa., and the Ice Mine at Coatsport, Pa. From Erie we proceeded home by way of Cleveland, Medina and Lodi.

Our entire trip covered 4th days and 1670 miles, and was very instructive and extremely enjoyable.
