

NEW RULES FOR CHRISTMAS MAIL

Postmaster Johns Explains Addressing and Wrapping of Holiday Mail

An early S.O.S. is being sent out by Uncle Sam's postmen who are anticipating a big Christmas and holiday rush in their business. Postmaster Johns, of Plymouth, has cooperated with his national employer in advising Plymouth citizens of the Christmas mail suggestions and rules as regards the mail.

A recent ruling has been made that should be observed closely. Place the address of the consignee on only one side of the holiday package. The practice of writing addresses on both sides of the package causes more harm than good, and is contrary to the mailing or railway regulations.

All mail and packages intended for foreign mail should be in the postoffice by December 10th, to insure their delivery before the 25th of the month. In Plymouth everything will be delivered after the last train, 6:34 p. m., on Christmas eve, to insure a Merry Christmas to everybody.

Mail trains from Plymouth are: B. & O.—East, 6:44 a. m.; 6:34 p. m.; west, 12:57 p. m.; 5:20 p. m.; A. C. and Y.—East, 1:30 p. m.; west, 2:15 p. m. All mail must be in the office thirty minutes before train time.

All sealed letters and greeting cards are 2 cents for each ounce. Post cards are 1 cent each. Address rural mail in ink, giving rural number, street address and number. Place sender's return in upper left corner. The consignee's address and the return address should be placed in a card, inside the package. Wrap parcels securely but do not seal, unless a label is used reading, "Contents, merchandise." Postmaster: This parcel may be opened for inspection if necessary.

Parcels may not exceed 36 inches in length and girth, nor weigh more than 70 pounds. They may be marked—Do not open until Christmas, or other Christmas greetings. Do not inclose letters in parcels, and seals and stickers should not be placed on the address side of mail. Parcels of fourth-class matter may be inclosed in parcels, and valuable parcels should be insured. The practice of sending undressed envelopes and packages is discouraged. "And a merry holiday season to all," calls Postmaster Johns.

RICHLAND FARMER GIVEN STATE RANK

A. L. Lockhart, manager of the Williben farm in Troy township, is the first farmer in Richland county to be ranked as a Master Farmer. Eleven Ohio agriculturists were honored recently in Columbus by the Ohio Farmer.

The requirements for the rank of Master Farmer are high. He must prove that he has accomplished some outstanding objective during the year, and that he is interested in the community work. Lockhart was judged potato king in the county last year with 595 bushels to the acre.

He has developed a strain of Holstein cows which give rich milk, and rank first in the Richland-Adair county testing association. Lockhart is president of the Hampshire breeders, the Dairy Association, the Potato section, the Ohio Vegetable Growers' Association, and of the county Holstein association.

The Buzzard residence was established in Willard in 1879.

Sister of Local Man Dies In Mansfield

Remains Brought to Plymouth Sunday For Interment.

Mrs. Anna R. Weldon, age 74 years, widow of the late J. Frank Weldon, shoe merchant in Mansfield for many years, passed away Thursday night at 10 o'clock at the home of John Gerhart, 13 Pleasant ave., Mansfield, following a lingering illness.

She was born in Cass township, Richland county, on May 15, 1856, her parents being Thomas and Rachel (Bovier) Willner, pioneer residents of that section of the county who settled in that locality in an early day.

She came to Mansfield more than 40 years ago and since that time has made her home there. Her husband, Frank E. Weldon, died 10 years ago. Surviving relatives include one sister, Mrs. W. J. Hines, of Mansfield; one brother, E. E. Willett, of Plymouth, a step-daughter, Mrs. Charles Collins of Detroit, and a granddaughter, Miss Verie Landefeld of Bellevue.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Willard mortuary with Rev. Dr. H. S. Barnes, pastor of St. Luke's Lutheran church, in charge. Burial was made in Greenlawn cemetery, Plymouth.

Former Plymouth Resident Is Dead

James W. Bell, Well-Known Here, Passes Away In Mansfield.

Funeral services for James Waites Bell, aged 82 years, were held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home of his daughter, Mrs. A. F. Ramsey, Mansfield, with burial made in Greenlawn cemetery, Plymouth.

He was born in Washington county, Pa., Feb. 2, 1848, and when a young man came to Ohio locating near Butler. He was married to Miss Beatie Price, daughter of J. E. Price and for many years lived on a farm in Worthington township. Mrs. Bell died 20 years ago and since that time he has lived with his daughter in Butler where he was well known.

During the past several years he was engaged in selling a specialty line and traveled throughout Richland county. Since a year ago he was obliged to retire from active work due to gradually failing health, which later resulted in his death.

He is survived by one son, Edward A. Bell of Norwalk, a prominent educator and Huron county superintendent of schools, and one daughter, Mrs. Frank Ramsey of Mansfield.

Mr. Bell and family at one time resided in Plymouth and will be recalled by the older residents.

CHAIRMAN REPORTS RED CROSS FUND

Mrs. E. L. Ernest, chairman of the Red Cross for this vicinity states that the house-to-house canvass has been unusually good considering so many people are out of work. The quota for Plymouth and Plymouth township is $100. The amount collected here is not yet determined and will probably not be known until the end of the week, when the amount is turned over to the local chairman, who in turn will forward to the county chairman.

First Thanksgiving Proclamation

Original Records Lost For Over One Hundred Years

Few Americans know that the original Presidential Thanksgiving proclamation was lost for over a hundred years; that it was found at an auction sale in 1921; that it was bought by the Library of Congress for $300.00; and that it now reposes in the archives of that institution, one of the most valuable documents in the world. The Division of Information and Publication of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission, in a statement issued today, relates the story of the lost proclamation.

The original proclamation of Thanksgiving, and, indeed, the first Presidential proclamation ever issued in the United States, reads as follows: "By the President of the United States of America."

"Whereas it is the duty of all nations to acknowledge the providence of Almighty God, to obey his will, to be grateful for his benefits, and humbly to implore his protection and favor;—and whereas both Houses of Congress have by their joint committee requested me to recommend to the people of the United States a day of public thanksgiving and prayer, to be observed by acknowledging with grateful hearts the many signal favors of Almighty God, especially by affording them an opportunity to establish a form of government for their safety and happiness."

"Now, therefore, I do recommend and assign Thursday, the 26th day of November next, to be devoted by the people of these States to the service of that great and glorious being who is the beneficent author of all the good that was, that is, or that will be;—that we may then all unite in rendering unto him our sincere and humble thanks—for his kind care and protection of the people of this country previous to their becoming a nation;—for the signal and manifold mercies and the favorable interpositions of his providence, which we experienced

POSTAGE RATE MAY BE RAISED HALF CT.

The two cent rate of letters, fixed in 1853, may be raised in the near future to two and a half cents, if the proposal to be submitted by Postmaster-General Brown is passed by congress.

The recommendation is expected to be considered by postoffice committees of both Senate and House, and strong opposition is indicated. A profit on the first class mail is shown for 1929, according to the data in opposition to the measure, though a loss is shown on all other classes of mail.

Brown suggests the raise on the first class mail, as it is the primary service of the department.

Highways Prepare For Winter Siege

Over 175 Miles of Snow Fence This Winter

More miles of roads will be kept open this winter than ever before, according to a state highway bulletin. The state will continue its winter maintenance program over the trunk highway system, and many of the counties are increasing the mileage which they plan to keep open.

The mileage of highways to be kept open by the state are those more generally traveled by drags during the winter. While the department does not expect that it will ever be possible to keep the highways open 100 percent of the time, it has come a little closer to the mark each year since the snow removal program was started a few years ago. The department has bought very little new equipment this year, but a large proportion of the maintenance men have been with the department since snow removal first began, and with the experience they hope to open the roads sooner after each storm.

Over 175 miles of snow fence is being erected along highways.

CHRISTMAS CLUB CHECKS DECEMBER 1

Christmas Savings Club checks will be sent on December 1 from the People's National Bank, Plymouth, beginning December 1, 1930, and continuing until the 10th of the month.

Many people here find this a beneficial method of saving, and it is recommended highly. Christmas clubs are started in December and open to everyone, with a small deposit, and a stated sum thereafter deposited weekly.

REDUCTION SALE ON AT CURPEN'S SHOP

A mental note should be made of the reduction sale, that is being featured at the Curpen Jewelry and Gift Shop by all readers of the Advertiser.

Drastic reductions are being made on all gifts in the shop, and thrifty shoppers looking for values should take advantage of the week's offer. Mr. Curpen is wise in offering a pre-Christmas sale, as many merchants wait until the post-holiday season.

There are vases and pottery, various pieces for bridge prizes, useful articles and things that will be appreciated.

KILLING CLEARED UP BY OFFICIALS

A few days ago in Geneva county state game protector shot and killed one man and wounded the dead man's brother. These, with a third brother, allegedly resisted arrest for hunting on Sunday, and out of season, and then attacked the prosecutor and a deputy sheriff who was with him.

MEASURES TAKEN FOR PREVENTION OF RABBIT FEVER

Thus far in the hunting season, no case of rabbit fever, or tularemia, has been reported in Richland county. Double precautions are being taken in issuing instructions from the health department to all hunters, marksmen, and housewives, and others who handle rabbits.

A temperature of 137 degrees Fahrenheit is necessary to kill the germ of tularemia. It is always advisable to wear rubber gloves as a prevention of being cut or scratched by bones of the animal, thus making an opening for the disease germ. The meat should be cooked so that no red juices should be necessary to kill the germ.

It is stated that one percent of all wild rabbits are infected and the hunter to be perfectly assured of safety should not take home a wild rabbit that he shoots in the field if the animal appears sickly and not easily caused to run.

Sick rabbits should be killed and buried.

CHILD INJURED BY MACHINE SATURDAY

The eight year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Welser, of Shelby, was badly injured Saturday near the Shelby football field, when she was struck and run over by the machine of John Reed, former teacher in the Plymouth schools.

The accident occurred after the Shelby football game, and as Reed was leaving the grounds the child was knocked down and the wheels passed over her legs. Fortunately, neither were fractured. Unaware of the accident, Reed drove on to the home of a friend with whom he was spending the week end.

The number of the auto was taken, and traced to 19 Mills street, Plymouth, where Reed had roomed during his term here. When informed of the accident, Mr. Reed went immediately to the police agreeing to pay the hospital and bedder's bill.

CROP REPORT ON NOVEMBER 1, '30

Potatoes Gain in Annual Report; Corn Shows Up Lowest

The November 1 estimate for the Ohio corn crop is 96,602,000 bushels which is about 10% more than the forecast on October 1. Production this season is about 38,000,000 bushels less than last year and 32% below the 5-year average according to A. R. Tuttle of the Federal Crop Reporting Service. Indications point to a yield of 25 bushels per acre but at bushels less than last year and 32% below the 5-year average according to A. R. Tuttle of the Federal Crop Reporting Service. Indications point to a yield of 25 bushels per acre but at bushels less than last year and 32% below the 5-year average according to A. R. Tuttle of the Federal Crop Reporting Service.

Potatoes in Ohio yielded considerably more than was expected one month ago. The 1930 crop is estimated at 4,465,000 bushels which is a little over a million bushels less than last year and around 15 percent less than the 5-year average. The indication is for 90 bushels per acre or about average but at bushels less than last year. The early potato crop was rather poor on account of the drought during the earlier part of the season. The late crop showed unexpected improvement by late rains bringing the total crop up to about 61 percent more than was indicated two months ago in the September 1 report. Quality of the crop is reported at 76 per cent or about 9 points below average.

Preliminary estimates indicate a tobacco crop of 46,445,000 pounds compared with 49,811,000 pounds last season. The crop is about 13 percent above the 5-year average.

Soybean acreage is placed at 49,000 acres, the same as last year; the yield per acre is 11 bushels and the total production 538,000 bushels compared with the 5-year average production of 330,000 bushels.

November reports show some improvement in Ohio fruits. Ranges late in the season were about 10 percent below the late crop. Apples are not estimated at 3,640,000 bushels. Pears 190,000 bushels. Grapes 24,500 tons. Quality of apples is about 11 points below the 10-year average of 76 per cent. Pears quality is reported at 75 per cent, or 12 points below average and grapes 85 per cent or 3 points below average.

GENIUS

Genius, that power which dazzles mortal eyes, is oft but perseverance in disguise, Continuous effort of itself implies, In spite of countless falls, the power to rise. 'Twixt failure and success the points so fine, Men sometimes know not when they touch the line, Just when the pearl was waiting one more plunge, How many a struggler has thrown up the sponge. As the tide goes clear out, it comes clear in, In business 'tis at turns the wisest win, And oh! how true, when the shades of doubt dismay, 'Tis often darkest just before the day. A little more persistence, courage, vim! Success will dawn o'er fortune's golden rim. Then take this honey for the bitterest cup— There is no failure save in giving up— No real fall as long as one still tries— For seeming setbacks make the strong man wise. There's no defeat, in truth, save from within. Unless you're beaten there, you're bound to win.

MOUNT VERNON IN EUROPE

Next year, people in Europe will be able to visit Mount Vernon without crossing the ocean. Or, rather, they will visit a full-size reproduction of the historic George Washington home and grounds which is being constructed at Paris as America's contribution to the 1931 French International Colonial Exposition. The first shipments of material and equipment for the project have already been made, and construction is under way.

The Parisian "Mount Vernon" will be situated on a sloping plot on Lake Dumezil at Vincennes with the River Seine in the distance, so the setting will be somewhat similar to our Mount Vernon overlooking the Potomac. Every detail of the American building, including fireplace, mantels, stairs and minute architectural features, has been carefully measured and drafted for reproduction. Even the brass and bronze hardware of the attic, will be furnished as in the days of Washington. This includes the so-called "Lafayette room" in which the Marquis stayed during his visit to Mount Vernon in 1793.

American building experts will supervise the construction work of the French carpenters and laborers. All the materials used will be of American origin.

Civic leaders say that one way to help the average state's difficulties would be to abolish one branch of the legislature and have only one house in the law making body. That would remedy at least half of the difficulty.

If you want to assist in restoring prosperity to the country now is the time to go buy-buy.

WHEN CONGRESS MEETS AGAIN

The congress that convenes this December should be a few degrees more interesting than when we last saw it. Six newly elected senators and 14 representatives will succeed men who were appointed only to fill out expired terms. Among the new faces there will be:

Dwight Morrow, one of the brightest stars in the heaven of presidential prospects, who will take the place of Senator David Baird of New Jersey.

Robert Bulkley whose anti-prohibition stand in Ohio, cradle of the Anti-Saloon League, helped make his election of national importance. He will succeed Senator Roscoe McCulloch.

The Democratic George McGill of Kansas, who will replace Senator Henry J. Allen, "the President's spokesman," Secretary of Labor James J. Davis who ousted "Old Joe" Grundy, Pennsylvania hero of the lobbyist-tostatesman saga.

Robert D. Carey, who will replace Senator Patrick Sullivan of Wyoming, and Ben Williamson, who will succeed Senator John Robison of Kentucky.

Mrs. Otis Wingo, of Arkansas, who will increase the feminine delegation in the House to nine. She is the widow of the recently deceased Representative Otis Wingo. This will give Arkansas two women representatives, the other being Mrs. Pearl Peden Oldfield, who is also the widow of a former representative.

Folks in Milwaukee are said to be of the opinion that the sale of beer will be made legal within a short time. Some people will believe anything.

The birth rate in the United States is said to be the lowest since 1915. And any free trader can tell you that the Smoot-Hawley tariff is to blame.

One of our unmarried friends was cruel enough to say, the other day, that paying the bachelor's tax is just like buying accident insurance.

Marshland Schools Progressing Nicely

The children of the Marshland, two miles west of Plymouth and four miles south of Willard have always drawn heavily on the sympathy of Plymouth and vicinity, especially at this time of the year, when the need for food and clothing is quite a problem. With scarcely the necessities of life, these small urchins are sad pupils at the school which opened Oct. 15 in the Community house of the Ohio Farms Company.

With astonishing rapidity, these youngsters are learning their three R's, which constitute the fundamentals taught by the teachers. O. J. Roe teaches the grades three to eight, while Mrs. Lillian Hoskins of Norwalk has the little tots in the first and second grades. There are 24 of the little folks varying from unusually bright and apt to those less responsive. There are three in the eighth grade and two in the seventh grade.

Mr. Roe, who has taught at Steuben, Havana, Collins and for six years was principal of Lyons school, and last year taught in Willard Junior High, has taken extensive training at Chicago and Ohio State Universities fitting him for his teaching work. The average attendance is 48 out of 52.

These children come from 15 homes, not one of which has a piano and only one an organ. Radios are of course a luxury that they have not yet had the privilege of enjoying. Both teachers express the hope that someone might supply the school with a second hand piano or organ as the school and homes are without musical instruments, with the exception of a very few mouth harps.

The room in which the main school is held is large, being about 40 by 60 feet in size. It is steam heated, has electric lights and is comfortable for work. Good English is stressed by making of posters. Discipline is found to be easy with these children.

At present Mr. Roe lives at Milan and drives to and from his work daily. He is planning on moving to Plymouth soon for the rest of the school year.

FIRE EQUIPMENT FOR HOSPITAL BOUGHT

Modern and efficient fire extinguishers have been ordered purchased by the Willard Municipal Hospital in accordance with state fire regulations. Purchase of the equipment and appropriation to cover the cost were authorized by councilmen.

CHIEF CLERK OF O. S. R. RESIGNS

Simpkins has been affiliated with the Reformatory and with the state hospital at Lima for 15 years. His resignation will become effective as soon as his accounts have been audited.

Simpkins was one of the reformatory employees placed under fire by Rev. L. A. Stittler when the latter was removed as reformatory chaplain Aug. 1, by Supt. Jenkins. H. H. Griswold, State Welfare Director denied Simpkins' resignation was demanded.

WEEK OF DEC. 12TH IS CHRISTMAS SEAL WEEK IN SCHOOLS

In a letter to county, city and exempted village school superintendents throughout Ohio, Dr. J. L. Clifton, of the state department of education in designating Friday, December 12 as Christmas Health Seal Day in the public schools.

"Although the sale of Christmas Health Seals by school children is discouraged," the director states, "it is felt that there is a definite educational value in the story of the origin of the seal and of the work which it finances. It also feels that the school children of Ohio should be given a chance to contribute to that work."

The twenty-fourth annual Christmas health seal sale opens here November 23 and closes December 24. Funds raised during that period will be used for the continuance of the program of tuberculosis prevention and control and for general health promotion.

Article on Switzerland

Thursday afternoon, Mr. Miller, our Geography teacher, asks us to write articles on countries in Europe. The first group of tables is writing articles about England. The second group of tables is writing articles about Switzerland, and the third group of tables is writing articles about Germany. I am in the group of the second tables and I have to write an article about Switzerland.

Berne is noted to be the capital of Switzerland. But Geneva is the capital of the whole world, or is it so? It is because it is the only city in the world under government. Switzerland holds four countries which are Germany, France, Italy and Austria. They have quite a few rivers but are not good enough for trade. Switzerland has a lot of railroads. They have good roads on which to travel. They have the two longest tunnels in the world and they are Gothard and Ceneri, where the mountains open or separate, they call them passes. Switzerland is noted for manufacturing of small articles, like watches. They have a lot of trade with Great Britain and United States. Switzerland has many beautiful hotels. Their chief occupations are agriculture, horticulture, wine growing and live stock in the highlands. As I told you about the hotels, they are very skilled in that way.

Article on England

England's climate is mild and damp. The rains in the southern part bring too sterile and the northern part too mountainous for farming. England is chiefly a manufacturing country. This is a wonderful climate for sheep raising and grows cows in abundance. It also has a nice climate for the manufacturing of cotton, even though they cannot raise a pound a year. England's chief city is London, the largest in the British Isles and second largest in the world. Other important cities are Birmingham and Sheffield, chief cities in England for the manufacturing of iron and steel. Bradford and Leeds, chief cities in England for the manufacture of woolen goods. Manchester, which is the chief city for the manufacturing of cotton goods. The woolen industry is now so developed in England that the native sheep produce only 1-6 of the wool manufactured. England stands at the gateway of the most productive part of Europe and also lies on the busiest water route in the world. This and many other things have made it reach a population of 35,681,000.

Article on Germany

Let us all close our eyes and in one minute you will be in another country far across the ocean. This country is called Germany. It is a large country in Europe. Berlin is its capital with a large population of about 3,531,000. That was in 1925. Berlin is not the only city. It has many more. Hamburg is one of them. It is located on the English Channel. This city has a very important occupation for any country or state, it is shipbuilding. This city is not very far from the British Isles. In 1914 when the world war began many of our American men went across to fight. At this time the world was at war. Lorraine, a very important city in Germany, was destroyed by the war, which destroyed many people and the people's property. This affected Germany's industries very much. There are also very important rivers flowing in Germany, the Danube, Rhine, Elbe, etc. There are also a few mountains which are very important and some forests. These rivers are used mostly for transportation and shipping to the other countries. Well, that is all we will talk about Germany and let's go back to our own little town of Plymouth, Ohio.

P. H. S. Girls Victorious

P. H. S. GIRLS ARE GD
The girls' basketball team journeyed to Greenwich to meet their traditional rival last Saturday night and came back with a decisive victory, 18 to 10.

Coch Panoasca's sextet showed much potential power in downing the Greenwich High girls.

L. Moore, with 14 points led the P. H. S. offensive, while Shaver and Hackett outclassed the Greenwich forwards.

Despite the fact that they were victorious there is room for improvement.

Chapel

Chapel was opened by a song by the student body, "Love's Old Sweet Song." A name stunt furnished much amusement. The members of the High School faculty were represented by Mildred Hale as Mr. Miller, Dave Bachrach, Mr. Jenkins, Whitney Briggs car triple padded in places, Mr. Wolfe, Don Elms, Mr. Derr (and what a walk he had!) Harry Long, Mr. Murlin, Lucile Pugh, Miss Fenner, Madeline Smith, Miss Young, and Miriam Donnenwirth, Miss Panoasca.

Very realistic and quite typical. Eyes to Mr. Miller's faithful black book and his favorite expression: "Well, I'll check on that later." Mr. Miller gave a short talk on "Good Sportsmanship." He also announced that the Panama jungle animal exhibition would not be here for the next P. H. S. meeting but would be postponed for the week following. Also, the meeting of clubs, the student council, president's club and Friendship club.

Chapel was dismissed by the song, "Plymouthiana."

Article By Faculty

Through your columns we wish to thank the student body for the little skit, which was given in chapel last Wednesday.

It proved very interesting to us, because we go about our daily tasks in our characteristic way with our little mannerisms, hidden to us, but evidently very obvious to the students of P. H. S.

We strive to teach you by example. Let us show us, by your very excellent interpretation, our faults, in the same way, will prove both profitable and pleasurable to our school interests.

First Aid Room

Plymouth High is now ready to take care of the minor ailments that may occur among its pupils. A group of Home Economics girls took as a project, the equipping of a first aid room. An old cot was donated to them, which they soon changed from a rather shabby looking piece of furniture to a newly painted and upholstered cot. A medicine cabinet, which will soon be equipped with the necessary articles for a first aid room, curtains at the window, sheets, pillow cases and a blanket make this room comfortable.

Reports from the pupils having used the new room, show that this facility is a great improvement over the use of the Home Economics table.

Society

Miss Panoasca, Miss Young, and Miss Fenner, shopped in Mansfield Wednesday after school, buying equipment for the first aid room.

Mary Ruth Sittler left Tuesday to make her home in Columbus. Mary Ruth will be missed very much by the pupils who wish her a happy new home.

Harold Ross and "Stub" Hale visited in Greenwich Saturday evening.

"Pete" and "Bob" Cornell, Ben Smith, Jimmy Root, Dick Bachrach, Dick Majors, Donald Shaver, Bill Root, Doyle Taylor and Correll Scott attended the basketball game at Greenwich, Saturday night.

Clea Anderson, Lucille Moore, Halie Kaylor and James Backensto attended "Jolly Dick" at the Ohio in Mansfield Sunday.

"Cotton"

Cotton is a very peculiar plant. It also has peculiar insects on it.

As I suppose every one knows there are acres and acres of cotton planted throughout the south.

When cotton is first planted it grows within a few days later. It starts with two little round leaves that are speckled with black. With a shower and the sunshine it does not take it long to thrive.

Within about two or three months it will start to bloom. The first bloom is a white one, it is there a few days then turns yellow, a few days more and it is turning pink. It stays pink until it falls off.

"My Friend"

I used to think of him
As the best friend I ever had,
I sat him at least once a week,
Mem liked him—so did dad.

He used to get all dressed up
And gee, he looked so grand,
I loved him, yes, I loved him,
So—straight did he stand.

But you know he's not my friend now
Goodness, gracious, no!
'Cause yesterday he came to see me,
My handsome Romeo.

And say, you know he made me sick,
I thought I couldn't live an hour
Yes three—made me sick,
My friend—cauliflower.

Press Club

Alligators Have Odd Diet and Are Friends To Fish

Although alligators drawn some kind of food, they are friends to other species, because they prey on garbage, a fresh-water variety that is destructive to kinds used by man for food. The department of agriculture, scientists recently examined the stomachs of 151 alligators and discovered among the contents, pebbles, large stones, clinders, coal, burnt wood, feathers, and the metal caps of shot gun shells that the reptiles had swallowed along with their food. Alligators eat many kinds of insects, snakes, crabs, turtles, ducks and other birds besides larger animals, such as muskrat and minks, and are fond of cray-fish. This is a great aid to the farmer in that region where the alligators are found, for the crayfish are burrowing pests. Although the rep-

...also have been known to eat dogs and pigs, they will attack man only when cornered. They are usually afraid of human beings and scientists state that they are not harmful to wild life.

Fourth Grade

In our contest in arithmetic between the Pilgrims and Mayflower the Mayflowers won by 145 points. The Pilgrims entertained Monday afternoon in honor of Carol Lee Sittler who leaves us Tuesday for her new home in Columbus. We shall miss Carol Lee very much but wish her every happiness in her new home.

Thanksgiving—What?

Thanksgiving, what does it mean to us? It probably means turkey and all of the trimmings. But to most of us it means more than that. It means that in 1620 our forefathers came over on the Mayflower. These people and this ship battled for many days with wind and waves. When they landed on the shores of our country, they had no homes, no shelter of any kind, very little food, thin clothing and very small hopes of living here long.

But today what do we have. We have every convenience and comfort that is necessary to live comfortably. So let us remember to give thanks to our Maker for the comforts of life and for the many gifts He has showered upon us.

HURON CO. ROAD MADE OF PLANKS

Center Plank road in Huron county was the highway marvel of 1881. The old plank road, remnants of which are often found by road makers in that county, were superior highways, as long as they were kept in repair.

Such a road was built in 1881 by a group of Townsend and Milan residents. It was named Center Plank road, and was originally planned to connect Milan and Townsend Center. The road was built of planks laid crossways on long stringers of timber. Toll gates were established.

An Ohio senate bill, No. 129 adopted in 1881 on the subject of the road.

Months of work. Months of struggle. Secretly—a new idea, a stirring pain going him out of his path.

And every morning he had to go and make the cartoon. He had to go from the Sun to the movie studio. When he was longing to experiment with this new conception...

It was not an unnatural development. Looking back, it seemed to Ernestine that the years had conspired in order to accomplish this. She remembered her little work with his leg in a brace, who had made the book of bird pictures for her—a book she still loved and possessed, and which she had been showing to Peter one day or two ago.

She recalled the winter colors on his face and the smudged pictures of John Fryer when he was a baby—crude but warm. She remembered what Mrs. Todd had said—all the nagging thoughts. Will would see a great artist some day. If he were not subjected to her biological necessities!

Through the newspaper environment and the John Fryer, Ernestine had become a cartoonist. And he had had hard work and desperate struggle to accomplish that. But the very things this success had brought him had been a means of releasing this deeper, more sincere impulse.

The comfort, the affluence, the sense of security, had caused him to begin to give heed to another voice.

And Will had thought in his simplicity that he could have a secret! He had imagined that he could, in his life hours, pursue this new and delightful gift of artistry. He had experimented here alone with new tools, new methods, and thought that no one would ever know. Ernestine knew the consequences of activity, secret or open. This studio was going to destroy the cats as certainly as love destroys infatuation.

She stooped and brushed lightly with her lips the charcoal smudge of herself descending the stairs. She locked the door and went away, her lips firm, her eyes glowing in her love by face.

"Whenever you are ready, Will, I will be ready, too."

"My G—d, Ernestine, what do you do with the money? I never see you that you don't have your hand held out to me."

Her face gave her sudden fury. "As to account to you for every penny?" she exclaimed. "I did without, long enough. Now that you're earning, are you going to be giggled with me? Don't you dare ask me what I do with my money!"

He made no answer, his face bored and scornful. She had been thinking that when he came in she would try to talk to him, but now the moment was passed. He undressed and got into bed, and said in his quick irritable way:

"Either turn out the light or go somewhere else. I'm tired."

"From working?" she asked, and then regretted her eagerness. Will was much like that other time—that other pain.

Will did not answer, but turned his head and tugged his arm, in the blue pajama sleeve, up over his eyes. Ernestine put out the lights except the small lamp at her side of the bed. He was asleep, but she saw his feet drawn up and her arms clasped around her knees, thinking, her mind turning this way and that, her heart full of pain.

"Will!" she said at last gently, but he did not answer. She went around and stood beside him, looking down at him. He was asleep. His eyes and brow were hidden by the fold of his arm, but his wide mouth, his mobile, sensitive, excited mouth was in repose. Where had she seen that droop before? It was Ernestine's. It was the gentle enduring fold of her mouth, when she had been little and sick so much, and had borne it all with such a noble patience. Will was like that. Not in cut or form, but in the line of its expression. Will was bearing something. He was sick. He was enduring. Ernestine's eyes were lost in a dark wood. Fiercely, passionately, she buried in herself her personal resentment and pain. She must do away with the lot of them. If she could see what to do! If something would show her the way!

Next morning Will at his breakfast did not seem to be in his normal that it had been of late. He kissed her cheek, and said to her:

"Was I rough last night, kitten? You're pale today. I left the money in your desk drawer. Use it. It's all for you and the children, anyhow."

"Thanks, Will," she said indifferently, for now she did not care about the money at all. "Do you know anything about Loring and Lillian? We've not seen them for days. I've been spring housecleaning, and haven't even answered her. I tried to get her just now, and so one answered."

"I think Loring and Pastano are having some trouble," said Will. "I don't see a dry thing about it. He was black in the face about something Loring tried to put over on him. He'll be hard, if he gets turned against your brother-in-law. I'll call Loring at his office today, and see if I can get what's up. Well, so long. I'm jaded."

Ernestine was busy with her family and household all morning, but with a sense of troubled foreboding in her heart. She went to the phone two or three times, but could not get Lillian's house nor Loring's office.

"Funny thing Lillian's maid isn't at home," she thought, but no one answered the prolonged ring at the other house. Ernestine went on about her work, and at eleven o'clock, Molly called her to the phone.

back at the bank greeted her with a smile and, left his place and walked through the big downstairs room. Ernestine followed him. He paused at the foot of the wide stairs that led to the balcony.

"The last door, on the left side of the balcony," he said to her in a low voice, and Ernestine went up the stairs, half frightened, with this secrecy, walked forward again, toward the street, passed indifferent employees and opened an unmarked door, entered a private office, and closed the door behind her.

Ruby Pastano was standing by the green-curtained window, looking down into the street through a tray set held open with his finger. He turned to her.

"Mr. Pastano!" She did not know whether she was relieved or more frightened. At least, here was some one familiar.

"Will you shake hands with me?" He came to her, big, sober, non-committal and offered her his hand. Ernestine laid her hand in his big thick palm and noticed, as she did so, how extraordinarily long his fingers were, as he took her hand in both of his.

"I've been wondering, all the way over here, who it is that has been frightened and nervous all day."

"Sit down, won't you?" the voice, silky, soft, as always, had in it a note of gentleness that went to Ernestine's heart, in spite of her formed and set prejudices against Ruby Pastano.

He drew up for her a chair upholstered in red plaid, and she sat down, upright, ready for flight, on the edge of it. He seated himself before her on the empty desk.

"I didn't want you to come to my office, and I didn't want to go to your home, but I felt that I had to see you, Ernestine," he said gently, "do you believe that I am really friendly?"

Ernestine felt that the occasion was momentous. She felt herself thrust back from the ordinary conventional judgment of her sense and generation to something more fundamental. She answered naturally, honestly:

"Yes," she said, "yes, I do."

"Good," he said. "I've not done many unselfish things in my life, although I've done plenty that were dangerous—but for my own gain. But I'm going to do something for you now, I'm going to give you a chance to do something for somebody else. All last night I couldn't sleep, knowing that the plans that are coming forward today would ruin me. I know that I must work some change if it were possible. I wanted to take into account the existence of little Ernestine, knowing that I must at least give her her chance."

"What do you mean, Ruby?" she asked, her thoughts turning to Will. How could he be involved with this man? He had never had any contact with Pastano except the free contact of friendship. He had never had a favor from him.

"No," he said, reading her thought. "Not Will—but Loring—your sister's husband, Loring Hamilton. Did you know that is in trouble, and he's under the shadow of an indictment—for bribing witnesses, in federal court—serious business, Ernestine."

"You mean—the grand jury? But how did this happen? Tell me, please."

"I cannot tell you everything. It's a long story and involves a great deal of it is unwise and unnecessary. I can give you a few facts. A week ago today your brother-in-law was secure. His security was placed on his obedience. He had placed himself deliberately in a position where he had to do as he was told, in return for all that he had—and wanted. A week ago he decided to take a step that had been in his mind for some time. I knew that it was there. I was expecting it. Loring decided that he would break faith with me, cash in on his knowledge and cut the ties. He was thirsting for the water that he carried, but could not drink."

CONSTRUCTION ON CHURCH REPORTED

The work on the Lutheran church is practically finished, and the new annex will be dedicated early in December. There is some work yet to be done in the basement, but the major construction is complete.

The addition includes three Sunday school rooms, basement and furnace room, lavatory, kitchen. Mr. Ott Kinzel is the general contractor. The building was practically financed by funds left by the late Agnes Beelman, and the balance has been made up by various church organizations.

At the church supper given in the building last Thursday evening around $180 was cleared. More attended the delicious supper than was expected, but all were served. A potluck supper in honor of Rev. Sittler and family, was given Monday evening in the church. The pastor moved to Columbus on Tuesday, and though greatly missed by the congregation, is wished much success in the new work.

AUTO LICENSE TAGS FOR 1931 OUT SOON

Automobile license tags will again be ready for distribution about December 1, for 1931, according to announcement made by Frank Beverstock, Richland Automobile club secretary.

The serial for the Richland County Automobile Club members is again the same. Automobile owners should see to it that the old 1930 plates are removed before the first of the year as their use after midnight, December 31 is a misdemeanor subject to prosecution by police officials. The plates this year will be gray with black numerals and the first shipment sent out will be 1,800,000 sets for passenger cars, trucks, trailers, motorcycles and side cars.

An additional 200,000 will be available for use later in the year. Col. Chalmers R. Wilson, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, in compiling figures for materials used in plates, found that thirty-five car loads of steel, or 1,200 tons, had been used in their manufacture at the Ohio Penitentiary. There was also a total of 8,900 gallons of paint, 4,200 steel gray for the back of the plates, 3,500 for the front, and 1,200 gallons of black paint for the numerals.
