Mistake Discovered Too Late To Change; Another Election Is Probable.

The long-wrappers on the Huron side had another... mistake was a purely accidental one, as far as we can learn.

TRY WALLOP AT TOWN MARSHAL

Council Exonerates Burkett After Complainants Fail To Give Evidence

For several months reports of the activities of the village marshal's conduct were prevalent, and a wide range of gossip was spread about town by so and so, and who says I. Well, it all came to a head last Wednesday night when Marshal David Burkett appeared before the council for an investigation. Those against him were there and those for him were there, and for a while it proved a very interesting session. Sometimes, laughable, indeed. But in all sincerity after all the evidence presented to council, it was all that this body COULD DO but to exonerate our well beloved marshal. And so we are herewith publishing a statement by the mayor, and a resolution from the council, which you no doubt will find a good piece of reading:

For the past year the Council and I have been annoyed with reports from disgruntled citizens concerning the conduct of the Village Marshal. Most of these rumors seemed to have no foundation until the report came to us on Oct. 24, a specific act had been committed by our marshal which may be definitely and accurately investigated. We thought that since some people were so willing to complain verbally they may have a just complaint and they should be heard. Also out of fairness to Marshal Burkett, we thought an investigation was proper.

According to Sec. 4252 of the General Code the Mayor is charged with the supervision of all departments of the Village government, and according to Sec. 3792 of the General Code he is also given power to inquire into any reasonable complaint made against an official or deputy. However, in this case I feel that Marshal Burkett was elected by the people, and therefore the people should have a voice in his removal, if that was desired. The only way in which the people can be consulted on such matters is through their town council representatives, the Village Council. Accordingly I summoned a special

"Subway Express" at Cleveland Theatre

"Subway Express," the best mystery play produced last season, will begin a week's engagement at the Ohio Theatre Monday night, November 10th, with the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees. Of all the detective thrillers produced last season the opus of the subway by Eva Gray Flint and Martha Madison was the only one worth while. Therefore it lived and prospered for eight months in New York. It is a novel show, devoid of the clap-trap common to most thrillers and it never cheats. It tells a straightforward story and the entire action takes place in a moving subway train, and it is capital-ly acted by a cast of about forty.

Local folks will be quick to applaud the novel setting for it's an exact replica of a New York subway car. This car moves, rattles past local stations and makes the express stop. Passengers crowd in and depart at every stop. Lights blink and through the open windows you see passing trains. In this novel stage setting you see all types, the kind you will find in any underground railway. You find the hood-faced small merchant, flappers and shiks, and the motley crowd that uses the subway. Into this crowded car come two Wall Street men and the wife of one of them. There is a scuffle at Times Square, a shot is fired and one of the Wall Street brokers is killed. The police arrive, hold everyone in the car, and then comes Inspector Hannen, the role played by Leo Curley.

This police inspector is a suave individual, plain spoken and adroit at his profession. He suspects he has been summoned on an errand that any unformed cop ought to be able to handle. But when a medical examiner appears he finds he has a first rate murder mystery on his hands. Before he solves it another man loses his life. This all happens in front of the audience and they become as mystified as the police. With the passing lights, passing stations and intensely exciting situations, it is all first rate theatre and mighty realistic.

The humor of the piece, and there are many hearty laughs throughout the play, is not dashed in just for laughs, but is part of the story. Every bit is acted for all it is worth. As the police inspector, Leo Curley gives a fine performance of a difficult role. Others in the cast are Jack Byrne, Virginia Curley, Hugh Duffy, Maria Petts, William T. Hayes, Edward Everett Hale, Wall Spence, Ralph Simone, Maude Nolan and many others.

Science Column

KANGAROO RAT

It is a small and pretty ferocious-looking rodent of the southwestern United States. It has very long and strong hind legs and runs by a series of leaps with great swiftness. It inhabits arid regions, dwells in extensive burrows of its own digging, and feeds mainly upon sunflower seeds, great quantities of which are stored up for winter use, when the burrows are warmly furnished with grass. It belongs to the pocket mouse family, and is named Perodipus oncti by systematists. The Kangaroo mice are smaller American rodents of the genus Perognathus.

The Age of Animals

The duration of life in animals is generally between seven and eight years, the period which elapses between birth and adult, but this rule besides being vague and indefinite is quite useless in practice because it affords no scale of graduation which would enable us to ascertain the precise age of individuals, the only inquiry of real importance or of practical application to the interests of society.

More certain and scientific principles are derived from observing the growth and decay of the teeth.

SNAKES

Snakes constitute an order (Ophidia) in the class of reptiles which is characterized by an exceedingly elongate body, cylindrical or sub-cylindrical, and terminating in a tapering tail. The integuments are folded into fat imbricated scales, which are rarely tubercular or granular. The spinal column consists of a very great number of vertebrae, with which the numerous ribs are movably articulated.

Limbs are entirely absent, or only rudiments of the posterior occur many or less hidden beneath the skin there is no sternum. The bones of the palate and jaws are movable; the mandibles are united in front by an elastic ligament and are very distensible. Generally both jaws and the palate are toothed, the teeth being thin and needlelike. There are no eyelids, no ear opening. "The vent is a transverse slit.

The snake's tongue is narrow, almost worm like, generally of a black color and forked, it terminates in two extremely minute filaments.

Burrowing snakes which live underground have a cylindrical body generally covered with smooth polished scales, a short strong tail, few teeth, narrow head, and a small eye.

Snakes that live on ground, their body is cylindrical, flexible in every part, and has smooth keeled scales.

Tree snakes are not very often cylindrical, but compressed and slender. The eye is very large.

Freshwater snakes are very good swimmers. The nostrils are placed on the top of the head so as to be closed when under water. It has a tapering tail and a fat head.

Sea snakes have a compressed rudder like tail. They never leave the sea for they are unable to move on land.

"THE LATIN CLUB GOES OVER WITH A BANG"

The Latin Club was organized at their first meeting which was held Monday, October the thirteenth. The following officers were elected: President, Ruth Lebold; secretary and treasurer, Miriam Donnawirth; program committee, Helen Williamson and Thelma Fox. Each member chose a Latin name and the roll is called by these, each one answering in Latin.

Everyone wishes this club success and the best of progress. We also hope to hear as much from them and about them as about any of the other clubs.

Stanley Gribben.

FIRST VACATION OF THE YEAR

It is here and past—1930's first school vacation. From one year to the next we can think of the one vacation that we are sure to get. It is but one day long but in that day we can rest up, so the next Monday morning we can go back to school with vim and pep and try to do our best to succeed. For one day and one day is teachers' meeting. All Ohio teachers meet, some going to Cleveland and some to Columbus. It really doesn't matter which to us, just so we get our day off.

Paul Stoodt.

Come on folks, let's keep a watchful eye looking forward to the coming basketball season. Alright boys, let's make Mansfield eat your dust!

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

When we wake up in the morning and see frost on the ground and see people wearing winter coats, don't we naturally start indoor sports?

The high school girls started basketball with a bang. Twenty-four girls started practice last Wednesday.

Coach Pancoast laid down strict training rules but they won't be so hard to keep if you are going to try your best to make the squad.

There are six "little girls" including the following: L. Pugh, E. Shaver, M. Donnawirth, L. Hackett, M. Anderson, and L. Moore.

You will all remember that Luella Pugh was elected captain of this year's team.

The first game will be played with Greenwich, Nov. 22, at Greenwich.

SAW—FLIES

They are insects of the family Tenthredinidae, so called because the Ovipositors are constructed of parallel, toothed blades with which the females cut holes in vegetable tissue to receive their eggs. Unlike the wasps, bees, ants and other members of that order the abdomen is united by its full girth to the thorax, that is, it is sessile. In general they resemble other members of that order in having two pairs of transparent wings with rather few veins and cells, biting mouth parts and a complete metamorphosis. The larvae resemble caterpillars, but have at least six pair of legs instead of five as do the larvae of these other insects. They are very often slimy and they often keep part of their bodies curled beneath the edge of the leaves upon which they are feeding. They all feed upon living tissue and some are very troublesome upon cultivated plants. In this case they have been combated with an insecticide which must be eaten, though in some cases dust, forcible spraying with water, and other remedies have been reported effective.

CHAPEL

Chapel was opened by the song, "Come Thou Almighty King." Our speaker, Rev. Peoples, of the Methodist church, gave an interesting talk on Temperance. Announcements for the following week were made by Mr. Miller. Chapel was dismissed by singing, "Come All Ye Faithful."

Another Halloween party was given by the third grade Thursday afternoon. They are sure that they had a good time.

The third grade was discussing the word "beought", when one little man was asked the meaning of the word. He importantly answered "When you have company you hand them a chair and tell them to be sot, (beought)."

Fourth Grade

A Halloween party was given by the fourth grade Thursday afternoon. Games, contests and stories furnished the amusement for the afternoon.

There has been a contest raging between the Witches and the Redmen in arithmetic in the fourth grade. The purpose being to see which one, the Witches or Redmen should give the Halloween party. The outcome being a tie, the whole class gave the party.

Sixth Grade

The sixth grade amused themselves Thursday afternoon by a Halloween party. Games and contests were used to amuse the children. Refreshments of doughnuts and apples were served.

MISS YOUNG

I hardly know just what to write I know her oh, so little, And so just what to put down first Certainly is a riddle.

We know she's fine, brave and kind, It is shown by the manner she wears Her beaming face tells us not If she is laden with cares.

We love her, we honor her, She is truthful and sincere, And though we pass from her sight, We will hold the memory dear.

JOKES

She (to a shy Frosh)—You're he y spoken a word all evening, and yet you write such interesting long letters.

He—Yes, I've been thinking what am going to put in my next!

He—"See that funny duck out there. He's a cubist."

She—"Oh really? I'd just love to go to Cuba!"

He—"If you keep looking at me like that I'm going to kiss you."

She—"Well, I can't hold this expression much longer."

Dean, to star half-back: "I'm sorry Mr. Smith, but I will request your withdrawal from college."

S.H.B.: "Come, come dean, where's your school spirit?"

Frater—I came within an ace of winning the game.

Slidger—Then why didn't you?

Frater—The other fellow had the ace.

She—"Oh, Charlie, look I think it's up there now."

First Guy—"This little book tells you how to become popular with the girls."

Second Guy—"What style car does it recommend?"

Junior: "You know last year the doctor told me that if I didn't stop smoking I'd be feeble-minded."

Sophomore: "Was he? Why don't you stop?"

Prof: "Gentlemen, let me impress upon you that these conditions are ideal! Ideal! Ideal!"

Student (coming to): "All right, ante and deal them."

He: Oh, Goodbye.

He: A penny for your thoughts.

She: What do you think I am? A slot machine?

"Yes, we are planning to send little Egbert to M. I. F. He has such a cute tippled nose!"

Correl S.: "Ouch, I bumped my crazy bone."

John H. G.: "O, that's all right, just comb your hair and it won't show."

LET'S PASS ANOTHER LAW

Down in Kentucky some years ago passed a law against slanderous and libelous remarks. And after thinking things over a bit, we believe Ohio should have a similar regulation. At least after the investigation held by our village council last Wednesday night to determine whether or not Dave Burkett was the proper person to fill the position of marshal, we are more convinced than ever.

Witnesses who were summoned to testify against his character failed to go through... either a lapse of memory or a weak back, being the cause. It takes facts and proof to make a charge against an official, no matter what you may hear, and this was the result of a few who started a story, and it grew and grew and grew, and at the end Marshal Burkett was everything but a gentleman.

We commend council on its action in the matter. However, in the event that of one witness, just one, would have sworn to a positive fact, and proof enough to suffice it, then we would scathe that body for the resolutions printed elsewhere in this issue. But, as usual, when it comes to casting the first stone, there is none among us without sin, and we sink away into utter darkness.

And so comes the end of another series of gossip.

WHO'S THE GOAT?

A thorough investigation should be made into the error in the tax levy ballots which were passed to Huron county voters at the polls here Tuesday morning. We are not placing the responsibility on any one individual, but it is very easy for the finger of suspicion to be pointed, and which has been pointed, after such an affair. It is regrettable, indeed, for there has been enough chaos in village elections, and especially those concerning the schools.

The tax levy no doubt lost Tuesday on account of this mistake, and we are strongly in favor of the proper officials getting their heads together and righting an injustice to the public taxpayers. It is nothing but right that the school should have its levy. It takes money to run these institutions, and we believe that the majority of the voters are of the same sentiment. However, when it came to voting for FOUR mills instead of one and four-tenths, that changed our minds quite a bit.

The responsibility of the mistake has to be placed somewhere, and The Advertiser will not be fully satisfied until the person or persons makes admission of their error or misdoings. If it's the fault of the Richland county board in transmitting copy to the Norwalk board, we want to know it. In any case the public should receive a truthful explanation—not hearsays—and that's what we are here for—to give it to them, and we are going to try.

Will Rogers was wrong Tuesday. Rogers always maintained that the Democrats were O.K. but there wasn't enough of them. I suppose by now he has hunted up an alibi.

Now, we can find the way home. The village council has passed a house-numbering ordinance. So get your numbers ready.

meeting of your Council and place the charges before them. The charge consisted principally of misconduct in office and habitual drunkenness.

The Council did not feel justified in passing an opinion until they were sufficiently informed as to the nature of the act committed by Marshal Burkett, so they asked that a representative number of complaining witnesses be summoned and sufficient testimony be collected under oath to warrant a decision. At their suggestion I summoned twelve witnesses, namely:

Alvin Slatager, A. P. Cornell, Stacey Brown, Mrs. Jennett Baltzell, Edw. Phillips, O. J. Williamson, George Serwintz, Mrs. Emma Holtz, Edw. Sell, Wallace Slatager, Clinton Sorwine, Clarence Ervin. Out of the number summoned three were excused: Mrs. Emma Holtz on account of sickness, George Serwintz on account of sickness in the home, and Edw. Sell on account of a social engagement which he had planned for in advance of being summoned and which could not be cancelled without serious inconvenience to him. However, Mr. Brown, in a telephone conversation with me, stated that he had no objections to the conduct of the Marshal's Office and was perfectly satisfied with conditions in general. He also stated later that Mr. Sherbundy, of Willard, a Willard policeman, had information concerning Marshal Burkett's misconduct and that he thought he might be willing to divulge some secrets if he were called as a witness.

I told Mr. Brown that I would consider this clue to information but after due consultation with members of the council and owing to the fact that the Willard police department had not been on the most friendly terms for the past few years and the fact that if the people of Plymouth were satisfied with Marshal Burkett's misconduct and that he thought he might be willing to divulge some secrets if he were called as a witness. I told Mr. Brown that I would consider this clue to information but after due consultation with members of the council and owing to the fact that the Willard police department had not been on the most friendly terms for the past few years and the fact that if the people of Plymouth were satisfied with Marshal Burkett's misconduct and that he thought he might be willing to divulge some secrets if he were called as a witness.

I feel sure that every clue that the Council thought contained any reliable evidence concerning Marshal Burkett's conduct in office was investigated by them. Their action on the evidence was put in the form of a resolution and appears in this paper.

The public was not admitted to the hearing on account of lack of space in the mayor's office, but a typewritten report of the entire proceedings is on file with the Village Clerk and can be inspected by anyone concerned. The Council is indebted for this report to Raymond Brooks, a senior in the local High School, who wrote the entire proceedings in shorthand and made the neat typewritten copy for them.

Respectfully submitted,
J. B. Derr, Mayor.

RESOLUTION

Whereas on the 27th day of October 1933 this Council was called into special session by the Mayor to consider charges of misfeasance, malfeasance, gross neglect of duty, gross immorality and habitual drunkenness made against Marshal David J. Burkett, and

Whereas a representative number of citizens have been called as witnesses and examined by us, the said Common Council, on the 29th day of October, 1934, and

Whereas the evidence presented by the witnesses summoned and by Marshal Burkett showed:

That none of the witnesses had seen any action unbecoming an official of Marshal Burkett's rank;

That none of the witnesses could produce any evidence of misconduct except that gathered from rumors or hearsay.

That Marshal Burkett has been unjustly and maliciously criticized by unscrupulous gossipers, who have made a personal matter out of a difference in judgment.

That practically all witnesses were satisfied with the conduct of the Marshal's Office as far as malfeasance, non feassance, gross neglect of duty, or habitual drunkenness was concerned.

That a petition signed by fifty-three prominent business and professional men and women addressed to this body asking that Marshal Burkett be exonerated and that the charges be dismissed.

Now therefore be it resolved by the Council of the Village of Plymouth, Ohio, all members elected thereto concurring, that Marshal David J. Burkett, be, and is hereby, exonerated from the charges made against him.

Attest:
J. B. Derr, Mayor.
E. K. Trauger, Clerk.

EXPLANATION GIVEN OF PLYMOUTH ORCHESTRA

There seems to have been quite a misunderstanding about the write-ups and general comments on the orchestra which has come quite suddenly to existence. Although it is true that most of the members are high school students, it is not our high school orchestra. For the present, the following orchestra members may be called, "The Jolly 8."

Mrs. Elmsel—Piano.
Donald Petters—Saxophone.
Charles Groden—Clarinet.
James Shepherd—Trombone.

MARSHLAND FIRES YET ENDANGER HOUSES AND LIVES EARLY THURSDAY

The smoke and the stench from the burning marshlands west of the village has been quite noticeable during the last few days, and much anxiety is caused by the continued burning of the ground. For several weeks the smokes and flames have worried the residents of the territory, and have now become a definite menace to the property and lives.

High flames can be seen at times dangerously near the dwellings, and far out in the prairie land, and the dense clouds of smoke combined with the early fog, make traveling practically impossible and decidedly dangerous.

At times the soil, containing much decayed vegetation, burns to a depth of 10 feet, and a heavy fall of snow would be needed to quench the fire. Fires are burning on both sides of the Plymouth-Celeryville road and may undermine the concrete. Tractors are being used to plow around all buildings yet undamaged.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

J. W. Miller, Minister
Sunday, November 9, 1930
History is full of occasional men who attempt, what seem to other men to be impossible things. History also tells us that the men who attempted the impossible things were successful in their exploits. One of the obligations of a man is to perform, what seems to others, the impossible. Every man's duty is greater than his ability. When the mother places the one year old child against the wall, and commands the child to walk, it is impossible for the child to walk, and yet it is not the child's duty to try? The mother makes a temporary loan of her strength to the child who is attempting the impossible, and the child succeeds in walking. In a higher sense, God makes a temporary loan of His omnipotence to men who will let us use His power, and then they perform deeds that seem impossible. In spite of all the seeming difficult things in the way, God's Kingdom is coming, and there are those who are doing large things to bring about His Kingdom. Thy Kingdom Come will be the end

Annual Seal Sale Opens Nov. 28

Jolly old Santa himself waves a greeting from the 1930 Christmas health seal. Bearing the inscription "Terry Christmas, Health To All," seventy five million of these tiny health stickers are being distributed throughout the state by the Ohio Public Health Association in preparation for the twenty fourth annual seal sale which opens November 28 and closes December 24.

The sale of Christmas health seals is put on each year by local affiliated public health leagues in every county of the state as a part of a nation-wide fight against tuberculosis.

The fact that this fight cannot be won until the disease is entirely eradicated is being stressed by John W. Bricker, Columbus, chairman of the Ohio Christmas Health Seal Committee. This committee which hopes to raise $400,000 for tuberculosis prevention and control work in 1931, is composed of presidents of fourteen state-wide organizations interested in health.

"Though the tuberculosis death rate has been halved during the victorious advance of preventive measures during the past few decades, it is still the greatest single cause of death among young Americans between the ages of fifteen and twenty-five," says Mr. Bricker. "As citizens of Ohio, interested in the health and welfare of the state, we should consider it a privilege to give our whole hearted and generous support to the sale of the Christmas health seal."

TIPS ON THE STORAGE OF WINTER VEGETABLES

In storing vegetables for the winter, states A. W. Marlon, specialist in gardening at O.S.U. it is a good idea to select only sound vegetables to store them in crates containing not much more than a bushel each, to provide adequate ventilation. Most root crops require a storage place having fairly high humidity. If the humidity is low, it can be raised by sprinkling water on the cellar floor.

"Vegetables like pumpkins, squash, onions, keep best when stored in a warm dry place. In the case of celery, good storage actually improves the quality. When celery is stored in a little damp earth that is kept moist it grows and becomes crisp.

Where a cool cellar is not available, it is best to store vegetables in trenches covered with dirt and straw. Heat beans and peas in an oven, treat them with carbon bisulfide to kill any weevils, before storing in a warm dry place.

Entomologists anticipate little damage from Hessian fly to next year's wheat crop. Insects now seen in wheat fields are plain locust migrating to their winter host, the apple tree, they say.

EFFECT OF DROUGHT AND SLUMP IS MEASURED BY ECONOMIC STATISTICS

The effects of lower prices for farm products and the drought on the Ohio farmer's income, have been measured statistically by V. R. Wertz, research professor of rural economics at O.S.U., Columbus.

Wertz found that the farmer's gross cash income has been 15 per cent lower in the 12 months period ending September 30, than during a similar period ending that date a year ago. This income also is less by about the same amount than for the five-year average of 1924-25.

Income from major sources lowered uniformly, according to Wertz. Income from sale of hogs, cattle and sheep was less by 16 per cent, from dairy products and grains 15 per cent, from poultry and eggs 17 per cent, and from potatoes 12 per cent.

A decrease in the number of hogs sold and a general decline in live stock prices are the causes of the lowered income from livestock products. Reduced incomes from dairy and poultry products were caused, in the main, by lower prices, although milk production in Ohio was 3 per cent less during this last 12 months period. Lowered income from sale of grain was due to lowered prices. The quantity of corn sold increased 15 percent, but the estimated amount of oats sold fell off 41 percent.

The income from wool decreased 26 percent, the greatest decrease of any major Ohio farm product. The Ohio farm price of wool in June was 22 cents, 11 cents less than a year ago.
