2000 Visit New Willard Hospital

MANY ROOMS FURNISHED BY WILLARD ORGANIZATIONS AND LOCAL MERCHANTS

WILLARD, O., — Approximately 2,000 visitors registered at Willard's new Municipal Hospital on Saturday, Sunday and Monday, the opening days for the new institution, and hundreds assembled in the dedicatory program given from the steps of the hospital.

A microphone and amplifiers were used and the voices were easily audible from two blocks. D. F. Stevens, Baltimore general superintendent of transportation for the Baltimore and Ohio, was chief speaker. Dr. Clarence S. Ordway, chief surgeon from East Side Hospital, Toledo, and Dr. E. V. Millholland, Baltimore, medical and hospital director for the Baltimore and Ohio, were other speakers. Mayor C. L. Willoughby thanked the citizens for their co-operation and the building commission for their untiring efforts in directing the building of so modern a structure at so moderate a cost. E. L. Wolfe was master of ceremonies and introduced each speaker.

Doctors and nurses, representing hospitals within a radius of 100 miles, were present for the program on Sunday afternoon. Guests were conducted through the hospital by the former hospital board, the building commission and the newly appointed board of trustees. Baskets of flowers had been placed in each room by the donors of the rooms and baskets in the halls and offices were gifts of citizens and visitors from other towns.

Positions in Bond Open for Musicians

All musicians in the community who believe that they may by June 1st, qualify for positions in a band to give the concerts this summer are invited to meet for weekly rehearsals beginning next Monday evening at 8 P.M.

This invitation applies to all musicians, whether or not they have been taking lessons from Mr. Crimm who has been giving lessons in the school every Monday throughout the winter. Mr. Crimm will select the more advanced of his pupils whom he thinks can qualify for places in the band and they will practice in his group. The less advanced pupils will continue to practice at 6 o'clock as has been their custom.

It is the plan to conduct weekly rehearsals throughout April, and then perhaps have two substitute each week in May in order to have a band ready to offer their services for concerts beginning June 1st.

VILLAGE BENEFITS THRU "JOHN LAW"

The village jail is getting its first coat of paint in years, thanks to "John Law."

"John Law" represented by Mayor J. B. Derr, placed a fine of $25.00 and costs against Floyd C. Powers of Willard on Friday, March 25, who was booked on a charge of driving while intoxicated. Powers was unable to pay his fine so Mayor Derr permitted him to work it out by serving as painter and plasterer. Powers is incarcerated at night and does his painting job, and a good job at that, during the day time. Mayor Derr says Powers will be on the job for about 21 days before his fine is paid up.

Clyde J. Richard, Jr. who was also fined $25 and costs on a charge of disorderly conduct paid his fine after pleading guilty and was not jailed.

Final Decision For White Way Deferred Until Public Is Sounded

Property Holders May Be Asked To Assume Half of The Cost Of New System.

Action concerning the White-Way discussed for Plymouth is to be deferred until the citizens of the village can be sounded as to their approval or disapproval of the proposition.

The situation was discussed previous and at the Village Council meeting which was held Tuesday night, and the decision reached that, taking all facts of the matter into consideration, it would be better for all concerned, to move slowly and wisely.

At some date in the near future a proposition will be drawn up and put up to the people by Mayor Derr and Councilman Lask, asking all property owners to pay one-half the cost of the White-Way. It was expected that the cost of the White-Way would be taken care of by the Light Fund of the Village, but the motion was made that property owners be asked to share one half of the expense and that the system be extended outside of the Square into the residential district.

There is at present sufficient funds to extend the White-Way into the residential district if the people of Plymouth are willing to assist. It is not quite fair to spend the sum of the entire fund on the public square without doing something to benefit the present lighting system of the principal streets.

It can be plainly seen that Plymouth does need a better system for the lighting of the town. The council believes that any improvement should be of a general nature over the entire town. Equality is aimed at for all residents as well as for those boosting for the Square.

Representatives of the Westinghouse Electric Co. of Pittsburgh were present at the council meeting to present plans and arrange a contract. Besides routine business, it was decided at the council meeting that Plymouth needed an art gallery. Any

MISERY MOON SCORES HIT FOR SECOND TIME

The P. T. A. play "Always in Trouble" presented Saturday night was a success, when one considers the blustery weather and the fact that most Plymouth people had seen the comedy two weeks ago.

"Always in Trouble" was repeated at the Auditorium of the high school after many requests, both from out-of-town people and local citizens. It may be stated that all characters playing their parts, put much more life and humor into the play, which began and finished without a hitch.

Between the second and third acts members of the high school glee clubs advertised their operetta to be given Friday.

TOM TOMS WHO? ASKS BEWILDERED POLICE COURT

Chicago—The court crier filled his lungs with a loud, throaty cry. "Tom Toms!" he shouted.

A lean and lank black cat padded majestically down the aisle, cleared the rail in a graceful leap, and regarded the judge with an insolent stare.

"Take him away," commanded Judge Herbert Immenhausen, but the feline hesitated as the feline at bar raised its paw languidly. "Don't stand there like a sissy, take him away!" and the janitor came to the bailiff's aid.

"Now about Tom Toms," said the judge. "Was that he?"

"Tom Toms!" croaked the crier momentarily.

A Chinese ambled down the aisle.

He remained unconscious all Tuesday, but was conscious for a time Wednesday. Beverly escaped with slight injuries. Both men were taken to a Toledo hospital.

ANNUAL CONGREGATIONAL MEETING WAS A SUCCESS

The Annual Congregational Meeting and Home Coming of the Presbyterian Church was held Thursday evening with a large representation present. An appetizing banquet was served in the social rooms at six o'clock prepared by the E. E. S. Division of the Ladies Aid.

Following the supper, the meeting was called to order in the Auditorium where devotions were held and reports given by every organization of the church. In each instance, the treasurer of the respective groups reported a net balance on hand, while the congregational report also showed a splendid balance on hand after all expenses had been paid. The Church Roll showed a substantial gain after deducting all removals by death and dismissals.

The elections of officers constitute one of the main features and resulted as follows: Elders—D. W. Danner and Chas. Ketter; other Elders now in office include Wm. Reed, Geo. Schoeff, Fred Nimmons and Ed Sherman. Trustees elected, E. Beryl Miller and Victor Munn; other trustees in office include R. H. Nimmons, L. R. Roberts, Ben Kuhn and Clarence Ehret. These officers are elected for a term of three years and the rotary system used.

Rev. J. W. Miller has been pastor of this church for the past eight years, and it is under his guiding hand that the church has been steadily growing. Many improvements have been made, including an up-to-date dining room, installation of furnace and re-decorations.

As to this meeting old members are welcomed back and new members made to feel at home.

Boy's Week to Be Observed Here

LOCAL LION'S CLUB PLANS TO SPONSOR PLANS FOR WEEK OF APRIL 26.

Boy's Week will be observed in Plymouth this spring. The date set for the opening day is April 25, which falls on Saturday. The Lion's Club is sponsoring the event and will see it through to a finish and success.

Boy's Week has been successfully planned and carried out in other villages and cities, Columbus and Cleveland being two leading examples. Plymouth has never before attempted the project which from all indications is being entered into with enthusiasm and pep.

There is something planned for everybody in the week. On Saturday the Club will take all the boys in the Junior and Senior High school that wish to go to the track meet, in which Plymouth participates to Mansfield. Sunday, April 27, will be Boy's Day in the church. A committee of one has been appointed for each church to arrange a program with the respective pastors. Stacy Brown will represent the Methodist church, Elmer Nimmons the Lutheran, and Elder Baldwin the Presbyterian.

Monday will be Boy's Day in the school. R. R. Miller was appointed to oversee activities for that day. Talks will probably be prepared on health and education. On Tuesday, Boy's Day in industry will be observed. Earl Heath was named to arrange with Superintendent hours in which the boys of the school could be taken through the shops.

Wednesday will be Boy's Day in Public Affairs. J. E. Nimmons will be in charge. This is one of the most important days, and has been the center of much discussion at various cities. At an election held at the high school last night will be elected to represent all public affairs and conduct affairs for one day. A mayor, council, etc., will be chosen. This election will be worthwhile watching and will be of tremendous interest.

Boy's Day in the Home is assigned to Harold Lippus, and definite plans have not as yet been made. Any home that has no boy, is asked to entertain some lad for the evening.

Hobby Day is in charge of Stacy Brown. A collection of the hobbies of all boys will be made, and the articles exhibited in some local store.

Saturday will be Out-of-Town Day for the boys of Plymouth. Rev. Himes of the Lutheran church will be in charge of this day. Contests and games will be featured.

All plans for Boy's Day in Public Affairs has not yet been settled, but in any case, the program will be held at the high school building by the students themselves, who choose those capable of representing them.

The idea of National Boy's Week was introduced to the Lion's Club by President Baldwin, in the meeting held Tuesday, March 18. At the last meeting the lobby from the new room at the high school building, the motion was definitely accepted and detailed.

Watch for future stories and information about National Boy's week in Plymouth, and plan to estimate how much your boy is worth.

"COLLEGE DAYS"
A Musical Comedy

EDITOR—Eloise Shaver

ATTENTION!

How many of you, in passing the new school building, have heard Coach Fenner's "Basketball Whistle"? It has become quite a feature and as many of you might be wondering, here is the explanation! No, she's not coaching a basketball team—the whistle merely means Attention! And who was unto the one who fails to observe its calling. After one operetta practice Miss Fenner found it utterly impossible to make herself heard over the vast multitude of choruses and after due and careful consideration she struck upon the idea of the whistle and she secured the "shrillest and loudest" made!

STORY OF "COLLEGE DAYS"

A baseball game furnishes the excitement for the opening of College Days. The Brinkdale College team is playing Fairview and the game has reached the last half of the ninth inning when the operetta opens. The scene is a portion of the campus on which a scoreboard is erected showing what is happening on the field.

"Davy" Carson wins the game for Brinkdale by knocking a home run. The Principals and chorus enter singing their college song. The hero Davy arrives via the shoulders of his admirers. When the excitement dies down he finds a few minutes alone with "Prexy" Smith's daughter, Dot, whom he loves and they come to an understanding.

But the villain loves Dot too, so he, with a local poolroom proprietor plot to have Davy accused of framing to throw a final game to the rival college, Fairview.

In act two the plans are well under way and through various villainous means DeForest really succeeds in driving Davy from the college in disgrace.

In act three DeForest confesses of his frame-up to Tubby and Davey aboard a ship, which is later wrecked. DeForest saves Davey and Tubby and he goes under with the sinking ship.

It is a great holiday at Brinkdale when Tubby and Davey return. Don't fall to see this musical comedy "College Days" at the Auditorium, Friday night, April 4th, 8:00 o'clock. Admission: Adults 35c; Children 25c.

BIG MINSTREL PICTURE "THE GRAND PARADE"

The two featured players, Helen Twelvetrees and Fred Scott, are players of signal ability. Miss Twelvetrees is a Broadway stage favorite, while Mr. Scott is famous as a concert singer. He is good-looking and his fine tenor voice registers beautifully. The supporting cast includes Richard Carle, famous musical com-

The Joy of the Cross From the Christ of the Cross

By Rev. J. W. Miller

What is the explanation of the remarkable tranquility that characterized the career of Christ? In the face of failure and in the midst of accumulating discouragements, He was ever calm and confident. Why this confidence? It is the confidence of the Cross, the comfort of an invincible resource at His command. He has something in reserve, a power of victory, held back which He knows will not fail Him, and upon which He is sublimely reliant. What explains the seemingly unreasonable joy of Christ? It was the joy set before Him, in the Cross which would win, where all else failed.

In these words, He expressed His joy, "And I, if I be lifted up will draw all men unto Me."

Up to the time, He spoke these words, He had not succeeded in drawing many to Him. Absolutely none in the sense and degree of devotion at which He aimed. The magnificent introduction of John the Baptist, "Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world," had fallen flat. The multitudes did not rush to the Lamb of God with their sins. By dint of personal effort, Christ succeeds in gathering a few followers, but their attachment to Him was imperfect. They could not be relied upon. With all their brave talk at times, they forsook Him and fled when the emergency which tested their loyalty, arose. His wonderful personality and His marvelous teaching obtained some attention at the hands of a few intellectuals in Jerusalem, who refused to identify themselves with Him openly. His miracles of healing gave Him evanescent vogue with the incurables of the city, but it was mainly for physical benefits they sought Him. Generally their interest in Him ceased at once, when they had received the benefit. On one occasion, He healed ten of them and only one of them had the grace to say as much as "thank you." In a time of hunger, He fed five thousand people, who seemed to appreciate what He had done, and took Him up as a promising political leader, since He could get them bread, without having them work for it. He stood in the High-way and in eloquent and passionate appeal for a following said, "Come unto Me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest," but they would not come. He could not draw men to Him by His beautiful character or the charm of His impressive personality. He did not succeed in winning them by His loving deeds or His majestic teaching, however much they rang with more than human authority. It is one of the saddest things in the world to see how Christ tried, and how all His efforts to awaken the deep responses of men, who were confessedly looking for the Messiah, seem unavailing.

We are standing now two thousand years on this side of that great event, and can appreciate even better than was understood at the time, the uniqueness of Christ's reliance upon His death upon the Cross. We can measure the human unreasonableness of such an expectation as He cherished in that event. It was entirely new appeal for power. Before Christ came, death was universally acknowledged as an almost cheerless misfortune. To die for one's country was an honorable death, but no one attached to it the ideals of victory. Jesus was absolutely alone in the conception that His death on the Cross would not be disaster; We must judge the disciples in great charity that they could not appreciate Christ's strange joy, and His astonishing assurance as He approached the Cross.

We who are living in the light of History are witnesses that from the hour of the Cross God's revelation of love began to move forward triumphantly. The brief ministry of Christ following the resurrection seems aimed to concentrate the eyes of the disciples on the Cross, as the opening of a new era for the thing for which He lived and taught. To the bewildered Thomas, Jesus had but one appeal. It was the appeal of the wounds of the Cross. In the days following His ascension, it is the spectacle of the son of God suffering on the Cross that filled the thoughts of the disciples. The burning message of Peter was burdened with the agony of the crucifixion. With that Christianity began to conquer. Every time the cross was successfully exhibited to men, the horizon of the Gospel visibly expanded. If the Apostles failed—and they sometimes did—it was because they failed to put the Cross forward. Paul went to Athens with high hopes. He came from Athens crestfallen and defeated. The secret of Paul's failure in Athens was, in part, that he said not a word about Christ being crucified. At the end of his speech at Mar's Hill he makes passing reference to the Resurrection, but there is apparently purposeful avoidance of a matter he knew, the learned Greeks would laugh at. He came directly, it appears to Corinth with a broken spirit. His ministry for the moment passes into eclipse. When he begins to preach again, as we read in the Second Chapter of his Letter to the Corinthians, it is with an expression of vehement resolution, that hereafter he is determined to put the Cross foremost in his message.

It has been so through all the centuries of Christianity. Wherever the followers of Christ have flung the Cross into the gaze of men Power has lighted on their standards, and wherever they put something else, however beautiful and good, to the front, men have not responded to their message.

In the death of Christ, there is a deep mystery, but it is a compelling mystery. At first its tragedy may appal the eyes, but it never fails to grip the attention of the heart. We can not place our hands upon the Cross and say that this or that is the secret of its appeal. The statement successfully penetrates the heart that beats in the drama of Redemption and carries the mysterious secret in it.

In the simple pictures of the Cross, which the Evangelists have left us, is revealed the Cross of Christ, which draws us to Him, as He said it would. We know, and we boldly affirm it that Christ crucified satisfied the hunger of the human soul for grace; that there on the Cross Christ out-loved all our human conceptions of love, that there He outuffered all human conceptions of suffering. We know that the Cross of Christ is the only place the sin-stricken spirit is emboldened to expose its sorrows in a full outpouring. We know for ourselves when life seems empty and deep griefs are barring us down, and we are drawn to THE CROSS OF CHRIST, and when we come there, we know though we cannot explain it, an identity of our sin with His sorrow, which the deep sense of an infinite pain fully equal to our infinite pathos, and is like the Balm of Gilead to our souls.

THE CROSS IS THE ONLY GREAT MYSTERY OF VITAL HUMAN EXPERIENCE, which does not need to be understood. Its comfort is all of grace. We rise from our prostration at its foot, not entranced of its light, but energized of its life. We cannot tell what has happened except to avow and confess, that a new joy, a new hope, and a new power has laid hold upon us.

$10,000,000 FOR HAPPINESS

In the vaults of a New York bank there lies $10,000,000 which is to be spent only to buy happiness for mankind. The money has been available for many months and was left by C. Harold Smith with the special provisions, but a brand of happiness worth that sum has not yet been found.

A prize was offered for the best suggestion and over 100,000 persons offered a solution. Henry E. Garrett of Columbia University was awarded the prize for his suggestion. It was this: "Stem the rising tide of mental ill health which bids fair to engulf us in the next few generations. Establish an institute with a staff composed of physicians, psychiatrists, psychologists and social workers and foster research about the nervous and mental diseases of which so little is known, give courses in mental hygiene and practical advice and guidance, particularly to parents of children who are truants, delinquents and otherwise maladjusted."

With the special bequest of Mr. Smith he stated that the poor think that they would be happy if they had wealth, but he adds that the rich know differently, for with more cares there is less happiness. . . . This is true to a certain extent and it is quite possible that a great many of us would not be capable of handling such a vast amount of wealth. However, what will an institute of knowledge do for the man who walks the streets day after day seeking honest employment to bring food into the house for his family who have as good a right to be in existence as those of the fortunate circumstance who raise dogs and canary birds?

Mr. Smith should have outlined his own wishes for the disposal of this vast amount instead of leaving it in the hands of so-called prominent executives and administrators whose services will amount to huge proportions of the initial amount and will eventually drift into oblivion while thousands of American, well-deserving families, live on crusts of bread.

DISCIPLINE

A judge has observed that the average criminal a few years ago was a middle-aged man, but most of the criminals now are from seventeen to twenty-four years old. . . . The war has been over for ten years and there isn't much left to the hectic period that followed it, with its upsetting of old standards and little blame can be placed on the theory that the war caused a wave of crime by those hardened as gunmen overseas. . . . The judge recommends sterner home discipline. Personal discipline might be considered the great need of our people today. We get discipline in business, and perhaps in school, but not much elsewhere. The home is the place to start. If children do not have self-control, perseverance, team work and regard for other people's rights drilled into them at home, they cannot be expected to fit into the social organization later on.

WEATHER WISDOM

Observing the weather is the avocation of a man in Keedysville, Md. He has been official weather man for his county for twenty-five years, and is perhaps the only person working for Uncle Sam that length of time without salary. He pays for his bread and butter some other way. His weather work is a labor of love and enjoyment. . . . A great many persons who don't notice the weather unless it annoys them will think this queer. But it is quite true that the more one studies the weather the less he is annoyed by its vagaries and the more thrilled he is by its amazing variety. Even fog, rain, blizzards and cold winds become enthralling to the habitual weather observer.

Chicago man who cooked the meals and washed the dishes and gave his wife ALL his wages for twenty-three years has brought suit for divorce. We can't imagine a man with so many privileges breaking up his home. Maybe he was peeved because his wife wouldn't let him do the washing and ironing.

Unquestionably the automobile has made it possible for people to do a lot of traveling and see a lot of territory they wouldn't otherwise have seen. But why give the auto all the credit? Prohibition has done the same thing.

Say nothing and people will think you are smart. Especially if they have just asked you what you think about congress. . . . And wouldn't it be great if congressmen's speeches were about this long?

The Norwalk vaults by hand into one solid piece of masonry, through its eternal protection, every detail of burial becomes an everlasting tribute to the dead.
