MRS. JOE LASCH DIES SUDDENLY

Community Sorrows as Young Mother of Three Children Passes Away Saturday

The last rites for a young mother of Plymouth were finished Monday afternoon in Greenlaw. Mrs. Clara Williams Lasch answered the call of her maker Saturday evening at 8 o'clock.

Death came suddenly at her home on Park avenue, after a short, but severe attack of heart trouble. She was taken ill about 6 o'clock and the medical aid rendered was to no avail. As Mrs. Lasch had greeted many friends on the street Saturday afternoon while shopping, the word of her death came as a great shock and many were inclined to doubt the validity of the report.

Surviving is the husband, Joseph A. Lasch, and three children, Clyde and Clara, aged ten years, and Joseph Jr., aged three years. The parents of the deceased also survive, her mother, Mrs. John Williams, of Centerton, two sisters, Mrs. L. Henry, of Elyria, and Mrs. Fred Heiser, of Centerton, and three brothers, Albert, of Elyria, Clarence and Glenn of Centerton.

Services were held at the Lutheran church at 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon. Rev. M. Himes officiating. The Alice Willett class, of which Mrs. Lasch was a member, attended in a body. Business in Plymouth was halted for the space of an hour while the community paid its last respect to the 33 year old mother and wife. The saddest rites are those held when a mother is taken from children who need and will continually miss her.

Mrs. Lasch was the youngest daughter of her parents, and was born on October 20, 1896. She was united in marriage to Joseph A. Lasch in April, 1918. She had three children, and was a member of the Lutheran church, and after making Plymouth her home transferred her membership here. Mrs. Lasch has been associated in business here for the past seven years.

CIVIL WAR VETERAN DIES FEW HOURS BEFORE DAWN OF LAST MEMORIAL DAY

There will be the observance of Memorial Day down through the ages as America pays tribute to her dead. But the number of cities and villages which have no soldiers in their ranks and thus increase each year.

The last Comrade to decorate the graves of his fellow soldiers, at Greenwich, passed away the day before Decoration Day dawned. Phillip Snyder, aged 83, died Wednesday evening at the Soldiers' Home in Sandusky.

Snyder was born in Greenwich and lived all his life in that community. It was just a year ago that his wife passed on, and the old soldier closed his home on Main street and entered the home in Sandusky, to be near other comrades of the army.

His many years he had decorated the Union graves in the Greenwicks cemetery, in company with E. N. Jones, who died about one year ago, leaving Snyder to carry on alone. The deceased is survived by three sons, Bert, Shelby, and Leland, of Greenwich, and one daughter, Mrs. Helen Snyder, of Sandusky.

Two men, W. D. and Ed Delbert, who gave their residence as Plymouth, were arrested Friday and taken to Shelby on the charge of chicken stealing.

Burt Baker, Shelby, notified police Wednesday night that thieves were robbing his chicken house. Officers rounded the offenders, and gave chase. The license number of the machine in which the robbers fled was taken, and the chickens were recovered in an adjoining wheat field where they had been thrown.

SHELBY MATRON DIES LATE SATURDAY EVE

Last Rites Held Tuesday Afternoon For Wife of Globe Editor

On Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock funeral services for Mrs. Mary Grace Castor of Shelby, were held from the family home on North Gamble street. Rev. D. B. Young, of the First Lutheran church, of which she was a member, officiated. Burial was made in Oakland cemetery.

Mrs. Castor, wife of R. L. Castor, editor of the Shelby Globe, passed away on Saturday evening, about 9:45 at the Shelby Memorial Hospital. Death followed sickness which kept the deceased in ill health since January. An attack of tonsillitis and grip in the late winter was followed by other complications. Two weeks ago Mrs. Castor was removed to the hospital but efforts made for her recovery were unsuccessful.

Surviving is the husband, and daughter, Mary Elizabeth, her father, S. P. Stambaugh, and brother J. C. Stambaugh. She was preceded in death by her mother, in 1909, a brother, Luther, in 1920, and a three year old son, Tom, in 1918.

Her entire life was spent in the community of Shelby except for seven years, when, as a girl, she lived with her parents in Atchison, Kansas. At the time of her death Mrs. Castor was 49 years of age. Her father, Mr. S. P. Stambaugh, is one of the oldest citizens of Shelby, and was among the early residents.

She was united in marriage to R. L. Castor in April, 1904. Public bearers were business men of Shelby, A. J. Gray, C. C. Bloomfield, R. A. E. Gray, Carl Daugherty, H. D. Shreffler, and C. J. Laser.

PLYMOUTH PAYS HER VETERANS TRIBUTE

Despite Chilling Winds Goadly Crowd Pays Homage

Threatening weather and a chilling wind did not prevent Plymouth from paying tribute on Memorial Day to her sons who marched to wars of the past. When taps were sounded over the low hills of Greenlaw, those who were citizens of America thought not only of those who no longer wear the blue, the grey, the khaki, but prayed that the call to arms might never be heard again.

Flags and flowers colored the parade that entered the cemetery at 10 o'clock Friday morning. Two ponies decorated with the natural colors headed the line. In order followed the Plymouth band, the color guard, the machine in which rode the two remaining members of the G. A. R., Frank Tubbs, and Tom Hand. Ezra Koehender being unable to be present, the E. H. Post, No. 447, American Legion, of which William Wecker is commander, the Ladies' Auxiliary, a number of cars, the Girl Scouts, and the group of school children, the color guards for the Girl Scout flag were Juanita Freiling and Siddall Thomas.

The opening prayer was given by Rev. J. W. Miller. The Rev. Courtland Miller, of Louisville, Kentucky, gave one of the finest Memorial Day addresses ever presented in Greenlaw. The purpose of the Memorial Day custom, he said, is to keep in the minds of many, is to "pay tribute to the men and women who have paid the price of America." Though it is customary of the majority to seldom consider the past, and to worry less about the far future, let it not be forgotten that the present is built upon the work of that past.

Rev. A. M. Himes, at the close of the address, gave the benediction. A salute was fired, answered by taps beyond the hill, and the morning was closed as the band played "To Star Spangled Banner."

BADGER, WEIGHING 22 POUNDS, SHOT ON MUCK

A badger, believed to be the only one of its kind ever shot in Ohio, was shot in the marshland west of Plymouth by a Kentuckian. The man, who was hunting, shot the animal thinking it to be a woodchuck. The badger weighed 22 pounds. It was taken to the sporting goods store of Bob Smith, in Willard, where it will be kept for display after being mounted.

BUSINESS BETTER BANKER STATES

President American Bankers Association Says Conditions Are Steadily Improving

DAYTON, Ohio, June 5.—General business is on the up-grade, John G. Lonsdale, President of The American Bankers Association, declared here today in addressing the members of The Ohio Bankers Association attending their Fortieth Annual Convention.

"There is no question but that general business conditions are improving," he said. "The speed with which our property returns, however, is dependent on a small measure upon sufficient rains and favorable weather which we hope will be ordered by a kind Providence."

"Gazing ahead toward the horizon I see a much better day. When this arrived, the not too distant future, we may feel assured that business in general as well as banking will emerge in a stronger condition than ever."

Urging bankers and business men to be alert, Col. Lonsdale pointed to the methods used by scientists in solving problems by analysis.

"In the business and banking world," he said "economic research and analysis serve as the microscope through which we are enabled to see basic factors more clearly and thus determine the causes of success and failure. Only recently have we begun to eliminate the guess-work that was characteristic of industry a few years ago."

"Eliminate the guess and you will reach success," might well be a motto for all. "Lonsdale suggested, citing the case of the twice-year inventory that has been supplanted by modern business science which uses daily condition reports always up to date.

"A few years back the all-important problem of industry was production," he said. "Now that the art of production has been mastered, the new challenge to 20th century thinking is the development of added markets for our goods."

Turning to the question of individual business, he said:

"Some seem to think that the day of the individual in business has passed, but they are wrong. While the individual may not attract such outstanding attention as he did in the days of old when institutions were conducted on a smaller scale, he nevertheless is to be found in any large corporation, dominating the situation."

"Even in the gigantic mergers that have taken place within the last two years there remains more than ever the need for a leader, an aggressive personality."

WHAT'S BECOME OF THE WHITE WAY?

An article in The Greenview Enterprise tells of the improved white way Greenview is planning, and from what we read it is going to be a real addition to the town in the way of beautifying its streets, and it will also be a marker of progress for that community.

Plymouth has been talking about lighting the public Square for months but as yet council has taken no action. However, we hope that the meeting of this body this week will bring some results along this line. We do not believe in spending surplus funds in a foolish way, but we believe that proper lights in the Square will be an asset to the town and that we will greatly benefit from them.

It is true that the village council has other matters possibly of more importance, but that is no reason why a delay in the White Way should be tolerated.

When mention of the project was first made there were a few of our residents who wanted their own streets included in the program. So selfish, these few, saying that if the business men secured lights for the Square, that they were also entitled to them in front of their private homes. It might be well to look over the records and see who spends the most money for lights and power, the business men on the Square or the individuals at home. But we are confident that these remarks were made in haste, and that all of the residents of our home town would like to see the project voted on and the work rushed through.

What say you Mr. Mayor and Councilmen?

ANOTHER LAWYER'S PARADISE

With the deliberate planning and slaying of the young mother and wife at Ashtabula last week, and with confessions coming in from both sides, the lawyers, and the law in general will have another fiesta.

Sometimes it makes the taxpayer look to bolshevism for relief when we see the great sums of money expended on court cases when there is no earthly need of it. However, law is law, until it is changed. The law says that a man is innocent until proven guilty. In America it costs us billions a year to run our courts. But in England, the offender has the worry, for under their persons charged with a crime is guilty until proven innocent.

"Give the people light and they shall find their way." And in a few years things in this country will be changed to meet present day conditions. Statutes appear on our law books that were made years ago when possibly the entire population of Ohio would number about half of Cleveland's present day population. And when such changes come about over a period of years, then we must change our system of government to conform with present day conditions.

FORD AND THE DEMONS

The really important news of the day is not always the news that gets the big headlines in the newspapers. Often it is something that almost goes overlooked entirely.

A writer in the current issue of the Golden Book Magazine, for instance, discloses that more than a million copies of Henry Ford's autobiography have been sold in Russia recently. He adds this remarkable sentence: "There were many instances where whole villages met to hear chapters of the book read aloud."

There is a singular appeal to that statement, somehow, and the state of mind that it reveals may in the end turn out to be one of the most important tendencies of the day in all of Europe. Whenever you ponder on the future, you might bear in mind that fact about Russia and Henry Ford's autobiography.

The Russian village is as unlike the American village as anything that can be imagined. A Russian moving picture director, coming to Hollywood to try his hand at movies in the American style, recently revealed that his company, going on location in a Russian village not long ago, nearly caused a wholesale panic simply because the cameramen all wore gloves. The superstitious villagers, he said, believed that the cameramen were demons from the underworld, and wore gloves to conceal the fact that they had hooks where their hands ought to be!

In that anecdote, then, you have an insight into the outlook of the Russian village. Remembering that, it is not striking, beyond words, to picture these same Russian villagers so ready to believe in hook-handed devils from the kingdom of darkness sitting in circles to hear the local wise men read chapters of the life story of Henry Ford? Could the old and the new come into more amazing contrast?

It is no accident that the Russians have set up Ford as a major prophet. The whole nation is striving, with incredible pains and turmoil, to get into step with the modern era; why should not its ignorant villagers select as their idol the man whose career and achievements typify the modern era so perfectly?

These Russians have hit on a truth that we usually overlook. In the modern use of machinery—the kind as exemplified by Ford, though he is not its only exponent by any means—there lie potentialities of simply enormous significance. No matter how imperfectly these potentialities have been realized so far, it is nevertheless true that they have given humanity an incomparable weapon for its age-long fight against misery and want. For the first time in history it is possible for people to produce more than they need of everything.

That is the one great fact of the twentieth century. This Russian worship of Henry Ford is simply their way of recognizing it.

A WONDERFUL NEIGHBOR

Canada is a wonderful neighbor. We Americans are realizing this more and more every year through the cordial invitations we receive to come up where the country is open and the spaces are free, and (although no mention is made outright) where the parched tongues may be quenched. And as a result Canada is piling up millions of dollars in her treasury each year. This week we are publishing the map of several motor trips through the Dominion, and we do not doubt believe that many of our residents will take advantage of a trip to Canada.

The Democrats are going to have a hilarious time down at Columbus this week at the "Victory Day" banquet. Well, at least they won one victory when Al Smith was defeated.

There is just one wish that we hope comes true some day. We'd like to capture the fellow that ran off with Norwalk's bonds, with which the city had voted to improve its main street. And if we caught him we'd make him ride over the thoroughfare in its present state of condition. That would be punishment enough for most any crime.

SUPT. BELL SPEAKS AT TWP. COMMENCEMENT

Superintendent Bell, who spoke at the 8th grade commencement of the Richmond schools, in his usual interesting and clever manner opened for the graduates a "pod of P's". The first "P" he called "Picking your job," which is an important step as we discover our talents.

The second "P" was Preparation, a life-time job. The world is filled with people who have stopped growing. As soon as any member of the physical body atrophies without use. Mr. Bell reminded his audience of Webster's famous Seventh of March Speech. When some one congratulated the orator on making such a speech without preparation, he replied that he had been preparing to make that speech for twenty years.

At this time there often comes the urge to quit school. Mr. Bell quoted convincing facts from statistics which show that the college graduate has one chance in forty to spend in life; the high school graduate, one chance in four hundred; and the eighth grade graduate, one chance in four thousand. There is always room at the top.

The third "P" was Pep. Don't be content with hoping for a thing. Go get it! The boy who, upon observing the sign "Boy wanted," picked up the sign, carried it into the office saying, "Here is your sign, and here I am!" has a pep which ought to help him succeed.

One boy says, "I can," and he will; the other boy says, "I can't," and he wits. One must do all he can and then some. The "then some" gets the promotion. The power of concentration is a great need today.

The fourth "P" was Perseverance which is "genius plus." Instead of following the crowd, make the crowd go with you.

The fifth "P" presented was Physique. A clean life is essential to success. "I have seen many advertisements of breakfast foods," remarked Mr. Bell, "but none was composed of wild oats. Not wishing to make a temperance speech at all, Mr. Bell warned the boys and girls that when they began to indulge in the use of cigarettes and liquor, they were beginning to ruin their chances of success.

The sixth "P" of the pod, Mr. Bell called "Personality, which he defined as character, or the enduring part of a man. Some people look very sweet from the outside. So does a genuine pill. After emphasizing the physical, mental, and spiritual phases of life, Mr. Bell said that one's destiny depended upon character—the sum total of one's habits; one's habits are the things he does, and the things he does result from the things he thinks. "It isn't the job, but the way you fill it, which counts," said Mr. Bell.

SERVING MANY BUSINESSES
Experience of large fleet owners reveals the unusual reliability and economy of the new Ford

A SIGNIFICANT TRIBUTE to the value of the new Ford is found in its increasing use by Federal, state and city governments and by large industrial companies which keep careful day-by-day cost records. In most instances, the Ford has been chosen only after exhaustive tests of every factor that contributes to good performance—speed, power, safety, comfort, low cost of operation and up-keep, reliability and long life.

Prominent among the companies using the Ford are the Associated Companies of the Bell System, Armour and Company, The Borden Company, Continental Baking Corporation, Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, General Electric Company, Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, Kellogg Company, Knickerbocker Ice Company, Morton Salt Company, Pillsbury Flour Mills Company, The Procter and Gamble Company, and Swift & Company.

Each of these companies uses a large number of Ford cars and trucks. The Associated Companies of the Bell System use more than eight thousand.

Modern business moves at a fast pace and it needs the Ford. Daily, in countless ways and places, it helps to speed the production and delivery of the world's goods and extend the useful service of men and companies.

Constant, steady operation over many thousands of miles emphasizes the advantages of the sound design of the Ford car, its high quality of materials, and unusual accuracy in manufacturing. Beneath its graceful lines and beautiful colors there is a high degree of mechanical excellence.

An example of the value built into the Ford is the use of more than twenty ball and roller bearings. They are hidden within the car and you may never see them. Yet they play an important part in satisfactory, economical performance. Their function is similar to the jewels of a fine watch.

Throughout the Ford chassis, a ball or roller bearing is used at every place where it is needed to reduce friction and wear and give smooth, reliable mechanical operation.

At many points, as on the transmission counter-shaft, clutch release, fan and pump shaft, and front drive shaft, these ball and roller bearings are used where less costly types of bearings might be considered adequate.

Additional instances of the high quality built into the Ford are the extensive use of steel forgings, fully enclosed four-wheel brakes, Rustless Steel, four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers, aluminum pistons, chrome silicon alloy valves, torque-tube drive, three-quarter floating rear axle, and the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield.

The Ford policy has always been to use the best possible material for each part and then, through large production, give it to the public at low cost.

Famous Choir to Give Concert

For the first time a local audience will have an opportunity to hear the result of a combination of a master-musician and the best voices of a college which emphasizes musical training when the St. Olaf Choir appears Thursday evening, June 12th at the Mansfield H. S. auditorium in Mansfield.

For Dr. P. Melius Christensen, the choir's director, who conceived the organization a quarter of a century ago, is credited with its rise from obscurity to first rank among the choral organizations of the world and which this summer takes it to Europe for its second concert tour there.

Each year at least 300 students at St. Olaf College, a liberal arts school with an enrollment of slightly more than 1,000 students, "try out" for the choir. Dr. Christensen selects clear, strong, unspiced voices. Then he begins his training process.

And what a process it is! Every day except Sunday his 60 selected singers come together in the Gothic stone music building on the tree-covered campus for rehearsal. And over the broad summit of Mantion Heights, rich in Indian tradition, on which the college rises, ring out the voices of his choirs.

There is training in fundamentals, in breathing, in simple harmony. Dr. Christensen is careful to pick only voices which will blend well for in harmony lies the secret of his success. Gradually, he produces selections harder than those before. Soon he gets into the field in which the choir specializes, the rich old chorals of Bach, of Liszt, Beethoven and other old masters.

Many of these are so intricate in their arrangements that drilling singers is a feat in patience for anyone. But Dr. Christensen is always confident of ultimate success. He enjoys his work.

"ARIZONA KID" WITH WARNER BAXTER FULL OF COLOR, THRILLS

"It was a long way from Hollywood—but I was never so happy."

Mona Maris, the Argentine beauty who scored so heavily in "Romance of Rio Grande" with Warner Baxter, was speaking of her experiences in filming "The Arizona Kid," a great outdoor romance on Movietone in which she again appears opposite Baxter.

"It was all much of a surprise," Miss Maris said. "Although I have been in this country for a year and a half, I had never been away from the big cities. As a child I used to see 'Westerns' and wonder if such scenery really existed, and even on making 'Romance of Rio Grande,' we never got much beyond a barren desert.

"When they told me I was to go to Utah for two months to film 'The Arizona Kid' I made all kinds of preparations. Alfred Santell, the director, said we would live only in tents, that there was no light or heat or water, and that we would have to 'rough it' all the time. So I brought boxes full of candles, and a portable oil stove, and dozens of bottles of alcohol for bathing purposes, and a trunk full of blankets.

"We got to the railroad at Center City, Utah, and encountered plenty of snow. I shivered. And then we went down about 3000 feet in fifty miles, driv'ng to the camp, and found the weather just like Hollywood. Instead of tents, we had comfortable cabins, with coal stoves and electric lights, and a shower bath and everything—even to rugs and easy chairs. All my carefully purchased articles were useless. But the country there, on the edge of Zion National Park and its wonderful mountains and buttes, is so glorious that I didn't mind the joke the director had played on me."

Screen fans who enjoyed "In Old Arizona," Baxter's first Western talkie, are sure to be delighted with "The Arizona Kid," according to preview reports. The picture opens at the Castamba theatre next Sunday for a three day run with a supporting cast of such favorites as Carol Lombard, Mrs. Jim Hines, Theodor Von Eltz and Arthur Stone.

A Real Tribute to the Dead

In the United States—until very recently—the good and bad alike were buried in sodden, mouldy graves with only a pretense of protection in wooden or metal boxes. But every up-to-date funeral director now uses the Norwalk Vault. Made of moulded reinforced cement, it is airtight, and moisture-proof. The Norwalk seals by hand into one solid piece of masonry. Through its eternal protection, every detail of burial becomes an everlasting tribute to the dead.

All good Funeral Directors use the Norwalk Vault—the best Directors insist on it. Made by

SILVERWARE BLUE LAWS FOR THE CORRECT HOSTESS

In setting the table care should be taken to place the silver so that the handles are in an even line, about one inch from the edge of the table.
The knives, of course, with their cutting edges turned in, all spoons and the oyster fork go on the right and the forks on the left of the service plate. Only those pieces actually to be used are put on the table and they are placed in order of their use. The dessert spoon and fork, the fruit knife and a fork are always brought in on their respective plates. After dinner coffee spoons, belong on the saucers of the cups.
