ROAD BUILDING FUND REPORTED

Road Construction May Assist Jobless, But Mr. Taxpayer Should Be Remembered

Reports reaching Washington from all parts of the Union indicate that road contracts awarded for the first three months of this year were more than double those for the same period of last year. Thirty-five states reported a total expenditure for the first quarter of $114,000,000. Ohio is in the front rank of the states reporting large expenditures, with road contracts for the first quarter of $17,750,000.

These figures indicate a sincere effort on the part of the government officials to relieve unemployment by the prompt expenditure of road building funds. Ordinarily as is the case, the tax-paying public is vitally interested in another phase of this subject. That is the question whether these expenditures are being made economically, so that the road dollar may go as far as possible.

If road building expenditure is unnecessary or wasteful it may relieve unemployment temporarily, but it does not relieve the taxpayer. If the taxpayer has to become too heavy, we are only adding to the difficulties of our present economic situation.

One criticism which may be fairly made concerning our policy of highway construction is the tendency of some engineers to tear up old highways now in excellent condition merely because the roadway is too narrow for present day traffic. A recent example of this is the Marion-Gallon road extending northeast of Marion. This surface was smooth and level, with a foundation of well compacted material not less than 12 to 14 inches in thickness.

An expenditure of $45,000 was made to widen this road, and a second road near Washington Court House, 4 feet less in width, while it would save the best money to build the additional strip on either side of the existing pavement.

The conservation of existing foundations and surfaces, when these are in excellent condition, would provide funds to replace worn-out pavements on state highways which now have no permanent pavements worthy of name.

It is well to relieve unemployment, but it is also well to relieve the taxpayers.

FIRST COTTON BLOOM IS REPORTED FROM GA. FIELD

Slightly different from recent reports coming in from farmers of Ohio, is the statement of a Georgia farmer who reported the first cotton picked for the season.

In a Georgia newspaper he made the statement, "I am sending the first cotton bloom from the fields of my place this year. It is looking very good in this section."

Other reports are given that cotton is better than usual at this season. Perhaps the cotton plants heard all about the latest tariff activity.

Child Injured by Auto Saturday Suffered by Marie Reiveld

Marie Reiveld, eight year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Reiveld, narrowly escaped death or permanent injury Saturday evening when she was struck by a car while crossing Sandusky street.

The accident occurred about 7:30 o'clock in front of the child's home. A slight fracture of the skull above the left eye was sustained and severe bruises and abrasions about the body. The girl, as seen by witnesses of the accident, ran into the path of a Chevrolet sedan driven by John Fogle of Plymouth, headed north, as she attempted to cross the street where she had left a number of playthings.

The car swerved, but the back fender struck the child. Though unable to walk, she crawled several feet before assistance could reach her. Medical aid was immediately given at the office of Dr. S. Holtz. An examination given later at the Willard hospital where the child was taken, revealed no internal injuries or broken bones. As a large dent was made in the fender, the girl is quite lucky to have escaped with what injury she suffered, and at present is resting easily at her home and is able to be up and about the house.

The driver of the car is not to be blamed for the accident.

Reiveld moved here last May from Celivod in the Flemming property on Sandusky street.

1010 Men Return to Work at Mill

Empire Steel Plant Relieves Employment Situation Monday.

If the unemployment situation of the county can be judged by its leading city, Mansfield, Richland can begin to regain a little of its self confidence. Between one thousand and 1,110 men returned to work at the Mansfield plant of the Empire Steel Corporation on Monday morning.

C. H. Henkel, executive vice president of the organization, who is in charge of operations, stated, "There are now on file orders for unfilled tonnage which will keep the plant busy for the next three weeks."

Both the north and the south plants at the shops are in operation, and work is under way in the open hearth and bar mill. Henkel believes that, after a check of the business situation with which he is concerned, conditions are quite favorable in comparison with other periods.

Authorities further stated, "When we lay the orders now on hand are sufficient to keep the plant running for the next three weeks, it does not naturally follow that after that time the mill will be closed. In all probability there will be other release orders received before those now ready for fulfillment have been carried through. We are not anticipating a general shutdown at the end of the three week period."

LIGHT SPRINKLING NO AID TO PLANTS, SAYS EXPERT

Father's evening pastime in dry weather—sprinkling plants through a hose—is often a great waste of time and water, in the opinion of Victor Elias, extension specialist in horticulture for Ohio State University. Unless the plants are thoroughly soaked for two or three hours with water and the soil wet to a depth of 5 or 6 inches, little good results from the sprinkling. Many less vigorous shrubs are in danger of dying this summer, due to dry weather. A covering with peat moss around annual flower plants and perennial seedlings will prevent the soil from rapidly drying out around their shallow root systems.

FARMERS MAKE HAY BY MOON-SHINE IN MID-WEST

A recent newspaper article states that many farmers of the mid-west, to escape the heat wave, began harvesting by moonlight.

Well, we did know that all good bootleggers "made hay by the moon-shine" but it is the first example of respectable mid-westerners doing likewise. We always thought the wiseacre said to make hay while the sun "shined."

Perhaps this is the farmer's original move for farm relief. Golfers don't seem to need relief, as on the same day the night work was reported, con-

STATE LIBRARY EXTENSION SERVICE IS INCREASING

George Elliott McCormick, State Librarian, reports the satisfactory spread of the use of the State Library in far-flung rural districts of Ohio. This statement proves that slowly, perhaps, but surely, we are coming to realize the value of education, whether by school or by self-training. The operation of the traveling library division, which furnishes complete libraries to communities, schools or rural organizations, was traced at the recent teachers convention in Columbus, by a series of placards in the Elks Home. There are 115,000 volumes available for this extension service. The research facilities of the library are also available to all divisions. Plymouth is served by the state library.

THE VOICE OF THE FLAME

When sober scientists undertake to put on a show they call usually stage something that makes ordinary vaudeville wonders look simple.

A group of the General Electric Company's engineers the other day set up a radio device to make light waves audible, just for the edification of the convention of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

First one of the engineers held a lighted match in front of a photo-electric cell. A dull rumbling, like thunder, came from an attached loudspeaker. Then a Neon lamp was passed before the cell. A steady hum proceeded from the loudspeaker. Following this an ordinary incandescent bulb was put in front of the "mouth piece," and a roar that almost shook the building was forthcoming.

There were other tricks of a similar order. A specially made German lamp produced a noise like the siren of a fire engine. A Swiss lamp made a noise like a hoot owl. A battery lamp gave out sounds like the thumping of a base drum. And so on, through marvel after marvel.

Now all of this, on the surface, may not look like much; but it is just a reminder of the fact that scientists have uncovered a whole universe of profound mysteries, lying hidden all about us. Listening to the queer noises made by light waves is a miraculous act, when you stop to think about it. The medieval alchemist hunting for the elixir of life was never on the trail of anything half so thrilling.

Tennyson, observing a common flower blooming in a chink in a stone wall, remarked that if he could but fully understand that bit of vegetable growth, from beginning to end, he "would know what God and man is." The modern scientist is in the same position. If one could fully understand this business of light waves that produce thunder, drum beats and siren wails, one would have a clearer picture of the universe than any mortal that ever lived.

All of which is just another way of saying that the earth is compacted of profound mysteries. The scientists are poking into these mysteries bravely, but each one when solved merely uncovers a new one beyond it. They discover just enough to demonstrate that we live in a world of wonder.

And that, perhaps, is their chief service to us. Who can be cocksure, in a world where the tiniest flame can speak with a voice like thunder?

GAS COMPANY TAXED

Ohio won its right to levy excise taxes to the amount of $959,000 on gas sold by the East Ohio Gas Company in Ohio, by decision of the U. S. District Court at Columbus. A former Attorney General had ruled this gas non-taxable because it was brought from West Virginia and Pennsylvania and was, therefore, in interstate commerce. Attorney General Gilbert Bettman reversed this ruling on the ground that selling gas to consumers in Ohio was local business, not interstate. The court upheld this view. The company will appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States. The decision is a precedent not only for gas but also electricity, and if sustained by the Supreme Court will mean almost two million dollars of additional taxes to Ohio.

PULLING FOR FRANK GOLDSBOROUGH

Millions of friends he didn't know he had are pulling for Frank Goldsborough, the boy flyer who crashed on a Vermont mountain and is now fighting death. For eighteen hours he lay without food and water and grievously injured.

Goldsborough is almost the only second generation flyer in America. His father, Bryce Goldsborough, flew to death in an attempt to pilot Mrs. Frances Grayson's plane across the Atlantic in 1927.

Frank might have been expected to prefer a career on solid earth in view of his father's fate. But he was an experienced flyer before he was far along in his teens. Now he is only 19 and has many long flights to his credit.

The trip on which he "cracked up" Monday began here. Cleveland flyers know him as an able, modest and courageous youth.

They often die young in the flying game, but for Goldsborough to share his father's fate so early is against even a flyer's fatalistic philosophy. So they are all pulling for that brave boy fighting death there in Vermont.—Plain Dealer.

Life insurance companies, through foreclosures on farm mortgages, have entered the farming business. In Ohio they now operate 412 farms.

About 95 per cent of the food of an English sparrow consists of farm feeds, seeds and grains of various kinds, according to the United States Department of Agriculture.

According to tests of Ohio soils approximately 75 per cent of cultivated fields are in some degree acid.

REMEDIES FOR POISON IVY OAK, AND SUMAC GIVEN

Now that the vacation season is in full swing, millions of people are in full into the woods and fields. Many of these are subject to the infection of poison ivy or sumac, the American Game Protective Association points out and suggests ways of curing the contagion.

If you believe you have the "ivy" washing with strong laundry soap is reported as being an excellent preventive. Itches, itching, or blisters on the skin will be evidence that the infection has taken hold. One good cure is to paint the affected parts with tincture of iron. A solution of potassium permanganate is useful and can be used in the same way.

Immediately after the infection appears, it is a good thing to wash the face and hands with a 5 per cent solution of ferric chloride in a half and half mixture of alcohol and water or glycerine and water. But care must

CANNIBALISM IN POULTRY IS SERIOUS PROBLEM

By J. H. Bodwell

Cannibalism is a serious problem when it once gets started in the poultry flock because there are many causes.

The start of cannibalism in chicks many times is the sun shining on the claws. This attracts the chicks and they pick at one another's feet and the blood they get tastes good and the habit is formed. By coloring the glass blue, or if a battery brooder is used by excluding direct sunlight, this cause is eliminated.

Overcrowding with too few feed hoppers is another cause. By keeping at least 1-2 square foot for each chick and 3 square feet for each mature bird, and supplying hopper space sufficient for each chick to eat, and for mature hens to have one foot every five birds helps to eliminate this cause. Birds that are overcrowded and have nothing to do may soon start cannibalism.

Regular feeding habits help to keep down cannibalism. One poultryman told me he planned to fill the dry mash hoppers each day at nine, and the scratch box hoppers at three. If he was ten minutes late at either feeding, his birds would start picking at one another, but if he was on time they did not. Another man told me that by changing his chickens from one coop to the other he had succeeded in stopping cannibalism.

Among hens, Prolapsis is a cause of cannibalism. Again, lack of mineral matter and green feeds seem to aggravate this trouble.

When cannibalism is very bad there are many suggested remedies which may help. First, remove the cause if possible, then let the birds out, if confined, throw in newspapers to attract their attention, apply some disagreeable tasting substance, like iodine or tar to the places that are picked which will prevent the birds from picking the same places again. In extreme cases, cut off the tip and of the upper beak with a sharp knife. This makes the beak tender and will stop them until the beak grows out again. Where green feed is lacking in the ration it is well to supply it also if mineral content is low, a higher mineral content in the mash is desirable.

THE NEW FORD TUDOR SEDAN

YOU are buying proved performance when you buy a Ford. You know it has been built for many thousands of miles of satisfactory, economical service.

Letters from users in every part of the world show the value of the sound design of the car, good materials and accuracy in manufacturing. You sense a feeling of sincere pride in the oft-repeated phrase—"Let me tell you what my new Ford did."

Further tribute to the sturdiness, reliability and general all-round performance of the new Ford is shown in the repeated and growing purchases by government bureaus, by police departments, and by large industrial companies which keep careful day-by-day cost records. In most cases, the new Ford has been chosen only after exhaustive tests covering speed and power, safety, comfort, ease of control, oil and gas consumption, low yearly depreciation, and low cost of up-keep.

They have found, as you will find, that the Ford embodies every feature you want or need in a motor car at an unusually low price.

SAVINGS PASSBOOKS SOUGHT BY CROOKS

Use Them to Steal Money by Forged Slips — Should Be Guarded as Carefully as Cash.

Continued vigilance in safeguarding savings books, as well as blank and cancelled checks, against theft by crooks, who use this material in forger operations, is urged on bank depositors by James E. Baam, Deputy Manager of the American Bankers Association, in charge of its Protective Department. This department is continually vigilant in promoting means, both among bankers and the general public, to thwart the operation of bank crooks. It annually issues reports, hundreds of crimes against banks and is responsible for the majority of arrests among this class of criminals.

"In a large majority of cases of forgeries on checks or savings withdrawal orders investigated by the American Bankers Association, stolen blank checks or savings pass books were the forgers' chief stock in trade," Mr. Baam says. "In many instances the temptation presented through the careless handling by depositors of cancelled or blank checks or pass books so that they fell into the hands of others was the immediate stimulus for hitherto honest people to commit their first criminal offense."

Banks should instruct their depositors to exert the same degree of care in handling these instruments and to avoid leaving them about unguarded as they exercise in respect to actual money because they represent money, he declares.

For dealing with the bank robbery situation, Mr. Baam recommends the use of electrical alarms actuated by any tampering with the wires or mechanism and also wider adoption of the plan of state police forces now employed in a few states, declaring that last year in seven eastern states where state police forces were maintained there were only 20 bank holdups as against 164 similar attacks perpetrated against banks in five states in the central and far west, where banks are denied the advantages of the speedy and coordinated action given by state-wide police forces.

"The records of the American Bankers Association Protective Department reveal that for many years the odds in favor of state police protection have been at least 8 to 1 when measured by the experience of banks in areas where efficient police protection is missing in the rural districts," he says.

THE THINKER LEADS MODERN PROGRESS

By JOHN G. LONSDALE
President American Bankers Association

THE greatest need of the world today is interpreters of our times—modern Daniels in agriculture, finance, politics, industry—where can we see through the fog and haze that enshroud our difficult problems and advise for us in a direct, and influence those who are either indifferent or limited in their perceptions.

Through the thicker and the thinner, the interpreter, a man known situations are disclosed or puzzling conditions explained in logical light. The American people are so constituted that they can meet and combat any situation once it is known and understood. It is the unknown that causes ill-effects, the night and brings disaster.

Some one has defined prosperity as something the business men create for the politicians to take credit for. But America's present-day prosperity can be defined as a product resulting from the business man's ability to study and interpret. Huge corporations maintain research staffs and special bureaus to interpret the times for them. Disaster looms in the offing if the industry that builds us up on its way day after day without due regard to significant trends in trade and business.

Keeping Up With Change
Leaders of finance have discovered that they cannot remain passive in an age when all the rest of the world is studying and interpreting. The banker must not only know about the changing styles in other lines of business, but above all must be alert to the transformations which are taking place in his own. He must be a man of keener, broader vision, because the order of the day is for larger units of service. Mergers and consolidations have taken place in great numbers. We now talk of billions where a few years ago we talked of millions.

We have only begun our changes. What disposition is to be made of the many problems that they bring will depend in large measure upon our leaders, upon the students and the interpreters who can read accurately the signs of the times, so that we may have future actions and hopes upon their wisdom. The wisest way to go to the top is to go to the bottom of things, and let us hope that among them will be found many who will not only apply to their fields but will be successful in reaching their goal.

Poultrymen to Tour Michigan July 28th

Final arrangements for the tour of Ohio poultrymen through Michigan, July 28 to August 1, call for visits to farms populated with 30,000 chickens, 5,000 turkeys, and numerous ducks, geese, pheasants and pigeons, according to an announcement of the poultry department of the extension service of the Ohio State University.

The tour will last five days, and will start from Columbus. There will be stops in Ohio, through southern Michigan, and finally break up at Toledo, Ohio. Besides visiting farms (this third annual poultry party will see a modern feed mill, a packing plant for poultry and poultry products, the Michigan State Agricultural college at East Lansing, the Ford Motor Company, Henry Ford's Antique City, and the Lantz Research farm.

The cost of the trip, 600 miles in length, will be made by auto and by little more than $20 per person. Reservations must be addressed to the Poultry Department of Ohio State University, Columbus, and be in before July 22.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
J. W. Miller, Minister
Sunday, July 20, 1930

Often we think the highest possible level of performance has been reached. "This," we say, "is our best, we shall never surpass it." Orders to discontinue later, under the spur of greater necessity or more eager desire, that we can reach a higher level than we ever supposed was within the range of our capacity. Life, like the ocean, is subject to the law of the tides. As you stand on the shore and watch the movement of the waters you may be uncertain whether the tide is coming or going, but there can be no manner of doubt but that it is doing the one or the other. "The Law of the Tides" will be the subject of the message next Sunday, 11 a. m. Bible School, 10 a. m.

BUTTONS

(Special to The Advertiser)
When I think of all the different kinds of Buttons that were made, I wonder at the abundance and variety. And the difference in their shade.

Some are black—some are blue. And some are even gold. But there is quite a bit of difference in these—and those of old.

Long ago they used to button clothes: Buttoned shoes you'd see; And now they're even gone so far As to put a button in me.

When you get sick and has to have, A hole or two cut in you, Then they will sew you up a bit, And put a button in you.

I really do not know just what This world is coming to, For every hour in every day, There is something new.

But though all these strange things Every day I see, I really can't get over that They have "buttoned" me.

Future Plymouth as Given by Mayor

I do not claim to be a prophet nor to be able to tell you just what is going to happen in Plymouth in the next 25-50 or 100 years. But you must agree that in the life of an individual there are certain characteristics and habits that to the observing person points the course he is taking. Habit is to the individual what custom is to society. Therefore it is reasonable to believe that by a study of the present customs and conduct of the people of Plymouth, and the institutions which in a large measure are responsible for the moulding and forming of these customs, one can make a close guess as to its future.

Intelligent and happy citizens, with right ideals and habits depends upon three things, the home, the church, and the school. The makers of the ordinance of 1787 for the northwest territory realized this fact when they incorporated in that memorable document these words: Religion, morality, and knowledge, being necessary for good government, and the happiness of mankind, schools as a means of education shall forever be encouraged.

The great majority of Plymouth people are sufficiently situated financially so as to give the youth of the village opportunities equal or beyond that of any place of its size. However, they are not so wealthy that they prefer to rest on their past glory and forget to develop the possibility of the youth. In short Plymouth is blessed with ideal homes where the father works a comfortable living, the mother is responsible for the duties of the household and the youth encouraged and taught to prepare himself to do his share of the world's work. I think I am safe in saying that according to its population there are fewer divorcees asked for and granted to the citizens of Plymouth than any other community in the state of Ohio. Out of a total of nearly 600 homes it has been necessary to issue but 5 divorces in the past 5 years, and two of them were to transist residents which had made Plymouth their home for only a short while.

The churches of a community reflect the attitude of its citizens toward those things which develop character in the individual and insure its future development. In our modern civilization it is next to the home. This service is rendered to our village by 4 churches, which work harmoniously together for its spiritual advancement. Their splendid cooperation is shown by union services, and it is a very rare case that there is even an unfriendly word spoken among the members of the churches on denominational differences. The four denominations represented are the Methodist Episcopal, The Lutheran, The Presbyterian and the Roman Catholic. I think it would be well to mention the present pastors of these churches at this time. For the Methodist is Rev. E. B. McBroom, for the Lutheran, Rev. A. M. Hines, for the Presbyterian, Rev. J. W. Miller, and for the Roman Catholic, Rev. H. J. Fourn. Each of the present pastors has been at their respective charges for more than five years, which also shows the splendid cooperation and friendliness among the churches.

Important as is the home and the church there is no institution which has so much to do with the future of a community as its public schools. We claim in Plymouth to have a model school system. Its physical equipment consists of two buildings. One building houses the lower six grades and is supplied with the latest and most modern appliances for grade work. Last year the school district erected a new modern high school building at a cost of $75,000, which is one of the most modern and convenient school buildings for its size to be found anywhere. The administration of this school system under the capable direction of Mr. E. H. Miller offers to the south of the community a modern curriculum enriched with preparatory courses in science, home economics, manual training, and commercial subjects.

The school board, superintendent, faculty, and patrons, should be congratulated on the progress the public schools of Plymouth have made in the past four or five years. The effect of this progress on the future of Plymouth can hardly be estimated, for it is the youth who will make the future Plymouth and direct its activities.

So in conclusion I cannot but say from my observations that the future of Plymouth is assured. That the institutions which determine its future, the ideal home, the flourishing religious institutions, and the public schools, are secure. I wish to extend to all my hearers an invitation to visit this thriving little village known throughout the world for the products of its manufacturing plants, and to those who have had the pleasure of a previous visit, its friendly and congenial citizens.

They Overlooked the Diamonds

There is a modern flippancy to the effect that "What you don't know won't hurt you." It is also a fallacy. For instance:

The farmers of Kimberley were a disgusted, disheartened lot. They said the soil was too rocky to earn them a living. Some of them left. Others died in poverty.

And all the time their children were playing with diamonds.

But the farmers didn't know. They thought the priceless gems were pebbles.

Don't be like the Kimberly farmer's. Know!

Don't seek opportunity in some distance place and overlook the diamonds that are daily within your grasp. Know!

Advertising is a mine of opportunity. It tells of values you wouldn't know about if it were not there to guide you.

The secret of economical buying is information. The man or woman who is best informed is the one who buys to best advantage.
