TARIFF ISSUES REFUSE TO DIE

Conferees Got Gold Pens And Country Received Gold Bricks, Says Barkley

Nobody can blame Senators who voted for the tariff bill for their obvious peevishness at the way the issue faces to die. Undoubtedly they hoped when Herbert Hoover attacked his signature to the atrocity with six gold pens and donated the pens to the Republican conferees that the matter was settled. Yet the country is still talking tariff, thinking tariff, and asking embarrassing questions about tariff effects.

One reason may be found in this statement of Senator Barkley of Kentucky: "The conferees got gold pens, while the rest of the country got gold bricks." The rest of the country knows it and intends that the party in power shall know that they know it.

Senator William Borah's grudge determination to make the tariff act actually "flex" has also served to keep interest at high pitch. There was a historic name in the resolution which he offered his resolution to instruct the Tariff Commission to investigate differences in costs of production of various items in the bill. "If this flexible provision is so wonderful," he said, "let's start it working right now." The Senator knows well enough that the Tariff Commission has spent years on a single schedule before action was taken, and that the result has practically always been a higher duty. Nevertheless, his resolution was a signal to start action all along the line.

In the House of Representatives, a resolution was introduced by Representative Garber of Oklahoma calling for an investigation of sugar among other things. The domestic sugar grower has a friend in the Commissioner of the Bureau of Agriculture, Edgar Brown of Utah. It is a widely held belief, however, that the entire Commission is due for a shake-up under Mr. Hoover.

The present organization has pleased practically nobody. Republicans or Democrats, and it has been an easy target for the opponents of flexible tariff revisions.

No one has forgotten the scandal of 1924, when beet sugar interests delayed and finally defeated the Commission's recommendations to reduce the sugar duty. Consumers will watch with interest the President's appointments to this powerful body. Now that the country is fully awake to the under-surface manipulations of tariffs, the Tariff Commission must prove itself to be the highly scientific body Hoover intends it to be. It will be on trial before its enemies in the Senate and the American consumer.

AMERICAN PEOPLE MAY CELEBRATE INTERNATIONAL HOLIDAY ON APRIL 14TH

Aside from days of religious observance, there are few instances of a national holiday that is in reality "international." A step toward such a custom was made when our government very recently took the lead among New World nations in ratifying the resolution of the Pan-American Union to make April 14 "Pan-American Day" in commemoration of the Pan-American Union's birth on that date in 1890. Ratification of the resolution, which had been passed by the governing body of the Union at their session of May 7, 1930, was accompanied by a proclamation from President Hoover.

In his manifesto, Mr. Hoover invited the schools, civic associations and people to observe the day: "Thereby giving expression to the spirit of continental solidarity and to the sentiments of cordiality and friendly feeling which the governments and people of the United States entertain towards the peoples and governments of the other Republics of the American continent."

Huron Co. Members At C. E. Convention

Bertha Hole Gives Interesting Report of Ohio Meet.

There were seven young people from Huron County who attended the Ohio Fellowship C. E. convention which was held in Mansfield from Tuesday, June 24, to Friday, June 27.

The seven from Huron were a very small part of the three thousand young people who are aiming to create fellowship and to follow Christ.

The speakers of this convention were Dr. Daniel A. Poling, the president of the Christian Endeavor Union; Rev. D. Evans Jones who brought before us very clearly "Giving God a chance at you"; Carlton M. Sherwood; Ralph C. Walker; Dr. Royal J. Dyer; and Dr. Charles E. Schaffer. It would not be a convention without the Dobbins. They lead nearly all of the music.

One of the main features of this convention was the Fellowship Parade. All of the delegates wore a different costume. A very striking group to look at.

Huron was one of the counties to win banner, hopes to win more at the next State convention which will be held at Findlay, Ohio. Let's go!

Those who attended this great Fellowship convention were Mrs. L. T. Beck, Norwalk; Miss Bertha Hole, Plymouth; Misses Edith West and friend Ruth, North Fairfield; Miss Bell Maynard, Greenwich; Misses Ida Ruth and Minta Waters, New Haven, and several others who attended the Tuesday night session. Harold Sams, of Plymouth, is treasurer of the Huron County C. E. Union.

SERVICES HELD FOR B. O. STOCK

Funeral Held Monday For B. O. Stock, Who Died Friday of Heart Trouble.

Burton O. Stock, 55, well known and prominent citizen of this community, died Friday night at his home southwest of town after a lingering illness with heart trouble. Mr. Stock's condition at the time of his death, seemed somewhat improved, and his death came unexpectedly to his immediate family and his many friends.

Funeral services were held Monday morning at Auburn Center Baptist church. Interment was made in Greenlawn cemetery, Plymouth.

Mr. Stock was a man of high character, and his activity in the affairs of the Mansfield Baptist association and his home church at Auburn Center shows an ambition of service to his religious beliefs. A man, quiet in speech, always conservative in his expressions, and rather than the dark side, he could always see the bright side of life. Mr. Stock won and held the admiration of those with whom he came in contact, and the community at large will greatly miss his presence. The obituary will fall follows:

Burton O. Stock was born May 20, 1875 in Auburn township, Crawford county, Ohio, and passed away at his home four miles southwest of Plymouth Friday evening, June 27, 1930, at the age of 55 years, 1 month and 7 days.

For the past five weeks he has been suffering from heart trouble. Although his condition seemed much improved, he was constantly awaiting the summons of his Lord and ever ready that His will should be done. At fifteen years of age he accepted Christ as his personal Saviour and united with the Goodwill M. E. church. On July 2, 1894, he was baptized and became a member of the Auburn Center Baptist church where he served as clerk for the past twenty-four years. At the time of his death he was also clerk of the Mansfield Baptist Association. He sought to promote the Kingdom of God always anxious for the spiritual welfare of others.

On April 11, 1897, he was united in marriage to Lottis C. Ladlow, to which union there was born two daughters, Mrs. Clyde J. Pugh of Shelby, Ohio, and Mrs. Iva V. Stock of Washington, D. C. He also leaves to mourn his loss one sister, Mrs. Leila Lash of Tiro, one brother, Willis Stock of Liberty, a granddaughter, Thelma Mae Pugh of Shelby and a host of other relatives and friends.

Mr. Stock was a kind and considerate husband and father, an aggressive community worker and an earnest Christian.

It is not even death a gain to those who love the life of God is given? Gladly to earth their eyes they close.

To open them in Heaven Their tolls are past, their work is done, And they are fully blest. They fought the fight, the victory was won.

And entered into rest. "The Son of man shall come in the glory of his Father with his angels, and then he shall reward every man according to his works."

THE APE MUST BE THE CHESHIRE STORYLAND CAT

Whether the "ape" is a bad penny or not, he has so far succeeded in turning up just when it has been decided that he was nil. Mr. and Mrs. Peter Kiser, of Rice township, report and are firmly convinced, that there is such an animal at large.

Mr. Kiser did not at first believe in the ape stories, but was convinced by a sight of the animal, and he is not from Mansfield, either. One evening from his home from a tree the ape appeared in the road, and jumped from one side to the other as the machine came toward him. The animal kept this up for some time, and as Mr. Kiser yelled, ran into a wheat field and disappeared.

So, children, there really is an ape! And, tomorrow night, our bed-time story will be all about the lion that Newt Rule owns.

The regular meeting of the Ladies Aid of the Lutheran church will be held on Tuesday, July 9, at 2:30 p. m. Mrs. H. G. Holden of Weston, W. Va., spent the evening of July 1 with Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Brown.

Plymouth Twp. Ask Aid of State Dept.

County Superintendent Kern To Certify County Records.

County Superintendent John W. Kern has certified the records of the county books of education, which have been completed. They will be sent to the state department of education.

State aid will be asked by several districts including Bloomingrove, Butler and Jefferson townships who have been receiving assistance. Butler village applied for and was allowed state aid in May of 1928. Lexington village, Plymouth village, and Worthington township are the new districts applying for help.

The records indicate that the rural village districts are not able to meet the demands. Butler township was the first to get help from the state, two years ago. Bloomingrove and Jefferson were granted their requests last year. For the coming year seven districts are calling on the state department for assistance. The request given for the demand is that the school expense increases faster than the resources.

The townships which have no high schools have to pay tuition. Townships having high schools are Butler, Monroe, Weller, Cass, Springfield, Troy township will have its own high school when the centralized school building in Lexington is completed. The number of school children attending high school is increasing every year.

HANK and PETE

NO DIPLOMACY ABOUT PETE -

FRESH WATER MAY PREVENT HYDROPHOBIA

Fresh water is the best remedy to prevent dogs from going mad during the present hot weather, according to County Dog Warden Albert Gray. This announcement followed closely on the heels of an investigation made by the dog warden at Plymouth where Leo Palmer was bitten by a dog owned by Mrs. Barber. "This was merely a case where the dog had become affected by the heat," Gray said. "They go around looking for water, then start foaming at the mouth and if the desire for water continues they become mad and are likely to bite. Gray declared although he did not believe the dog biting the Plymouth man, was mad, the canine is being kept under observation.

MICHIGAN DEER FOUND DEAD FROM PNEUMONIA

Wild life must have more attention and care than merely furnishing sanctuary or preserves. Successful propagation on refuges is often impossible unless definite steps are taken to eliminate overcrowding and to study disease so that man may control it. Deer furnish just one of many examples, as reported in the American Game Protective association news service.

"Death due to pneumonia, and with stomachs full of good feed" is the way the game division officials of Michigan's department of conservation summarized their findings in a recent investigation of numerous dead deer. A detailed examination was made of 16 carcasses. The report reads: "All but one of these were of small fawns—small in size and in frame as well as low in weight—evidently the runt of the season's increase. All of the 16 examined had full stomachs at the time of death and with one exception the stomachs were well filled with cedar browse—excellent deer food. In only three cases was there any appreciable proportion of fir or balsam. All of these deer showed serious congestion of the lungs, indicating that pneumonia had been the cause of death. Local residents agreed in reporting that just previous to the deaths weather followed by a sudden and severe drop in temperature—from barely freezing to many degrees below zero."

REPORT GIVEN THAT THE PENNSY RAILROAD PLANS TRANS-STATE BUS LINE

A second attempt will be made by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company to have their trans-state bus line project approved by the Ohio Public Utilities Commission, in the near future. A like application to operate a bus line was made in 1929, but a technical error was discovered and the petition was withdrawn. The line would be known as the Pennsylvania Motor Transit Lines, being a subsidiary of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The first line petitioned for followed route 30 across the state to Mansfield, then passing through Crestline, Bucyrus and Upper Sandusky to Toledo. The second line now discussed will also follow No. 30 to Mansfield from the east, then hit Marion, Kinton, and Lima, on west to the state line, and into Fort Wayne. The last line would tap a region not served by the railroad company at the present time.

If the last line is approved by the Commission, it will give the residents of the cities listed an opportunity to connect with the Pennsylvania Railroad at Mansfield and Lima.

WHY SHOOT UP THE FOURTH

It was a peculiar custom which came out of the signing of the Declaration of Independence in 1776. The shooting of fireworks and firecrackers. Certainly the American fathers had no idea that the purposeless practice of playing with explosives, with consequent danger of life and property, would be established by the public as a memorial for Independence Day and be celebrated through several generations.

In this day of modern civilization and constructive progress the dangerous Fourth is out of order. A Declaration of Safety should replace the present form of celebration. Shooting firecrackers, fireworks, guns and torpedoes is dangerous and bears no relation to the occasion celebrated.

The "morning after" the Fourth is always to be reckoned with. An opportunity to do something unusual and a desire to participate in a hilariously noisy and dangerous day inevitably bring results.

How will you spend Independence Day—and the day after? Will your holiday be safe and sane, with benefit to your health and happiness, or will it be spent in suffering due to physical injury or the loss of your home by fire because "something went wrong" with the fireworks or firecrackers?

In many states the local authorities recognize the danger of fireworks and firecrackers and have passed a law prohibiting their sale. In communities where there is no law against the sale of explosives the public is more or less a law unto itself in regard to their use on the Fourth and may or may not use discretion in celebrating the day.

A list of precautions for those who consider the Fourth incomplete without fireworks and firecrackers has been prepared. Know where and how you can communicate with your doctor or hospital in case of accident, and where the nearest fire alarm box is located in case of fire.

Keep your property clear of rubbish, papers, litter and other readily ignitable materials.

Keep matches out of the reach of children.

Don't let children throw sparklers. They remain hot for some time and are very dangerous.

Don't let children pick up undischarged fireworks. They might explode in their hands. This has often happened, causing injury to hands, fingers and eyes.

If there are fireworks in the home keep them in a covered tin box until ready for use.

Don't hold firecrackers or allow them to be thrown at people.

Don't play pranks with fire or with firearms.

Don't carry fireworks in pockets.

Don't meddle with dynamite caps.

Don't feel that you must celebrate with fireworks. It is much better to join in a safe and sane community celebration.

Don't let down on caution because it is the Fourth. There were 250 fatal accidents last Fourth of July, more than 75 deaths later from lockjaw, over 2,000 serious injuries and tens of thousands of minor accidents. Fireworks played a big part in these tragedies.

Fires in homes, stores and other buildings from fireworks and firecrackers caused losses last year amounting to almost three quarters of a million dollars. The public suffers heavily from these losses. Do your part to keep your children and your property safe from harm.

SCHOLARS, BUT NOT TEACHERS

Edward Warburg, senior orator at Harvard this year, said some unkind things about alma mater. He complained particularly that the faculty was composed too much of great authorities and research scholars, and not enough of teachers.

Undergraduates in larger universities throughout the country give much the same testimony. Too many professors, they say, are giving their time to their own interests. Not a few have ceased entirely to give undergraduate instruction.

Much of that falls to young assistants and instructors, themselves candidates for higher degrees, who are also giving much attention to research and investigation. In the hope that they too may soon be relieved of the teaching burden which their superior officers have passed on to them.

The right balance between teaching and research apparently has not been struck in American institutions. In the larger ones the former receives less attention than it deserves, while in the latter schedules are heavy and little time remains for the non-teaching activities in which most academic people profess an interest.

Sometimes American universities will meet the situation of which there is now so much complaint from undergraduates by composing their faculties of two distinct groups; one of research scholars and the other of boys and trained teachers.

The former may bury themselves in their libraries to their heart's content, coming forth occasionally with contributions that will add something to the sum of human knowledge. The latter in turn will devote their time and effort to the exposition of information already available, passing it on in a way to make it most helpful to the student.

Some researchers have excellent reputations as research scholars. But the combination is rare. A division of labor that will permit both teaching and investigation to go forward, each by well qualified persons, would lead to better results in both.

A New York writer says: "It is regrettable that dancing has become almost the monopoly of youth. Now the idea seems to be that dancing is the special province of the younger generation, and that any body else who indulges in it looks a little bit foolish." Thus many middle-aged people are deprived of the rhythm that could keep their molecules in tune far up into the seventies.

The butcher still uses everything about the pig but the squeal but this is used by the customer when he hears the price of pork.

Whatever their opinion may be as to the merits or demerits of prohibition the great majority of the American people will agree that the measure as yet has not been productive of that degree of temperance which was expected, hoped for, or promised and it appears that temperance in all things, is a matter of education rather than legislation.

Terminal Tower

The Tower, the dominant building of the Terminal group rising 708 feet above the concourse level of the station and containing 560,000 square feet of floor space.

Harvey Shops and Restaurants in the Traction concourse with facilities to accommodate 10,000 persons during luncheon period.

New Higbee Store, a 12-story department store now under construction.

Medical Arts Building, an 13-story building constructed exclusively for physicians, surgeons, dentists and professional men in related fields, containing 150,000 square feet of rentable floor space.

Builders Exchange and Garage Building, an 13-story building occupied by Cleveland and out-of-town firms engaged in the building industry, and including a nine story garage with 1,700 car capacity.

Midland Bank Building, an 18-story building occupied by the Midland Bank and with space available for office suites for legal, bond, and brokerage houses; and

The Hotel Cleveland.

Space in the immediate Terminal area has also been taken for a new U. S. Post Office Building.

Closely related parts of this project are the new Northern Ohio Food Terminal, and the Rapid Transit electric lines serving parts of suburban Cleveland.

With the opening of the new Terminal, Cleveland becomes a more convenient shopping center for Akron, Canton, Sandusky, Geneva, Conneaut, other points in northern Ohio, and even the entire state.

"The city may well assume a larger importance as a buying center because of the greater ease with which it will be reached," C. L. Bradley, president of the Cleveland Union Terminals Company, says. "And I am thinking not only of the local customers whose trade is pretty largely assured to Cleveland but also of those other customers who will be drawn from far-away points, say, south as far as Pittsburgh and Cincinnati; west, as far as Toledo, and east, as far as Buffalo and Rochester."

"I am impressed," Mr. Bradley says, "by the psychological effect the Terminal project seems to exert on our civic consciousness and municipal ambition. It has given new impetus and spirit to an interest in the city's expansion, creating and consolidating settlement in behalf of a new and grander Cleveland."

Cleveland's old Union Station on the lakefront, which will remain in partial use, was built in 1866. This station, now so completely out-grown and out-moded, was regarded at the time of its opening as ample for Cleveland's needs for at least a hundred years to come. In 1880 Cleveland ranked twentieth among the cities of the United States, today it is sixth.

Approximately 100 trains are now running into the new Cleveland Union Station, over New York Central, Big Four, and Nickel Plate Railroads.

PROF. H. MONROE SAYS "PRODUCE GOLDEN EGGS"

The modern golden egg is produced by early hatched pullets and well cared for hen flocks. The early hatched pullet should be raised away from the hen flock to prevent disease. They should be separated from the cocklebs as soon as the males can be picked out. The pullets will grow better and produce well if they are not crowded. Provide enough roosting space so that all the birds can roost at night without crowding.

Do not neglect the mash feeding during the summer months. The growing mash keeps them developing and makes it possible for them to lay when eggs are high. When the birds are on range it is advisable to feed both the grains and the mash in hoppers. The care of the growing pullet is not the same as that of the growing hen. When the pullet we want steady, uniform growth while with the hen flock we must force every possible egg from them before they go into the fall molt.

One serious mistake often made with the hen flock is that they are neglected when eggs are low priced in the spring. Laying mash should be kept before the hen flock at all times. Enough hopper space should be provided. Twelve running feet of feed space is hardly enough for 100 hens. In addition to the dry mash, scratch grain should be given the birds once daily. During the spring months 12 pounds of grain a day per 100 hens is recommended. This amount should be reduced each month so that by September 100 hens are fed 6 pounds daily.

Red mites, or roost mites, probably cause more damage than any other one thing to both the growing pullets and the laying flock during the summer months. It is a fact that this is true because these pests are so

A Real Tribute to the Dead

In the United States—until very recently—the good and bad alike were buried in sudden, hasty graves with only a pretense of protection in wood or metal boxes. But every up-to-date funeral director now uses the Norwalk Vault. Made of moulded reinforced cement. It is airtight, and moisture-proof. The Norwalk seals by hand into one solid piece of masonry. Through its eternal protection, every detail of burial becomes an everlasting tribute to the dead.

All good Funeral Directors use the Norwalk Vault—the best Directors insist on it. Made by

THE VALUE OF SOUND DESIGN

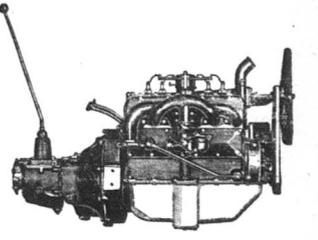

New Ford engine gives outstanding acceleration, speed and power without sacrificing reliability or economy

The good performance of the Ford car, so apparent on every highway, is due largely to the sound mechanical design of the engine.

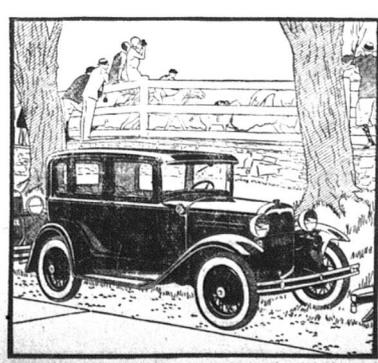

It has outstanding acceleration, speed and power, yet that is only part of its value to you. Greater still is the fact that it brings you all these features without sacrificing either reliability or economy.

That is the reason the Ford car has given such satisfactory service to millions of motorists all over the world and has been chosen by so many large companies that keep accurate cost figures. In every detail of construction it has been carefully planned and made for the work it has to do.

The design of the compression chamber is an important factor in the efficiency of the Ford engine. It is built to allow free passage of gases through the valves and to thoroughly mix the fuel by producing turbulence within the cylinders during compression. The spark thus flashes quickly through the whole fuel charge, resulting in quieter and more effective engine performance. Other factors are the direct gravity gasoline feed, the specially designed carburetor, the new hot-spot manifold, aluminum pistons, chrome silicon alloy valves of larger diameter, statically and dynamically balanced crankshaft and flywheel, the simplicity of the electrical, cooling, lubrication, and fuel systems and accuracy in manufacturing.

BIRD REFUGE BILL IS SIGNED BY PRESIDENT

Another important step was taken in providing for adequate sanctuary for waterfowl in the United States when the so-called Cheyenne Bottoms Migratory Bird Refuge Bill was signed by President Hoover and became a law on Thursday, June 27th.

This bill has been pending in Congress for the last two sessions. It was introduced in the Senate by Senator Henry J. Allen of Kansas and in the House by Congressman Clifford R. Hope of the same state and was in charge of two members during its entire course through Congress. It failed to receive a vote during the first session in which it was introduced but was pressed more vigorously at the last session.

The provisions of the bill require that the $250,000 appropriated, or so far thereof as will be necessary, be used to purchase or otherwise acquire the land desired. The bill does not contain any provision for future maintenance.

Other amendments were added to the bill while it was under consideration by the House having to do with the administration of it by the Secretary of Agriculture and other provisions are similar to those contained in the Norbeck-Anderson Migratory Bird Conservation Act.

IF ICHABOD CRANE HAD A FLASHLIGHT

By JOHN G. LONSDALE
President American Bankers

WE ALL remember the story of Ichabod Crane and the headless horseman. There was the dark form by the side of the road—

...thundering hoofs on the Sleepy Hollow highway—and Ichabod Crane, who contained terror before this terrible monster. If Ichabod had his hobgoblin was an inventive rival of the inventor of the pumpkin head, he would have had a good laugh and gone on with the business of vanquishing his competitor.

What Ichabod really needed was a modern flashlight. Then he would have discovered the trickery at once. Many business men need the flashlight of analysis to uncover the hobgoblins in their business and then they might sit back and laugh at their rivals who hesitate to investigate and learn the truth.

At this time, when business and banking are making strenuous efforts to have a clear vision ahead, it is especially important that the power of research and analysis be employed to their fullest extent. When these twin brothers of good management have been pressed into service in all fields, it is a confidence we shall see a further lessening of periods of stress. However, I believe business in general has learned the valuable lesson that any prospect that is not safeguarded by a little adversity would not seem basically safe or sound.

RESERVE SYSTEM'S DIVIDENDS ANALYZED

Bankers Find Increased Payments to Member Banks Would Be Small Inducement.

Various proposals that member banks in the Federal Reserve System should participate largely in their net earnings through an increase in the dividend rate above the present fixed 6 per cent "would be a very small financial inducement to them," it is declared in a recent study of this subject by the Economic Policy Commission of the American Bankers Association. This is shown, the commission says, by a theoretical forecast, on the basis of the past six years, of additional earnings that would be distributed to member banks during the next six years under two plans introduced in bills before the United States Senate.

The Fletcher bill provides that Federal Reserve Bank earnings, after present 6 per cent dividends to members and completion of the 10 per cent surplus, should all be distributed as extra dividends to the stockholder banks, the report says. "If the earnings of each Federal Reserve bank were distributed among its own members there would be no extra dividends in the Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Chicago and San Francisco districts during the next six years, but the other six Federal Reserve Banks would pay annual extras at the following rates: Richmond, 6.08 per cent; Atlanta, 4.08 per cent; St. Louis, 3.50 per cent; Minneapolis, 3.51 per cent; Kansas City, 5.48 per cent; Dallas, 4.83 per cent.

"If the earnings were pooled and paid out to all members in all districts each member would receive an average annual extra dividend of 7.8 per cent. Under this plan no franchise tax as now would be paid by the Federal Reserve Banks to the Federal Government.

Another plan provided that after present 6 per cent dividends one-half the remainder should be paid to member banks as an extra dividend with the residue going to surplus and Federal Government as franchise tax. The average annual extras to members would be as follows: Boston District, 2.51 per cent; New York, 4.8 per cent; Philadelphia, 2.08 per cent; Cleveland, 2.09 per cent; Richmond, 3.26 per cent; Atlanta, 4.67 per cent; Chicago, 3.20 per cent; St. Louis, 3.28 per cent; Minneapolis, 4.78 per cent; Kansas City, 2.74 per cent; Dallas, 2.31 per cent; San Francisco, 1.87 per cent.

"If these extra funds were pooled the result would be an extra average annual dividend of 1.78 per cent for each member. Under this plan the present still pay as now an annual franchise tax, amounting to $1,941,996 on the average."

By way of concrete instance, the report says, a member bank having capital and surplus of $200,000, therefore holding Federal Reserve Bank stock amounting to $5,000 on which it is receiving $500 under the present 6 per cent dividend arrangement, would with the addition of each 1 per cent to the dividend receive an additional income of $50 a year.

"If each member bank will agree out for itself the dollar-and-cent gain it would enjoy, we are confident it will be agreed that the rates are small as against the economic disadvantages which can be pointed out," it concludes.
