Rev. L. Sittler Reveals Situation at Reformatory

Resignation Asked Because He Revealed Liquor Condition Of State Institution.

Charges Probes Whitewashed

Refusing to be a "yes" man, and standing squarely for the highest principles of public service, Rev. L. A. Sittler, pastor of the Evangelical Lutheran church, Plymouth, in a statement made public Saturday, charged that an "investigation and airing" of the Ohio Reformatory, Mansfield is badly needed.

The Rev. Mr. Sittler has maintained silence since his resignation was taken from the reformatory given August 1st of this year, apparently waiting for the right moment to strike at the roots of the system which is in force at the institution. His resignation was requested by the superintendent of the reformatory, T. C. Jenkins, claims being made that the chaplain would not co-operate and was disloyal in many ways.

However, the requested resignation, and the charge of disloyalty were the crisis reached after Rev. Sittler had at the request of Hal H. Griswold, state welfare director, revealed the source of liquor which was reaching the inmates. Two other employees after giving information regarding the liquor deals were punished. W. A. McFadden, former disciplinarian, was given a job with a lesser salary after being suspended for thirty days without reason assigned. The suspension of B. J. Keagy, printing plant foreman, terminated in his discharge through a dishonest feat in civil case proceedings.

An unusual light is thrown on the case, when it is learned that before the information involving some of the officials was given, the work of the chaplain was satisfactory.

Further charges made would prove that probes made previous to this time, by the Department of Public Welfare, have been "whitewashed." No results came of the investigations. Rev. Sittler added, "There is the policy of passivity and defense, together with what appears to be a deliberate avoidance of factors that promise to reveal an embarrassing situation for the administration."

Not only were officials who reported facts of the situation penalized, but two inmates, one of whom was found intoxicated, were characterized as punished. Honor jobs were taken from them, and one sentence was increased by two years in a bug.

Stating that favoritism is shown employees and inmates, Rev. Sittler stated, "A hypocritical slap on the administration's back and an ever ready 'yes' to existing policies can produce special remunerative privileges and opportunities which years of faithful service cannot gain."

"One young man was employed recently, at the customary salary. He has been given a private room, with an individual house boy to look after his needs, while other officers who stay at the institution sleep in a bug infested dormitory on the third floor above the guard room. Parole violators and escapes possessed of definite abilities in some lines, are many times given preference over others who have never had the opportunity to demonstrate their trustworthiness."

R. WEIDINGER ESCAPES LAW

Held Since Spring, Prisoner Digs Way Out of Cell To Freedom

Appearing to be a second "Slim Jim" Robert Weidinger, 21, who has been awaiting trial for burglary, in the Huron county jail in Norwalk, made good his escape early Monday morning.

Weidinger was near death for a long period in the Norwalk Memorial Hospital after a wound in the spleen, received when he was captured by police after having plundered a wealthy city Norwalk home in one of the best residential districts. Despite his physical condition the man almost escaped from the hospital when a nurse was absent from the room.

The successful flight from the county jail was orderly and planned. The almost impossible job of removing mortar from between the bricks of the wall, was accomplished by using the uprights of the steel cot, which he had unscrewed. He then dug through the twenty inches of soft brick to freedom. The soft building material used in 1887 made it much easier for the prisoner. The removed bricks were neatly piled on the bed. The mattress of the cot had been placed against the door of the cell to deaden the noise of his work.

By making a rope of sheets, etc., Weidinger descended the twenty-five feet from the second story to the street below. As the break was not discovered until dawn the man had made good his get-away. The escape to all members of the police force had been scratched on the wall of the cell. Dates of his arrest, the shooting, and his escape were inscribed.

Weidinger was to have been tried last Friday for breaking, entering and burglarizing the Prechtel home, but it was postponed until October when it was learned that Mrs. Weidinger had given birth to a son on Tuesday of last week. As she was an important witness in the trial it was necessary to continue the case.

This case has been in the front pages material in Norwalk since early spring, when Weidinger terrorized the town with his flashlight and gun.

Weidinger's escape recalls the successful break made by Jim Lyon, who later returned and surrendered, was tried and electrocuted in the state penitentiary.

SHERIFF WILL PROTECT RIGHTS OF FARMERS

Sheriff Aaron Davis of Richland County has issued a warning to motorists who drive into the rural districts and then proceed to invade the unharvested crops of farmers in fields and gardens.

"We have received numerous complaints during the past several days," the sheriff said, "from farmers who have seen people in the fields, helping themselves to anything in sight. This has included the theft of corn, pickles, cabbage and other vegetables."

"In one case the farmer, residing not far from Lexington noticed some people in his garden and fields. He remonstrated and his uninvited visitor seemed to think it queer he did not have a right to trespass."

Davis pointed out that persons who enter the property of farmers and deliberately steal produce may be arrested and prosecuted for trespassing, petty larceny or destruction of property.

"Action can be brought on any or all of these charges," Davis asserted. "The rights of the farmer are to be protected."

WHOLESALE POISONING OF DOGS OCCURS IN WILLARD

In what is determined to be a "wholesale slaughter" of dogs, priced pets or common canines, was the result in Willard last week of the distribution of poisoned meat about the town.

It is reported that between twenty and twenty-five dogs were taken away by the city scavenger in two days. The dogs were found to have obtained the meat in the district east of Myrtle avenue and south of East Maple street. Dr. J. H. Allinsham, Willard veterinarian, after investigations, stated that the death of the majority of the dogs indicated doses of strychnine.

Not only is the poisoning of dogs a violation of the law, the scattering of the poisoned meat is dangerous to human life. If the offender is found it is evident that the owner of the dogs will prosecute him.

HIGHWAY CONSTRUCTION TO KEEP MEN EMPLOYED

Highway construction will continue to keep a large number of men employed until severe winter weather arrives, according to Robert Wald, director of the state department of highways.

Money received from auto license tags and gasoline tax will be put to work as rapidly as it becomes available. Bids were received on fifteen highway projects August 31st, some of which are seven bridges, one grade elimination, one grade separation, and paving jobs. This does not mean that the contractors will be able to employ a large number of new men.

Many paving and grading jobs are nearing completion but the new jobs will enable the contractors to keep their crews busy until fall and early winter. The total number of men employed will be as great, or possibly a little larger, in the last half of the summer as in the first half.

Rev. Miller Takes a Cleveland Bride

Nuptial Ceremony Solemnized Tuesday Evening at Church

At one of the most beautiful weddings of the summer, Miss Cora E. Becker, of Cleveland, became the bride of Rev. John W. Miller, Tuesday evening. The marriage was solemnized at the Presbyterian church, which Rev. Miller has served for a number of years, at eight o'clock by Rev. Homer Neff, of Willard. The beautiful double ring ceremony was used.

The vows were exchanged at the altar decorated with late summer blooms and green ferns. The auditorium was lighted with yellow lanterns, and was also appropriately decorated with ferns and flowers.

The bride was lovely in a gown of white gossamer, with accessories to match, and the simple and elegant to emphasize her charm. Preceding the ceremony, "O-Perfect Love," by Barnaby, was sung by Miss Ruth Balfour. The Mendelssohn wedding march was used, and played by Mrs. Harry Dick.

Following the wedding, an informal reception was given by the members of the church for Rev. and Mrs. Miller, and a luncheon was served in the church parlors.

Mrs. Miller is a graduate of Western Reserve University, Cleveland, and Oberlin Conservatory of Music, Oberlin, and has received graduate degrees from Columbia University. She has taught at the State University of South Dakota, the State University of California, and at the State University of Missouri.

Rev. Miller is known, not only to Plymouth, but throughout the surrounding vicinity, and through his service, and his friendliness has won for himself a position that could not easily be filled in the hearts of his friends. Relatives of the bride, attending the wedding, from Cleveland, were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cass, and Miss Ruth Nutting.

Candidates File Election Expense

All Richland county candidates participating actively in the recent primaries have complied with the law, and final accountings of election expenses have been made at the office of the Board of Elections.

The expenses of the candidates have been put on file, and according to an unofficial tabulation in the office of John A. Massa, Sr., Mansfield, a total of $2,932.27 was spent in the campaign preceding the balloting.

The list of candidates to be received by the Board of Elections was that of M. Earl Saltzger, Democrat, defeated in the contest for nomination for sheriff. The expense accounts of the political aspirants were filed quite promptly following the election returns.

In addition to Saltzger's expense, which gave a total of $238.45 expended in his campaign, statements of the following statements were filed:

Atty. Charles H. Huston, $488.84; William McClen, defeated in the race for nomination for county treasurer, $110; Thomas Dickerson, unopposed for the Republican nomination for county recorder, $20. Kenneth D. Manner defeated in the race for the nomination for treasurer $228.45.

Other accounts previously filed made up the $3,322.72 total, with the exception of a statement received recently from the "Galbraith for Judge" committee, which filed a statement saying a group headed by Atty. A. S. Beach expended a total of $49.80 in the interest of Judge J. W. Galbraith during the pre-primary campaign.

Most of the amount was expended for printing matter, according to the account, which listed contributions from Isabelle Galbraith, $275. R. R. Black, $25; J. C. Appleman, $50; Roy J. Spohn, $50; and Marie Miller, $25.

Judge Galbraith's account showed a total of $448.55 in personal expenditures, bringing the grand total of disbursements by the judge and his friends to $918.45.

Expense accounts of the last primary election show that the amounts spent by candidates ranges from $5.00 or so to nearly $200. Most of the candidates spent nothing at all.

The following is a list of these expense accounts as filed at the office of C. C. Frederick, clerk of the board of elections:

R. R. Robertson, Republican, county commissioner, $5.00. Kenneth P. Fox, Republican, candidate for prosecutor, $93.45. Chas. McClave, Republican, candidate for state assessor, $100.42. H. D. Smith, Republican, candidate for sheriff, $114. John Elminger, Democrat, candidate for county recorder, $8.65.

Chas. D. Trimmer, Democrat, candidate for sheriff, $23.50. Edgar G. Mastis, Republican, candidate for prosecutor, $37.90. Clarence Miller, Democratic candidate for sheriff, $32.55. Floyd Davis, Republican candidate for county treasurer, $31.70.

Chas. A. Crum, Republican candidate for sheriff, $106.30. C. C. Bebout, Republican candidate for state representative, $198.37. Edward George, Republican candidate for sheriff, $92.80.

A big improvement has been noted in front of "Heine's" store, on the square, as he has put in seven-ton new blocks of sidewalk. The appearance of the place is greatly changed. A few more improvements are needed around the square, and it is hoped that others will follow "Heine's" good idea.

SCHOOL ENROLLMENT TO REACH 1,350,000

For the school year 1929-30 the enrollment was 1,249,612, according to the figures compiled by the Research Division of the State Department of Education. Director J. L. Clifton said today, "The enrollment for the school year 1930-31 will be a hundred thousand increase over last year, making an enrollment of approximately 1,350,000. This increase will be due to three reasons—strict observance of the attendance laws, more attention to the interests and aptitudes of the pupils, and the normal increase in population."

Director Clifton further indicated that the enrollment of the first grade, that is in a beginning grade, would be 150,000. Last year the state enrolled 146,316 pupils.

Verbally charged with having stolen oats, barley and wheat from the Dies farm, west of Ganex, Charles Dilline was in the county jail following his arrest Tuesday.

Mochlman, Norwalk, $12,700; Burton Wheeler, Norwalk, $11,550. Electrical: O'Donnell Electric Shop, Norwalk, $1,075; Battery & Electric Co., Vermilion, $769.
Painting: P. S. Palmer, Willard, $473; Elevator: Six bids ranging from $4,250 to $6,153.

Ice cream production in 1929 reached a total of 365,448,000 gallons, almost 20 million gallons more than for the previous year, according to the United States Department of Agriculture.

"For the purpose of jelly-making fruit falls into two classes," to quote the bulletin, "those from which it may be made easily, as tart apples, crab apples, currants, grapes, blackberries, some plums, quince and raspberries, and those from which jelly can be made when they are combined with other fruits, as cherries, peaches, and strawberries."

"A good jelly-making fruit must contain acid of the right kind, and plenty. Good examples of such fruits are apples and currants. Some fruits have one and not the other. Peaches, for example, have pectin but lack acid, while elderberries lack both. Jelly may be made of fruits of the latter class by the addition of the acid or pectin directly or by blending them with fruits rich in jelly-making properties. Apple juice is the one usually used with fruits having poor jelly-making properties, as it affects color and flavor least."

The bulletin takes up, step by step, methods of preserving these whetters of the appetite. It may be obtained from the office of agricultural publication, Ohio State University.

COURTESY ON THE ROAD

A writer in the current issue of The Nation calls attention to a byproduct of the automobile industry which ordinarily goes unmentioned—the utter annihilation of tempers and manners which the automobile seems to have brought to millions of good citizens. It is a point worth considering.

There seems to be something inherent in the mere act of driving an automobile that makes a man feel that he is exempt from all, or nearly all, of the common requirements of courtesy and human decency. It applies to nearly all of us, and in the last few years it has produced a set of road manners which would seem to justify the complaint that we are a nation of barbarians.

Yet we are not, ordinarily, nearly as bad as we seem to be. Most of us, in the common round of daily life, are fairly well-disposed people. We have a fair amount of courtesy, we are not over-forward, we are quite willing to give the other fellow a break and to refrain from pushing ourselves to the front too blatantly.

Put one of us behind the wheel of an automobile, however, and what happens? Dr. Jekyll whines and Mr. Hyde comes tearing to the front, grinding his teeth, clenching his fists and muttering swear words. The mildest of men is transformed into a ruthless autocrat, demanding that all other motorists on the highway give way before him.

Really, it is actually amazing the way our dispositions change for the worse. We will put on an extra burst of speed to keep the other fellow from crossing ahead of us. With an hour in which to make a 15-minute drive we will jockey for 10-second advantages as if the fate of the nation hung on our speed. If some luckless soul stalls his engine, runs out of gas or encounters a mechanical defect that stops him in his tracks, do we offer to help him, or at least bestow our sympathy on him? Not much—we yell at him, and toot our horns, and mutter in our hearts as if he were the most feudalish criminal of the ages.

To list all the ways in which we show our boorishness on the highways would take all day. You can doubtless make up your own list—and if you do it carefully and honestly, the chances are you'll be surprised at your own lack of manners. All of us display a surliness and a selfishness as drivers that we would never dream of displaying in any other field.

This is more than just a matter of melancholy regret. Our automobiles are killing more than 30,000 people a year, and a great many of these 30,000 would still be alive if it were not for this national habit of selfishness on the highway. In any safety campaign the restoration of simple, old-fashioned courtesy must be the first big step. Until we regain our manners our death toll will continue to be a national scandal.

THEY'LL CUT BOTH WAYS

National air shows like the one held at Chicago provide material for both the optimist and the pessimist.

They lift up the optimist by demonstrating how mankind has conquered the air and by indicating a new method of escape, a new form of recreation more thrilling and uplifting than anything ever developed before.

At the same time they put another crease in the pessimist's brow by reminding him that these marvelous machines are, after all, largely designed for purposes of destruction. Those army planes that swoop along in such inspiring style—give the proper conditions they could be apparitions more dreadful than the pale horseman that St. John saw on Patmos.

So it is that an air show of this kind gives you mixed emotions. You can see in it the incarnation of a race set free, or you can see in it a glittering new weapon with which humanity one day will blow its brains out. You're right, either way. The airplane, like most of the rest of our inventions, can cut both ways.

Indeed, it often seems as if that knack of inventing two-edged tools is the outstanding characteristic of the present age.

We advise marvelous machines, only to find out that we have thereby, given ourselves enormous responsibilities. These intricate devices of ours may yet make it possible for us to life ourselves by our own bootstraps; similarly, they may bring us to the point where we shall proceed to exterminate ourselves, calling back the Dark Ages for all the earth with all the unsuspecting innocence of an infant playing with a fulminate of mercury torpedo.

All of which, perhaps, is just a sign that we are a little bit more clever than is altogether good for us. One side of mankind's brain has developed amazingly. People can fly through the air, send their voices around the world and enlist mechanical slaves to do their drudgery; but one is permitted to wonder just how much good this is all going to do us if we do not have the intelligence to use these new devices properly.

At any rate, the combination of things ought to make the current era exciting. For better or for worse, we are going somewhere at a rapid clip. It may be that we are headed for an order of society, a way of life, more magnificent, free and inspiring than anything that was ever dreamed of before; on the other hand, we may be about to engage in self-destruction on a stupendous scale.

That is the cross-roads to which this age of inventions is bringing us. We are traveling fast. It depends on our collective common sense whether we shall go up or down.

CLASS JUSTICE?

The murder and rioting convictions against strikers in the North Carolina textile cases of last year have been upheld by the state Supreme Court. But this should not end the fight. Appeal should be taken to the U. S. Supreme Court.

The trials were prejudiced and unfair. The atmosphere of heresy hunting and inquisition fouled the proceedings.

If it is true as reports in the press dispatches that some of the convicted men have jumped bail and fled to Moscow, they have proved themselves guilty of cowardice when courts have failed fairly to prove them guilty of crime.

But that has no bearing on the issue in these legal cases. If they have run away, they have merely injured the strength of their own cause. They have not, and can not, change the fact that they did not receive justice in American courts.

Nor can any radical, either in this country or in Russia, cause the havoc to American institutions which can result from courts of injustice.—Cleveland Press.

Three Reasons to Increase Revenue

There are three main avenues for the livestock farmer to widen his margin of profit, all of which lead to the question of reducing the cost of production. The three avenues are better breeding, better feeding and more weeding.

It is rather a disappointment to drive through the country and notice the large number of inferior animals upon a great many of our farms. This is possibly due to such extent to the fact that a great many inferior sires have been used. Even in the case of a great many of our pure breeds, inferior pure breeds have been used and the feeder had thought largely that pure breeding was all that was essential. A much greater effort should be made to prolong the usefulness of tried and proven sires.

There are certain principles in the selection of a sire which as a rule hold true. However, occasionally a sire may not meet these requirements and may still be a very profitable animal. A much greater effort should be made to prolong the usefulness of tried and proven sires.

But good blood alone will not do the job. Just because animals are pure bred or of good breeding does not necessarily say that they will be profitable. Well bred animals only respond and make the feeder profit when he also practices good feeding. It is disappointing at times to think of the good machines that are distributed through the extension workers and then find that so few feeders have really taken advantage of this valuable information. A little more study of feeding problems in order that the production machines may work more efficiently would help to materially reduce the cost of production upon a great many livestock farms.

Employers as a rule, do not keep unprofitable help very long. The lazy man or the loafer is usually eliminated. However, in a great many of our livestock herds loafers are very common. The good feeder must apply the principles of the man who employs labor. He must select his profitable breeding animals and eliminate his loafers. There is a great difference in the ability of certain brood sows to produce pigs. There is also a difference in the natural inherited ability of those pigs to grow. There is a great difference in the ability of certain dairy cows to produce milk. There is much difference in the ability of certain hens to lay eggs. These are all very important in reducing the cost of production and widening the margin of profit.

The good feeder will give more serious thought to these problems. In periods such as the farmer is confronted with at the present time, it will do him much good and make him profit to weed out his lazy animals and his animals that do not transmit ability to mature and produce economically.

Prospects for good fruit yields are bright in the Northeast and Far West. In southern and central states yields are expected to be very light.

REFUGES, NOT LAWS WILL RESTORE GAME

New York, September 4.—Wild life refuges and sanctuaries properly administered under scientific control of environment and game management will do more toward restoring wild life to its former abundance in the entire country than all the laws enacted. So say sportsman, scientists and educators throughout the country. Games cannot be "flawed" back. It has to be raised under the right conditions.

America, thru thoughtlessness in some cases, and greed in others, has been striking at the sources of wild life. It is pointed out. The settlement of many broad areas has caused the needless drainings of many lakes, swamps and streams; forests too have fallen needlessly to the axe in the hands of the unthinking and greedy. If wild life is to be restored, we must restore adequate breeding grounds, or create new refuges.

BUGGIES AND WAGONS SHOULD CARRY LIGHTS

Although the legislature made it compulsory to have a light or reflector on all horse drawn vehicles, there are still many wagons and buggies without this protection, and every few days we read of someone being killed or seriously injured thru somebody's failure to observe this sensible safety regulation.

Nearly all auto accessory stores carry the small red reflectors to attach to the rear end of wagons and buggies. Their cost is small, and when the light from the head lamps strike them they are as effective as a red light. The law requires a reflector which will show a red light visible 200 feet to the rear.

RETURNING FROM SOUTHERN MOTOR TRIP

Messrs. Donald Akers, Wayne Sommerlot and Miss Irene Pettit returned home Sunday evening from a two weeks motor trip through the southern and eastern states. Traversing eleven states, historical and interesting points were visited including Lookout Mountain in Tennessee, Stone Mountain, Ga., motorist as far south as Atlanta, Ga. up through the Carolinas and into Washington, D. C.

Wayne reports that coca cola and watermelons were fine but the roads rotten and to find your way about you had to be a "native," but to balance this, he thinks it would be an ideal spot to spend the cold winter months.

AUTO KILLINGS FORCE STATE TO BUY RABBITS

New York, September 4.—Pedestrians are divided into two classes—the quick and the dead. And poor Ewey Rabbit seems to be in the slow motion class when he becomes a pedestrian on the highways. He is faring much worse than the human pedestrians; for one or more of his tribe is killed to every mile of highway in the United States, says the American Game Protective Association.

In order to meet the motor traffic kill in New Jersey thus far this season, the fish and game commission of that state has placed an order for the importation of 5000 additional western cotton tail rabbits next year. The order will bring New Jersey's import of rabbits to 20,000 rabbits for next year.

Sanatorium Care Is Credited By Doctor

Much credit for the phenomenal drop in the tuberculosis death rate in the United States, during the past quarter century is being given to the growth and development of sanatorium care.

"Twenty-five years ago when the National Tuberculosis Association was organized there were 112 sanatoria in the United States with 9,000 beds," says Dr. Kendall Emerson, managing director of the national voluntary health organization. "Today there are over 618 sanatoria with 75,000 beds."

One of the first tuberculosis hospitals to be built in this country was the Trudeau Sanatorium at Saranac Lake, New York. Built in 1885 by public subscription under the guidance of Dr. Edward Livingston Trudeau, pioneer in the modern treatment of tuberculosis in America, this institution has risen to the front rank of tuberculosis sanatoria throughout the world. From a humble beginning of two small cottages the institution has developed a capacity of approximately 160 and has treated more than 65,000 patients.

Dr. Trudeau, who had gone to the Adirondacks, to seek relief from tuberculosis, became inspired with the sanatorium idea upon reading Brehmer's Sanatorium in Silesia, Germany. Guides and residents of Saranac donated money for the purchase of fifty acres of land near a village spot, selected by Trudeau.

Believing that tuberculosis patients should be segregated to prevent the spread of the disease, Trudeau decided upon the cottage plan for his sanatorium.

Twenty-one of the hundreds of sanatoria which have sprung up throughout the United States since 1885, are located in Ohio. Eight of these are county institutions. Three are district; four are municipal; one is operated by the state; one by the federal government and four are privately owned.

Rev. L. Sittler Reveals

a half has proved, however, that I was following an elusive hope that would end in delusion. According to Jenkins' interpretation of loyalty, I plead guilty to disloyalty, but at the time of my resignation, and now, I know of no disloyalty to my inner light of conscience."

If guards, inmates, and officers were assured of no discrimination and penalization, startling facts could be revealed. The Rev. Mr. Sittler charges that it is common knowledge to all officers and employes that certain men are permitted to use liquor while on duty.

"One employe was arrested following an auto accident and liquor was found in his possession. He was discharged, making it appear that the inordinate use of liquor by employes becomes objectionable only when the knowledge of the fact becomes public."

Superintendent Jenkins has been an employe of the Reformatory for twenty-five years and has held his present position for the past twelve years. His statement that the chaplain is a "disgruntled ex-employe" is surely answered by the Rev. Mr. Sittler's courage in advancing such a charge to high authorities. Statements with such potency are not usually made unless there is evidence and conviction back of them.

With information at hand, officials to which the charges are presented, do not act, something indeed is amiss.

FARMERS' INTENTIONS TO SOW WINTER WHEAT, RYE

Seedings of winter wheat in Ohio this fall will be 4 per cent less than a year ago if farmers' present intentions are carried out. This would mean 1,893,000 acres compared with 1,972,000 acres sown in the fall of 1929, states C. S. Ray, Federal Agricultural statistician at Columbus.

Intentions of farmers throughout the United States to plant winter wheat will, if carried out, amount to 41,362,000 acres or 4.5 per cent less than the 43,361,000 acres sown in the autumn of 1929. Intended plantings in some of the other states show the following: Michigan 3 per cent increase, Illinois 5 per cent decrease and Missouri 8 per cent decrease. Intentions for Nebraska show 13 per cent decrease, Kansas 7 per cent decrease, Oklahoma 15 per cent decrease and Texas 5 per cent decrease while Washington shows a 50 per cent increase.

Actual seedings during the past seven years have averaged off the entire country about 4 per cent below August intentions, the spread varying from 8 per cent below intentions in 1925 when fall seeding conditions were very unfavorable to 3 per cent above intentions in 1928 when seeding conditions proved extremely favorable.

ton, which was bound to be inherent in Willard."

Myron T. Herrick, whose father, son and grandson as well as himself were known to Rev. Barton, was the mark of much tribute from the venerable retired minister.

"Wellington will ever rejoice and intelligence, was so able to serve his country. Herrick's life will be an inspiration to youths of this village and every village like it when they know that such men can come from lowly beginnings."

"People came from miles around to tax the capacity of the Opera House for the privilege of witnessing these impressive exercises, the import of which cannot be realized until it becomes history.

"Wellington has been more than average in intelligence, in traditions of good and honor, in progress, in government, and in good schools and churches, among other villages of the country which are only a century old," Dr. Barton said.

"Wellington's first Fourth of July celebration in 1826 was held in the infancy of the town and it was at that celebration that its patriotic fires were lighted—fires which were never allowed to go out.

"We should not forget that the library, the addition to which we are now dedicating, is built on the spot from which a black man was liberated at the price of jailing a number of prominent Oberlin and Wellington patriotic white men. It has been said that the black man which was freed was not worth the price that was paid, but it is the spirit of the white men who were willing to give up their freedom that another might not be in bondage."

"It is this patriotic spirit for which Wellington is famous. There never has been anything in history quite like the Oberlin-Wellington Rescue case and there seems to be no spot where the library might more fittingly stand than on the spot where this remarkable thing took place."

"A. M. Willard, of Wellington, expressed another form of the town's patriotism which was inwrought by him when he painted the 'Spirit of '76'.

"The picture was painted by a man who had risked his own life in war and whose father had risked his life," Barton continued, "and his painting of this picture not only created a force to prevent war but it served as an interpretation of the spirit of Wellington."

Such was the praise given Wellington, and Herrick's gift to the little city, by the Rev. Dr. Barton, formerly a pastor of the Wellington Congregational church. Dr. Barton traveled from Boston, Mass., a distance of one thousand miles, to present the dedicatory address.

The dedication of the Herrick Memorial Library annex concluded the jubilee celebration in which former residents of the town were welcomed home again, and a program for the future growth was planned.
