LOOKING DOWN THE SIDELINE

PLYMOUTH'S YOUNGER GENERATION had a taste of the "good old days" Monday night when the storm cut off the town's supply of electricity. Approximately a third of the roof on the light plant was blown off wrapping itself around the wires and forcing the power to be shut off.

Candles and old kerosene lamps were dug out of the basement or attic and put to work. Happening just when most people eat their evening meal, the lighted tapers gave a "birthday effect" to a great many dinner tables.

The children thought it was great and wondered just why it didn't happen often and felt sure they would enjoy going back to the time such things were necessities. Of course when the novelty wore off it might then become irksome but ONE THING IS SURE, some accident it would cut down considerable the speed that most families consume their meals and give one another a blessing that we never find in POWER.

BUT PERSONALLY THE GOOD OLD DAYS ARE THE PRESENT DAYS

When Speed and Power accomplish with ease so many of the things we used to do yesterday. Surely one could never wash, iron, clean and bake and then ENJOY the day with the old methods. However, the old theory still holds good—'you never miss a thing, until it is gone, and Plymouthites can surely appreciate all the modern and up-to-date conveniences of larger cities.

ANOTHER LAND MARK BIT

The dust in Monday's storm was the large maple tree in front of the residence of Mrs. Georgia Shaffer on the east side of the Square. The tree was blown over—roots and all, leaving a huge cavity in the sidewalk. Several other trees in the village were leveled, a portion of the roof on the Red Front store ripped off, a number of telephone and light poles were blown down. Damage was reported at the Huron county fair grounds. A large tree on the west side of the town was blown down on the exhibition building and practically cut it in half. A part of the grand stand roof also was blown down. The city carries insurance to cover the loss, it is stated.

WHILE PLYMOUTH SPONSORED NO PEACE DECLARATION

Contest Sunday night, it was quite a coincidence that the same district was probably the greatest since the disastrous ice storm of 1928.

Damage to telephone and electric power equipment in the district was probably the greatest since the disastrous ice storm of 1928.

BAND NEWS

The band of Shiloh marched Saturday afternoon for the last football game of the season. This was with Huron.

We were to host to the Huron band but when the bus arrived from Huron the band members were not with them.

The Shiloh High school band marched down town before the game, marched back and played for the flag raising ceremony at Ferrell Field. At the half we marched onto the field headed by the regular drum majorette, and majorettes. The formations that the band made represented S-H-I-L-O-H in cannon form. Each letter shot out of the cannon. This ended the formation for the football days. The band then ended their marching for the season with their regular "victory" march down town.

SHILOH DEFEATS HURON

Shiloh closed their 1940 season by edging Huron 33-28. This gives the Drummer Boys six wins and one defeat. Huron was the only team that defeated Shiloh. The Shiloh boys stated that they always liked to play Huron because of the clean game they play. The game was hard fought as the score shows.

Four of the regular players will graduate, Ruckman, Harrington, Heden and Nesbitt.

All boys including the line and backfield played a game which was commendable to any six-man football team.

After his talk Mr. Kirkwood presented the Shiloh school with an American flag. It will stand in the auditorium suspended on a long pole. Mr. Kirkwood then introduced Rev. Turner Holt to the audience. Rev. Holt gave us an interesting and inspiring talk on patriotism. Mr. Joseph then called upon Mr. Pittenger to lead us in pledging allegiance to the flag. Mr. Spirk blew the taps at 11:30 as we faced the east. Then Joe Mock read a poem entitled "Abraham Lincoln Walks at Midnight," as the phonograph played "Lead Kindly Light." This was an impressive chapel and we hope to have many more similar to it.

GUEST ARTIST ADDS TO HOME COMING

Mr. Joseph Trozak, the national high school bassoon champion in 1937, helped make our home coming a success by demonstrating the art of bassoon playing at our band concert Sunday afternoon. He played The Arkansas Traveler and Popeye the Sailor Man, which were recorded on the new recording machine purchased by the Music Club this year. He also played a part of the selection with which he won the national championship. I'm sure everyone that heard it realized what an addition it would make to our band.

"We fellows on the gridiron have a lot in common with the Army's Flying Cadets," Captain "Jimmy" Langhurst of Ohio State's gridlers said. "It's fun to play football and it's fun to fly. But there's a lot of hard work behind scenes in both games. Both take stamina, brains and special training. Flying cadets have one responsibility, though that we gridlers can touch. We're out on the gridiron battling for the honor of our college but flying cadets are flying to defend our country. When I finish at O. S. U. I hope to be an army pilot," the football ace declared.

That the Willard, Ohio, Adonia has learned a thing or two besides football is here attested by his home-town girl friends, Miss Janis and Miss Joyce, and her identical twin, Joyce, are pictured above -- left and right, or right and left, of Jim -- take your choice! These charming aviation and football fans are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Youngs, of Willard, Ohio. While popular Willard High school students they were rousing cheer leaders who spurred "Jimmy" on to noblest efforts for W. H. S. As their life-long pal, Jim declares that he can tell these Youngs' young-uns apart. But if he can, he's about the smartest guy on the O. S. U. campus.

These Youngs "Co-captains" are rooting Jim onward in his pigskin parade toward a place on the 1940 All-American football team. With Janis leading millions of cheering Ohioans, Mister Langhurst must fly to victory say O. S. U. boosters—and6,889,623 Buckeyes CAN'T be wrong!

annual showing of prime animals in the world. The listing for the purebred classes of cattle, sheep, swine and draught horses as well as individual animals for the fat stock classes filed by prospective exhibitors up to Nov. 1st deadline, has been so heavy that the management feels confident the 1940 exposition will be one of the largest on record.

BAKE 18 LOAVES OF BREAD FOR A PENNY WITH GAS

Even though you may not bake 18 loaves of bread, it is interesting to see how much baking you can do with a penny's worth of gas. This is figured at the national average domestic rate of 74 cents per 1000 cubic feet. Perhaps you may use this gas for lighter pastries, such as rolls or cakes, but in every instance you will find the fuel costing far less than any major ingredient in the recipe. By no other commonly accepted method can you bake so much for so little cost — proving again that YOUR GAS CENT IS WELL SPENT.

VOTES SET RECORD

Secretary Paul Tucker of the Huron county board of elections, reports that 18,903 votes cast at last Tuesday's election broke all previous records in the county. It was greater than the total ballots cast in any of the great land-slides of the past. The singular support given Wendell Willkie in Huron county probably surpasses that of any vote cast for any President voted for in Huron county. Had each of the 88 counties of Ohio given Willkie 5,013 majority as was done in this county, the Republican Presidential candidate would have carried the state by nearly 500,000.

"We Stuff 'Em"

An attractive package for your food is as essential as the food itself. Perhaps "good things always come in small packages," but in this case, large or small, the outer covering must not be merely protective, but decorative. The family's appreciation will, no doubt, be indicated by various reactions. For instance, some may loudly praise the combination of two foods, then nonchalantly eat only the contents of the shell; or after raving about the attractiveness, some may apparently proceed to eat the container without further thought to the stuffing. Despite this seemingly ungratifying result, the "ramekin" dish is a pleasant surprise, and you, in turn, will be surprised at what is eaten or left.

Stuffin's
Some folks eat the stuffing of a tasty chocolate pie.
And leave the flaky crust without even a "good-bye."
Yet there are those who never touch that creamy inner portion.
But calmly eat the light-brown shell, 'mid palate-pleased rejections.
It's really not significant which one you choose eat.
There are some who like the stuffing, and some that outer treat
Perhaps you're one who craves both parts of two combined together.
We'll all be pleased as long as foods are one inside another.

Notes:

This is the second in a series of stories written by the Sophomore English class of Plymouth High School, under the direction of Mr. Moles.

Rudy woke up with a start. Gosh! It must be early yet. He didn't usually wake up 'till his mother called him. Oh! Yes! he'd been dreaming. He remembered now. He'd dreamed that he'd been frightened by some huge monster. He had run 'till he came to an apparently endless flight of steps. My how hard he climbed! He was just about to give up when he saw a light ahead. He stopped only a moment for breath and then proceeded. He had just reached the trip, where the light was, when he awoke. He wondered what he would have seen if he hadn't awakened for a while. Well, he might as well go back to sleep.

But try as he would, he simply could not get back to sleep. He kept wondering what was at the head of the stairs. So finally he gave it up, and getting up he put on his bedroom slippers and threw a robe over his shoulders. He went to the kitchen and looked at the clock which said just five minutes 'till seven. His mother wasn't up yet, so he went back to his room. He raised the shade and noticed it was an unusually lovely morning. It was the third of February, but that didn't mean much in Florida. It was misty out but the sun was beginning to shine merrily and it made the dew-sprinkled grass sparkle with beauty. The flame-vine looked especially bright, and a mocking bird was singing happily in the tree in the front yard. Yes, it was a typical Florida morning.

While Rudy was taking in all this, he heard his mother getting up. He dressed quickly and combed his hair. He was a nice looking boy with blond, wavy hair, blue eyes, a clear complexion and a strong, sturdy body.

"Rudy," his mother called, "it's time to get up."

"I beat you this morning," he laughed, opening the door and smiling at his mother.

Mrs. Grella was a small, elderly lady, with straight, dark hair which was beginning to show streaks of grey. She hadn't married as young as most girls, and she had only this one son. But she didn't see how anyone could be any happier than she was, and especially when he smiled at her, that way.

"Well what ever got you out at this hour of the morning?" she asked, recovering from her surprise. "I usually have to call you at least three times. Now you'll just have to wait 'till I get your breakfast."

"I think I'll take a little walk. It's such a nice day out," answered Rudy. "By the way, Mom, Wayne Blackburn is having a party tonight at the Masonic temple."

"And who are you taking?" Dorothy Mauney or Wilma Wood ruff?" called Mrs. Grella as he started out the door.

"Neither of them, so there too. I'm just going by myself."

Walking along, he wished he was going with Dorothy Mauney. She had the most beautiful hair and eyes. But she was stuck on Van Robinson.

The smell of bacon interrupted him as he neared the back door. "Your breakfast is ready," greeted his mother. "Your father's is too if he ever gets dressed."

"I'm ready now," broke in Mr. Grella with a yawn. He was big, kind man with pure white hair and a kind face. He had been born near Rome, Italy, and he still talked very brokenly. He was the music professor at Clearwater High school and well liked by everyone.

Rudy rode to school with his father. That noon he ate at the grille. He danced three times with Dorothy and spent all his money playing "Blue Birds in the Moonlight."

He helped his mother after school that night. He ran several errands and all the time he kept thinking about his dream. He so seldom dreamed and this was such an unusual one he couldn't get it out of his mind.

After supper he sat down long enough to read the "funnies" and then he went and dressed for his party.

"Bye, Mom," he called from the door as he was about to leave. "Goodbye," she answered. "Will you be late, or shall I leave the door unlocked?"

"I think I'll be home before midnight," he replied. "In fact I think I'll ride my motor bike."

"Be careful, dear. Goodbye," called Mrs. Grella. And as she closed the door she had a strange feeling come over her. Perhaps it was all nonsense, but she felt as though that "Goodbye" had been the last one she'd say to Rudy for a while a long while.

The party was a great success but Rudy began to yawn about 10:30.

"Guess I'll run along," he said yawning. "Anybody want to ride out my way?"

"Maybe I will," spoke up Chester McMullen, thoughtfully. "I hate to walk home but it's pretty early yet. Oh well! I can probably get a ride," he concluded.

Rudy got his motor bike started after a little trouble. Just as he turned the corner on to Ft. Harrison avenue, a car appeared from nowhere. Alton Bowers was walking along the sidewalk and yelled at Rudy, but it was too late.

Rudy was once more climbing a long flight of steps. Beyond waited something he longed for. This time Rudy Grella was not dreaming.

NOTE—The dream and minor details given above are not known to be true. The characters, names, and other incidents are all true. Rudolph Grella was killed on Ft. Harrison St., Feb. 3, 1940 in Clearwater, Fla.

Francine Fortney.

WESTWARD HO!

Mrs. Josephine S. Rogers writes this week to Plymouth friends that she has enjoyed a four-day visit in New Orleans, La. That the city is much more beautiful and progressive than she had pictured. New Orleans has the narrowest, widest, most crooked and straightest streets of any city in the world.

She also enjoyed a real French dinner in the old French Square with red wine, coffee and donuts eaten with powdered sugar. The recipe for the donuts has been handed down for three generations.

Mrs. Rogers, who spent several weeks in Plymouth this fall, has now visited twenty-two cities and enjoying her visit in every one. Her next stop is Houston, Texas, before she leaves for her home in Long Beach, Calif.

Seeks Data On Kin

The Advertiser is in receipt of a letter this week from Prof. Edw. Hudson Young, Duke University, Durham, N. C., seeking data on the death of one Noah Young. Mr. Young died on July 15, 1888 at his home near Plymouth, or about two or three miles from New Haven.

Having no files that date far back we are wondering if anyone in the community might have heard of this party or know anything about the details. If so, Prof. Young, who seeks the information as a descendant, would appreciate any help given him. A letter addressed to him, care of Duke University, Durham North Carolina, would be greatly appreciated.

RED CROSS DRIVE GETS UNDER WAY

The Red Cross Roll Call began in Plymouth Monday and from the reports which have come in the workers are being well received.

Each year Plymouth has supported the work of the Red Cross to a large degree and this excellent organization deserves this increased support.

The funds which are raised by the Annual Roll call go into disaster relief, war relief, flood relief and many other worthy activities. In 1940 the need for the Red Cross and its work in Europe is greater than ever before.

Yet out of each enrollment only 50 cents leaves Richland county, the rest remains here to work for the people of this county. So if a subscriber takes a dollar enrollment, fifty cents goes to the national organization. If the subscriber takes a five dollar enrollment, then four and one-half dollars stays in Richland county, while fifty cents goes to the national organization.

Richland county has always been one of the outstanding counties in the state in its support of the Red Cross. Plymouth has helped make its record, and Plymouth will continue to keep on helping. A dollar given for this work does a wealth of good.
