Miss Eleanor Searle, who became the bride of Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney at noon Wednesday.

Sidelights on the Wedding

The warm morning sunshine gave radiance to Eleanor as she related to me "from the beginning" the various stages of the romance with "Sonny" Whitney which culminated in her marriage to him Wednesday.

Calm, yet happy, she told how she had met young Whitney at Fort Washington a year and half ago. It was at a social function which was in honor of the opening of a new route for the Pan American Airways. From then on, young Whitney paid his attention to her by making several trips to Florida while she was there, and as the months passed, the interest grew.

I asked her how "Mother Whitney" felt about the whole affair, bringing out the fact that a feature article which had appeared in a feature section of a Toledo paper, had to some extent, made some comments. Eleanor replied: "Mother Whitney is a sweet woman; she has been simply grand to me and she heartily approves my marriage to 'Sonny'."

There must be quite a bit of truth in Mrs. Whitney's admiration for Eleanor, for she presented her with a gorgeous yellow gold pair of ear rings studded with lovely gems to match the bracelet given her by young Whitney. She also received a lovely brooch of the same design given by her sister-in-law.

In a brief interview after the wedding Mrs. Whitney exclaimed: "Such a beautiful day, and a perfect wedding. I know both of them will be extremely happy. I have enjoyed every minute in Plymouth and everyone has been so lovely."

Knowing that the wedding had received no local publicity, Mr. Ted Ramsey asked me "How did the residents know in time to get out to the wedding?" I replied that all that was needed was the "word" and that it would travel faster around town than any modern communication system could do in New York. This was proved by the fact that the church was almost filled for the wedding. Word of the marriage was not released until after 10 a. m.

Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney doesn't like his nickname of "Sonny." He'd like to lose it, but the New York papers won't let him.

His gift to his bride included a beautiful black Imperial Cadillac coupe in which they will make a tour of the west, and a beautiful new home at Wheatly Park, L. I., which adjoins the estate of Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney. They will reside there on their return east.

The villagers gave their approval of Eleanor's choice for it was a frequent remark: Mr. Whitney is certainly a nice looking fellow and has a wonderful personality. He seems so pleasant, and a bit shy."

The bride and groom walked down to the altar a little nonchalant, but tears came to both of them after the reading of the service. I guess we all cry when we are so darned happy we don't know what to do.

Well, folks, it was a great piece of news, an event that will long be remembered, and the whole town wishes for Eleanor and Mr. Whitney all the happiness in the world. We're still in a trance and will probably be several days coming out of it. PWT

Village Surprised As Eleanor Searle Becomes the Bride of Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney

In a ceremony which took place Wednesday noon, Miss Eleanor Searle, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George James Searle, of Plymouth, became the bride of Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, of New York. The wedding service was performed by the Reverend Richard C. Wolf in the First Lutheran church, which was founded by the bride's great grandfather, Felix Fenner in 1840.

The junior bridesmaid was Miss Katherine Eleanor Searle, a niece and god-child. Roscoe H. Chaning, Jr., of New York, N. Y., was best man and John A. Root, life-long friend of the bride, played the wedding music.

The bride presented a youthfully charming picture in a gown of delicate pink organza of Victorian simplicity. The fitted bodice and wide skirt were fashioned over matching taffeta and full sleeve falling from a dropped shoulder line were caught at the wrist with a narrow band of pink ribbon with a ruffle over the hand. A filmy lace veil in a rose pattern was worn over her hair and fell softly around her shoulders.

She carried a rose point lace handkerchief which belonged to her maternal grandmother. Her bridal bouquet was an Irene Hayes arrangement of stephanotis centered with a few sweetheart roses. Her gown was designed by Thomas Charles Pratt, of New York, one of America's leading designers.

The bridesmaid's dress was of ceil blue organza fashioned with a long full skirt with narrow slash of pink velvet ribbon. She carried a bouquet of sky blue delphinium and sweetheart roses. Mrs. Searle, Sr. wore a gown of soft gray chiffon, with a flower hat of pastel pink. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, wore a crepe-de-chine gown of pastel lilac with a matching hat and corsage of stephanotis and sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Whitney's going-away costume consisted of a green and white tailored print dress with a matching jacket and white accessories.

Immediately following the ceremony Dr. and Mrs. George James Searle, Jr., brother and sister-in-law of the bride, gave a wedding breakfast at their home in Mansfield, and later in the afternoon the couple departed for a wedding trip to the West.

Among those present at the ceremony and the wedding breakfast which followed were Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, the groom's mother, the bride's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Searle, Sr. Dr. and Mrs. Searle, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Fenner, Cleveland, an aunt and uncle of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Root and members of the bridal party.

The bride attended Southern College in Lakeland, Fla. and later studied arts, music and languages at Columbia University, New York. She continued her musical studies with Madame Ella Toedt, of New York, and also under Marie Guy Zenatello, noted operatic coach. She has been widely heard on the concert stage and during the summer of 1939 was soprano with the St. Louis Municipal Opera, appearing in "Firefly," "Rose Marie," "Katinka" and other productions. She also has been heard over radio as an NBC artist, and a member of the popular "Madrigal Singers."

Mrs. Whitney has specialized in oratorio and church music, having had her first experience as a singer and director in the choir of the local church. She is at present the soprano soloist at the North Avenue Presbyterian Church of New Rochelle. She inherits her interest in church music from her great grandfather, Felix Fenner, who was born in Bethlehem, Pa., in 1788 and was organist in the Great Moravian church there. He moved to Plymouth in 1833, where the family resided for more than a century.

The bride's father, Dr. Searle,

PAUL ROOT JOINS CANADIAN R.A.F.

A wire confirming the acceptance of Paul Root into the Royal Canadian Air Force was received in Plymouth late Wednesday by his mother, Mrs. P. H. Root.

Paul's draft papers for the induction to the United States army were also received Wednesday, but Paul will no doubt remain in Canada on that "fishing trip."

Paul H. Root, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Root, left Plymouth Sunday afternoon for Ottawa, Canada, where he expects to take physical examinations for the Royal Canadian Air Force. Paul has acquired all the necessary requirements and passed all requirements before leaving Plymouth and his acceptance into the service has been approved with the exception of the physical examination.

Should Paul pass the physical test he will enter the air crew training period which requires seven to eight months of intensive training before receiving his license as combat pilot. With his knowledge of airplanes and air navigation Paul should make an outstanding student during his training period.

For many years young Root has been an "air fan," and has participated in many flying events which proved his skill as a pilot. It was on his return a few weeks

CHILDREN'S DAY PROGRAM AT METHODIST CHURCH

The Children's Day service to be held at the Plymouth Methodist church next Sunday evening at 8:00 o'clock promises to be a very beautiful and interesting event. Much time has been spent by the children and committee in preparation. The service is to be in the nature of an impressive children's pageant which is called "Gretchen's Wondrous Adventure." With special costumes, flowers and the children themselves this should be a beautiful service.

The public is cordially invited.

Come to Plymouth Saturday night for the big free special entertainment. You'll like it!

Rev. Richard C. Wolf Tenders His Resignation; Effective August 1st

On August 1st, Rev. Richard C. Wolf will write "finis" to the chapter of his life in Plymouth which covers a successful four-year period as minister at the Lutheran church. It is with sincere regret that the church council accepted his resignation at its recent meeting, but feel confident that his desire to further his education at Yale University which he will enter on September 22, will open up larger fields of service for him. He will work toward his Ph. D. degree in church history while at Yale.

Rev. Wolf received his college instruction at Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, and his theological education at the Lutheran Theological Seminary at Gettysburg. He took up his work in Plymouth on the first of September, 1937, coming here from Harrisburg, where he was assistant pastor at Zion Lutheran church. He is the third member of his immediate family to be in the ministry, his father, Norman S. Wolf, being pastor of St. Matthews church, Bloomsburg Pa., and his brother, Louis, pastor of the Redeemer Lutheran church of Toledo. The latter is a former pastor of the Mansfield, Ohio, Lutheran church.

During the four years of his pastorate here, one hundred and eighty-five new members have been added to the membership of the church, increasing from 263 in 1937 to 448, its present number. The communicant membership has also largely increased from 162 to 257 at the present time. Gifts to the benevolent causes of the church have increased from $69 in 1937 to $600 in 1940 and the church debt decreased from $300 to $600.

Under Rev. Wolf's guidance the congregation undertook the task of renovating the church completely in 1938. The old Fellowship organ, which had become unserviceable, was replaced by a Kimball organ and at the same time the chancel was rearranged

Soil Improvement's 'Hold-Over' Value Increases Ohio Farm Crop Production

Fertilizers Pay Dividends in Bigger Crop Yields.

COLUMBUS, OHIO.—Fertilizers provide Ohio soils with "hold-over" benefits which help increase the yield of crops that follow in the rotation.

"Crops that are fertilized can ordinarily use only part of the nutrient applied in a single year," says a bulletin of the Agricultural Extension Service of Ohio State University. "A considerable part of the phosphoric acid and potash and some of the nitrogen may hold over and be used by subsequent crops. However, hill or row fertilizer applications may be more completely utilized by the crops they feed and show less residual effect than broadcast applications."

The bulletin points out that when a farmer is considering the matter of fertilizing small grains, he should always bear in mind the beneficial results which will accrue to the hay crop that follows. It cites tests showing how hay crops have been increased by 1400 pounds per acre as a result of the residual effects of fertilizer applied to wheat.

"Because good legume crops are so important in maintaining soil production," the bulletin says, "the fertilizer application made on the accompanying grain in which clover or alfalfa is seeded, is the most important treatment in the general farm rotation."

Village Surprised

a graduate of the Medical School of Boston College, served two years as Mayor of Plymouth. A descendant of one of the oldest families in America, Mr. Whitney is the son of the late Harry Payne Whitney and Mrs. Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney, one of America's foremost socialites. The Whitney ancestry traces back to Isiah Whitney, who migrated from England to the States in the 1760's. His grandfather, William C. Whitney, was secretary of the navy under President Cleveland.

Before graduating from Yale, Mr. Whitney devoted most of his time to outdoor sports, having played on various school athletic teams and rowed on the Yale varsity crew. Shortly after his graduation in 1922 he went to work for a mining company of which Mr. Channing, his best man, was president. Working with Mr. Channing, an internationally-known mining engineer, the two developed the now famous Flin Flon mine of the Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Company in Manitoba, Canada, of which Mr. Channing is now president and Mr. Whitney chairman of the board. After the death of his father, Mr. Harry Payne Whitney, in 1930, Mr. Whitney took over the great racing stable and for three years was the leading winner on American tracks. He is at present a director of the Westchester Racing association.

He was recently re-elected chairman of the board of Pan American Airways, which he helped to found in 1927 and is also president of the American Arbitration Association, a non-profit organization of leading business men throughout the country. He is a director of the Metropolitan Opera Company and the American Museum of Natural History in New York.

For a number of years Mr. Whitney was famous as a polo player and for several years was named director of the defense committee for the American team in the International Matches against the British.

Due to his holdings Mr. Whitney is very prominent in the National Defense program. His various mines are producing Beryllium, a metal lighter than aluminum and stronger than steel. He has been a material aid in the development of trade with the Latin American countries, as well as being prominent in the industrial centers of South America.

Mr. Whitney is chairman of the board and president of the Marineland Studios and Acuarium at Marineland, Fla. Marineland is the smallest subdivision or corporation in America, having a population of only 26 voters; 13 Republicans and 13 Democrats.

Last year Mr. Whitney headed up the final inspection flight for Pan American Airways in opening the New Zealand and Australian route, connecting in Manila with the present Pacific route. Following a 30,000 mile flight, he returned to the United States and was called to Washington by President Roosevelt to make a report on his observation in the Dutch East Indies and Far East area. He is a frequent visitor to the White House for interviews with the President and also pays like visits to the State Department.

He saw service in the last World War as a second lieutenant and was the youngest flying instructor in the Army Air Corps. Mr. Whitney's first wife was the former Marie Norton, New York, N. Y., whom he married in Paris, France, in 1923. They were divorced in 1929, their children being Harry Payne and Nancy Whitney. He has a daughter, Gail, by his second wife, the former Gwladys Hopkins, of Philadelphia, from whom he was separated early in 1940, their divorce having been granted this year.

KEEPING A SECRET IS A REAL TASK

Keeping a wedding a secret for more than six weeks from the public, and especially the snooty New York columnists, is no mean job. That's what Mr. Tom Ramsey, personal representative of Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney accomplished. In his hotel room at the Mansfield-Leland shortly after the wedding Wednesday, Mr. Ramsey exclaimed: "I'm glad this affair is over; I can take a long breath now."

Mr. Ramsey, in an interview, stated that not a New York paper, nor a columnist had any idea of the forthcoming marriage of Miss Searle and Mr. Whitney. The only reference given to the affair was mentioned last Sunday in the New York Mirror when Mr. Winchell made a crack about "Sonny Whitney paying undue attention to a Brooklyn choir singer." Winchell didn't know the name of the girl.

However, the Associated Press called in from New York at 10:15 and requested a release on the story for their afternoon editions. Mr. Ramsey had complete stories ready for release, to all press associations, as well as pictures of Miss Searle. The battery of photographers who covered the wedding were from the Cleveland office of the Associated Press, the Mansfield News-Journal, Mr. Charles Mangan, Mr. Ramsey's assistant, and P. W. Thomas.

The negatives were developed and prints made in a temporary dark room set up in Mr. Ramsey's suite at the hotel, and were rushed by wire and airplane to the four picture agencies and newspapers over the country.

All stories concerning the wedding carried a Plymouth date line which will put Plymouth on the map for at least 24 hours.

Paul Root Joins

ago from a southern flight that we were privileged to talk with this young pilot about the knowledge one must have flying a plane, as well as some of his experiences. One must know how to read weather charts; all kinds of instruments, and a thousand and one things to remember which the ordinary "ground hog" never dreams of.

Paul has a natural born instinct for "mechanics," his father, P. H. Root, being vice president and chief engineer of the Fate-Root-Heath Co. After graduation Paul has gained a mechanical knowledge from every angle in the various departments of the local plant.

He started off in his early high school days by trying out with a motorcycle, and a few of our citizens frowned on him at times because of his speed and the noise the "bike" would make. Some of them even predicted a sorrowful outlook if he "didn't change his ways." But Paul was a lucky boy. He avoided accidents, and at all times was safe, no matter what his performance might be. . . . going over the hills or down the road . . . not at a snail's pace, either.

Adventurous. Yes. The motorcycle soon became too slow. There was no thrill left in it. So Paul took up flying. That was before government regulation became so stringent. It was back in the early days of Paul's flying experience that he'd "drop in" on Plymouth from out of the air. And I do mean drop. For we all can remember when we heard the roar of the plane's motor . . . so deafening . . . and then we'd run out and look up. We didn't have to look very high, for Paul would almost be down on the housetop.

The airplane gave Paul thrills in his early days of flying, but for the past two years he has taken the flying business from a serious angle. He has buckled down to work. He has determined to get all the credits necessary to obtain a real pilot's license, and this he has done. He has had more than 200 hours in the air, and while he has never had a mishap, he stated that there were some close calls during those 200 hours.

I believe, in all sincerity, that everyone in Plymouth wishes Paul the best of luck in his new venture. That all of his friends and associates hold a high respect for him in his decision to go into service.

Should young Root pass the physical test, he will, in a few months, become a member of the R. C. A. F., which brings two young men from Plymouth, into prominence in the air service. The other young man is Elmer Farn to work. He is holding a high place in the U. S. government air service.

CAR WRECKED

to conform with the traditional Lutheran form. The interior of the church auditorium and the new annex were redecorated. New carpet, lights and drapes were supplied by the generosity of several organizations and individuals. The choir purchased material for new robes which the ladies made. The steeple on the small east tower was raised and the tower squared to harmonize with the west tower. The building was rededicated on Sunday, April 10, 1938.

One of the highlights of Rev. Wolf's pastorate was the celebration of the One Hundredth Anniversary of the founding of the local Lutheran church, which was celebrated throughout the week of October 20-27, 1940, with special programs nightly. A splendid history of the church was compiled and put into book form, complete with pictures of the old church, its present one, former pastors, and the Lutheran historian, church council, church choir, and Rev. Wolf, which will serve as a guide to coming generations.

Not only has Rev. Wolf had unusual success in building up his church, but he inaugurated a great many new ideas which have since become community projects. The Candlelight Service at Christmas is one of the outstanding events of the year, and is a gift of the choir to the town. It is a beautiful service and each year has grown in interest and attendance. The Easter Dawn service is another innovation he instituted as well as the organizing of two new choirs, the Junior and the Young Peoples.

As a community project, Rev. Wolf was behind the Boy Scout organization, which has continued to flourish and is now under the leadership of Don W. Einsel, Jr., and Darrel Daugherty. The Daily Vacation Bible School is also due to Rev. Wolf's untiring efforts and this year has an enrollment of 100, which includes not only Lutheran children, but also Presbyterians and Methodists, and is carried on cooperatively.

Rev. Wolf, by his pleasing personality and perseverance to carry out his various projects, has won for himself a place in Plymouth which will be very hard to fill. Of course there have been times when we haven't always agreed with him in the past, and felt it our duty to "knock his car down" a little, but the Advertiser is also greatly indebted to him for the many helpful articles he has contributed during his stay here and join with the community in wishing him the best that life can offer.

Saturday night in Plymouth is gaining popularity in the community and larger and larger crowds are coming into town. Twice every week, Wednesdays and Saturdays the merchants of Plymouth cooperate in giving entertainment. On Wednesday, the free picture show is sponsored, and Saturday evening a band or other entertainment is given.

Last Saturday evening the Plymouth school band played its initial performance and was complimented on its splendid presentation. It is understood that the group will be called on at a later date to again play on the Saturday night program.

FAMOUS OHIO BATTLEFIELDS

Ohio—The Gateway of a Nation

To a much greater extent than most of us realize, Ohio has been a battleground.

From 1743 to 1813, except for one period of nearly 20 years of unbroken peace, Ohio saw nearly a score of campaigns and battles, all fought for the control of this rich and strategic region that stretches from Lake Erie on the north to the Ohio on the south.

In rapid and deadly succession, Indians fought Indians, the French and Indians fought the English, the English and Indians, the United States.

It was no accident that Ohio should have been a battleground.
On its northern and southern borders were unimpeded waterways to the West. Connecting these water highways were rivers whose sources were only a few miles apart. The Maumee led to the Miami; the Muskingum to the Cuyahoga.

Nor had nature erected barriers to make land travel difficult. Important trails crisscrossed the state in all directions.

Ohio was truly a gateway—a gateway to the West and a gateway from the West back to the East.

In addition, Ohio's soil was rich, the climate moderate. Her hardwood forests teemed with game, her streams with fish. As the frontier was pushed westward, to own Ohio farmland was the ambition of thousands of pioneers.

It is only natural that this rich prize should have fought over this prize.

Great cities, peaceful villages and farms are on the sites of yesterday's battlegrounds. But these battlegrounds are all a part of Ohio's history.

A list of the more important of the battles and campaigns follows.
Each was a dramatic story vital not only to Ohio but in some cases to the world itself.

- 1743—First English trading station erected at Sandusky Bay.
1746—French destroy Sandusky Bay station.
1749—Celeron journeys around Ohio reasserting French claim to territory.
1750—Christopher Gist explores Ohio for Virginia's Ohio Company.
1753—French invade Ohio and destroy "Old Britain's" village, Pickawillany.
1763—Massacre at and destruction of rebuilt Fort Sandusky during Pontiac Conspiracy.
1763—Captain Dalyell destroys Indian village on Sandusky River to revenge destruction of Fort Sandusky.
1764—General Gage orders Colonel Bouquet to proceed against Ohio Indians from Fort Pitt and Colonel Bradstreet along the Lake Erie road.
1774—Colonel Angus McDonald invades Ohio and burns Shawnee villages near what is now Coshocton.
1774—Lord Dunmore and General Lewis conduct campaign against Ohio Indians (Dunmore's War).

1778—American Colonies build Revolutionary War Fort Laurens at what is now Bolivar.

1779—Colonel John Bowman leads 160 Kentuckians against the Indians at Little Chilli-cothe.

1780—Colonel George Rogers Clark destroys old Chilli-cothe and Piquis, villages of England's Indian allies.

1782—Christian Indians massacred by militiamen led by Colonel David Williamson.

1782—Colonel Crawford leads campaign against Indians in Sandusky Valley; is captured and burned at stake.

1782—Colonel George Rogers Clark with 1500 mounted Kentuckians destroy Fere Laramie's mission and store.

1791—General Harmar unsuccessful in invasion of western Ohio.

1791—General St. Clair's army defeated by Indians at Fort Recovery.

1794—General Wayne defeats Indians at "Battle of Fallen Timbers" and clears Ohio frontier.

1813—English unsuccessfully besiege Forts Meigs and Stephenson.
1813—English defeated by American squadron in Battle of Lake Erie.
1863—General Morgan, Confederate leader, and his raiders invade Ohio.

Next Week—The Mound Builders defend Fort Ancient.

Where's His Constitution?

A "Grade A" farmer came in to The Gazette office today with blood in his eye. It seems that for some reason or other he did not join up with the AAA and followed what he thought was his God-given right to plant his farm as he pleased. It looked like a good wheat year to him, so he planted more than 100 acres of turkey red and now he is about to harvest a whole of a crop. The other day he woke up to learn that he had been classed as a non-cooperator, and if he sold more than his allotment which was less than 40 acres of wheat, he would have to pay a 50-cent bushel penalty, or store the wheat under bond, or borrow from Uncle Sam at a value far less than the AAA co-operators. He declared he wanted to put an ad in The Gazette to see if anyone had picked up his constitution. He had lost it.

Here is the bewildered farmer's Want Ad:

Lost—one good old Constitution with a lot of mileage in it yet. Nothing fancy but dependable for draft and general purpose with U. S. A. branded on her Star Spangled Banner answers to the name of Freedom; is bride wise and broken to both shafts or traces and has pulled heavy loads along dangerous roads. May not mean much to the Grade "C" farmers but she has served me and my kind and will pay suitable reward for her return or restoration. In lieu of my old Constitution would like the address of reliable wheat bootlegger and no questions asked!

"I'm not interested in politics," the old man said. "I'm just a farmer and all I ask is that I be allowed to run my farm the way I think best. Last year I got a card from somebody saying my wheat quota was about 40 acres. I paid no attention to it because I was not in the AAA, and I figured the AAA boys could borrow the gray from Uncle Sam and I could just go along and mind my own business and sell my wheat on the market. Now I discover it can't be done, and I am to be penalized seriously because I don't hook up with the AAA."

"Now that may be all right and it may be a good plan, but why in heck wasn't I informed before I planted my wheat, that I had to follow the AAA plan even though I wasn't in the lodge? I'm looking for my old U. S. constitution. Seems like a man no longer has any constitutional rights, that the old ex post facto laws ain't working — Emporia Gazette.
