

COL. CORNELIUS WHITNEY GIVES OUTLINE OF THREE TACTICAL ERRORS THAT WILL DEFEAT AXIS

Plymouth residents will find the following article very interesting as it is a portion of a recent address delivered by Col. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, husband of the former Eleanor Searle. Col. Whitney has seen much action in the present war, and he gives a concise and clear picture of the situation as far as the Axis powers are concerned. The address follows:

Topper Lake— Failure of the Nazis to reinforce Rommel during the summer and early fall of 1942, when the desert fox had the British penned up in a last-ditch stand behind the El Alamein line near Cairo, was characterized by Col. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney in an address here Friday night as one of the three great tactical errors which will prove fatal to the Axis.

With Iraq and Iran seething with unrest and India teetering on the edge of invasion by the Japs, had Rommel broken the Alamein line then the way lay open to a junction with the Jap forces in India, an event which would have prolonged the war for many years and led to a possible stalemate or an Axis victory. That mistake, together with the Germans' failure to invade England after Dunkirk, and the Japs to seize Hawaii after Pearl Harbor, "saved our skins," in Colonel Whitney's opinion.

President of the Whitney Realty company and owner of the 98,000-acre Whitney Park near this village, Col. Whitney had spent a five-day furlough here, his first since Pearl Harbor. He spoke on his war experiences in India, China and Africa before a capacity group of Whitney Park employees and friends from Tupper Lake at the American Legion Mountain Camp here, before leaving Friday night for Washington, where he is now attached to the army general staff.

A veteran of World War I, when he enlisted, under age, and became the youngest pilot in the infant army air corps, Col. Whitney has since led an eventful life. After the last war he founded Pan American Airways, now one of the world's largest air lines. He became interested in mining, and organized the Hudson, the Mining and Smelting company in Canada. During the depression years he determined to make his great Adirondack estate productive and in this connection he made a large tribute to the initiative and zeal of his youthful manager, Harry Curnow, in developing the first permanent industry on the park, the Whitney lumber mill, which he promised to begeth an economic factor of increased importance to this area after the war.

Accepted in the combat intelligence service at the outbreak of this war and commissioned a major, he volunteered early in 1942 for an unusual mission. A little group of veteran flyers had been organized to bomb Tokyo. After special training at Tampa the unit, equipped with five Flying Fortresses and a B-24 Consolidated Liberator, took off on an 18,000-mile flight to northeast China. There the mission was abandoned, as they learned later.

END OF SUGAR RATIONING IS NOT IN SIGHT

Reappearance of sugar on tables of public eating houses, including large chain restaurants, does not mean that supplies have piled up to a point justifying an end to the rationing, the Office of Price Administration declared.

An OPA spokesman said that, pressure notwithstanding, supply of sugar is nowhere near sufficient to meet demand if restrictions are lifted. Sugar experts feel that speculation would shoot up well above the annual peacetime per capita average of 60 lbs. if the wartime curf is lifted.

Transportation is said to be another uncertainty. Increasing difficulty with inland distribution, brought on by overloaded train facilities, has given considerable worry in recent months.

NOT GOOSE BUT WHISTLING SWAN

The water fowl shot last week at the lower reservoir in Norwalk by Harry C. Ricey, city lineman, and believed to have been a Canadian snow goose, appears definitely to have been a whistling swan, a rare bird that appears about to be extinct. It measured 56 inches in length and had a wing spread of seven feet or more. The bird was entirely too large to have been placed in the goose class. There were five in the flock.

WINDOWS BROKEN IN NORWALK STORE IN "SHELL" STAMPEDE

Two large windows in the Fullston Hardware store in Norwalk were broken Monday when a large crowd of good natured sportsmen swarmed into the store to buy shot gun shells. It was necessary to call police to tone down the enthusiasm of the ammunition-hungry men. With the opening of the hunting season officially under way tomorrow, Friday, Nov. 19, at 11 a. m., a great many would-be hunters will miss the first day of their favorite sport for lack of shells. One hunter stated that last year he got 13 rabbits and one pheasant with a bow and arrow, so there is a possibility of more hunters taking up this sport. Indications are that there is

TOWN and FARM in WARTIME

Must Report Foreign Holdings
All Americans owning any foreign bonds, or $10,000 or more in any foreign property are required to report such holdings on or before December 1st to their nearest Federal Reserve Bank. Practically every type of property must be reported — real estate holdings, cash assets, foreign currency, foreign securities, interests in foreign corporations, patent and trade mark agreements and contracts. Order can be restored more rapidly, as territories are recaptured, if military authorities have sufficient information at hand, states the Treasury Department. All information will be confidential and will be available only to accredited representatives of the Treasury.

Simplify Gas Rationing
All "B" and "C" gasoline coupons issued after December 1st will be worth five gallons each, compared with the present value of two gallons for coupons of those types in the east and mid-west and three gallons in the far west. This means "B" and "C" books will contain fewer coupons than in the past, but the property will be good for more gallons than before. No increase in the amount of gasoline allowed is involved.

Farmers to Get Batteries
Approximately 20 per cent of the fourth quarter production of flashlight batteries will be distributed to farmers, according to WPB. This makes enough batteries for about normal rural consumption available through farm outlets.

Fertilizer Outlook
American farmers will have more to wgeot and slightly less potash in the 1943 season than they had in the previous year, according to testimony of WPB officials before a senate sub-committee on agriculture and forestry. Farmers should have four tons of nitrogen for every three tons of nitrate last year, according to present indications. WPB is endeavoring to make additional quantities of potash available for agriculture in 1944-45.

More Hosiery for Children
Production of infants' and children's hosiery will be stepped up shortly as a result of priority assistance given to manufacturers for procurement of necessary yarn. The WPB action resulted in a mailing supply of infants' and children's stockings.

Shop and Mail Early
The public is urged to complete its Christmas shopping this month and to order goods destined to other cities, whether by parcel post or express, before December 10. Early Christmas shopping and shipping are necessary this year to enable satisfactory handling of the extra Christmas production of the Office of Defense Transportation, said "Remember" Mr. Eastman added, "that the best gifts for this wartime Christmas are War Bonds or Stamps."

Step Up Truck Production
A four-fold increase in its 1944 civilian truck production program has been announced by the War Production Board. So important is this program that it has been given priority ratings equal to aircraft and high octane gas. Provisions are also made for production of replacement parts for civilian use. In spite of the four-fold increase, the new goal of 123,492 trucks is still far short of the pre-war production of approximately 700,000.

To Store Meat for Spring
A side of pork, or a ham, or a side of beef will be available to the housewife during the low ebb of meat production next spring under a rationing plan recently announced by the OPA. Meat wholesalers will be loaned points to fill their storage freezers with veal, lamb, mutton, and the lower grades of beef between now and mid-January, the peak period of meat output.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Colbert and daughters of Ruggles were Sunday dinner guests of her brother, Mr. and Mrs. Bus Goldsmith and family.

If no such meal was served during that period, points will be granted provided each person will be charged for his share of the food served.

HARD FROSTS MAKE RABBITS SAFE GAME

TICKS WHICH TRANSMIT TULAREMIA ARE ELIMINATED WHEN COLD WEATHER BEGINS IN OHIO.

Ohio farmers and farm boys who enjoy hunting rabbits and who also like to eat them are told by Dr. Lawrence E. Hicks, Wildlife Research Station, Ohio State University, there is little danger of acquiring tularemia, rabbit fever, from handling rabbits provided there have been several hard frosts before hunting begins.

Tularemia is carried from one rabbit to another by ticks, and the infected rabbits are killed by the disease within a week or ten days. Hard frosts eliminate the ticks and there is no agency to transfer the disease to healthy rabbits, so those surviving after freezing weather are safe food sources.

Human beings usually acquire tularemia by handling or dressing infected rabbits. Tularemia has not been as prevalent in Ohio as in some other states, but physicians reported 1,275 cases with 112 deaths in the period 1930-41.

Dr. Hicks says a study of Ohio weather records indicates 75 percent of the cases of human tularemia would be avoided if rabbits were hunted only after Dec. 1. Weather conditions are variable so no exact date can be set, but the safety factor is to wait until hard frosts have killed the ticks.

Weather and health records show a marked correlation between warm Ohio Novembers and prevalence of tularemia. The years 1936-37-40 had six freezing nights before Nov. 9; but, in the years 1938-39-41, frosts did not eliminate ticks until after Nov. 18. There were twice as many cases of human tularemia in the three years with warm Novembers than in the three years with hard frosts early in that month.

Sunday morning we shall have our annual Thanksgiving Service and a special Thanksgiving offering will be taken up.

On Nov. 26, 1759, George Washington asked the people of the newly-made republic to give thanks to God for "His care and protection and for the favorable interposition of His Providence in the course and conclusion of the late war, for the peaceable and national manner in which we have been enabled to establish constitutions of government for the safety and happiness, and particularly for the national one now lately established." Surely, the foundation of the United States of America and Thanksgiving for its cornerstone. Yes, let us be thankful for our many blessings.

NOVEMBER IS MONTH FOR THE MAILING CHRISTMAS PARCELS

Delivery of the annual flood of Christmas gifts and cards on time, always a serious problem, "will be more than a problem this year—it will be an impossibility—unless Christmas mailings are made largely in November," Postmaster General Frank C. Walker warned today.

"Transportation facilities are burdened to the limit with war materials and personnel, and the Postal Service has sent more than thirty-one thousand experienced employees into the Army and Navy," Mr. Walker said. "The only solution to the Christmas problem is: MAIL IN NOVEMBER. Mark your parcels, 'DO NOT OPEN UNTIL CHRISTMAS.' That is the only way to avoid disappointment on Christmas Day not only for many civilians but also for millions of members of the armed forces who are still in this country."

"It is also the only way to avoid the possibility of a Christmas emergency in the transportation and postal services. If the public will cooperate by mailing their Christmas parcels DURING NOVEMBER, we can handle a small volume of light, last-minute mailings, such as cards, up to December 10—but we can do that and avoid an emergency only if November is really 'Christmas Mailing Month.'"

Postal officials pointed out that the volume of mail now is far above any previous records, that railway cars by the hundreds have been diverted to war service and that the air lines have only about half as many planes as they once operated.

More than two hundred thousand extra temporary employees normally are employed to help with the holiday postal rush. This year, the extra employees will be largely women and high school boys and girls who are unable to work the long hours usually required and whose work will be relatively slow.

To deliver the Christmas mails on time, therefore, it is necessary that mailings be spread out over a longer period so that available transportation equipment and postal personnel can be used during more weeks. It will be utterly impossible to make the deliveries by Christmas if mailers wait until the last three weeks before the holiday, as in normal years.

There is another reason for shopping and mailing earlier than ever before. Retail stores are short-handed. Purchasers can avoid shopping in crowded stores long waits for service and other inconveniences of late shopping if they buy now. They will also doubtless have a better choice of

MRS. PAUL ROOT RECEIVES MORE PARTICULARS OF MEAL AWARD

A valued letter was recently received by Mrs. Paul H. Root from George C. Kenney, Lieutenant General Commanding, regarding the presentation of the Distinguished Flying Cross to her husband, Flight Officer Paul H. Root.

We are re-printing the letter in full which gives more particulars regarding the hazardous missions Paul and company were on and the part they are playing in this great war.

HEADQUARTERS FIFTH AIR FORCE
A. P. O. 925
November 5, 1943

Dear Mrs. Root:
Recently your husband, Flight Officer Paul H. Root, was decorated with the Distinguished Flying Cross. It was an award made in recognition of courageous service to his combat organization, his fellow American airmen, his country, his home and to you.

He was cited for extraordinary achievement while participating in aerial flights in the Southwest Pacific Area from August 17 to September 2, 1943.

He took part in more than fifty missions, dropping supplies and transporting troops over territory that was continually patrolled by enemy fighter aircraft. Often landings were made on fields which were only a few miles from Japanese bases. These operations aided considerably in the recent successes in this theatre.

Almost every hour of every day your husband, and the husbands of other American women, are doing just such things as that here in the Southwest Pacific. There is a very real and very tangible contribution to victory and to peace.

I would like to tell you how genuinely proud I am to have men such as your husband in my command, and how gratified I am to know that young America with such courage and resourcefulness are fighting our country's battle against the aggressor nations.

You, Mrs. Root, have every reason to share that pride and gratification.

Very sincerely,
GEORGE C. KENNEY,
Lieutenant General
Commanding.

Mrs. Paul H. Root,
17 Plymouth St.,
Plymouth, Ohio.

TO DISTRIBUTE CLUB CHECKS

LOCAL BANK TO MAIL OUT $4,000 IN XMAS CHECKS TO CLUB PARTICIPANTS.

Four hundred and twenty million dollars will be distributed to about seven and one-half million Christmas Club members by forty-eight hundred banking and savings institutions and other organizations during Post War Prosperity Week, starting Monday, November 29, according to an estimate given out yesterday by H. F. Rawll, founder and president of Christmas Club, a corporation.

The total distribution is 2 per cent ahead of last year in spite of the fact that there is a decline of 500,000 participating members this year. This reduction in members is occasioned by stream-lining the Christmas Club to the war effort in urging individuals in one family to consolidate 50 cents, $1.00 and $2.00 weekly payment accounts into one single account of a larger denomination to conserve man power operations in the banks. The average per-member distribution increased to $56 as compared with $49 last year by the use of this formula.

A total of $4,000 will be released in Christmas Savings accounts soon by the Peoples National Bank, according to an announcement made this week by J. E. Nimmons, vice president.

Postmaster General Walker observed that his warning is not an attempt to tell the public what to do; it is only an advance notification of what will happen if they mail late. He feels that the public is entitled to the facts, and that when they know them, they will decide to MAIL IN NOVEMBER.

IN MEMORIAM
In Memory of Sister Maude Reed Who Died Nov. 9, 1943

Death has again entered our Chapter Hall, and called to the Eternal Home a dearly beloved sister who has completed her faithful labors here in ministry, the cry of the Orphan, to the call of want and to the piteous wail of sorrow, and as a recompense has received the welcome plaudits "well done," from the Great Master.

And, Whereas, the loving Father has called our beloved and respected sister home, and she having been true and faithful member of our Mystic Order, therefore be it,

RESOLVED, that Plymouth Chapter, No. 231, Order Eastern Star of Plymouth, Ohio, in testimony of its loss, drapes its Chapter in mourning for thirty days and that we tender to the family of our deceased sister our sincere condolence in their deep affliction and a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family.

WILLARD MONROEVILLE EGG BUYERS ASKED TO APPEAR

Eight grocers in Willard and Monroeville, and a number of egg buyers in the Willard-Monroeville area have received letters this week, asking them to be present for a session of the food panel of the Huron County Rationing Board on Thursday evening, Nov. 18, at the board offices in Norwalk.

Many complaints have been received in recent weeks of grocers and wholesalers bidding up egg prices far beyond the ceiling prices. The public consequently has been forced to pay even higher prices in many instances, then top ceiling price schedules specify.

TELL THIS TO THE MARINES

The marines who are fighting the Japs in the steaming jungles and stinking swamps of Bougainville for $50 a month, minus deductions for insurance, War Bonds and family allotments, might be interested in knowing how John L. Lewis' patriotic coal miners observed Armistice Day.

Thousands of them took the day off because the government decided not to pay them time and a half for working on a holiday. Most of them are expected to take Saturday off too since, not having worked Thursday, they would not be entitled to their usual premium pay for Saturday work.

We thought the marines might like to know how well the miners are preserving the American way of life during their absence. — Cleveland Plain Dealer.

NEWS OF OUR SERVICE MEN

A letter from Cpl. Leo Kendig, dated Oct. 25:

Dearest Mother: A few lines to you. I'm a little late in writing but please excuse me. Last night, Sunday night, I went to a show here in camp. Lt. Lanny Ross was here in person. He sang a few songs then asked if Cpl Kendig of I-186th was present, and if so to report back to my company. I went right back. When I got there the C-1 told me a F/O Paul Root called and was coming out. He got here at 8:15.

Mother, was I glad to see him? He is the same Paul I knew when back there. He was glad to see me. We talked until 11:15. Then he got a bus back to town. He was staying in town all night. Next time he comes in, he will be out again. He flew around over camp this morning. Mother, the plane has been very busy and hasn't had much time to write, so have Daddy tell P. H. that we saw each other.

Today I saw Bob Kranz. He is fine. Bob gave me some pictures he had made for me. Remember the one of him and I in Macon, Ga.? So I will send them home for you to keep for me. I hope all are fine and in good health. Myself—I feel swell. I send my regards to all. I remain, Your loving son, LEO.

Their attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Block of near Lexington, Mrs. Nora Roe of Columbus, and Simon Brown of Ganges, and all four were present Sunday.

The parents of both Mr. and Mrs. Briggs lived to celebrate their golden wedding. A wedding dinner was served on Monday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mellick, who live next to the Briggs home, for the immediate relatives.

Mrs. Briggs wore a black dress with a white collar and her corsage was tied with gold ribbon. Mr. Briggs wore the necktie that he had on the day of his wedding. It was crocheted for him by Mrs. Briggs as a Christmas gift, and he saved it for his wedding day, and has taken care of it all these years.

All of their children and grandchildren were present, except one, George Mellick, who is stationed at Pensacola, Fla. All brothers and sisters of Mr. Briggs were present except one brother, the group included four sisters and three brothers. Mrs. Briggs' three sisters were present, and one brother was absent.

One hundred and twenty-five friends from surrounding cities and towns greeted Mr. and Mrs. Briggs on their occasion, and joyous gifts and flowers added to the pleasure of future days.

A picture of the wedding party was taken, and will make a rare keepsake for all the near relatives.

CHAPTER II: Sarah Daffodil acts in every capacity for the four-family home in Garret after her husband's death. In February, 1941, she and her husband, Charles and Candace Moore, who plan to be married in the fall, outlined of her host. The girl had to thread her way through an eddy of low tables and chairs, to reach Mrs. Waters' limp, extended hand.

"You're Andrew Thane, aren't you?" Candace smiled. "Only by sight," Candace said. "I'm a neighbor of yours—King Waters. We live in the same house—my wife and I are directly under you, on the second floor."

They shook hands gravely. His wife, King promised, would be up to call on Mrs. Thane before long. "She wanted to let her have time to get settled. I've got to work on the same bus two or three mornings, but there was always time and I had no chance to speak to you."

Andrew Thane read the first page of the book and then forced himself to mumble conversationally. "Pretty fair service over here."

Transportation was temporarily speeded up, King assured him, because of the election. "But the service we're getting now will seem de luxe, compared to some of the things we've been getting once we're in the war."

"That night King Waters mentioned to his wife that he had spoken to you," Candace smiled. "When are you going up to call on Mrs. Thane?"

He had thought she might be able to dispose of a couple of tickets for the election ball and supper. Waters suggested. "You know I got to get rid of sixty."

"I've said that I had only myself to thank for that," "You always were one to bite off more than you could chew. Her crocheted book flashed swiftly.

"Made up your mind about giving me the tickets for the election ball and supper? Haven't you got one with a mistake in it, a dropped stitch or something?"

"Every one of my stitches is perfect and you know it," King Waters said. "I lit my cigarette from his mouth, examined it with apparent interest, replaced it still unlighted. "Emma!"

"When do you think you'll get up to see Mrs. Thane?" "My good heavens, how do I know? She isn't here during the day and I've got something better to do with my evenings than run around with a man who doesn't take enough interest in his home to stay there, I suppose, though I don't know."

"I'm afraid most of you young people are going to come face to face with reality before many more years have passed across the pond isn't getting any better, you know."

"I don't suppose you and Mr. Thane would be interested in a couple of tickets for the American Legion bazaar and the Lois of prizes that we're having on Saturday and Sunday nights next week. My wife's talking of donating one of the fancy hats she makes to be raffled off." He held up two orange-colored slips. "Proceeds go to help the war veterans at the Memorial Hospital."

They couldn't go, their week-ends were already booked ahead. Candace regretfully declined. She would, however, take the two tickets and she would be glad to sell them for the disabled veterans, Mr. Waters. I can dispose of more than I need. I'll be glad to sell them to friends at the office."

"How many tickets do you think you can sell?" Candace asked. "A dozen—swell!" She was, he told her, a swell person and an example of the sort of efficiency in a dozen would completely forget those boys in the hospital, if we didn't prod them."

"I wish I knew where I could sell at seventy-five apiece," said Toni Fitts into the telephone.

She and her husband occupied 210 and 212 the hollowed out waters, but the two families could not be called neighbors. Toni possessed nervous, driving energy that found expression in a dozen channels and kept her constantly and acutely occupied. She was a woman who with a bit of power that netted her chairmanships almost automatically. Efficiency was her fetish and everything about her, from her severely styled gray hair, cut short and swept back from her face in sharply carved rolls straight. The door button buzzed and he hurried to answer it.

"What's up, someone in mind?" She appeared to clip off each word she uttered and to let it drop into the plastic like metal beads. "No, she hasn't a car—at least so far as I know. But clerical training. Makes a nice typewriter. Yes. Call me back at this time tomorrow morning and I'll let you know."

"She'll replace the sandal and glanced speculatively across the breakfast table at her husband, who was watching the coffee percolator. "Toni boasted that she planned her day while breakfasting and certainly the table represented a fusion of interests with nutrition coming out a poor second. The telephone, several leather-bound encyclopedias, two calendars and a number of memorandum pads with attached pencils fenced in Toni's place."

"Bert Fitts, a grizzled, placid gentleman of perhaps fifty-five or sixty who had no figure to lose, deftly spread thick apricot preserve on a fresh slice of toast and generally inquired, "Well, what's cooking?"

"This is a terrific week for me," his wife informed him. "Her husband pointed to the percolator. "Throw out that cold soup and have a hot cup."

"No more. That reminds me. I must call up Bess about the nutrition classes. And I'm down for two special on Thursdays this week and we've placed a day to the British workrooms."

"The placid man pouring coffee did not raise his voice as he said casually, "Women like you have colonial nerve to advocate this country's entrance into the war."

"Well, I'd like to know what you mean by that? Women are citizens, aren't they? I've got my own opinion, haven't we? Look at the time and money and effort we give to support the war. I'd like to know why we shouldn't advocate anything we happen to believe in. It's the hands that the telephone rang and a high-pitched voice began to chatter rapidly over the line.

"I don't precisely advocate our entrance into the war," she said now, pushing the phone back. "I think we ought to help Britain in every way and if she needs our money we'll give it."

"Her husband was silent. "It's the women who have to uphold the nation's ideals," Toni retorted. "You admit a right to vote. I don't know what you're upholding and I doubt whether you're upholding anything at all on the jam jar. "Women whose men will be in service—like that girl—don't have the right to vote. I don't know what you're upholding and I doubt whether you're upholding anything at all on the jam jar. "Women whose men will be in service—like that girl—don't have the right to vote. I don't know what you're upholding and I doubt whether you're upholding anything at all on the jam jar."

"Footsteps sounded in the kitchen, the door opened and Mrs. Peppercorn in the hall that evening as she prepared to mount the stairs to her room. She was climbing afforded an excellent opportunity to snoop the calves and thighs, the beauty parlor instructor had been told to do that when Mrs. Peppercorn had reached the second landing on her way to the street on the day when she was alerted to see a tall, thin woman balancing herself on one leg with her other knee pressed against her chest.

"Oh—good evening," Toni Fitts returned her stare. "Call me on my way up to see your new neighbors, don't suppose you know them either. Thanes are home, Mrs. Peppercorn?"

COL. WHITNEY

because General Doolittle's expedition had been organized on a larger scale and with a better prospect of success.

Assigned to the diminutive 10th Air Force under General Lewis H. Brereton, the little band of American flyers took over the job of harassing the Japs and getting supplies through the Himalaya passes to the Chinese, flying an "impossible" route over the monsoon period when 300 inches of rain fell in four months. Col. Whitney was at General Brereton's headquarters in New Delhi, India, when the general received orders to rush his fighting force to Egypt, where Rommel's lightning advance had driven the British with their backs to the wall at El Alamein. The flight from India began on June 26, and after being forced down by a sandstorm on Bahrein, in the Persian Gulf, the five American planes reached Cairo and were in action twenty-four hours later.

Col. Whitney told of the arrival of planes, equipment and reinforcements sent after the British had broken their last reserves, the Australian regiment from Palestine, in to hold the Alamein line. Rommel was forced to dig in and await reinforcements. When he finally opened his attack the Allies were ready. Col. Whitney, who was attached to the staff of General Montgomery as intelligence officer, was an eye-witness of the furious ten-day tank battle and aerial bombardment which ended with the Axis forces beginning their 2,200-mile retreat across Africa, to eventual complete defeat in Tunis. His account of the battle was in the front production lines.

As to the prospects of an early victory, Col. Whitney stated "We have every reason to be optimistic. We have come a long way since the dark days of a year ago—but don't be over-optimistic. Remember, Germany is still entrenched behind natural ramparts with a colossal army." He urged the vital necessity of "never slackening up" on the home-front production lines.

HOME OF SILVER KING TRACTORS

count of that triumphant drive across the top of the dark continent was sprinkled with amusing anecdotes of incidents which failed to make the headlines, such as the day before the fall of Meesa Matruh when the jeep in which he was riding with General Montgomery and other ranking staff officers outran the British advance, got mixed up in a tank battle and narrowly missed destruction during his brief moment as the "speardhead of the British 8th Army."

At Meesa Matruh the news of the American landings in North Africa on Nov. 7-8 reached them and Col. Whitney recalled how the Yank officers, cocky and super-patriotic, went around and beat all the money they could round up that the Americans would beat the British to Tripoli, and lost the bet. "Morale was high in the 8th Army, and the British, Anzacs and Highlanders never lost their sense of humor, even in the darkest days of the African campaign, he commented. During the confusion which preceded the Alamein battle the "Tommyes dubbed the Middle East Headquarters, seat of the army's "board of strategy," the "Mudie East headquarters," and paraphrased Churchill's famed statement, "Never did so many do so little about so much."

As to the prospects of an early victory, Col. Whitney stated "We have every reason to be optimistic. We have come a long way since the dark days of a year ago—but don't be over-optimistic. Remember, Germany is still entrenched behind natural ramparts with a colossal army." He urged the vital necessity of "never slackening up" on the home-front production lines.
