

Senator Taft Guest Speaker At Banquet

U. S. Senator Robert A. Taft, a nationally prominent figure, will address the annual McKinley Banquet at Norwalk high school on Friday, March 5. President Roy Gathgood and executive vice president, Harold Collier, have been in constant communication with Washington and, thru the cooperation of Congressman Alvin Weichel and his secretary, John Berry, the services of such a splendid speaker were secured.

Senator Taft has made infrequent and informal visits to Norwalk, but this will be the first occasion of a public address familiar as he is with the Washington situation, his address will prove most interesting, and the committee is being congratulated on their good fortune.

Hex Bracy, chairman of the speaker's committee, also announces that Robert R. Bangham of Columbus, of the Ohio Department of Public Welfare, will give a short address. He will be remembered for the hit he scored here some years ago, with his enthusiastic staccato type of oratory. Congressman Weichel will accompany Senator Taft from Washington and will be a guest at the banquet.

Mrs. Helen Lippert, who has so efficiently managed ticket campaigns in the past, is the ticket chairman and tickets will be in the hands of her committee immediately for distribution thru the normal channels throughout the county. Due to conditions the ticket sale this year must be much shorter, but it is thought that the normal longer period is not essential, due to the clamor from the four counties for the county for a McKinley Banquet this year.

OTIS MOORE DIES; INJURED BY TRUCK

Otis Moore, well-known citizen, town marshal and street commissioner died at 10:15 Wednesday night in the Willard Memorial hospital, from injuries received in an accident at the local dumping ground Wednesday afternoon. Moore's death was caused from internal injuries and shock.

Moore had gone around the Square last week, taking up free-will contributions with which to purchase a small frame building to be placed on the dumping ground and to be used by the caretaker. It was while he and his assistant, Fred Grafmiller, were in the act of backing up the truck to the building when the fatal accident occurred. Grafmiller, who was driving the truck, was signalled by Moore to "inch up" the truck a little toward the building. Moore was standing between the truck body and the side of the building.

The accident occurred at 3:15 and was immediately rushed to the Willard hospital in the Miller-McQuate ambulance. All possible aid was rendered, but the shock was too great and the injuries too severe for him to survive and death came at 10:15 Wednesday night.

The death of Otis Moore will be sad news for the village, for he was held in high esteem by everyone. He became active in the village back in 1928, being appointed marshal and street commissioner to succeed the late D. Burckett. He has been employed in this capacity since that time.

Surviving are the widow, and one son, Bill, who is in the Navy and stationed in California; one daughter, Mrs. Henry Epley of Sandusky, and several brothers and sisters.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Plymouth To Have Blackout; Give Rules, Caution Civilians

Plymouth is in the area of the state of Ohio which in the near future is to have a trial blackout. It is hoped that all the people of Plymouth will cooperate 100% with our Civilian Defense Corps.

Below are a number of rules that all persons should read carefully and study thoroughly for their own protection, if in Plymouth or in any other community that is experiencing a blackout. Each citizen is asked to study these rules carefully and if time permits memorize them.

WHEN YOU HEAR:

A long, steady blast on an air raid siren, horn or whistle—This is the BLUE signal—This means enemy planes probably coming your way.

Blackout the lights in your home and business houses. Either draw your blackout curtains or turn the lights off.

If you are in your automobile on the street or road, switch to parking or dim lights and proceed wherever you were going—proceed with caution—start thinking about getting to a safe place.

If you are walking: Continue to walk—Start thinking about where you will go if a raid signal follows.

WHEN YOU HEAR:

A series of short blasts on the air raid horn or whistle or a rising and falling sound on the air raid siren—This is the RED signal—This means enemy planes are overhead.

Keep your lights blacked out. If you are riding in your automobile: Pull over to the side—Stop—Turn your lights out—Get out—Go to the nearest air raid shelter.

If you are walking: Go to the nearest air raid shelter—Get off the street.

If you are on a street car or bus:

Get out—Go to the nearest air raid shelter.

REMEMBER:

After the RED signal there will be a BLUE signal. This does not mean "All Clear." This means enemy planes no longer over head—Keep alert. Enemy planes may return.

YOU MUST:

Keep your lights blacked out. If you were in your automobile prior to the "RED" signal, you may get back into it, turn parking or dimmed lights on and proceed wherever you were going. Proceed with caution.

If you were walking prior to the "RED" signal, you may resume walking.

If you were in a streetcar or bus, you may get back into it and proceed.

REMEMBER:

Whenever you leave your home or business house, the lights must be blacked out or attended.

REMEMBER:

The only thing that means "All Clear" is the switching on of street lights that were out during the BLUE (blackout), or an announcement transmitted by radio, telephone or police, or other means.

Ohio Women Asked For Much More Fat

Columbus—Ohio's housewives must increase fivefold their collection of kitchen fats for use in the manufacture of explosives if the state is to attain its goal for the six months of 1943, the state salvage committee asserted today.

Robert O. Weible, executive secretary of the committee, reported to Gov. John W. Bricker that the state has collected 635,072 pounds of fat compared to a goal of 6,198,000 pounds for the first six months of this year.

The most spectacular job on the home front is to get tank guns and planes made. Weible asserted, "But it won't be much use to roll out the weapons if we don't have the fire power to make them shoot."

"So we have the job of getting out the ammunition, too. Our war machine demands more glycerine daily. We must depend more and more upon household fats and grease."

Ohio is only producing 30 percent of her expected quota of fats, she's make it 60 per cent by April.

INTERESTING NEWS FROM TRINIDAD

Some interesting news comes from M. C. Guthrie, who is in Trinidad.

As he likes the island, thinks it is an ideal place. There is an abundance of fruits with the bananas now in their prime. Tangerines are very plentiful. The natives give him such an abundance that he would like to bring them home as they are so delicious—so much better than those that ripen after they are shipped.

Mrs. J. is very fond of potatoes, and he was glad to see them after seven weeks of not having any to eat.

The dry season is now on—it juries every other day and the dust is very thick. Ordinarily they have five or six showers a day, but the nights are cooler now.

He attended a musical concert the other evening and three of the musicians had been with Whiteman's orchestra. Their concerts are all held in the open and in the moonlight. Their rapping and boxing matches are also held in the evening.

On his time off duty he visits interesting places. One was the sphinx lake near El Brea, which has furnished the pavements of many cities in the U. S. They killed a snake about two feet long recently, which proved to be an ant snake. This snake is very peculiar, being the same size from one end to the other, and can crawl either way. They live in ant hills and the ants carry them food.

Mrs. J.'s little son, Donny, thinks his dad ought to bring him a monkey. In a letter to his boy, he said: "I saw some little monkeys about the size of little kittens, but they are so mischievous and have such bad dispositions, that I'm sure mother wouldn't have them around." Wild parrots are as thick as sparrows here, and they travel in large groups like ducks.

One of the interesting incidents was his seeing our President when he stopped there both times on his recent trip.

CHAPTER V SYNOPSIS

Released from prison after serving fifteen years for a murder he didn't commit, Mark Fossdick is in the office of a lawyer named Fossdick to collect a loan. He left to him while he was in prison. When Fossdick told him he will have to wait. Mark accepts an invitation to a party at Archie Landon. Mark is to get Archie Landon's money but he is not. Mrs. Lynn, as "Stewart" Byram, jealous of Mark's attentions to Pamela Fossdick, sends him a note and Mark returns the money but remains at the party. Fossdick, the man who sent him to prison, is there but does not recognize Mark. Being received as a guest by Burleson and Mrs. Mark, he resolves not to see Pam. Burleson's niece, who has cleared his name and found the real murderer. After collecting his money from Fossdick, Mark makes plans to go west.

He was on his way to buy his ticket when he came suddenly upon her. It was, he thought, that she chanced to be out at the time. She was not angry, only surprised. She blushed a little.

"Where have you been? We've wondered," she held out her hand, smiling, her soft eyes looking at him. "You've treated us shabbily," she chided him lightly.

Mark did not go to buy his ticket. He walked at her side. The city street became an enchanted path. He had time to look at his heart sang in his breast. He had seen joy flash into her face when she saw him. She had got there long ago; what was said did not matter—their eyes spoke. Then they were alone. He looked at her and she looked at him, it caught by the astonishing hands.

"What are you doing here?" she asked, "What am I?"

"Thinking of I was to meet Aunt Lynn at the office," he said. "I'm down at Monstree's, she—" Pam laughed nervously—"she must be here. You must get there long ago. You're going to lunch with me?"

"No, you won't," said Mark, firmly. "You're going to lunch with me?"

"You're going to lunch with me?" she asked, "You're going to lunch with me?"

"I was a lost soul about that time. Now I'm immortal."

long," she said unexpectedly.

"What kind of a man do you think he is?" he demanded, "too unkind to be a man?"

She smiled, her eyes shining. "I wouldn't have said that; but perhaps I meant it. You know you're perfectly extraordinary—if you weren't, I should be down at Monstree's now with Aunt Lynn."

"Would you rather?" he challenged her.

She shook her head. Their luncheon had been served and a little tea service was in front of her. She busied herself making tea and watched her, a glow in his heart. It was a thousand years since a woman had made tea for him.

"Sugar?" she asked, posing the tongs.

He nodded; he could not speak. She had fine hands and slender wrists; he seemed suddenly to see her thus, making tea, or pouring coffee—a little table—the glow of a soft lamp, the leap of a fire on some home hearthstone. She was meant for that. And he—He could never ask her to make such a heaven in his right! He set his cup down, unthinkingly.

"Isn't it funny?" she asked anxiously.

He looked around and she was shocked at his haggard face.

"What is it?" he asked, "What is it?"

"I told you the truth?" he cried bitterly. "I wonder if any woman on earth knows the man she's talking with?"

She looked at him across the tea-table, suddenly grim.

"I know you've been tremendously unhappy."

"I know," she said, "I'm as cheap as that. Appealing to your sympathy—your pity," he exclaimed.

"I'm sorry I didn't mean that."

"You were engaged at himself. Had he been playing on this young girl's strings?"

"I thought furiously, and reddened to his hair.

"I'm not going to go West," he said bluntly not looking at her; "I've got to take up a new life out there. I'm not going to take up a new life out there. I'm not going to take up a new life out there. I'm not going to take up a new life out there."

"Oh, Mr. Fossdick!" she said, looking around at the old man beside her chair.

Mark was taken aback. He abhorred himself for it, but Fossdick's gray face, his cold eyes, in that place seemed like the ghost in his net, it reminded him. The lawyer had risen from a table in the farthest corner. It was evident that he had been watching them.

"I could come here for tea; it's the only place where I can get the kind I like," Mark heard him explaining to Pam, as if he knew his presence would give her a shock. "As he spoke he looked at Mark—looked through him and did not see him."

Pam thought they were not acquainted, and Mark heard her presence, but he did not matter; he had been running away from himself. The thought amused her. She had a sudden flash of insight; he talked with the waiter, and liked the strength of his bronzed profile, his ash-blond hair, the way his chin set itself hard. There was something enigmatical about him.

"Are you thinking me a something?" she asked bluntly.

"I'm not sure you are socially—aren't you?"

He leaned toward her and she saw the gray flash into his cold eyes.

"I was going away today when I met you; going as far away as I could go."

"She was startled. "Were you?" Then she looked down at the table. "I'm not sure you are socially—aren't you?"

"I was a lost soul about that time. Now I'm immortal."

hardly controlled; it shook a little with the passion that was choking him.

And Fossdick chuckled; the sound was as unwhimsical as the startled scream of a frightened hen. But he diverted no farther; he saw the look in Mark's eyes; he turned his thin old shoulders toward him and smiled crookingly at Pam.

"How's your aunt, my dear?" he asked dryly, suggestively, his attitude thought of Fossdick to his worst.

"Conversation—seemed to say; you're in bad company, my child; go home."

Pam was flushed; her lip trembled a little but she forced a smile. "I'm going to meet her now—I was on my way when—" she did not speak the name, "Byram," again, it seemed unlikely. "I've got to go now." She turned to Mark. "Nobody's called me a taxi!"

"I'm going to meet her now—I was on my way when—" she did not speak the name, "Byram," again, it seemed unlikely. "I've got to go now." She turned to Mark. "Nobody's called me a taxi!"

'HITLER'S CHILDREN' IS AN OFFICIAL SHOW

The reason why "Hitler's Children" is the greatest title for the picturization of Gregor Ziemer's best selling "Education for Death" is because that it is the official German name of children of the state. In German it is "Hitlerkinder" and an expectant mother likes to refer to herself as a "Hitlerbrou" or "Hitler Bride," according to E. S. Sharrin, technical advisor of the picture.

He explained the significance of the terms to Tim Holt, Bonita Granville, Kent Smith and others in the picture, during the filming scenes which take place in a rest home maintained by the Nazis for expectant mothers.

To obtain this attention from the state, the girl needs only to show her own papers which detail her life from the age of four on, and to attest that the father of her expected child is an Army. She need not give his name unless she so desires. "Hitler's Children" is showing at the Castamba Theatre, Shelby on Sunday, Monday, Tuesday Feb. 28, March 1, 2.

CUB NOTES

CUB PACK MEETING The Plymouth Cub Scout Pack held its regular monthly meeting last Monday night in the annex of the Lutheran church with over sixty boys, parents, and visitors present.

During the business meeting the parents voted to start future pack meetings promptly at 7:30. Several other important matters were brought forth and discussed at the meeting. Floyd Dent, area scout executive, and Fred Trost, scout executive in charge of Cubbing, who were present, clarified and answered questions and problems of the Pack.

For passing all requirements in the first book or Wolf Book of Cubbing, awards were presented to the following boys by their respective parents: Charles Hannum, Allen Ford, Jack Root, Gilbert Mathews and Louie Root. In addition to receiving his Wolf Badge, Allen Ford received a gold arrow point from the American Legion. In addition to the requirements, Ronald Trauer received a Bear award for passing all the requirements in the Bear Book or the second book of Cubbing. Robert and Charles Schreck have also passed all of their Wolf requirements, but due to the fact that their den meeting came at the end of the week the respective parents will receive their awards. They will receive their badges at the next pack meeting.

Three new boys have been taken into the Pack since the last meeting. They are Joe Lee Kennedy, George Kennedy and Marshall Claybaugh.

Peter Rabbit, his family and the trouble he got into with the sewer was the stunt put on by Den Three. The boys and visitors were highly amused with the boys hopping around like rabbits. With a large cardboard shoe, Jimmy Shutt, as the old woman who lives at Bolking her (the many children and sending them to be brought many laughs from those present. Den No. 1 really proved that a Jap would never live in an American hospital. Jack Root as the Jap (false face and all) was led to the operating table, and then Victory was quickly taken out of him by the young doctor, Charles Hannum, assisted by two cubs nurses (Allen Ford and Louie Root).

The judges agreed that Den 1 should receive the prize for the cleverest stunt.

The meeting was concluded with a colored movie titled "The Scout Trail to Citizenship." The movie traced a scout's steps from the highest scout rank, and finally into citizenship. All agreed that it was unusually interesting and educational.

78 BILLIONS SAVED

Although our nation's expenditures for munitions and war construction will total about 157 billion dollars by the end of 1943, the Office of Price Administration is boasting that we are very lucky not to have a much faster growing debt than that.

For OPA accountants have figured out that this huge total is 78 billion less than it would have been for the same volume of war materials if prices had not been controlled and had followed the inflationary pattern of World War I.

It is possible to prove most anything with figures. Perhaps the OPA's figure is correct, but before accepting it blindly we would be interested in knowing what costs were taken into consideration. Is this saving just based on the cost of materials, or does it include costs for labor, for government production offices, and for the expenses of keeping prices controlled.

One thing we liked about the OPA report, however, was the fact that a government agency has come right out in the open and used the word "saving." For ever since the war began dollars have been used as a yardstick of production and the government has boasted only of the speed-up in spending.

THE 48-HOUR WEEK

The new 48-hour week requirement in war industry areas where there is a manpower shortage may have some merit, but at the same time it appears to be partly inspired by the desire to increase the national income.

Congress has a whole bagful of measures ready to use to clamp down on labor if any major strikes or unreasonable demands for further pay increases again threatened to delay war production. John L. Lewis, and other labor leaders, have indicated that they aren't satisfied with the pay limitations being dictated by the government. It looks as though there was a fight to be had, and there still may be—but labor is going to feel less like fighting now that it is guaranteed a 48-hour week with eight of those hours at the high overtime rate of pay. To many workers this means an increase in income of about 30 per cent—which is a much higher increase than Mr. Lewis or any other labor leaders were angling for.

This move to increase the national income by many billions and will make inflation a greater threat than ever. It is going to create another hardship for many small businesses. The only argument for it is that it may release manpower from industries which are not too busy and make it more easily available to those industries which are handicapped by a manpower shortage. But the same goal could be accomplished, without making payrolls so dangerously heavy, by requiring a 48-hour week at regular rates of pay.

HELP YOURSELF BY HELPING OTHERS
A few years ago a man living in Tampa, Fla., was lonesome. His father had died when the son was very young, and he and his mother lived alone. She was blind and needed a great deal of attention, which left him no time to develop social contacts. The boy had no brothers or sisters; only his blind mother.

When his mother died he was more lonesome than ever. And he was a bachelor. His name: Joseph F. Miyares. His profession: a lawyer.

He joined clubs in an effort to escape loneliness, but he could not get away from it. To make matters worse he was living in a big twelve-room house which had a swimming pool supplied by a flowing sulphur-tinted natural spring. A dancing pavilion extended over the Hillsborough river. There were tennis courts and sweet-scented flowers. But nevertheless he was lonesome. Looked forward to a lonesome old age.

One day he said to himself, "Instead of trying to amuse myself, why not try doing things for other people?" The more he thought about it, the more sound the idea seemed. So he decided to take his fine house and give parties in it for high school boys and girls. Would it work? He didn't know. But he would try!

And he did try! A dozen boys and girls were invited to come to "Villa del Rio," as it is called, and spend the evening dancing and playing games. There was a chaperon, but the duties of host fell on him. When he saw the party was slowing up, he invented a game to liven it up. He was dead tired when the evening was over, but it was a satisfying fatigue. He had had a good time. In doing for others, he had forgotten himself. When he went to bed that night, he was not lonely.

He'd had such a good time that two weeks later he repeated the party. Another. The young people began to talk about it. They'd had a lovely time in a lovely home. Many of them were poor; never had they expected to attend a party in such beautiful surroundings. He gave more parties. More and more young people stopped him on the street. He had friends everywhere. Became the most popular man in Tampa.

The parties were given for young people, high school boys and girls. They grew in popularity until an average of 200 persons were attending the parties.

By LYTLE HULL
Soaking the Rich

When a politician reaches that acute state of uselessness where he has nothing more valuable to contribute to the service of his constituents than a policy of "soak the rich," he has found himself both in and usually on the way out. "What is this idea of soaking the rich American anyhow? One can understand why a poor Italian or Pole or Russian or Hungarian might want to take the wealth from the rich. The rich have been grinding that wealth out of his ancestors for the last 500 or more years. They made virtuous slaves of these same ancestors and that wealth was nothing more than pure sweat. It is only for spite the poor man of those countries would want to "soak the rich." More important still is the fact that the poor man of those countries can never be anything but a poor man. If he is a laborer, he remains a laborer. If he is a farmer, he is always a farmer, and so are his descendants for generations after generations. If he is a domestic servant, if he is a store clerk—it is always the same.

But over here it is different. There is seldom a baby born that his loving parents don't believe he will be rich some day—or, at least able to support them very nicely in their old age. If they have any common sense they try to instill this idea into his head during his adolescent age, because if he once becomes convinced that he is going to make a success of life, and if he has brains and energy and health—there is little to stand in his way.

The men who made, and are making, fortunes in this country are of "the people" invariably. Men who worked in the railroad yards, in factories, on the farms and in some small town grocery stores. It is this kind of bloke and this kind of opportunity which makes a rich man, and who makes and yearned for by the downtrodden of other nations.

Why destroy this great system of reward for the deserving? This system which drives men on to the accomplishments which make us all comfortable? Who wants to live where a poor man can never become rich? What is the use of living at all if the only hope one has in life is to eat and sleep? Why not be born with four legs and a tail?

We don't believe that the office holder whose policy it is to destroy incentive and initiative; who offers legislation because it might by some possible chance help "the rich" but a valuable law because he is afraid John L. Lewis might bark at him; to be always leveling up to the "poor man" and being sure it gets in the newspaper back home—is fooling said "poor man" for one short minute.

We believe the man or woman who wins the respect and votes of his or her constituency is the one who very obviously votes for what he or she thinks is right regardless of union labor, farmer, rich man, poor man, beggar man, or thief.

We believe the rich should "pay right through the nose" to help the poor because they are "the rich," but because they have money and the nation needs it. But we believe "the poor" should pay their way also—and right through the nose—because they have inflated money more money than the rich have—and the country needs it desperately.

This Week in WASHINGTON

Washington, D. C. (GNWS)—Phases, rationing and the various taxes of the labor-manpower situation are, in that order, the three things congressmen are hearing most about from their "bosses" back in the home towns.

Although the conduct of the war itself is undoubtedly the subject of greatest interest to the people of this country, congressmen tell this correspondent that they hear from surprisingly few parlor-generals who want to direct how the war should be carried on. Either the people do not think that it is the job of congress or they are satisfied that the fighting and planning are being executed in a capable and intelligent manner.

But the conduct of the home-front end of the war is something else again—and citizens are telling their representatives here, in no uncertain terms, what is wrong with our within-the-nation programs.

With the first payment on the record 1943 taxes about due, congressmen are being deluged with letters from increased constituents who want no further delay about the enactment of a pay-as-you-go system of taxation. In general, these letters indicate the people prefer the Buml plan of forgiving 1942 taxes and going immediately to a pay-as-you-go plan—even though the amount to be collected is increased.

The present attitude of the committee working on a new Revenue act, however, indicates that, although a pay-as-you-go plan will be enacted, only the low income groups will be excused from paying 1942 taxes. Those earning higher incomes will probably be required to pay some tax on 1942 income plus at least 20 per cent on present income. It is hoped that this tax question will be worked out by April. Meanwhile, all of us must file a return, and at least make a quarterly payment under the present act, by March 15.

Although congressmen receive some letters protesting against rationing of gasoline and food, the majority who write on the problems of rationing are concerned chiefly with inequities, black markets and clarification of regulations. There is also evidence that many households are worried over the complications of the point system of food rationing.

There are still many people who are confused or annoyed over Administrator McNutt's order stating that men under 30, who are not in essential industries, will be drafted even though they have dependents. Congress has made moves to change this regulation, but General Hershey, in charge of Selective Service, has pleaded that it will be absolutely necessary to begin inking married men with children by April to continue the present program of adding 12,000 men per day to the armed forces.

Public opinion is evidently widely divided over the President's recent order to enforce a 48-hour week in a large number of areas, with time-and-a-half pay for the last eight hours. Some approve the idea as a means of increasing production and appeasing labor, while others say it is causing great hardship to small business and was probably inspired by labor union leaders as a means of putting over a big pay increase.

PILGRIMS DEFEATED

The Plymouth Pilgrims were defeated Friday night in a rip-roaring, smash-bang game with the Union Indians. Although the Indians were ahead most of the game, it looked as though the Pilgrims might have a chance in the fourth quarter.

But Plymouth had the Union boys excited a bit and mixed up Clawson of Union, took a Plymouth's basket but missed it, and Hammet lined up for a foul in our basket before the referee noticed the difference.

Hammet of Union who last week nudged Bill Reed out of first place for high scores in the county, was doing some nice bucket-throwing in the game, but was not up to par due to being sick the previous day.

The sportsmanship that the Pilgrims have shown in the previous games of this season was completely gone in the Plymouth-Union game and the game was one of the roughest the boys have played.

The Plymouth Reserves kept their slate clean with another victory chalked up with the final score of 22 to 23. These games may be close but if the boys come out on top that is what counts.

The line-up for the Pilgrim-Indian game follows:

CORPORAL GRIEST VISITS SCHOOL

By Herbert Beesching
Thursday afternoon news of the visit of Corporal R. Byron Griest to the High school had the students "on edge" to see him. Sure enough at about 3:45 three bells summoned the entire student body of the High school to the auditorium where Cor. Griest, their former music instructor, gave a short talk on his present work of assisting the chaplain of his battalion in the Army. Everyone enjoyed hearing his talk, and learning about what he is now doing.

He spent several days of his furlough with his mother, and three days in Plymouth visiting his friends. He returned to San Antonio, Texas, where he is stationed, on Friday.
The students of P. H. S. wish him the best of luck and success in his present work.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

By Margaret Bradford
On this day of February 22 it is quite fitting that space in our paper be reserved in commemoration of Washington's birthday. George Washington, the first President of the United States, and father of our country, was born on February 11, Old Style or February 22, New Style, 1732. His birthplace was the family home near Pope's Creek, in Westmoreland County. Three years later the family moved to Stafford County, to an estate on the Rappahannock nearly opposite Fredericksburg.

There George Washington spent his boyhood. The real facts known about his boyhood are few. Shortly after the family moved to the banks of the Rappahannock, George was placed under the charge of the Parish sexton, a man named Hobby, who taught him the alphabet. After his father's death he was sent to live with his half brother Augustine. While living with his brother he acquired a fair education. George was leader among boys. He was tall and muscular and matured early. He was a clever horseman and he could outwalk or outrun any of his companions. He was a good boy but not a goody-goody boy, and was liked by all who knew him.

Farmers Should Vote On Referendum Sat.

Farmers in Richland county by all means should get out and vote Saturday AGAINST the soil conservation program. A bulletin sent out by the State Conservation Committee certainly hands farmers a good reason for voting that there will be NO COSTS to organizing and maintaining a soil conservation and erosion program in those districts which so desire it. The bulletin in detail tells how districts may be organized and how the supervisors will perform their duties.

It seems that both the federal and state bureaucrats think the average farmer is not capable of looking after his own business. So many bureaus and departments have been organized the past ten years which cover every phase of farm work and production until it will take years for the American farmer to come back into an independent method of farming.

With the organization of the Triple A program back in 1930 the farmers were told what a wonderful thing it would be. It was for a few months, and then the Triple A turned about and told the farmers what to do. Don't be the same thing as far as a wonderful thing it would be concerned. And any election in which 65 per cent of the voters VOTING make the laws, certainly doesn't sound like an American Democracy.

Word has been received by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hoffman that their son, Charles Richard, is in the hospital at Camp Allen, Va. with a back injury.

He returned to camp last Friday after a short leave with his parents, but details were given in the letter. Friends may write him as follows:
Charles R. Hoffman, S1/C, Ward 71, Portsmouth Naval Hospital, Portsmouth, Va.

HEARS FROM HUSBAND
Mrs. J. W. Hamman of Shiloh received a surprising phone call from the eastern coast last week from her husband, Jesse Wayne Hamman, who is serving in the U. S. Navy. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Hamman were present to talk with their son. Frequent calls have been received by Mrs. J. W. Hamman since his enlistment.

excuse to make the farmer think he is being helped, why in the name of common sense don't they sign up these EXTRA men and put them to work in a field growing foodstuffs?

Yes, it looks like anything the farmer may be offered these days might turn out to be wool in sheep's clothing, especially since the AAA program had to curtail its wheat quotas and penalties.

Mr. Farmer, you can keep America FREE, but don't sign up for everything that comes along, and if it takes YOUR VOTE to do the job, then get out SATURDAY and vote against the referendum election for soil conservation in Richland county.

If you're in doubt read the law that the State Legislature passed and you will think and vote! Booths for the referendum on Saturday will be placed at Shelby, Shenandoah, Mansfield and Bellville. The hours for voting are from 2:00 to 9:00 p. m.
