Huron County Residents Declare 11,728 Excess Cans at Registration

Huron county residents declared 11,728 cans of food held by them in excess of the allowance of five cans per person when registration was held recently for War Ration Book 2. Of that number there were 1915 cans for which no blue stamps could be removed, the number of eight-point stamps having been depleted.

Report on the registration and declarations given members of the Huron County War Price and Rationing Board at its regular meeting held on Sunday afternoon. County Chairman, George W. Lawrence, explained that there were 53,155 coffee stamps removed from books, but very few of them were for actual coffee purchases, being taken from the books of children under 14 years of age.

He reported that inauguration of the point system on March 1, was accompanied with a minimum of inconvenience to shoppers and grocers. He attributed the ease and understanding manner in which the public accepted this radical change of practice, to the necessities of the country, which are weekly carried on a program of education and advice on point shopping.

A total of 9822 families were registered during the four day period in late February and were issued 30,065 No. 2 ration books. Following is a list of school-site registrations of interest locally:

Plymouth Boys Will

Take Physical Exam

The last of the 18-year-old boys in Plymouth who will go to Mansfield next Thursday, the 19th for their final examination will include the following: Roy Scott, Ray Ford, Willard Ross, Jr., Thomas Henry, Harvey Robinson, William, Joe Fazio and Lee Pendleton.

Practically every young man in Plymouth, 18 years or over, is already in the service and with the departure of the above group, the ranks are about depleted. Several of the above boys have just reached their 18th birthday while others reached their 18th birthday within the year.

The staff of the county board worked far into the night the past ten days so that no Huron county boys would be inconvenienced by a shortage of gasoline rations. Applications for supplementary rations still to be acted upon were those arriving in the past few days, and some whose applications failed to give all of the information desired.

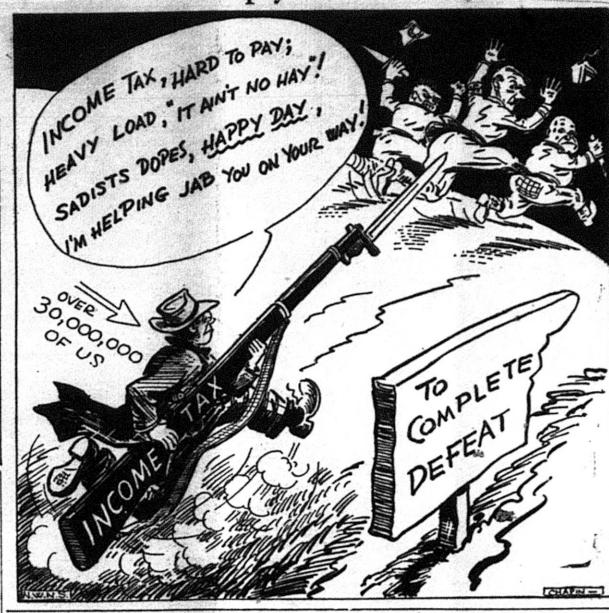

Judge Van Horn then introduced Robert R. Bangham who in his versatile way, gave a very worthwhile address and kept the audience laughing at his appropriate stories interspersed throughout his talk.

Congressman Weichel, who accompanied Cong. Short to Northwalk, gave an impressive talk. He declared that Congress was making a strong effort to carry out mandates of the people at the last election. Weichel, during the meeting, was praised for his work in Congress and his interest in the people of his district.

Congressman Dewey Short of Missouri, member of the important House committee on Military Affairs, then spoke.

Mrs. J. West Passes Away

LAST RITES HELD WEDNESDAY AT LATE HOME

Funeral services for Mrs. Jenine West were held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from her late home on West Broadway. Rev. E. R. Haines, pastor of the Methodist church, officiated and burial was made in Greenlawn cemetery, Plymouth, with arrangements in charge of the Miller-McQuate home.

Jennie Irene Cheeseman West was born in Auburn Township, Huron County, Ohio, January 16, 1874. She was the daughter of William and Minnie Cheeseman, who predeceased her.

All her life was spent in the community of her death and her passing leaves that community with a sense of loss which time alone will not erase. Her life was one spent in the service of her only son, Harley West, who preceded her in death in September 4, 1942.

Quiet, faithful and unassuming she was loved as friends the entire community. Her love of flowers and the works of beauty of our Creator speaks more than mere words can portray her nearness and dearness to him, who is the Creator of all that is beautiful and good.

He called her home to Him on Sunday evening, March 7, 1943, after a long period of illness and suffering.

Besides innumerable friends, she leaves behind her sister, Ida Cheeseman, step-daughter, step-son, three nephews, one niece and several great-nephews and great-nieces.

URBANA, ILL.—Donald F. Dawson, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Dawson, Route 1, Plymouth, Ohio, was selected thru competition to keep seat in the Naval training school for diesel operators at the University of Illinois here, and is well on his way toward becoming a specialist in the Navy.

He is being succeeded by Chas. Rowe, who has had previous experience in this line in Bucyrus.

New Manager At Local Sohio Service Station

Junior Lasch, who has been manager of the Sohio Filling Station on Sandusky street the past year or so, has resigned and accepted a position with the Shelby Tube Works.

He is being succeeded by Chas. Rowe, who has had previous experience in this line in Bucyrus.

1700 Ration Books Failed to Be Returned

More than 1700 of the sugar-coffee-shoes War Ration books of men and women who have entered the armed services or who have died are to receive special attention from the Huron county War Price and Rationing Board during the ensuing few weeks, for they were not returned to the Board when in the world they were issued.

"The President should have known that a war was coming. He has his ambassadors and attaches all over the world and there should have been undercover men to learn what was happening. He should have advocated military preparedness.

President Roosevelt did not spend the money for battleships and bombers for these fighters have no vote. The government was spending billions to build up powerful political machines to keep self and heroes off the front. Even a moderate amount of preparation here probably would have kept Japan from starting the war."

Short said that Mr. W. Bricker could be elected President in 1944 should election then be as it is now.

The banquet was one of the most successful held by the McKinley Club and closed with the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner".

Praise was extended to the various committees, who had made the banquet possible. County treasurer, Harold B. Collier, executive vice president of the McKinley Club, is given credit for arranging the banquet and engaging the speaker after Senator Taft was forced to cancel his appearance.

Those attending from Plymouth were Mr. and Mrs. John A. Root, P. W. Thomas, James Root, Mrs. Clay Hubert, Mrs. L. P. Derringer and Miss May Fleming, also Mr. and Mrs. John Buurma of Celeryville and others from that city.

Knowing now to believe that all of the 1700 ration books are in the hands of people who plan deliberately to misuse them, the board, in a statement today, simply requested that the books be returned at once without calling attention to the heavy penalties for violation of the rules under which the book was originally issued.

The banquet was one of the most successful held by the McKinley Club and closed with the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner".

Soldiers returning home on furlough do not need the books as a special "ration permit" is issued for the duration of his leave. All that he need do is apply at the office of the board in Northwalk.

MADE ADMINISTRATRIX

Marvin Snyder, radio operator 2/c of the U. S. Navy is enjoying a ten day furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Snyder.

Esker refused to turn out his lights and ordered them from his Woodlawn avenue premises. Esker was fined under an ordinance adopted last year by the city council.

Mr. Otis Moore has been appointed administratrix of the estate of her late husband, Otis Moore.

Neil Gebert Writes About Language, Customs And the People In Far-away India

A composite of the letters written by Neil Gebert during January and the fore part of February. Stormy weather seemed to be prevalent, just a prelude to the monsoon season which will soon be upon them. Otherwise things are moving along as usual.

"I truly do not know where I am located. If not, I am in Assam, India, near the Burmese border. The two short items that appeared in the Plain Dealer of November 27th, by the UP writer Walter Briggs, came close to 'hitting the nail on the head,' altho the Sergeant mentioned is not at this post, neither do we know where he is in this area now. We are not in the Burmese jungles and may never be, but we know that we cannot fight a war standing still. Our supply route is long and crosses all of India. The control of the Burma Road would be of advantage if a drive should be planned across China with the terminus at Tokyo as the rear report says. It is however that our convoy will soon be passing through the Suez Canal instead of around the Cape of Good Hope. This is where we were in June 1942.

All of the newspaper clippings that have been sent have been read with interest, and we look forward to receiving more of them. We listen to the radio station in San Francisco every night, and get all the general news regarding the war fronts, but the detailed reports and the personal experiences of our men have to come through clippings, The Advertiser, or the U.S. Army organ the "CBI Round-up." This comes out once a week and this platoon gets several of them. We also get a daily paper, called the "Statesman," published in Calcutta which arrives here a few days after publication. This is definitely an English and Indian paper, so much so that most of the names in it are in English. Some of the other names are, "Pung Yung" "Pal Kemp" and "Chingkook."

They chew a mixture of cinnamon, a large green leaf and white lime, and this turns their mouths dark red while their teeth are black. At first we thought it was the beetle nut they chewed that did this, but we find that they have discolored their teeth with something else. The women chew the same mixture, with the same results. The men smoke opium in their huts at night, but it does not seem to effect their minds very much.

We were paid in rupees, this money is not usual, with deductions made for the articles we had purchased at the post exchange, such as shaving lotion, soap and cigarettes. The English cigarettes and tobacco, which is given free by the army, is used as money (backsheesh) in paying the natives for carrying water and other jobs around the camp. The little kids tramp from village every day to help us work, brick for cigarettes, and they are getting about as bad as the professional beggars in the cities. Many of them hang around the cook's "basha" and grab the tin cans as they are thrown out.

The commanding officer of the platoon brought in a dentist and assistant to examine our teeth and do the work that they found necessary. I am hoping mine will hold up for the duration.

One of the boys from the third platoon had just posted the other day and took some pictures and incidentally, this fellow is from Barberon, and his name is Frank Ligas, but I do not remember of seeing him while I was there. All the pictures will be censored at New Delhi. I am in six of them. I am telling you in this case he gets them through. I wish I had brought my camera as well as some other things that I could have used. If I had not my own "flashlight" I would not have had one until a few weeks ago.

January 17th

"Yesterday four boxes arrived for me. Will acknowledge them as soon as I can. I did a washing today and it will probably be dry in a couple of days. When the clouds float through the camp everything gets very damp."

"There is so much to write about that we have neither time nor stationery for the same. There will be much to tell when we get home. I am sending home some more things that I have bought from the natives in the village. If all goes well arrive sometime in May if all goes well."

Same address.

Dear Tommy:

Thought that I would write and take this means of thanking all of my friends that sent me some remembrances to me during the holidays. Those are the things that help make away more bearable the time that all the below will say the same.

It is always good to the man in the Service to hear or receive a little gift from the people that are home, and I want to say that I appreciate everything that you all have been so kind to send. I think that the people of Plymouth have taken better care of their boys than any other town I have ever seen. I am on the fact that we have had the opportunity to meet a lot of fellows from all over the States.

So for that reason, I believe that each of us have the thought that we would like to thank you all personally for the help and support we are receiving from each of you.

Archie Landon, I want to thank you and The Advertiser for the paper. It is a fine means of bringing the home town out here and to the other boys wherever they are. Keep up the good work and I know that we will all try to do the rest.

I will close, hoping that you will give my regards to everyone.

Sincerely yours,
Bob Brothers.

• Charles E. Wilson left the high salaried presidency of General Electric to help straighten out, at the invitation of the War department, the difficulties that were slowing up aircraft production. And, after surviving recent WPB scuffles, he has emerged victorious to become vice chairman of WPB, in charge of all production.

The JADE GOD

By Mary Imlay Taylor

CHAPTER VII

SYNOPSIS

Released from prison after serving fifteen years for a murder he didn't commit, Mark Fosdick is sought by a lawyer named Fosdick to collect a legal debt left to him while he was in prison. When he arrives in New York he is invited to a party to help Teddy Banks with a bet he has lost. Banks' wife, Pamela, tells them his real name, Archie. Introduced as "Stewart Byram," At the party, the young man meets a woman who sent him to prison, and Burleson's niece, Pamela Rodney. Burleson does not reveal his identity to Pam until he finds the real murderer. Fosdick learns that Burleson is a gambler and swindler, and that he has been swindled out of his inheritance by his son, a young man Pam likes. Burleson is members the young man at the party, the real Stewart Byram. He asks him, "What's your name?" "I'm a man," he says. "What's he like?"

Pam did not reply at once; they had come in early, crowding the room, and she took advantage of it to hurry him across and point out the magnificence of a flower display.

"These are blue carnations. I don't like them; they're unnatural."

"I see that I'll have to observe this blue carnation young man, myself."

"He's laughing delightedly, I wish you would! You'll like him; he isn't bad."

"Archie Landon?"

She was indignant. "Archie's such a social idiot; he only dances and plays bridge and keeps tag on Archie Landon's social list!"

"What's he more than most of us can do?"

"You wouldn't want me to marry him?"

"Archie Landon, would you?"

"I don't believe you'd care to pay any attention to my wants; you're too modern."

"I wonder why you're so nice with me when we're together?"

"Uncle Landon," she leaned back to look up at him.

"You're really jolly, and you're terrible."

"I'm not a temper, Pamela; that's my trouble," he admitted.

"I've got the devil of a temper. Perhaps this new young man will cure it."

"You know, Pam, if you call him, my young man?"

He laughed. "You say he's Lander?"

"Archie brought him. You remember don't you?"

Burleson assented, musing, "Yes, I wonder if I wonder if Landon always knew his friends?" he added dryly.

He did not hear the girl catch her breath, she had closed her eyes again, and her head was under her dark lashes, and then looked away. She was angry—the blood rushed up to her head.

"I wonder you don't like his looks," she said after a moment.

He turned quickly; he had apparently forgotten her. "I meant nothing of it," she said, red-faced.

"Uncle Landon," she leaned forward again, "I know I knew him once—in profile, that's all. But you say Landon brought him, and he's a Byram."

"This is the first he's called," she was in at ease. Fosdick's horrid stare came back to her. "Whom does he look like, Uncle?"

They had come now to a corner where some taxis were signaling for fares. He called one and put her in it.

"You go home," he said authoritatively. "I'm going to stop at the club."

"But she leaned out, calling to him, "Whom does he look like, Uncle?"

"Uncle Lander?" she got to know.

"I'm sorry," she said, "I've got to know."

He said nothing, but with her persistence; she answered with a shrug, shutting the door on her.

"Look like?" Oh, like a dead man, she said, as he taxied up to the taxi-driver, lifting his hat to her punctiliously as she was driven away. The girl, peeping out of the back window at him, felt a sense of pride in him, but he had a face that was not attractive.

"Not to be caught, young woman. You not get John the Baptist's head on a charger—out of me. What is it?"

"Your little jade god—please, Uncle Herbert?"

"Not to be caught."

She had coaxed for it before, but never before had she been refused with such violence. A red streak ran down her face, but she was determined to get it.

"Show me," she said, "I'm not afraid."

"It's not transferable," he said.

WORLD DAY OF PRAYER FRIDAY

The World Day of Prayer was observed in 51 countries in 1941 and last year in the United States alone there were 1,000 groups who met for prayer. The offering was nearly four thousand dollars. This money goes for four distinct lines of work. First it goes for the printing of Christian messages in many different countries. In India the TREASURE CHEST appears in eleven different dialects in Chinese several magazines are sent. Second, the money is spent in the chaotic condition prevailing there. Likewise Christian literature is being printed and sent out in Egypt, Africa and South America.

In second place the offering goes to Indian Students in U. S. Government schools and thus ministers to the needs of our native Americans. Another part of the offering goes to the Migrant workers who have been so numerous and still need much to make them good American citizens and give them peace of mind. Lastly, one fourth goes to Union Christian colleges located in the Orient.

Our offering in Plymouth last year was near fifteen dollars. It looks as if we should do considerably better this year. In giving to these different causes we are building a better world.

Remember the time and place. We meet at the Lutheran church at 8 o'clock Friday evening to join in united prayer for the world: The subject this year is: Father, I Pray That They May All Be One.

Letters From Boys In Service

The following letter was written by Pvt. Earl B. Stivings of Shiloh, enroute to his destination at Tacoma, Wash., to his parents:

Folk: I suppose you wonder why you haven't heard from me for quite a few days. We are being shipped and can't send any mail—it is against the rules anyway. It is important not to open the windows and we dare not get off the train. The train is moving as you can tell by the writing. Sometimes some engines jerk the cars more than others. We eat and sleep in the same car.

We are traveling through Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and Colorado, so far. I get along with my shaving and washing just fine. The first night on the train, I didn't sleep hardly a bit, but now I sleep O.K. Hardly dare not tell what states you are in but everybody figures it out the best they can. You might get a few letters from me because I can't be mailed until we reach our destination. I don't have anything to do but look out the window and the ground is covered with snow. I will be glad when I get off.

Hope everything is all right at home. How did the county basketball tournament come out. Did Shiloh win? I have received a permanent address. I don't know any of the fellows I am with. There isn't a Richland county guy near me. I hear that we are approximately eighty thousand here in camp. Well, I will quit visiting.

Pvt. Earl B. Stivings.

Feb. 28, 1943

Hi, Tommy:

I have been going to write to you so many times, but I never got the date down until now. Maybe it's because I just got three copies of the Advertiser today. It's funny, no matter how old the paper is, it looks good to me. I like to know what's happening around the old town. When I get done with the paper I trade it to some fellows from Willard for a Willard Times—that way I get most of the news I'm interested in.

There are quite a few fellows here that I used to work with. I slept right across the street from two of them for three weeks and I didn't even know they were in the army until I saw them standing on the front porch of their barracks. Boy, was I glad to see them. We get together quite often to shoot the gas as a bunch of railroaders do.

Say, Tommy, if I remember rightly, you came from the "Sunright South" last night? Well, I would like to swap you some of the Louisiana flowers for about a dozen Ohio snowballs. Is it a deal? There is one thing this army has shown me, there is no place like Ohio. I like New Orleans but just let me get back to good old Plymouth, that's the best spot on earth.

I have been going to try and find Hulda Brush, but as yet I haven't got it done yet. Maybe I can get to town again soon, if I do that is one thing I'm going to do.

Well, I guess that's about all I can think of right now so I'll ring off.

I don't care much about this place, but as long as I get news from home it doesn't make much difference where I am. I know a lot of the boys that are "over there" will agree with me.

Give the boys around the Square my regards.

Yours,

Don F. Davis,
Co. A, 756th Ry Shop Bn.,
N. O. S. A., New Orleans, La.
P. S. Tommy: There is one thing I never could figure out. Just who is Phineas Whittleseed that writes: "Around the Square"? If it's a secret don't tell me. I have an idea who it is but still I don't know.

Well Don — even though I'd like to call you "Stinky" Davis, and I should call you more than that for offering me flowers in exchange for snowballs. Yep, you're right. I came from "deah ole Ga." where they still use oxen instead of mules; where a man can chew the strongest tobacco grown and doesn't have to spit; where they eat sow belly so fat until straight lippities won't touch your system. And I might add, while the climate is sublime, and the whole world around you seems a paradise. — Yeah, a rambling wreck from Ga — I am.

As for those snowballs, you'd like to have—well, even if it is in March, I believe we have snow that is so doggone cold, hard and dry, it would stand shipment to most part.

Sorry you missed Hulda Brush. She arrived home in Plymouth this week.

Now I'm glad to know you like the paper, and it makes me feel good to know that the boys in service do take time to say so. We'll try and keep it coming to you.

As for that fellow, Phineas Whittleseed, I'd like to tell you—but it's a military secret. He has been scouting around lately, and it's rather funny how he caused quite a bit of commotion when this place comes in print. But you know old Phineas, he likes to keep 'em guessing.

By the way, you remember Don Fox, don't you? We used to call him "Sky," but we can't do that anymore. He's a corporal now up in Madison, Wis. He blew in this morning (Wednesday) for a ten-day furlough. He thought the weather would swell here. He told me it was 13 below in Madison on Tuesday night.

Well, "Stinky" it's about press time, and I must be getting the lie out of the type so I can put the old paper to bed—every Wednesday night when I stamp the old labels on the wrappers I think of each and every one of you, and send my best regards along with the Advertiser. Write again, soon.

Sincerely, Tommy.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

UNIFORM LESSON—MARCH 14 The Secret of Greatness

John 13:12-20; 14:1-6

When Jesus washed the apostles' feet, he gave them an example of service.

We can serve in our life work. When we plan our vocations, we should plan one in which we have talent, an interest and one in which we can serve our fellowmen.

Due to war conditions students need a vision of the future. They need to look beyond the present conflict in which the nation is engaged. There is a great temptation for students to quit school and to take jobs.

Moses had great talent but he was contented to remain a shepherd for forty years. If God had not given him a vision, he would have probably spent his life in sheep herding. Students have the ability to become great but they do not have the vision that is required to carry out their goals.

Some people think that the doors of the high schools should be locked for the duration and that after the war students can return to their studies. However, experience has taught that when people draw out of school, they seldom return. Trained students will be needed after the war.

In the near future there will be a great need for religious education workers, ministers, missionaries, social workers and directors of music. If boys and girls have talent, an interest for the work and a desire to serve their fellowmen, they will train in one of the fields, and will be able to help build a new world of peace and love. They will have learned the secret of greatness which Jesus referred to in his ministry.

BITTEN BY HOG

NEW LONDON — Attacked by an angry boar, Earl Kirkpatrick, 61, a farmer of near New London, is recovering in the New London Hospital from severe injuries and loss of blood.

Kirkpatrick said he had gone into the barnyard to get some straw from the stack and when he tried to get the hog to move out of his way, the animal turned him, biting him several times on the legs and thighs. Kirkpatrick was able to crawl to safety, but lost a large amount of blood before help arrived.

Blood plasma was administered in the hospital and other transfusions followed. He is expected to recover.

GARDEN COUNCIL MET MARCH 4

The executive committee of the Huron county Victory Garden council met in the Extension office of the county fair March 4th. The Victory Garden project is very anxious to impress the people of Huron county with the importance of the Victory Garden program for this year. The shortage of canned foods, the increasing rationing program, and the greatly increased demand for food makes it imperative that whenever possible, each family should grow a sufficient amount of all vegetables, protein and carbohydrates for their family needs. The Council is planning to distribute widely over the county a brief summary of the Victory Garden bulletin. There is also to be a leader appointed in each township and each village in the county so that the Victory Garden project may be thoroughly carried on in each community in the county.

At the meeting March 4th plans were made to get a large representation from all over the county present at a meeting to be held March 25th at 8:00 p. m. in the county high school auditorium, Norwalk. The meeting will be presided over by meeting Mr. Victor Ries of Ohio State university is to speak on "Planning the Victory Garden, including soils, fertilizers, selection of seed, etc." This is the first of a series of four or five meetings that are to be held for the discussion of the practical aspects of gardening. Mr. Ries is an authority on this subject and it is hoped that a large audience and guests will be present on March 25th. The meeting is open to everyone interested.

The eminent author, Louis Bromfield, says: "No one can do too much as food has become the most important aspect of winning the war."

W. C. Mead Retires As Ohio Fuel Gas Manager

Retirement of William C. Mead as district manager of the Ohio Fuel Gas company in Mansfield is announced by company officials effective April 1st. He will be succeeded by G. K. Schuler, now the firm's district manager at Findlay.

Mead has been with the Ohio Fuel Gas company for 29 years and Mansfield district since 1930 and is leaving the post because of ill health. He underwent an eye operation in Columbus a month ago and has had a partial recovery.

Moses had great talent but he was contented to remain a shepherd for forty years. If God had not given him a vision, he would have probably spent his life in sheep herding. Students have the ability to become great but they do not have the vision that is required to carry out their goals.

Dealers and operators of tank wagons also are affected by this ruling and must re-register with their local board on the basis of engine fuels and true "fuel oils". Chiefly affected are farmers and truckers with diesel engines or others with equipment adaptable to the use of gasoline, white oil and "gasoline" or fuels. Those who have been operating such engines on "fuel oil" rations must convert their remaining supplies to the newly defined "gasoline" fuels.

The Huron County War Price and Rationing Board is ready to accept transfer of coupons held by farmers, and others who have been operating internal combustion engines on fuel oil permits.

The board asks that the coupons be mailed in, so that the holders need not call at the office. All such transfers will be given immediate attention.

Their Last Meeting—We All Hope
