EDIBLE FATS, OILS FROZEN

SALE OF LARD, MARGARINE, BUTTER HALTED UNTIL NEXT MONDAY

The retail sale of butter, margarine, lard and other edible fats and oils which go under point rationing March 23, were frozen Monday by the OPA and retailers will not be permitted to sell them until next Monday morning when they will be rationed along with meat, cheese and canned fish.

OPA said suspension of sales was necessary because the supply of the commodities is insufficient "to support heavy public buying during week remaining before rationing."

Starting Monday each person will have 16 points a week in red stamps of ration book number two to spend for these products.

Generally, the popular cuts of meat which are steaks and chops will require more points than such products as hamburger and spare ribs. Likewise, butter will probably use more points than oleomargarine.

While it will be legal to buy any kind of meat desiring an average limitation of about two pounds per person per week will prevent many persons from achieving the more luxurious styles of prepared meat.

NEW HAVEN SENIOR PLAY

"ME AND MY SHADOW" BY F. VANCE BARRETT TO BE PRESENTED APRIL 1-4

FILES SUIT

JOHN T. MCKOWN FILES SUIT AGAINST NORWALK FIRM

NORWALK — A judgment of $75,000 is asked by John T. McKown of Plymouth in his personal injury suit filed in common pleas court here against the Maple City Ice Co., of Norwalk. Arthur D. Points of Plymouth is made a party defendant.

McKown alleged that on Dec. 23, 1941, while he was standing in his yard on Route 61 between New Haven and Plymouth, a motor truck owned by the defendant went off the road and struck him, causing allegedly serious injuries. McKown avers he was standing besides a motor car driven by the defendant, Points, which the plaintiff says was parked facing traffic. Carpenter and Freeman represent McKown.

SPRING IS HERE

—OR IS IT? Sunday was the first day of spring according to the calendar, but it took a lot of faith to believe it. While the mercury hovering around the freezing mark, heavy clothing felt good and shoveling coal was one of the features of the day.

Monday morning the ground was covered with a light covering of snow and the robins were a dismal looking group. But warmer weather can't be too far away and gardeners are already purchasing their seeds for the Victory Garden. Mrs. C. A. Robinson brought to the Advertiser a bouquet of Jonquils Tuesday morning in full bloom—however, they had previously been removed indoors to save them from being trampled underfoot by workmen on the premises. The crocus down in the E. J. Major yard are also blooming.

Warning To Dog Owners!

Mary J. B. Derr has received from the Richland county board of health a copy of the resolution pertaining to a threatened epidemic of rabies in the county and ordering the quarantining of all dogs on the premises of their owner or custodian in a suitable pound or kennel, providing that a dog may be permitted to leave the premises if under leash or control of a responsible person. Immunization is defined as effective vaccination during the past twelve months with anti-rabies vaccine. Violations of this quarantine shall be prosecuted as provided by law.

TWIN DAUGHTERS

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Goin of New Washington, announce the birth of twin daughters on March 22, 1943. They are former residents of Plymouth.

GRADUATES

'ADVANCE HEADQUARTERS ARMY AIR FORCES, Gulf Coast Training Center, Randolph Field, Texas, March 25—The Army Air Forces added hundreds of new pilots Saturday for the Spring of aviation cadets from the ten advanced flying training schools of the AAF Gulf Coast Training center.

Forty-six states, the District of Columbia, Mexico, Alaska and the Canal Zone contributed members to this class, the largest ever turned out by the Gulf Coast Center.

Some officers already commissioned also received their wings, retaining the respective ranks held before they began flight training.

LIEUT. F. N. McQUOWN

ter. Graduating cadets received silver pilot's wings and commissions as second lieutenants, or in some cases as flight officers.

Some officers already commissioned also received their wings, retaining the respective ranks held before they began flight training.

The new pilots include Lieut. Floyd Nelson, McQuown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce McQuown of Plymouth. Lieut. McQuown was graduated from Plymouth high school in the class of 1935. He enlisted in the U. S. Army in September, 1935, later joining the Ohio National Guard called at Mansfield. He was called into active service October 15th, 1940, and served as a sergeant in the 37th division at Camp Shelby, Miss. In June 1942 he was transferred from the Field Artillery to the Army Air Force as an aviation cadet.

DONATE BLOOD

Those willing to donate a pint of blood to the Red Cross may learn full details from Mrs. McFadden of Plymouth street.

GETS WARNING

DRIVERS TOLD MARCH 31 IS LAST DAY FOR PERMITS

Motorists who fail to purchase their 1943 drivers' license before March 31 will be required to take an examination before they can obtain them. Deputy Registrar Clarence Ervin warned today. Examinations will be required of those persons who did not get their driving permits before the deadline last Oct. 1 for various reasons, chiefly because they had not been driving their cars. The six-month "grace period" to March 31 is allowed them before the examination requirement takes effect, Ervin explained.

Motorists will be required to apply for a learners' permit, and take the same test given new applicants. These tests will be conducted on Fridays and Saturdays at state highway patrol headquarters. Drivers will be tested on state driving laws and must have their eyesight checked.

LEARN OF DEATH

Mrs. G. A. Artz of Loudonville, in renewing her subscription to the Advertiser says, "even though living expenses are traveling fast and furious, she has to have her weekly letter from home."

She also writes us, that her daughter Hortense, who lived in Cleveland, went in February to Upper Sandusky, to make her home, owing to the death of her uncle, Louis Artz, who died Christmas night, making a vacancy in the Dry Goods store of the Artz Bros., which Miss Hortense will fill.

Louis Artz was known in Plymouth, having made a home for two years with his brother, the late G. A. Artz, when he conducted a bakery here, and it is with regret that we learn of his death.

Recreation Problem of Children Brings Reply

A reply to Phinias Whitehead's (Around the Square) item of what Plymouth is doing for its young people.

Is there any place in town where our youngsters can have any free entertainment? We have only two places in town that are fit for our children to be in—the library and Glen West's Duck-Pin Alley.

If you will notice our youngsters from the eighth grade up are loitering at the pool hall, and I am asking you as parents is that the place for them to be? Why are they there?

It seems to me that a town like Plymouth certainly should be able to furnish at least one room for recreation for its younger generation, and I'm sure that any parents that care anything for the welfare of their children would be willing to act as chaperons for these affairs; and are they to busy with their bridge games and lodge affairs to think of anyone but themselves?

Just whose fault is it that the youngsters have to hike to other places for entertainment (and how else have they of getting there) what do you have to offer?

We have a nice park for summer recreation for play baseball but you can't expect them to play that all the time. They like swimming too. Do we have that? In winter what can we offer them? I'd say, absolutely nothing. How about some roller skating? I think that would hold them quite a while.

Can we as Christian citizens sit by and do nothing; or should we take action?

I believe if the town of Plymouth could see its way to furnish a place for recreation, the churches and parents would be willing to do the chaperoning, how about it? Am I right, or do I think people are just human. I, as one of the parents, certainly will give of my time to have something for my children.

Not Necessary To Pay Contributions

Municipalities are not required to pay contributions to the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation, Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert declared this week in an opinion to the Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices.

If a municipality has made contributions the money should be refunded by the BUC, Mr. Herbert said.

The BUC has insisted that municipalities pay the same percentage as private employers on the payroll of waterworks, light plant and similar municipal functions. In requesting an opinion the Bureau township that the Village of Johnstown had refused to pay the demanded contributions and that the BUC had refused to refund to several municipalities the payments which they had paid.

Plymouth And Township Red Cross Fund Grows

The Plymouth Red Cross War Fund has passed the $100 mark and is still growing. In addition to the various clubs and organizations that contributed as announced in last week's issue of the Advertiser, the following donations in the township are reported: Maids of the Mist, $5.00; Sunshine Club $2.50 (contributed to two townships); Hazel Grove Ladies Aid, $10 (contributed to two townships); the Plymouth Grange, $5.00, and Hazel Grove Grange, $5.00.

Additional organizations here that donated here is the Friendship Class, $5.00; Nonpareil Class, $5; Alice West Class of the Lutheran church and the Boy Scouts, $5.00 each.

This is the largest amount ever reported for Plymouth and Plymouth township. Mrs. Mabel McFadden is chairman for Plymouth and Mrs. Marjorie Ehret for Plymouth township, who gave untiringly of their effort and time.

WINS AWARD

Douglas Brumback, aviation cadet, who is now taking advanced training at Taft City, Calif., was recently voted by members of his class outstanding cadet in his group. At a banquet he was given a sterling silver Goodluck charm bracelet and a $25.00 War Bond. He took his basic training at Kings City, Ohio. He is a brother of Mrs. Earl McQuate.

OPERETTA TO BE PRESENTED

TUESDAY, 30TH

A bit of tropical atmosphere will invade Plymouth High's auditorium next Tuesday night, March 30, at 8 p. m., when the high school will present the two-act light operetta "Love Pirates of Hawaii."

The story takes place in Miss Primer's seminary for girls. Miss Primer, played by Margaret Kemp, is rather old maidist and holds a close rein on the girls, who are daughters of rich Hawaiian plantation owners. Dorothy Sear, portrayed by Betty Chronister, is a homesick American placed in the school by her father, a plantation manager. She secretes a letter from Billy Woods, (Jim Moore) who is going to attempt to visit her in disguise, as a pirate.

His plans are confused when a real pirate thief, Paul Scott, and his crew invade the seminary.

The amusing complications and incidents which then occur make this a light-hearted and enjoyable evening's entertainment, which is further enhanced by the delightful songs sung by the leads and chorus.

Also, participating in the operetta as the girls in the school are: Beverly Neely, Phyllis Miller, Genevieve Jacobs, Margaret Briggs, Margaret Ellison, Dorothy Carnahan, Mary Francis Burrer, Ima Lee Reed, Lois Berberick, Evelyn Moore, Arlene Steeple, Anna Mae Steele, Arlene Ford, Zana Briggs and Edna Jane Echelbarger.

The heartless pirates are: Quentin Ream, Byron Ream, Bill Miller, Dan Kirkpatrick, Dick Ruckman, Jimmy Rhine, Dick Ross and Jim Crockett.

DEADLINE SET

APRIL 1 LAST DAY TO REMIT FOR CHRISTMAS SEALS

Mrs. Margaret S. Adams, executive secretary of the Richland County Tuberculosis Association announces that donors to the Christmas Seal campaign have until April 1 to remit payments before records of the 1942 solicitation are closed.

"Additional funds are needed" Mrs. Adams explained, "to carry on routine clinic examinations during the year." This week Mrs. Adams' initiation of all Junior high school students in Richland county. It is through these operations the association hopes to stamp out the tuberculosis malady in Richland county.

X-ray studies were completed last week in the schools of Lexington, Bellville, Lucas and Butler. This week Mrs. Adams is receding the examination of Juniors in Shiloh, Plymouth and Weller township schools.

Peas, Beans And Lentils For Seed Are Not Rationed

Peas, beans and lentils when bought exclusively for use as seed are exempt from the processed food rationing program and do not require the surrender of either point stamps or ration certificates. The local War Price and Rationing Board, announced today.

The amendment makes it possible for farmers and gardeners to buy bean, pea and lentil seed which is marked or labeled in accordance with standards stated in the federal law, without surrender of ration stamps. However, these vegetables acquired for seed may not be used for food. If they are acquired for food, ration stamps or certificates must be surrendered.

The amendment further provides that beans, peas or lentils unfit for human consumption and normally used for animal feed—because not more than 10 percent are sound or free from insect or other infestation—may also be acquired point free and used for any purpose.

Mrs. Earl Miller of Willard was a supper guest in the home of her son, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Miller on Thursday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Russell Miller, daughter Carol, Mr. and Mrs. George Currier and daughter Janet, and Mr. Earl Miller of Willard, spent Thursday evening in the same home.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Grimmer of Celeryville spent last week (Wednesday evening) with Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Moore and family.

Mr. and Mrs. William Van Loo of Plymouth spent Monday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Moore and daughters.

FRESHMAN NEWS

What's this we've been hearing about? Sadie Hawkins' Day? And why are all the Freshmen going around talking like they had just come straight from the mountains. Well, listen very closely and we'll let you in on the secret. The Freshman class is sponsoring a play as a final event at the Carnival to be held Saturday, March 27. The name of the play is "Sadie Hawkins' Day". The characters are as follows:

Lily Abner, Denver Shepherd; Daisy Mae, Jerleen Lykin; Pappy Yokum, Dick Clarke; Manny Gray, Arthur Kirkendall; Marylin' Sam, Pete Smith; Professor Dumbell, Howard Clark; Cindy, Marilyn Van Wagner; Mrs. Millnet, Donna Garrett; Terry Top, Mrs. Edna Steele; Miss O'Neil, Doris Garrett; Penelope, Mary Benedict.

If you want to know how the girls dance in Dog Patch get their men, come and well show you.

CARNIVAL AT SCHOOL

Have you heard about the big carnival to be held here at the school on Saturday evening, March 27? The public is invited and we hope you'll all be there. The proceeds will be used to buy new stage scenery so you know it's for a good cause. There will be Bingo, Cake Walks, Slide Shows, music and plenty of laughs.

In exchange for the 10c admission fee you will be given two tickets which entitles you to go into any room in the building. Other tickets may be purchased for one dollar ticket or six tickets for a quarter.

Come and bring all your friends.

SEVENTH GRADE NEWS

Many of the Seventh grade members were present for a farewell party for Jean and Jeannette Forquer at the home of Luella James last Thursday evening. After playing games we had refreshments which were cake, sandwiches and taffy. After refreshments we played more games and then went home. All of us want to thank Luella and her mother for their kindness. We had a very nice time, Luella.

SENIOR CLASS NEWS

The class has been planning their chapel and class day programs for some time. Blaine Smith and Mary Broder are the members of the committee in charge. The chapel program will be April 12th and we assure you it will be well worth looking forward to.

Junior James, Eleanor Garrett, and Blaine Haverfield are on the commencement committee. Commencement will be held Thursday evening, May 20.

THE SNOOPER III

We've heard rumors about school that Mary Heeks has made quite a bit out of the new student, Bob Miller. How about it, Mary?

BLUNDER OF THE WEEK!

Mr. Pittenger, while teaching the American History class, made this remark: "And the war ended with the Battle of Shattsburg". Figure that one out!

Things, happen fast when it comes Junior-senior banquet time. Or maybe it's spring! at any rate the Juniors seem to be pairing off rapidly. For example, Willett and Charlotté—who'd of thought it!

It seems that Joe McQuate has more trouble keeping track of his girls. Things that happen to him shouldn't happen to a dog. And just after he gave you that neat locket, 'oo, Doc. Aren't you a shamed!

CHAPEL NEWS

The Chapel program for Monday, March 22, was in charge of the Girls Reserve.

The program, with Helen Guthrie acting as announcer, was as follows:

Devotions, Dorothy Diebert; Gospel singing, Audency; Playlet, "Margaret Gets the Job", Mr. Witherspoon, Junior James; Miss Dyer's "Dove"; Hoffman, Sam; Dean Arnold; Maizie Goldman, Betty Hammett; Sadie Jones, Janice Moser; Licia Millingsbury, Janice Black; Licia, Blanche Smith; Margaret Thompson, Blanche Garrett; Piano Solo, Miss West.

After the regular program two educational films were shown.

QUEST FOR DESCRIPTION OF SEA TRIP TO SOMEWHERE IN AFRICA

We feel that the readers of the Advertiser have had some wonderful letters from "Our Boys in Service" from various parts of the world. The fact that we perhaps do not all of us know them personally, makes no difference, for they still are "Our Boys" and we eagerly read of their experiences.

This week, through the courtesy of Mrs. Wm. Harris, Plymouth Route, we are able to give our readers a wonderful account of her brother, Lt. Col. C. L. Boyer, C. E., who tells of his voyage across the Atlantic. Lt. Col. Boyer is a veteran of World War One and now has a son in the service at Dayton, Ohio. While he is serving his country in Africa, his wife makes her home in Washington, D. C.

Because of the length of his letters, we will have to publish them on the installment plan, but his experiences rival that of Ernie Pyle, Roving Reporter, who writes for a syndicate of newspapers out of the U. S. The letter follows:

Here we are, hundreds of miles out at sea, nothing to see but convoy ships scattered all over the deep blue ocean—the sea and the sky. It seems as though we are in the center of a huge flat blue saucer suspended up in the sky. It doesn't seem as though there could be so much water. The ocean was choppy Friday, but on Saturday it was bad, huge waves and we ran into one storm after another. The wind blew a gale all day and the waves ran more than 30 feet high, breaking over the prow of the ship and drenching the upper deck where I stood. Our ship is high out of the water and was not tossed around so much as others; but the low built cargo ships and warships were swept by the water as the huge waves swept from one side, right across their deck and off into the ocean on the other side—when the ship rose up again out of the ocean the water would pour off the side like a waterfall; they would slide down a tremendous wave into the trough, dip their prows deep into the blue water, while the foaming crest of another giant wave broke high above—then the whole ship would sink down out of sight with just the top of the pilot bridge and masts showing—then it would rise up again on the white crest of another mountainous wave—up until its prow was almost out of the water. Some ships would roll over on their sides until the deck rail almost hit the water and then roll away back on the other side. It was all fascinating to me, and I stayed up on the open forward deck just under the bridge where I was protected from the storming, and to the rail and watched—nodded out the storms up there. And so far, I have not been seasick—and really enjoyed the violence of the storm, but our ship didn't pitch and roll like some did. I haven't missed a meal yet, and we have good meals served in the officers' mess hall, which holds about 120. There are so many that we eat in three relays, two meals a day. Our group eat at 7:30 a. m., and 5 p. m. For breakfast: fruit, cereal, bacon and eggs, coffee, rolls, butter, jam. Dinner: bread, soup, two vegetable salad, meat, butter, jam, fruit, tea, dessert (Jello, fruits or puddings). The ship's regular stewards wait on table and serve us. There are 20 at our table—a little ridge runs around the edge of the table to keep the dishes from sliding off when the ship rolls—then after night I had to watch my coffee saucer and water all the time for it kept sliding over to the other side of the table when the ship rolled to that side—felt like a cat watching a mouse, but it didn't get away from me! It's funny if you're not seasick.

For water we drink from our canteens and fill them once a day from the fresh (distilled) water can in the rear of the boat. The living conditions are overcrowded and bad. There are two Lieutenant-Colonels and seven Majors in our room which is a two-man cabin. We sleep in triple-deck bunks placed as close together as possible. There are three rows of triple-deck bunks in our cabin. I am in the middle row, second bunk, and after our equipment is driven to a barely room to move around. There is not enough head room to sit on our bunks, and there are no chairs, but someone found a couple of boxes which we sit on when needed. There is a row of bowls in our cabin with running salt water, a bath shower and toilet between them—we are more than crowded.

I spend the most of my time up on the deck—open deck—where I can get some fresh air—along with my back against the cabin or hanging on the rail watching the other ships in the convoy—the sea—and the sky.

The ocean has been calm and peaceful the last couple of days and there is very little roll or pitch to the boat. Every day we have an "abandon ship" drill where we go up to the boat deck first aid pack, and stand by our life jackets. The crew and nurses are assigned to certain boats; the enlisted men jump overboard and cling to the rafts. We wear our belt, canteen of water, first aid pack, and life belt at All TIMES, even when we go to bed, and even then we don't entirely undress. I can shave alright in hot salt water, but one can't wash very well because you can't get any soapuds. One just rubs soap over one's hands and then washes it off—a bath in saltwater is NOT refreshing.

In "air raid" drill we put on our life-belt and helmet and lie flat on our bunks, face down, and hold tight. During the night we have to keep the portholes closed as a blackout measure and our cabins get uncomfortably warm and stuffy. All ships move without lights like grey ghosts through the night; but some nights have bright moonlight and they can be seen somewhat. The moonlight is beautiful over the ocean as it tips the waves with silver and gold, and makes a broad pathway, shining and flashing across the weedy sea to the far horizon. The days are getting warmer, too, and I don't need an overcoat on deck anymore—and the best place to stay is on the forward open deck under the bridge, just watching the ocean which is calm, bright and clear, with our boat going so smoothly until no motion is felt. Nothing to see but boats—sea and sky—getting monotonous. Band concert on deck this afternoon—cabins so crowded we don't have room even to play cards, so we play out on deck. We get up and go to bed in relays, too crowded for all to get dressed at the same time. (Sunday) Some monotonous routine of floating along on an unending ocean—sky and ships. Church services today—band concert on deck this afternoon. Still feel fine. (Tuesday)

Well, here I am, just where I expected. And we made a safe journey with no excitement, and on the day before Christmas, we slowly sailed into harbor. It took a long time to get berthed and tied up—so the band gave a concert on deck. Our arrival was greeted by a boisterous crowd of people of polygot tribes and many nations. And finally, just as the sun was sinking in the west, we stepped ashore in a strange land, a land of strange peoples and queer customs, white walls and streets lined with pine apple palm trees—on Christmas Eve!

Trucks met us and took us thru the city to a stone-walled enclosure, thru a big iron gate—into a little village in itself with white-walled, red-green tiled roofed buildings—palm lined walks and lawns and flower gardens. I am quartered in a wall with 10 others—each in a little sleeping booth with six foot high walls between and a draw curtain for the front—an iron cot, mattress, pillow and blanket. There are high casement windows through which one looks out over the stone enclosure wall to a street—an open field—more white walled, flat-roofed houses to rolling green hills beyond the wall.

No chairs, but it is mighty acceptable after the cramped ship conditions. We ate supper by candle light in a mess hall, next to the Christmas Eve!

Christmas Day was not that to us. It was just a day—some of us explored what part of the city we could. A queer exotic place! Homes of the well-to-do, both natives and Europeans are enclosed by high stone walls—sometimes hedges on top—iron gates—beautifully-built, carved and fancy cornices, marble mosaic porticos, porches and doors, beautiful flower gardens, flowering shrubbery and patios.

The poorer sections are the other extremes—filthy and destitute beyond description; disease and poverty. Just to touch one would make you feel unclean. Untouchable children in filthy rags play in streets and begging—begging is the biggest business of young and old.

Gaily and spottily robed natives go riding past in dashing carriages and automobiles—beautiful, langorous, fascinating, terrible land—and unchangeable. And we came back to our barracks to a Christmas dinner of corn beef hash, beans and coffee—the bread and butter didn't get to us—maybe tomorrow—tangerines for desert—such was our Christmas Day in a far off foreign land—introduction to an old, old world. What a Christmas! We are glad there IS a U. S. With Merry Christmas to all, Leonard.

Editor's Note: Next week we will print a portion of an "Interesting Travel," written by Lt. Col. Boyer. It will give you an idea of what the American boys are encountering.

THE JADE GOD

CHAPTER X
SYNOPSIS

Released from prison after serving fifteen years for a murder he didn't commit, Mark Grant goes to the office of a lawyer to find out how to collect a $50,000 life insurance policy left to him while he was in prison. He meets a beautiful woman who waits, Mark accepts an invitation to a party to help Teddy Banks win a bet with Archie, and... (The synopsis continues with a detailed summary of the chapter's events, including Mark's interactions with various characters and the unfolding mystery of his past.)

Burleson's nostrils quivered; his lips tightened.

They were still standing thus, looking at each other, when there was the stir of an arrival in the hall beyond the door. A man who came from the opening of big doors. Mark looked at her questioningly. "It's Uncle—and Aunt Lynn."

"Something like triumph came into his face, he gripped the hand of the god in one powerful hand, the other fell at his side, clenched. "You're going to ask him now?" "I'm not sure," he said, "but I'm vaguely aware of the thing it meant to him, but she knew that it had some significance. He nodded. They were standing together on the hearthrug, the light of the lamp came down on the table, lighting them. Mark looked like a man from another world, powerful and bold, but with a certain freedom from all the little rules and conventions that made up the life of the middle class. The girl felt it—she made no attempt to restore things to mere formality; it was like that for her. She was a little boyed about the shoulders, looking a little older, the millionaire himself. Mrs. Lynn, seeing the two, exclaimed, "Why, Burleson, I thought you were out! By Gram, please touch that high-switch behind you. I hate them!"

Burleson laughed a little harshly. "Butterflies like light," he remarked humorously, smiling at the girl in-law. "Pam, I want some tea—" her aunt began, and then she stopped. Burleson, who was so sure of his attitude, and she saw Mark's face. "Why, Mr. Byram!" He did not seem to hear her; he was still staring at the young man. He apparently linked the two by some chain of circumstances, and the age in his own face deepened, the lines grew sharp, his eyes dulled. The two women watched them, Mrs. Lynn in amazement, Pam with a beating heart. It seemed soon afterwards that Burleson was suddenly aware of his attitude, and she saw Mark's face. "Why, Mr. Byram!"

He did not seem to hear her; he was still staring at the young man. He apparently linked the two by some chain of circumstances, and the age in his own face deepened, the lines grew sharp, his eyes dulled. The two women watched them, Mrs. Lynn in amazement, Pam with a beating heart. It seemed soon afterwards that Burleson was suddenly aware of his attitude, and she saw Mark's face. "Why, Mr. Byram!"

"Send that man away—your uncle's going to have a fit!" mumbled her voice was only a murmur, but it struck the spell that held them—starting at the jade god. "Will you tell me?" Mark replied in his deep, husky voice, "you know me, Mr. Burleson?" Burleson's nostrils quivered; his lips tightened. He looked at the man and the red streak was like Saint Anthony's fire across his face. "Yes," he said slowly. "I know you," he spoke the words with an unsteady step forward and laid one hand upon a chair. "Then—tell me," Mark demanded, "help me that name has a ring now!" and he followed the older man, holding out the mocking god. Burleson turned and looked back at him. He was breathing hard; suddenly a fire leaped into his eyes, he stretched out his shaking hand, seized the god and hung it with all his force into the corner. It struck the edge of the great mantle, slanted, spun like a top against the brass fender and fell, broken in a thousand pieces on the floor.

For the last twenty minutes, while the jade god was meeting his end, Burleson's face had been speedily upturned. Landon himself was no longer impatient; he was glad of this chance to order his thoughts. It seemed that the bird had fallen. In that case, was there any harm done? If Pam liked him she would have to forget him. It was plain to Landon that Mark's courage had failed.

"He didn't want to face the unmasking," he thought shrewdly; "he knew I'd have to do it." Yet he was uneasy; so uneasy that he had made up his mind to see Mrs. Lynn and feel his way, find out if he knew anything, and if Mark had been there there again. If he suspected any effort to hold on to his acquaintance, he would denounce the convict rather than risk his making love to Pam Rodney. Girls were peculiar. The modern girl was independent; she might have no correspondence with an undesirable, unknown to her relatives. The thought made Landon furious; he was still stinging from the tone of her refusal; she had made it a little too plain that he, Landon, was totally uninteresting. He was still the chief when the taxi drew up at the house.

At the door he got his first shock; Mrs. Lynn was at home but she was not alone; they had company—"a gentleman." Landon found out who it was without difficulty, and his blood boiled. He promptly lost his head. The consequences to himself were not so serious as they had a weapon that would drive the intruder out of his paradise. He had intended to wait in the reception room, but he entered the library and heard the crash of the jade god from Pam Rodney's residence. The wind; he passed the servant who was going to announce him, lifted the curtains and appeared in the library. No one noticed him. Burleson had tottered as the jade god fell, his gray face was distorted with the red streak, his eyes flamed. He put out a long hand, a hand that used to be powerful, grasped the jade god, and he leaned on it. He was breathing audibly.

"You're ill!" cried Mrs. Lynn; "Pam, telephone for the doctor—your uncle's ill!" It seemed to her a relief, a valid excuse for such a scene. "No, not ill," Burleson said thickly, but his hands went to his throat, he sank heavily into his chair, his eyes fastened on Mark. "You go away!" he exclaimed furiously. Pam ran to him. "Uncle, what is it? Tell us," she pleaded. "I don't know," he said. His eyes were fastened on the shattered green bits on the floor and there was something else to anguish in his face. Burleson would never speak! Mrs. Lynn, still in a panic, fled to the telephone. "You must have a doctor for you, Herbert," she cried, and came face to face with Landon.

The young man was standing at the threshold, one hand still on the portiere, his face livid. He did not understand the scene, but he believed that Mark had come there to carry off Pam, that he was defying Burleson, and the girl loved him! It was the wildest fancy, but it kindled the spark. "Why, Archie?" Mrs. Lynn's startled exclamation broke the spell; she stopped with her hand on the telephone receiver and gazed at the young man in open amazement. All her rules were being broken. "Help me that name has a ring now!" and he followed the older man, holding out the mocking god. Burleson turned and looked back at him. He was breathing hard; suddenly a fire leaped into his eyes, he stretched out his shaking hand, seized the god and hung it with all his force into the corner. It struck the edge of the great mantle, slanted, spun like a top against the brass fender and fell, broken in a thousand pieces on the floor.

house," he said in a choked voice; "the sooner you go the better—unless you want me to tell them the truth about you." Mark looked at him and through him. "My business here isn't with you, but with Mr. Burleson," he said over his shoulder, "after that—perhaps!" "Your business is with me—" Landon wanted to say. "I brought you here. I—" he swung around, facing Mrs. Lynn's frozen look, Burleson's staked face and Pam's indignant eyes. "I owe you all an apology! I brought this fellow here by mistake; I didn't know the truth. It's an ex-convict."

Mrs. Lynn hung up the receiver hastily and stood quite still. No other use moved her color deepened in Pam's face but her hand still rested on Burleson's shoulder. "I've already told Miss Rodney that you're a convict," "you're a trifle late, Landon!" "No, I'm not!" Landon retorted. Landon's face grew cold. He put up his hand with a little gesture, brushing back the hair on his forehead. He felt himself suddenly a convict, he might have been marching with his mates to the jail; the rest of it was a dream. Then he heard Landon's voice, shrill and womanish in its denunciation, and he longed to seize him—this puppy product of society—sneaking him, and then he looked at Pam with the contempt he felt, he was so big himself, as far as the world went, that it would have been nothing to pick the fellow up like a puppy by the neck. His hands clenched at his sides, his breast heaved; he had taken a step forward when Burleson's voice arrested him.

"You'd better go," the millionaire said slowly, coughing a little, the red streak still flaring between his eyes. "There's nothing to say—here!" "Mark, met his eyes; he hated the man for his injustice. He knew that Burleson could have helped him. He remembered his testimony against him, and he had the jade god all the time! No one had thought of that.

Landon, shaken by what he saw in Mrs. Lynn's stiffening face, in Pam's bowed head, pursued his point. "He was up for murder—fifteen years," he said, "he's just out." "Mark turned, on him, then, and something in his look made the other man give way. Unconsciously, Landon stepped back and Mark raised him, taking his stand near the door before he turned to face them.

"He's told the truth; I'm an ex-convict and I was accused of killing my uncle," he said in a hard voice, "and this gentleman"—he indicated Landon—had induced me here on a wager. That's about quite all!" He stopped an instant, his eyes sought Pam and caught the lovely arch of her prone head beside her uncle's chair. She did not look up, her dull despair seized him. Not even she would believe in him! "I'm not," he said again in his hard voice, and his eyes flamed upon Landon, the wager-maker, the man who had not looked up, he had only Mrs. Lynn's face, Burleson's grayness, Landon's anger and malice.

MRS. MARGARET MUMEA WEDS PVT. LYLE BIDDINGER
A quiet wedding was solemnized on Thursday, March 18, 1943, when Pvt. Lyle Biddinger of Fort Story, Va., was united in marriage to Margaret Downend Mumea, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Downend of Sandusky-ut.

The ceremony took place at 4 o'clock at the M. E. Church, with Rev. E. R. Staines officiating. Mrs. Arthur Norydke, friend of the bride was the only attendant. The bride was attired in a solid blue street length dress, with a shoulder corsage of sweet peas. She wore with her costume a gold locket and chain, the gift of the groom.

Pvt. Biddinger returned to Fort Story Monday night, where he is connected with the hospital work at that station.

Mrs. Biddinger and little daughter, Jeannette Mumea will remain with her parents for the present.

ALPHA GUILD MEETING
Mrs. J. T. Gaskill opened her home for the March 15th meeting of the Alpha Guild. Fifteen members responded to roll call with an Irish verse or quotation. Many of those present wore "a touch of green". The devotions were conducted by Mrs. Lena Derringer and Mrs. C. R. Beaver presided over the business meeting. A sack lunch was enjoyed by all.

The April 6th meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. E. E. Myers with Mrs. L. A. Bruner assisting. A "Defense lunch" is to be auctioned off.

ATTEND MEETING
Mr. J. E. Hodges attended the meeting of the Masonic Lodge of Shiloh Monday evening.

FRIENDSHIP CLASS ENTERTAINED
Mrs. Alice Ford entertained the members of the Friendship Class Tuesday evening, Mar. 23, at her home on Mulberry street. Assistant hostesses were Mrs. Iva Gleason and Mrs. Ingeba Stott. There were twenty-three members present, and one guest, Mrs. Hull of Churubusco, Ind.

Miss Jessie Cole was the devotional leader for the evening. Mrs. Fleck, the president, conducted the short business session at which time it was decided to give $5.00 to the Red Cross.

Mrs. Katherine Sorwin was the entertainment committee for the evening. An amusing contest in which potatoes, feathers, tooth picks and raisins were assembled to represent some animal, was won by Miss Aba McGinley. Mrs. Mabel McFadden was the winner at bingo. The hostesses served lunch at tables decorated in green and white as a compliment to St. Patrick.

The next Friendship Class will be in April with Mrs. Downend.

ENTERTAINED AT MANSE
Members of the Session and Trustees were entertained Tuesday at the Presbyterian Manse. Plans and arrangements were made for the regular yearly meeting this evening. Miss Joy Bethel served very nice refreshments at the close of the evening.

GARDEN CLUB MEETING
Mrs. A. W. Bartholomew was hostess to the Garden Club Friday evening at her home on Park Avenue. There were fifteen members present and one guest, Mrs. Hull of Churubusco, Ind.

Mrs. Bartholomew, the president, conducted a short business meeting. The subject for the evening's program was "Rubber from American Weeds." Mrs. Chatfield was the leader.

The next meeting will be April 2 at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Bethel.

SUNDAY GUESTS
Mr. and Mrs. Will Fox of New Washington and Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Buck and family of Marion and Mrs. Herman Garrett and family of Shiloh were entertained Sunday in the home of Mrs. Lena Drier of Shiloh Route 1.

LUTHERAN MISSIONARY SOCIETY
Mrs. W. M. Johns will open her home Friday, March 26, to members of the Lutheran Missionary Society when the Book Review will be continued.

BIRTHDAY CLUB ENTERTAINED
The Birthday club was entertained Friday at a one o'clock luncheon-bridge at the home of Mrs. John A. Root. Following the delicious repast, bridge was played at three tables with Miss Kathryn Weber and Mrs. Tena Merriam awarded the prizes. Mrs. Root was remembered with a nice gift.

PYTHIAN CLUB HOLDS MEETING
The Pythian social club was entertained last Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. R. Beaver on Wadsworth. The group meets monthly and the afternoon's diversion was playing Pokeno. Mrs. Ballis Kennedy was winner of the first prize and Mrs. Clayton Williams second. A nice lunch was served at the conclusion of the afternoon. Mrs. Anna Belle Knight will be the next hostess.

MOTOR TO WADSWORTH
Mr. and Mrs. Roy Stauffer and daughters Janice and Carol, Mrs. Mabel Wirth and Mrs. Mary Fleck motored to Wadsworth Sunday, where the former attended a birth day dinner in honor of Mr. Stauffer's mother, Mrs. Mary Stauffer, and Mrs. Fleck visited her sisters, Mrs. Misses Alta and Jeannette Fleck.

LETTERS FROM OUR BOYS IN THE SERVICE

Johnny Coe, who has been stationed at St. Petersburg, Florida, for the past two months, writes to his sister, Mrs. Malcolm McPherson, that he has been promoted to private first class, and is now attending Cameron College, Okla. The letter follows:

Lawton, Okla.
March 18, 1943

Dear Sis:
There has been a lot that has taken place since I last wrote you last. I really don't know just how to tell you all the good news.

We left St. Petersburg about 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon. The first part of our trip was not so interesting, although we did see a lot of Florida swampland. The next day we saw a lot of country. Throughout the day we saw many of the large cities of Georgia, as Atlanta. In Atlanta we saw the large prison. Toward evening we went into Alabama. It was about 7:30 when we got into Birmingham. It was worth seeing. We went to bed shortly after that.

When we awoke in the morning we were in Arkansas. It was very interesting to travel through that state. From the train window you could see many sights.

Sometime during the morning we crossed over into the state of Oklahoma. While we were going through there we stopped at a little town, I didn't think much of it until one of the sergeants said that it was Will Rogers' hometown. Sure enough it was. It was a rather nice town.

All along the way we saw large Air Field Army camps and an army depot. We were going very slow when we passed the army depot. To my surprise I saw a couple of Plymouth locomotives and boy, did they look neat!

We had good meals and plenty to eat on the train. When you are on KP duty you are in the mess car most of the time and from there could see a lot more of the country.

When we went through a good share of Oklahoma we figured out we were either going to Fort Sill or Cameron college. We later found out it was Cameron. The college is a very nice place. It is a co-ed agricultural school, a junior college.

One of the most interesting places I have seen in all my life was Oklahoma City. Throughout the whole city were oil wells. You could see them refining the oil and everything.

When we left Tent City we were promoted to First Class Privates.

Yours truly,
Pfc. John R. Coe

Dear Folks:
I sure had a good time on my two-day pass. I went to Los Angeles Wednesday night about 7:30, went via bus, only cost 8c, things sure are cheap for service men out here. I arrived at Los Angeles about 7:45, walked around down town for about 1 1/2 hours, then I met my friend from Tiffin, Ohio.

We went to the USO lounge. It is a five story building and it has almost everything in it. They have pool tables on one floor, a magazine store on the next, a bar room and the next is a canteen and on the east floor they have a lounge room and a place to sleep.

They gave us tickets to the Treanor Ballroom. I heard a lot about it but didn't think I would be able to see it. Ray Herbeck and his band was there. We were about three tables from the stage, so I had a good chance to see him.

We got our supper there free. The people out here are lots nicer to service men than they are up north. We got out of there about 1:30, we were very tired. We hadn't been up that late for a long time. We went back down town and into Paramount Hotel.

We got a room for one dollar for both of us. We sure felt funny to sleep on a mattress again. We slept until 8:00 the next morning. We went down to the Excell photo shop to see when we could get our pictures taken. About 9:30 we got a ride to Hollywood. We went to the Hollywood Canteen and had our dinner. This canteen is sure a beautiful place, you really have to see it to believe it. We were lucky enough to get two tuxedos to go out to the 20th Century Fox studios. We got there about 11:30. Boy, it sure is a large place. We sure was lucky to see two movie stars—Betty Grable and Hedy Lamarr, they are beautiful. We got back to camp at 6:00 and we were very tired. On my next pass I want to go to Long Beach.

I will close now, and get some sleep.
Your son,
Kenny McQuown

OBITUARY

Ethel, daughter of Noah W. and Addie Sims Hatch was born in Plymouth, Ohio, July 30, 1883. Her early childhood and youth was spent in Van Wert county, Ohio, moving back to Plymouth in 1898, where she received her education, graduating from Plymouth high school and receiving her further education in Wooster college and Ohio Northern University.

In early life she affiliated herself with the Lutheran church of which she was always a most faithful member.

In 1908 she was married to Louis Straub of Shelby, Ohio. To this union were born, two daughters, Dorothy Katharine and Arline Zanette.

After several months of intense suffering she departed this life on Saturday night, March 13, 1943 at the age of 59 years, 7 months and 11 days.

She was preceded in death by her twin sister Estelle and her father, the late Noah W. Hatch. She leaves to mourn their great loss, her aged mother, Mrs. Addie Hatch, her two daughters, Mrs. Chayton White of Ridgeway, Ohio, Mrs. Robert Schreck of Plymouth, her only brother, Mr. S. Harry Hatch of Shelby, three step-children Mr. Howard Straub and Mrs. George Klippel of Mansfield, Ohio and Mrs. Harold Layer of Chicago, Illinois, five grand children, Kay and Eddie White, Robert, Larry and Martha June Schreck, one niece, Mrs. Ralph Thauvette of Cleveland, Ohio and other relatives and hosts of friends.

Funeral services were held from the First Lutheran church, Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 p. m., by the pastor of the church, Rev. Lambertus, followed by an Eastern Star.

Burial was at Greenlawn with the burial service in charge of the Daughters of Union Veterans.

POST-WAR SECURITY

Although all polls of public opinion indicate that there is overwhelming support among the people for pay-as-you-go taxation, the house committee which has been working out the tax program has totally ignored this fact in making its recommendations.

Taxpayers, who have survived the battle of March 15, know first-hand how difficult it is to save the money necessary to pay present taxes. They know, too, that it would be much easier if the taxes were deducted from their pay and their accounts with the government were automatically settled each week.

The purpose of having a congressional committee work on a tax program is to have men familiar with the facts figure out how necessary money can be collected from the people with the least pain.

On some things we are willing to let congressmen make decisions for us because they are more familiar with the facts. But with a problem which is of such close concern to every individual, we insist that congress should act in accordance with our clearly expressed wishes.

CONGRESS, PLEASE NOTE

We hope that the present interest of the President and of congress in a Social Security plan for after the war won't take their attention from the most important social security need of the day—that of winning the war.

It is difficult to hazard a guess as to what conditions will be like in this country during the post-war period. We could have a great depression or we could have an era of prosperity which would give us the highest standard of living ever known to man. Which we have can depend to a large extent on what the government and business men do about it now.

But it should be kept clear in everyone's mind that the execution of any post-war plan is entirely contingent on winning a complete victory. At present post-war planning can be compared with an individual's working out how he will spend a fortune before he makes it.

We still have a long hard job to do to win the war. Let's not get sidetracked in our thinking by spending too much time dreaming about what we'll do when it is over.

DALE CARNEGIE
 Author of "How to Win Friends and Influence People"

The first day of November, 1909, was important to a boy named Walter Geist in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. On that day he got a job as errand boy in the saw mill engineering department of the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company.

He was delighted. Elated. A real job. Money every Saturday. He worked hard and after a time was advanced to tracer; then he became a draftsman, then a designer. Step by step he went up. He was made engineer-in-charge-of-power-transmission when he was only 31 years old. That was achievement! Well! But there was a catch to it. He had gone as far as he could in his department. How many people have experienced that! Well, that misfortune was responsible for his becoming a famous and prosperous man.

He realized that if he wished to advance he would have to do something new in the power transmission field; something that's never been done. So he made a survey of the possibilities and finally decided on the thing that seemed to him was the least efficient and most unsatisfactory drive in the power transmission field. This is what is called the "short center drive". The "drives" in use, jerked or slipped and, when applied to textile machines, tore fragile threads. Instead of trying to talk his company into paying him more money, he started in to help the company by finding a better "short center drive."

There was no one in the world he could go to for help, for such a job had never been done before. He had to do it himself. So he rolled up his sleeves and went into the factory, worked late at night, Sundays. His friends kidded him. They said he had a good job, top man in his department, so why stew around about something that couldn't be done. But he stewed anyway.

He stewed two years, and developed what is known as the "Texrope V-Belt Drive" which started and stopped smoothly, eliminated jerking, absorbed shocks. It had never been in the world until he put it there. Did the company promote him then? Of course it did! It could hardly wait to promote him. No asking now. He was made assistant manager of the entire milling department. In 1939 the board of directors elected him a vice president of the Allis-Chalmers Co.

Walter Geist did a most wise thing. When he found he had got as far as he could in his department he set out to add something new, something that would help it. You can follow his principle.

GLAMOROUS SWARTHOUT SINGS "CARMEN" WITH METROPOLITAN IN CLEVELAND AUDITORIUM

GLADYS SWARTHOUT, AS CARMEN IN "CARMEN"

CLEVELAND — Gladys Swarthout, glamorous singing star of radio and screen, will make one of her rare personal appearances when the Metropolitan Opera Association presents its annual spring festival in the Cleveland Public Auditorium during the week of April 5th. Miss Swarthout, a great singing actress and famed as one of the most beautiful women in the world, will portray the title role of "Carmen" in the Met's production of Bizet's dramatic and tuneful opera.

Supporting Miss Swarthout in "Carmen," which will be performed on Thursday evening, April 8th, will be an all-star cast. It includes Lucia Albanese as Micaela, Raoul Jobin as the dashing Don Jose, Leonard Warren as Escamillo, Thelma Votipka and Helen Olheim. Sir Thomas Beecham, famed English conductor who scored such a success in his Cleveland debut last season, will again be in the pit, conducting the Metropolitan orchestra and guiding the singers, chorus and colorful ballet.

Eight popular operas, selected by vote of the music-lovers of Northern Ohio, will be presented during Opera Week in Cleveland. In addition to "Carmen," the repertoire includes "La Forza del Destino" by Verdi, on Monday evening; Gounod's "Faust," Tuesday evening; "La Traviata" by Verdi, Wednesday evening, and "Carmen," Thursday evening. As is the custom, four operas will be presented on Friday and Saturday, with two matinee and two evening performances. Puccini's "La Boheme" and the ballet "Dance of the Hours," from La Gioconda, will be given Friday afternoon. "Aida" by Verdi Friday evening, Rossini's comic opera, "The Barber of Seville" Saturday matinee, with the festival closing Saturday night with a stellar production of Verdi's tuneful favorite, "Il Trovatore."

The greatest stars of the Metropolitan Opera House will appear during the Cleveland festival. A partial list of the famous singers who will appear includes John Charles Thomas, Helen Jepson, Zinka Milanov, Salvatore Baccaloni, Lawrence Tibbett, Giovanni Martinelli, James Melton, Lucia Albanese, Ezio Pinza, Charles Kullman, Bidu Sayao, Stella Roman, Nino Martini, John Brownlee Rose Bampton, Bruna Castagna, Leonard Warren, Helen Olheim, Raoul Jobin, Thelma Votipka, and others.

The conductors include Cesare Soderro, Sir Thomas Beecham, Frank St. Leger and Wilfred Lettier.

Tickets may be ordered by mail from Northern Ohio Opera Association, Union Bank of Commerce, Cleveland. Prices are $1.10, $2.20, $3.30, $4.40, $5.50, and $6.60, including Federal tax.

Eden Holds Press Conference in U. S.

Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, holds a press conference in the British embassy in Washington. At this conference he said: "Co-operation between the United States, Great Britain, Soviet Russia and China is pretty well indispensable if the world is to have lasting peace after the war." Shown, left to right, are Lord Halifax and Anthony Eden.

SCHOOL CENSUS IN SHELBY WILL BEGIN NEXT WEEK

Mrs. Nellie Oates has been employed by the Shelby Board of Education to take the census of all children of ages 5 to 18 years inclusive who live within the Shelby school district.

Mrs. Oates will begin work within the next few days, because of increased number of calls to be made, as a result of families moving to Shelby since last year.
