

Lloyd Falor In Major Battles

Adventure, thrills and action all go into a tall tale to make a lifetime experience that will never be forgotten by Lloyd Falor, A. C. M. M., who spent a few days recently with his parents here, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Falor on West High street.

Almost seventeen years' service in the navy of Uncle Sam is quite an experience, even in peace time, but with the past year and a half filled with action over the wide stretches of the Pacific, makes history in any man's life.

Falor was on the Hornet, one of the carrier squadrons assigned to the bombing of Tokyo a little more than a year ago. It was the Hornet on which Col. Doolittle and his flyers took off for that famous and well-known task which took them over Japan. After this mission Falor's squadron went into the Coral Sea area where they saw action. From there they journeyed up to Wake Island and assisted in holding off the Japs there. After Wake Island, Falor's ship sailed into the vicinity of the Solomons. It was here that the most terrific battles were experienced, and it was in the battle of the Solomons that the Japanese were successful in sinking the Hornet.

Falor saw plenty of action in these four missions, and for the valor and daring of his group and for his own bravery, he has been awarded four gold stars. Two of them were for the vicious and terrific battles fought in the Solomons, one for the Coral Sea action and one for the gallant fight at Wake Island. No star has as yet been awarded for the Japanese mission in which our boys bombed Tokyo.

It was during the Solomon engagement when ship supplies ran low, and was utterly impossible for Falor's ship to return to its base for food, water and fuel; and, as a result of the supply of shortages, Falor and his buddies lived on rice, beans and beans for forty-two consecutive days. But the ships and men came through, and food rationing helped!

After the Japs sank the Hornet in the Solomons, Falor was transferred to another ship. He arrived in the States four weeks ago and after spending a week in Plymouth, he and Mrs. Falor left for New York where Mr. Falor will receive special training for a few weeks before returning to his base on the West Coast.

Before the Jap Raid on Pearl Harbor, Falor was stationed at that base for two and a half years, and had been called to the States just two weeks before the infamous Jap attack. He has visited Pearl Harbor recently and was very much impressed with progress that has been made in cleanings things up, putting ships back into service, and the improvements in general at this base.

Some of our readers may not know what the initials stand for, following the name of Lloyd Falor, A. C. M. M. Well, they mean this: Aviation Chief Machinist Mate. After joining up with the navy over 16 years ago, Falor took a hankering that he would like the aviation end of the game. As a result, four months later he was under the stars and stripes and started special work and study in naval aviation.

As chief machinist mate, his job is to keep the navy ships flying, and he is more than doing his part. Falor does not pilot a plane, but he has an average of 40 to 60 hours per month in flying, checking up on engines and other equipment.

He gave high praise to the hundreds of new pilots who are going into action at various bases in the Pacific. Falor states that they are "made of real stuff," and that the average pilot's skill, knowledge and courage under all flying conditions, are remarkable.

Down in New Caledonia, some 600 miles from New Zealand, Falor had the good fortune of bumping into Ward Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Clark of the County Line road. Clark is a coxswain in the navy, and Falor states that he's getting along fine and enjoying good health.

Upon entering the Navy, Falor has traveled the world over. He

VERDICT RENDERED BY COURT UPHOLDS THE AAA

WASHINGTON, June 8.—The preme court today upheld provisions of the 1938 Agricultural Adjustment Act under which government officials were authorized to collect a 49-cent per bush of penalty on wheat grown in excess of quotas.

A group of farmers of Ohio, Michigan, Pennsylvania and Kansas asked the court to invalidate the AAA program, designed to control wheat marketing. They were represented by Rep. William Lemke, R., North Dakota, and asked that Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard be enjoined from collecting the penalty.

In a brief opinion, the high court ruled today that all the issues in the case had been settled in a decision handed down November 9, 1942. This was a case filed against Wickard by Roscoe C. Filburn, another wheat farmer.

Shocked By High Voltage

In an attempt to photograph a robin on its nest, built in the high tension power transformers at the Peck-Roth Electric Co. Thom as Root, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Root, almost lost his life Sunday afternoon when he came in contact with a 13,000 volt wire.

Young Root, who is quite an amateur photographer, sought the unusual in photographing the bird's nest. Inasmuch as the nest was several feet off the ground, Root used a tree-trimmer, attaching his camera to the end of the so that it could be raised to the level of the nest. The wire lever was hooked up to operate the camera at the proper time.

Whether or not it was a coincident or some other miraculous power, Otis Downend stepped out of the side door entrance just as Tom was holding the trimmer in the air. When the pole touched each other, and Tom said: "I hope she comes back." At that instant Downend hesitated in his walk to the car, and as he turned his head in the direction of the transformer, he saw a flash of fire and a resounding noise which resembled the firing of a rifle.

The intense charge of electricity caused young Root's body to rise at least two feet from the ground. Just as Tom started falling toward the ground, he was caught by Mr. Downend, who immediately started artificial respiration. Guard E. J. (Flopper) Frome, who arrived at the scene, immediately summoned a physician and medical attention was rendered. The injured youth was taken to the Shelby hospital, but he was released and removed home Wednesday afternoon.

Downend states that "just as I was lowering the trimmer the ground," he said to me, "artificial respiration." Downend instantly recalled seeing pictures of what and how to do in case of electrical shock in the old work book when he was in the firm as an electrician several years ago. Downend said "those things came back to me instantly, and I went to work." The attending physician stated that it was the promptness of applying artificial respiration that saved the life of young Root.

While the transformer carries a charge of 13,000 volts in each wire, there is every reason to believe that part of the charge went into the wire fence that surrounds them when the tree-trimmer cable contacted the live wire.

As a result of the terrific shock the fingers of the left hand were burned, as well as a large burn on the right wrist. A large hole was also burned in the bottom of the right foot, which gives plenty of evidence of the intensity of the shock.

SIX SONS IN U. S. SERVICE

CONG. MCGREGOR PRESENTS PARENTS WITH AMERICAN FLAG.

Congressman J. Harry McGregor (Rep.) 17th District, Ohio, called to the attention of his colleagues in Congress, that he has at least one family, and possibly more, in his district who has six sons in the armed forces.

This family is Mr. and Mrs. Hal Marriott of 163 S. 2nd Street, Newark, Ohio.

The congressman is sending to Mr. and Mrs. Marriott an American Flag, and with it a letter from the Honorable South Trimmer, Clerk of the U. S. House of Representatives, stating that this particular flag has flown over our national capitol.

Congressman McGregor has asked The Advertiser to advise him of any families in the community which have six sons or daughters in the service, as it is his intention to present a similar flag to each of the families.

Representative McGregor cited that he fully realizes that each parent, regardless of the number of members in their family in the armed services, are sacrificing and contributing to our war effort, but he feels that special recognition should be given to those parents who have six of their family group serving in the uniform of our country and carrying the banner for victory.

Predicts Germany Will Be Through This Year

Dr. J. Raymond Schutz, commencement speaker at the Willard High school, expressed the opinion to friends in that city that the Allies were on the verge of invading Hitler's domain, and he would not be surprised if the Germans would surrender by July. A mighty force would then be turned against Japan and the war would be over by October.

A trifle worn and weary looking, Felix, the large police dog belonging to the P. H. Root family, is back again on his old stamping grounds. Felix was released Thursday from the Dog hospital at Berlin Heights where he received treatment for a paralytic lower jaw.

Around the Square

(By Phineas Whittlesseed)

A PIGEON, homing carrier, or just plain pigeon, has taken a liking to the indentations on the east side of the Peoples National Bank building and has been sitting there since Saturday.

GEORGE SHAFFER has lost 12 pounds, which he could ill afford to lose, since a recent tonsilectomy and is trying to make up for lost poundage by consuming a quart of ice cream a day, so they say, topped by a delicious nut sundae. Oh dear, and me without a tonus!

JOHN BEELMAN was a little more than usual busy last week-end, having received a shipment of over 300 sheep from Kansas City.

DISPITE THE heavy rains and disagreeable weather of early Spring, there are many beautiful spots in the backyards of many Plymouth homes. Take Ter-Berwick, Bill Wechter, Mrs. Bartholomew, and Mrs. Charlie Russell—these and numerous more have an outstanding flower spot that really have to be seen to be appreciated. They, too, then, the back lots of the Steve Hossler corner which are covered with various hues, kinds and sizes of flowers—and adds very much to the appearance of the town. It is impossible to mention all the folks in Plymouth who like to dig around in flower beds, but I believe all of you will agree that with everyone liking flowers and taking a little pride in the yards, makes the town have a very good reputation as being beautiful.

JAMES MOORE, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Moore, must be a healthy child of a chap. When he was in Cleveland recently to enlist in the Navy, James was one of the two out of sixty applicants that was accepted. He is now at Great Lakes Training Station. Jim wasn't quite 18 years old, but he had the "old fire" in him, and the folks signed up for his entry into the service.

MRS. FAYMA SAMPSON FOX tells me she was in Cleveland last week and called on the John Campbells. She reports them in good spirits, and still interested in Plymouth.

NEXT MONDAY is Flag Day—when and if you see Old Glory floating around the Square, don't forget and ask "What are the flags out for?" June 14 is the official Flag Day and one which we should observe very reverently!

FARMERS in this section are working until darkness overtakes them, and even some are using headlights on their tractors—to get the corn in, and cultivating done. Some are late planting corn, while others have a good stand. At any rate, the weather is improving and the work is crowding the boys.

DR. LABARRE told me the other day that a morn came into his office and wanted six molar extracted. Nothing was thought of until Dr. saw that they were in good shape. Asked the patient why he wanted them pulled, he told Doc "that I want more gum to chew."

AT LEAST the coal strike gives one something to think about other than the war.

THERE'S always a "hull" before the storm. Hitler and Mussu better start packing.

Home Front Is James F. Byrnes Named To Unify All War Effort

Output and Distribution Put Under His Wing.

Fifty years ago, a 14-year-old boy left school to take up a course in stenography to become a court reporter in the 2nd South Carolina judicial circuit.

In the succeeding years he climbed fast, until just recently he became the No. 2 man in the United States, with his appointment as director of the newly created office of war mobilization.

The political significance of the appointment, however, overshadows the fact that it places in the new director, James F. Byrnes, I. For, as a result of the action, all civilian activities of the government have been co-ordinated and put under the management of one man.

From now on, Byrnes will have a threefold job of tremendous importance. When appointing the new director of war mobilization, President Roosevelt entrusted him with these responsibilities:

1. Development of unified policies and programs for the maximum employment of the nation's manpower in the military services; for the maintenance and stabilization of the civilian economy, and for the adjustment of such economy to war needs and conditions.

2. Unification and correlation of the activities of federal agencies and departments concerned with production, procurement, and transportation of military and civilian supplies.

The Education of a New Chieftain

2. Issuance of directives on policy or operations needed by the federal government to carry out the program developed.

Thus with one stroke did President Roosevelt move to silence the critics of the program that had been aimed at the alleged confusion of the war effort, growing out of the activities of the numerous semi-independent agencies. The action also pleased congress, who had been giving consideration to the Kilgore bill, designed to accomplish the same purpose.

The three orders given by the President, Byrnes was invested with the power to formulate programs and direct activities them by direction of any of the war agencies.

In this manner, one program on any important policy will be mapped, instead of a number of programs, and the various agencies will be given specific control or interconnection in carrying out the program, instead of several agencies, acting by themselves.

The result should be a simple, understandable policy, and a smooth and clear execution of the policies.

Byrnes has since made it plain that while his office will formulate policies and supervise their development, it will not be concerned with carrying out the details. Such business will be left in the hands of the agencies, which the policies will be entrusted.

At the same time, Byrnes said, the new office of War Mobilization will hold extended consultation with different department and agency heads and the organization of policy. This will relieve the President of much of the burden formerly placed upon him in the handling of the war effort.

The President's order provided for a super war cabinet to work under the direction of the cabinet secretary of War Henry Stimson; Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox; Harry Hopkins, director of War Relocation Administration; Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Relocation Authority; and Fred M. Vinson, former Kentucky congressman who was named to take over the duties of the director of economic stabilization.

The President's order lists the agencies which will be under his general war agencies, namely, the War Production Board, the War Relocation Administration, the Office of Price Control, and the Office of Defense Transportation. Whereas these agencies will be directed by the President, the execution of the program will be left to the agencies.

policy, they now have been subordinated to Byrnes. The War Production Board, which has been handling the government and civilian supply program, was affected by that provision of the order which empowers Byrnes to be empowered to "develop and unify policies and programs for the nation's natural and industrial resources for military and civilian use, and for the adjustment of civilian economy to war needs."

That part of the order calling upon Byrnes to plan for the "most effective use of the nation's manpower now in the military services formerly shouldered by Paul V. McNutt's War Relocation Administration."

The order directing Byrnes to "provide for the maintenance and stabilization of the civilian economy" gives him actual control over the Office of Price Administration. And, finally, the provision to "unify and correlate the activities of federal agencies and departments concerned with the production of military and civilian supplies," places the Office of Defense Transportation under his jurisdiction.

In short, James F. Byrnes, once the boy who quit school at 14 to go out into the world, has been entrusted with the responsibility of using every bit of raw material and manpower of the nation to produce the goods needed to keep the population going at full speed.

The leadership that was once Donald Nelson's in war production, Paul V. McNutt's in manpower, Leon Henderson's and Prentiss Mason's in price administration, and Joseph Eastman's in transportation—big jobs and big men—has fallen into the lap of James "Jimmy" to the boys on Capitol Hill Byrnes.

Who has had Byrnes taken off the team from Price Administrator Brown announced that the OPA would undertake to pay the cost of living to the level of September 15, 1942. This would require a 4 per cent reduction on prices, which, it was felt, would be accomplished by cutting off the subsidies to allow manufacturers and processors a subsidy in order to absorb the higher production costs. It has been pointed out that such a system would merely transfer the 4 per cent from the retail price to the bill, since the subsidies will represent government expenditures repayable in taxes.

County Poultrymen Urged To New Goal In Egg Production

Richland county poultrymen are asked by the government to produce approximately 2,938,000 dozen eggs this year, 5.8 per cent more than in 1942, as their share in the Food for Victory program, the National Poultry Defense committee estimated today.

This county goal, which is based on the percentage increase suggested for Ohio by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, can be reached if adequate supplies of labor and feed are available, declared Committee Chairman Hobart Creighton.

"Poultry farmers are now working harder than ever in all-out war production," Creighton said, "continuing the fine job they did in this county last year by producing approximately 2,785,000 dozen eggs to help supply civilian, military and lend-lease needs. Also, two developments during last year have resulted in larger laying flocks on most farms today. Ohio poultrymen, who produced a total of 211,083,000 dozen this year as their share of the national egg goal of 4,780,000,000 dozen.

GRADUATED

ALLIANCE, OHIO—Mount Union's ninety-seventh annual commencement, the second war-time commencement in as many years, was held at 3:00 p. m. Sunday, June 6th, in Memorial hall. Continuing the policy adopted in 1942, baccalaureate and commencement were held the same day.

Highlight of the commencement day activities was the military review given at the noon hour in Hartshorn stadium.

Receiving a Bachelor of Arts degree, Miriam Nimmons, Cashman, North street, was one of the eighty seniors presented diplomas at the commencement exercises Sunday. Alimony Provision Is Affirmed By Court

The one-third share of $130,000 in personal property granted Mrs. Grace Heath as alimony in her divorce suit against Earl W. Heath, vice president of the Fate-Root-Heath company Plymouth, was affirmed Friday by Fifth District Court of Appeals Judges.

At the time Mrs. Heath was granted a divorce, the Richland county common pleas court granted her the one-third share, $38,400 per year for support and was granted custody of the couple's five children. There was also a life insurance adjustment by which Mrs. Heath and the children benefited.

Heath appealed the alimony provisions on questions of law and charges of excessive alimony. The appeals court heard arguments in the case at Newark, May 21. Its decision recorded in common pleas court Friday affirmed the lower court and ordered the judgment placed into execution.

"Meet the People..."

Each week in this space will be presented a picture and word portrait of someone whose name is new.

• Bushy haired, heavy browed, broad shouldered John Llewellyn Lewis has spent most of his 63 years fighting brilliant battles to unite all workers in an industry into one big union for that industry regardless of the type of work done. This goal has made the labor leader enemies who have found him savage yet skillful, dictatorial yet sympathetic, and rough yet dignified.

• He is no white collar leader. He was only a boy of 12 when he went to work in the mines where he labored for 15 years. His first union distinction came in 1909 when he was elected a legislative agent of the United Mine Workers. Later he became president of the UMW.

• Under the labor protesting clause of the NRA, Lewis revitalized his miners' union and strongly campaigned for his vertical union plan.

• Meeting discouragement, he broke with the AFL, taking with him nine other AFL leaders and 1,000,000 wage earners who formed the CIO. These two organizations have been irreconcilable.

• Lewis also broke with other heads of the CIO and has tossed a bombshell into labor circles by applying to the AFL for readmission of his United Mine Workers.

Following the wedding a reception was held for the immediate families at the Shelby Inn. The dining room was decorated with white roses for the occasion with a three-tiered wedding cake centering the table.

On Wedding Trip

J., was at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Sloan, on a few days' pass. Miss Margaret Pittenger of Pavana was a dinner guest at the Sloan home, Sunday. Delmar L. Nesbitt is home for a few days this week from Ft. Bliss, Texas. Ross Latimer of Great Lakes, Ill., and his wife and little son of Norwalk, visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Latimer, Wednesday. Sgt. Russell Gates is home from Camp Howze, Texas, on a ten day furlough. Here is a letter dated May 20 and sent by James Ruckman, that will be of interest to everyone: Dear Folks - Received your first letter today. As soon as I get back to my home-base here I have to answer my mail immediately before being sent out again. My trips usually take two or three weeks to complete. My last trip took about three weeks. I saw many interesting sights including the Nile River. While laying over at one place I spent a day visiting the Pyramids. I saw a little jackass part of the way and a camel the rest. The most interesting thing to me was the place where they mummified the bodies before placing them in the Pyramids. An old Arab told me that it took 72 days for the body to dry. He also said that modern science was never able to explain the formula for the mummifying and the receipt that still remains on the face of the Sphinx. He showed me the repair work that was done by Alexander the Great and expressed his disgust at the poor job he had done. He also "cussed" Napoleon for shooting off the nose of the Sphinx. It did have a nasty looking hole on the face. So far I have covered many thousands of miles on this continent and I think I would prefer the ocean rather than the desert in case of an emergency. I never realized that air could get so dry and hot. The human body exposed to one day of this air would never be the same again. This explains the dress of the natives of this interesting territory. Although we have ample water with us, my lips still become cracked and my throat feels like sandpaper. At present I am flying a small pursuit ship (P-40) for reasons I cannot explain. This is the first single engine ship I have flown since leaving Greenville, Miss. Am trying to get out of this territory and think my chance will come soon. I am like the curious bear that wanted to see the other side of the mountain. As long as the mountains hold out I will be happy. When I was in the Orient a few years ago I thought I had seen the last word in filth, but some places I have seen here have that beat many ways. Have much more to write about, but just wait until I get home and can tell you many more interesting things. Love, James. Thank you, James, that's a mighty-good letter, and remember, we're pulling for all our boys.

TELLS OF TRIP ACROSS THE U. S. AND — TRAVELS THROUGH FLOOD SEES A MISSOURI MULE LIKES THE RED-HEADS NO K P DUTY NEAR HEAVEN ON A HIGH MOUNTAIN MEETS HAROLD SMITH

Tooele, Utah, June 1, 1943 Dear Tommy: Go West young man, go West! That's just what I did and Uncle Sam paid the bill all the way. We arrived here Sunday morning about 10 o'clock, leaving Gadsden at 2:00 P. M. on the Wednesday before. I surely had a wonderful trip and saw plenty of sights. My first one was the T. V. A. dam, just outside of Chattanooga, Tenn. That's almost the home of the W. A. A. C. camp. I have spent several pleasant week-ends there. The sign said New Albany, Ind., where we crossed the big Ohio River. Had a pretty fast gate and a little high. We arrived in St. Louis, Mo., about 8 p. m. Thursday evening. Lost six hours there waiting and I did a little looking around to put my elbows on the bar and have a little "steam," and few glasses of "suds." That word "steam" came from the Postmaster. I never caught on to it in civilian life, but I was only in the army 30 days and I knew what the boys meant by that word.

As we crossed the old Mississippi in St. Louis it really was plenty high. Over the banks and carrying plenty of a load. The next day we came to the river which declares the boundary line between Indiana and Illinois. That was plenty high and as we crossed the bridge span our train hit it. We were five miles per hour, and the water was only about a foot below the rails of the track. I saw a lot of rowboats that were rescuing people from the second story of their homes, saving their lives. There were thousands upon thousands of acres of land completely under water. In some places on level ground where it had gone down some we could see the marks on the trees where it had been about eight to ten feet high. The railroad had put slow orders on all trains using that track.

583." Now he wasn't an old one I would say. I also saw as I came farther West that there were Herefords by the thousands and yet beef is scarce in the army. Plenty of pork, though. We passed through a very nice town by the name of Medicine Box. As the engine was taking on water I slipped over to the Virginia Hotel just to see the sights. Up on one of those high stools and a mahogany finish under your elbows sat an Irish lassie that you wouldn't leave your eyes off of. Right there I nearly became a buck private again by not going back to the train.

Morgan, Utah, is a very pretty town and right back of the town is a big mountain with the letter M on it, all painted in white. Somewhere around Denver or Colorado Springs, I don't recall anymore, as my eyes some mornings would get so sore. We saw, at least that's what they told us, the Will Rogers Memorial. We could see Pikes Peak very good and it was covered with snow.

Colorado Springs has one of the nicest depots that you ever walked into. Salt Lake City is very nice, too. I spent about an hour there. Some of the boys came to me while I was there on the platform and started a conversation. They lived right here in the city and they asked me to come to Utah with them. My first visit to the city. By the way, the first three daughters working in the city and three sons in the army. Well, I surely will make them a couple.

My very good friend, Earl Smith from Willard, Ohio, has his orchestra at the Empire room of the Hotel Utah, and I called him and he told me to stop for a while. He said he would like to see him. You know Earl is considered next best to Gene Krupa. I talked with the passenger man on the way out to the camp and he said that Smith really had a sweetheart of a band and that he was a good drawing card. He has a nice contract there—that I know. So I will tell you better on my three day pass up there with him.

The place where I am located is the Dugway Proving Grounds. The camp is about or should I say over a hundred miles square and one about 400 soldiers and 96 WAAC's. Saturday night they have the hog rasle down at the dance hall and they all turn out one hundred per cent besides all the red heads they have here. When our son after we arrived at St. John, there came a little red head dressed in green breeches and yellow sweater and a small cutaway hat and riding boots. She came up to the tent, and on her horse at full speed. As she came to a stop she asked me where we were going and I told her Dugway Proving Grounds, and the moon made away. As she whirled her horse she let out that cowgirl yell—"Yippee!" And across the plains she went. There's one thing about this gang; when a good looking gal appears you get to see those "wolves" get a conversation started and the first thing you know they have her picture and her whole life's history. There are no exceptions in this company, either.

Where our camp is located we are up on a mountain side 6163 feet above sea level. I climbed up on the mountain yesterday, which is 4500 feet, more and walked through snow about waist deep just for a thrill. I got it, too. I had an awful time getting up, but no trouble getting down. We were about an hour going up and 15 minutes coming down. This is an old C. C. C. camp that the army is taking over. Our company commander, who is a swell fellow, has made arrangements for so many of the men to go down to the WAAC camp for dates with the girls. It keeps the morale up and I am surely going to do my best at the dance to give the gals a break on that swing called "jitter bug." That's the latest as I haven't got a "black bottom," or can I do the "black bottom" any more. My first few tries might be like a bungee on a rusty gate, but I'll get the rust off somehow.

We have some very beautiful scenery here in the early morning hours. We are up in the air considerable and the clouds seem to be at a great distance yet they are even lower than the camp site. Last night we had the first rain in nearly three months. So you can see that we do have had a lot of it. Another thing, we do have five kinds of poisonous snakes. All of us carry knives in case of a snake bite as our supply of "steam" is very limited for just such cases. If it wasn't I believe there would be a lot of bites.

I just stopped to think when I was on top of that mountain that it was just about as close to heaven as I have ever got. Had KP tell me the other day while I was putting the drive act on them that he wished that I would go to hell and also hope that I would have to work KP there so that I would know what it is like. I only worked KP a half a day since I have been in the army and I would say that it is pretty lucky.

The ninth of this month I will have completed fourteen months in the army. I have seen a lot of nice sights, been to some good places as well as bad, met a lot of nice people and really had some big times. Never sorry for a move and had a lot of headaches that always follow, shake a little in a crap game or a good stiff poker game; but that is to be expected.

Well, I guess I have written about all I can at this time, and will try to do better next time. Hope the old Square isn't too dead, and that you good people "keep 'em flying," and I'll keep my company fed as well as myself.

Always— OLD HAPPY (SARGE) HANK WATTS

Tuesday night, May 9, 1943

Dear Sarge: What's the biggest surprise of my life? Well, when I received your letter this morning. It has been so long since I have heard from you that I was beginning to get a little skeptical—thought perhaps you may be tied up on KP all the time, but since you have explained, it possibly couldn't have been that. Then, too, there's some pitfalls in old Alabama. And if you were to tell the truth, I bet you hated to leave the old southern atmosphere.

You must have seen some real flood waters, and there's no doubt but what you're telling the truth for the Associated Press dispatches backed you up on your description of the havoc wrought by the flood. But I think your veracity was stretched a little when you told me about the age of the Jack Rabbit. It wasn't funny, Hank! How would it sound if I were to tell you that I've been in Plymouth so long that I can remember the Mayflower? Rest assured I used the stone quarry for a water hole? Well, it's almost been that long, and if many more of the boys go to the army, including you, I may ever get it. Had KP tell me the other day while I was putting the drive act on them that he wished that I would go to hell and also hope that I would have to work KP there so that I would know what it is like. I only worked KP a half a day since I have been in the army and I would say that it is pretty lucky.

Say, do you remember a few short years ago when you operated the Mayflower Restaurant? Those were the good old days—nice, tender juicy steaks and potatoes! Today I'd like to have just a small bite! The stuff we're getting now is even older than the rabbit. Oh, well, if you boys in the army aren't getting it—someone else is.

Locally, there isn't much news around the Square. Everything is about the same—and I suppose as long as a bomb doesn't blow up the bricks, Plymouth will always be Plymouth—that's the way we like it, you know. As for the State News, there's a whole lot—if it could be printed! I am inclined to think that you boys should come back home and do some housecleaning, but that can be taken care of after the war.

I know Earl Smith was glad to see you, Earl, ever since I knew him, has always been a gentleman and a scholar—and wouldn't it be big news to have him and his band come to Plymouth for a real set on the Square? All the Plymouth boys must be pretty busy. I haven't heard from as many as I had hoped. Our mailing list shows quite a bunch of them, scattered all over the world, and yet, they could make the old Advertiser more interesting with a few more descriptive letters. What do you say, fellows? Come on! Write! The honor roll is up, and believe me, it looks real nice. Only one gold star, so far, and that is Elmer Parsel. We hope to have a picture of it in the paper one of these weeks.

Well, Hank, I've got to cut this short. It's getting press time, and I really must close. I know the folks back home will be glad to hear from you, and also any of the other boys who wish to write.

And if you happen to get home sick again, just drop us a line. It will do you good.

Sincerely, Tommy.
