

NOTABLE SPEAKERS TO BE HERE FOR WHEAT FARMERS PICNIC ON AUG. 15; BIG CROWD IS EXPECTED

Plans Being Completed For Big Event; Congressman Wm. Lemke of North Dakota, and Congresswoman Bolton of Cleveland Are Slated to Appear on Program.

If last year's attendance at the wheat farmers picnic can be used as a criterion, the Wheat Farmers Picnic should draw thousands to Plymouth on Sunday, Aug. 15.

Already plans are being completed which will make this one of the outstanding farmer events in this section of Ohio. It was announced by H. H. Fackler that Congressman Wm. Lemke of North Dakota, will be here for the occasion. Congresswoman Bolton of Cleveland will be present and prepared to deliver an inspiring address. There is a possibility of other well-known speakers appearing on the program.

The affair will be held at Mary Fete Memorial Park, and tables, benches and other accommodations have been arranged for. In an interview with Mr. Fackler, he stated:

"We want every farmer, business man and all the city folks to attend this picnic. Due to gas rationing we are asking the farmers to double up, and bring a carload. As to burning up a little gas," said Mr. Fackler, "this picnic will afford the farmer a real day of recreation, he will learn something about his government and the food program, and will inspire him to do a better job of farming for victory. We have got to feed the nation and the people of other countries, and we may as well talk over the plans at this picnic."

The Ganges Band will furnish music for the day, and there are other features which will prove very interesting for those attending.

The picnic is scheduled to begin at noon. Bring a basket, and come early. All farmers, whether or not they are members of the wheat association, are invited as well as all business men and the folks from the city.

Don't forget the day, Sunday, Aug. 15, and be on time.

DOINGS IN CONGRESS

By Cong. Wm. Lemke.

Our sons are now giving their lives, limbs and health for the "American way of life" while we at home permit a few hybrid and hyphenated Americans to sell our nation down the river.

I saw a cartoon on July 4 in which Uncle Sam read the Declaration of Independence while Miss Columbia, dressed in Stars and Stripes, stood by him. A long side was a fence. On the other side of the fence was a vacant lot with skulls. There was a lover's lane designated "Soviet Government." In the vacant lot leaning on the fence was an individual. He pointed down the alley and whispered to Miss Columbia whether she was looking for a blind date. Miss Columbia gave this hybrid American the cold shoulder.

This brings us to Mr. Morgenthau's intention to fix a new scheme. Mr. Morgenthau's is modeled after the British scheme but is camouflaged. In reality there is little difference between Mr. Keynes' and Mr. Morgenthau's scheme. They both hope for their object the fleecing of America.

Morgenthau would create an international corporation with 5 billion dollars worth of gold. Sam would furnish the gold. The other nations would put in their IOU's—their bingo chips, for our gold. They would then have 85% of the voting power—we 15%. We would wipe out the tariff and permit foreign products produced or manufactured by Latin-American peons, the underpaid Europeans and the Chinese and Japanese coolies to compete with the American farmer, small businessman and the American laborer in our domestic markets.

The unit of exchange under the Morgenthau plan is called Unitas. The foreign nations will give the credit—our gold—that we gave them to buy our products. They will take only the short time before that credit will be gone. Then they will accuse us of having short-changed them. Since they have 88 votes to our 12 in the corporation they will vote some more credit to themselves and the American people will be bunked some more. Insane? Yes, but unless we wake up this unitas game will be put over on us.

Sure we will take care of the starving people of Europe for a time after the war. We will help the nations that have been so ruthlessly conquered by the Axis to get back on their feet, but we are not going to be a perpetual Santa Claus. We will help the smaller nations to form the United States of Europe, but Miss Columbia is not going to accept a blind date. Do not worry when the boys come marching home they will tell the hybrid and hyphenated Americans where to head in.

TOO MANY COOKS

As we look over the Washington news it seems to us that most all government departments are unsuccessfully trying to disprove the theory that "too many cooks spoil the broth."

The situation which has made this most clear to the American people is that surrounding the distribution, sale and rationing of gasoline. We have lost count of the number of Washington officials who have had a hand in "clearing up" this situation because we haven't enough fingers to count them on. But it is quite certain that our gas and oil supply has suffered because of the number of fingers in the gasoline pie.

Every few months the problem becomes so confused that it is necessary to have some top official re-study the whole set-up. That is going on now. But whether any adequate answer will be found is doubtful.

There is little chance that the amount of gasoline available to civilians will be increased as a result of this study so long as the needs of our armed forces continue to be as great as they are. But one thing we can hope for as a result of the study is that a plan might be put through which would let us know where we stand for a while. One plan which will be considered is the Canadian system by which motorists are given coupons for a year's supply of gasoline and are told for a full year ahead what those coupons will be worth. But perhaps such a plan is a little too simple for all the "cooks" to agree upon.

MUFFINS OR MEAT

Undoubtedly there will soon be a campaign put on to persuade home Americans to eat crop products in preference to meat. On the surface, the arguments for it are difficult to debate.

What it would mean was explained by W. I. Myers, former governor of the Farm Credit administration, when he said:

"In converting seven pounds of corn into one pound of pork, about 84 per cent of the energy is lost. The seven pounds of corn would make 238 corn muffins."

It seems logical that 238 corn muffins would keep the human machine going longer than would one pound of pork. But there is something rather frightening about the thought of our eating animal feed instead of feeding it to animals and then eating them. We don't suppose that Mr. Myers means to have us eliminate meat entirely, but merely suggests this plan as a way of taking care of the present meat shortage and as a sound answer to the problem of feeding hundreds of millions of people in foreign lands.

But if this plan got rolling it might go too far. We have no objection to corn muffins on the side, but the very thought of sitting down to a dinner of corn muffins makes us ready to fight for the preservation of good, juicy, thick steaks.

TURNING LIABILITIES INTO CASH

This column today is about a boy who didn't get much formal schooling. The third grade. That was all. Yet he has managed to get along pretty well. He has made nearly as much money in three months as the President of the United States makes in a year. He is Wallace Beery, the son of a Kansas City peddler.

He left school and ran away as a boy hobo, sleeping in box cars and hobo jungles, and riding on freight trains.

He heard through a friend that his running away had hurt his mother deeply, so he came back and got a job as engine wiper in a railroad roundhouse.

He was content with this job and expected to be a railroad man the rest of his life. But a letter changed everything. The letter was from his brother who had left school, too, and got a job with the Ringling Brothers' circus. He said that if Wallace wanted to give up his engine wiper job and come to the circus he would try to find work for him. That night Wallace started hobnobbing his way to the circus. His brother introduced him to the manager of the circus, and Wallace got the job of watering and feeding the elephants—at $3.50 a week.

He became an elephant-trainer, and thought himself settled for life. Then he received a letter from his brother Noah which upset his world. The letter said that he (Noah) was making $18.50 a week acting on the stage in New York.

As Wallace Beery held that letter in his hand, he decided to become an actor. He knew nothing whatever about the stage and had never taken part in amateur theatricals. But he gave up his job, borrowed some money, and told his friends that he was going to New York to become an actor!

He got a job in the theater—as chorus man! Yet he had never taken a dancing lesson in his life.

The show was "Babes in Toyland" and he was chosen principally because he had a deep voice. He was so big and clumsy that the other chorus men called him "Jumbo."

He achieved success principally because he cashed in on his short-comings, playing parts where he was not supposed to be educated—roles where he was lumbering—and it has made him a world success.

He cashed in on his liabilities. It isn't difficult to cash in on our assets but it takes initiative, persistence and courage to cash in on our liabilities. Can you do it?

OVEN CANNING NOT RECOMMENDED

Home canners have been warned against the oven method of canning food by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Not only is oven canning slow and unsatisfactory, but it may lead to serious accidents as a result of misunderstanding of canning techniques. Disadvantages of oven canning mentioned by the OPA are: "Juice bubbles out or steams away; peaches and pears are likely to darken. For the vegetables that need high heat to kill bacteria, oven canning is not safe. Even though the oven goes to 250 degrees F., or higher, food inside the glass jar will not reach the boiling point. And the boiling point of water is 212 degrees F. is not sufficient heat to kill dangerous bacteria in a reasonable time in beans, peas, corn and other non-acid vegetables and meat. For canning these, the Department recommends only a steam pressure canner, and for fruit and tomatoes the boiling water bath."

U. S. Pans Increase in 944 Pounds Output

More Machinery and Fertilizer Will Be Made Available

While the government announced plans for increased food production for 1944, it was also revealed that Americans will be eating less meat and canned goods during the next twelve months.

This picture unfolded as the food situation remains most critical on the home front. Despite the record hog and cattle population on the nation's farms, the question of feed supply and reputed price regulations are posing difficult problems in marketing.

In anticipation of continued heavy demands for food, the War Food Administration announced that the government desires 380 million acres of crops planted in 1944. Against 54 million acres of wheat this year, plans call for 88 million acres next season. Substantial increases also are sought in dry beans and peas, soybeans, potatoes and peanuts.

Recognizing the various factors in the picture, the WFA declared more machinery and fertilizer will be available, and incentives for increasing sales were during April, May and June, 1943, while only 67 farm deeds were recorded the same period of 1942.

A year ago only 67.3 per cent of the nation's small farms, under 41 acres, and 34.7 per cent were 100 acres or larger. This year 25.9 per cent were smaller than 41 acres, and only 22.2 per cent were under 100 acres. Since many of the small farms are operated by families whose chief income comes from the farm, this cent of the 1941 figure, with manufacture particularly centered in the smaller plants. "Dred in Lamb. At the time these plans were announced, however, the WFA's allocation meant supplies during the next 12 months were made public, showing a decrease in civilian quantities about 2 billion pounds under 1942, and about 1 1/2 billion under the 1935-39 average.

As civilians are to come in lamb and mutton, WFA indicated. Compared with 880 million pounds available in 1942, only 539 million, or almost half as much, will be purchasable during the next months. The 1935-39 average consumption was 663 million pounds.

Allocations of beef for civilians have been cut from the 7,903,000,000 pounds in 1942 to 5,877,500,000 pounds in 1943-39 average. Out of the total production in the next 12 months, civilians will receive 66 out of every 100 pounds; the army and navy will get 23 out of 100 pounds, and the remainder will be awarded 2 out of 100 pounds.

It was recently pointed out that the soldier, considered twice as much beef in the army as he did in civilian life. Thus, in effect, the army is feeding about many more people than it does normally. It was said.

Civilian pork supplies are due for a tumble, too, although the allocation of the 1935-39 average is 20 million pounds above the 1935-39 average. However, the allotment is below the 1942 figure of 7,740,000,000 pounds.

Out of the total production of pork, the civilian share has been set at 29 out of every 100 pounds produced. Lend-lease has been given less than that amount and the services are to receive the rest.

All told, civilians will receive about 63 per cent of the total meat supply during the next 12 months. The services will obtain 17 per cent, the Allies 14 per cent and the remainder will be divided between exports and reserve requirements. The announcement of this meat distribution came as farmers were being asked to market hogs at lighter weights to relieve the corn-peddling cattle raisers were protesting that the heavy run of grassed stock to the slaughter yards would reduce the feed crop and threaten beef production in the future.

The government now is maintaining the price of corn at $1.75 for prime 240 to 270 pound porkers, with heavier weights having a head of the feed crop. With the year's total pig population over 100 million, it is felt that liquidation at lighter weights will not only help spread feed supplies but also provide adequate meat stocks.

Various livestock associations have contended that government regulations were hampering the production of fattened stock, which always makes its market appearance after grass fed herds have been slaughtered.

According to these organizations, price regulations make fattening unprofitable, with the result that animals taken off the range are shipped straight to packers, instead of being kept for prime fattening. Livestock interests have been urging the government to adopt the industry's plan, as fashioned by the War Meat Board, for orderly marketing in compliance with demand, with full emphasis on production.

Allocate Canned Goods. As a result of WFA allocations, civilians will receive 70 per cent of the nation's prospective supply of canned vegetables and soups and 83 per cent of the canned fruits and juices during the next 12 months.

Various domestic consumers will be awarded about 180 million cases of vegetables and soups and about 2 million cases of fruit and juices. These supplies are expected to be augmented by substantial quantities of war-surplus produce. Under the present rationing program, canned fruits and vegetables have higher priority than in summer than in winter, to encourage maximum consumption of fresh products.

According to an estimate of the department of agriculture, marketing of truck produce will be down 10 per cent over last year.

MANY RICHLAND FARMS CHANGE HANDS DURING LAST QUARTER

Reversing the trend of the last six months, approximately 40 per cent more Richland county farms changed hands in the quarter ending June 30, 1943, than in the similar period of last year. In spite of this marked increase, the sales of the last nine months still are nearly 8 per cent lower than for the same period a year ago.

According to a survey made by Miss Betty J. Walker, under the secretary-treasurer of the Richland county National Farm Loan Association.

The survey shows 199 farms changed ownership since October 1, 1942, as compared with 215 during the same nine months period of a year ago, but 93 fewer sales were during April, May and June, 1943, while only 67 farm deeds were recorded the same period of 1942.

A year ago only 67.3 per cent of the nation's small farms, under 41 acres, and 34.7 per cent were 100 acres or larger. This year 25.9 per cent were smaller than 41 acres, and only 22.2 per cent were under 100 acres. Since many of the small farms are operated by families whose chief income comes from the farm, this trend is probably due to a desire of former city residents to assure an adequate food supply by owning a small farm.

The county farm loan association is co-operating with other agencies over the entire United States in keeping a watch on farm real estate trends. So far the surveys have shown little or no trend toward a "land boom" such as the disastrous results following World War I.

The majority of farms being sold are by aged farmers who are retiring, and the farm mortgages are being paid off faster than new loans are being made. More of the new loans being made are written for longer periods of time with a regular semi-annual payment plan to avoid the danger of renewals being refused in depression years, should they again come.

Activities of the association are directed by farmers elected by member-borrowers. The present director is G. H. Collier, of Westley. Other directors are F. W. Hill, Bellville; Hugh Osburn, Mansfield, R. D. 1 and Fred Dawson, Shiloh.

ON THE AIR The Great Schnozzola

By Fred Emery

A man whose oversized proboscis is as much a part of Americana as chocolate sodas and Model T Fords; a graduate magna cum laude of the school of hard knocks; a modern Cyrano; a guy whose chronic laryngitis has conspired millions a trooper first and foremost — there you have James Durante. Durante, the Great Schnozzola. His story starts on New York's lower east side. It winds through the Bowery, Coney Island, tunk town vaudeville, Broadway, Hollywood, and today you find Jimmy in Radio City with Garry Moore and Xavier Cugat, heard over Station W.L.W. Thursdays at 10 p. m. EWT. Durante came out of the east side slums with a smile on his time haven't changed. Durante found his first job in an obscure Bowery night spot (the name of which he can't even remember) in the days when the well-dressed gent wore brass knuckles and pinned nickel beer. Jimmy joined the act by the technique of turning a piano and singing out, like many a sadwut baritone, he never bothered to learn the dull fundamentals, such as reading music. It was about this time that Durante teamed up with Lou Clayton and Eddie Jackson, and the three decided to try vaudeville. And they "crowed 'em" in every crossroads town and sold thousands of recordings of "So I Ups to Him." Ultimately they reached the bright lights. The team of Clayton, Jackson and Durante first hit big-time vaudeville in 1927, when they played Loew's State back home in New York City. After that Broadway debut the Main Stem was their oyster and they cracked it wide open. In 1929 Durante joined the great Zeppfeld in "Show Girl" and then moved into the legitimate theater to play in "The New Yorkers." No, the bright lights and big time haven't changed. Durante may. Unless, maybe, his nose is a little longer.

XMAS MAIL TO MEN OVERSEAS MUST BE POSTED BY OCT 31ST

The six-week period between Sept. 15 and Oct. 31 has been designated as the time during which all Christmas mail should be posted for members of the navy, marine corps and coast guard serving overseas, the navy department has announced.

The announcement states that arrangements have been made by the post office department for special handling of Christmas letters and packages mailed during that period in order that mail for sailors and marines serving overseas will be received before the holidays.

To facilitate this effort, senders are requested by the navy department to mark their packages "Christmas parcel" and to pay special attention to the addressing and packaging requirements. Hundreds of packages are lost daily because senders do not wrap them strongly enough to withstand the handling through numerous postal centers and the heat of a ship's hold.

For the purposes of Christmas mail, the term "overseas" means men who receive their mail through a fleet postoffice at San Francisco, Cal., New York City or Seattle, Wash. Letters and parcels should contain the name and address of the sender, the name, rank or rating of the addressee and the naval or marine unit to which he is assigned or the name of the ship and fleet post office through which the mail is to be routed.

Under postal regulations Christmas parcels cannot exceed five pounds in weight, or 15 inches in length, or 36 inches in length and girth combined. Not more than one parcel will be accepted in any one week from the same sender for the same addressee. All articles should be packed in metal, wooden or solid fibreboard or strong double-faced corrugated fibreboard or strong cardboard boxes. Fibreboard or cardboard boxes must be securely wrapped in strong paper and tied with twine. In addition, senders are cautioned that delays caused by the necessity of censorship will be minimized if the wrapping permits easy inspection of the contents of the package.

Parcels should not include weapons, perishables, intoxicants, poisons or inflammable articles such as matches or lighters. In general, the public is urged not to send food or clothing. Men serving overseas are amply provided with both, so shipping space for gifts should be used for other gifts.

COUNTRIES WELL REPRESENTED AT OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY

In spite of the war, both Richmond and Huron counties were again well represented at Ohio state during the year which ended June 30. In the four quarters ending at that time, 51 from Huron and 154 from Richmond men and women from these countries attended Ohio State for one or more terms. Ohio contributed 12,490 of the 14,137 students reported for the year. Ohio State has students from all the states except New Mexico and Wyoming, as well as from these U. S. possessions and foreign countries: Canada, Canal Zone, China, Costa Rica, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Guatemala, France, Hawaii, India, Mexico, Nigeria, Nova Scotia, Palestine, Philippines, and several countries of South America.

COUPONS MUST BE ENDORSED

Motorists using the new A. B. and C gasoline ration coupons must endorse the automobile license number and state on the face of each coupon as soon as received. Some of the old style coupons for B and C rations are still good and these also to be endorsed on the back. The same procedure is followed for motorcycles using D coupons.

Truck operators using individual trucks will endorse the license number and state of registration on face of TT coupons. Fleet truck operators will use their fleet designations on each coupon.

Non-highway users of gasoline receive B and C coupons, and these need not be endorsed if the gasoline is purchased and delivered on their own premises. If gasoline is purchased at a station for boat or other use off the premises the name and address of the user must be written on each coupon.

About 400 motorists have not yet applied for new motorist basic A books. No private automobile may be operated without a basic A book issued for use after July 21, 1943.

FIRST LUTHERAN CHURCH

Rev. Frederick Lambertus, Pastor

Worship Hour at 10:30 a. m., subject for the sermon, "Our Words", James 3, 1-12. In the third sermon in the series of meditations on the book of James we are asked to consider "Our Words". Words are cheap and many of them are used, yet "By thy words shalt thou be justified and by thy words shalt thou be condemned". "Boys flying kites haul in their white winged birds. But you can't do that when you are flying words. Careful with words is good advice we know; Careful with words is ten times wiser, Thoughts unexpressed may some times fall back dead, But no power on earth can kill them once they're said." You are asked to worship with the congregation.

AUTO OWNERS HAVE ADDED RISK AFTER SEPTEMBER 20TH

Beginning Sept. 20 motorists will have a more severe financial responsibility law to contend with.

This is one of the new laws enacted by the last legislature, and insurance agents are now busy becoming familiar with the new regulations concerning unsettled damage claims resulting from automobile accidents. Under the new law if a motorist has pending litigation against him an automobile accident, he loses his right to drive for five years. The driver has 30 days in which he may pay the judgment.

Under the old law the driver could continue the operation of his financial responsibility for future accidents. Now the judgment must be paid or he loses his driving rights. A judgment in any court of record in the state is immediately certified to the Registrar of motor vehicles. The Registrar then notifies by registered mail the motorist that he has 30 days to satisfy the judgment. Failure to pay the judgment will result in the loss of his driver's license for five years.

CONSENER WRIES HIS VISIT FOR HOLLYWOOD

Glenn Spensler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Moody Spensler, who is stationed at Fort Huachuca, has a lot of news to tell of trip to Hollywood and Beverly Hills:

Port Huachuca, 7-15-43

Dear Mom, Dad and Bob: How is everyone out home in the good old Buckeye state? I hope just fine, and the weather isn't too warm to be comfortable. On Saturday afternoon and Sunday, as you know by now I was in Hollywood and you can bet it is one great city. We left camp at 3:00 Saturday p. m. and arrived there at 4:15 p. m. On the way we went through Santos Valley, which is where all the cowboy actors have their ranches and they are really pretty. Just like you see in them. We went to the USO and found out about some rooms for the night. Then ate supper and went to the Hollywood cantine, which you have probably heard about where movie actresses entertain the service men. It was nice, but nothing like I thought it would be. It was only stays for an hour, but as long as one bunch is allowed to stay. They left in a group of service men for that length of time, then they go out and another bunch goes in. I saw many of them that there isn't room for only around 150 at a time, so that is the way they have to do it.

fixed up something like Cedar Point, only it isn't nearly as nice. It seems as if there is a lot more junk washes up from the ocean. I suppose it is from wreckage, etc.

After we left Santa Monica, on the way from Hollywood to Santa Monica the people that picked us up picked up a couple of soldiers too, and we got to asking them where each other was. When I told them the central Ohio, he said there is a fellow in my camp from Shelby if you know where that is. He said he didn't know what his first name was, but his last name was Kline and he lived in the country. I don't know him tho, but it would be pretty nice to see someone from home.

After we left Santa Monica, there was an ex-sailor from the last war and his son who just got back from across. He was in the army air corps and was shot down in the hospital five and one-half months over there before they sent him home with a medical discharge. He was a swell looking boy too. They were swell people and really treated us swell too. They even wanted to buy us a beer.

I guess that is all there is to write about this time, and you will be glad to hear that I am well. Try and remember to send Will Boardman's address the next time. I also got a letter from Sam's, Norma and Alma. They were sure a surprise.

Love, Glenn

CHAPTER II
Jane, a fashion artist who has been disappointed in love, and Stella, a social journalist divorced from her husband, who was married in London, Jane decides to join the Women's Auxiliary and work in the city before entering the service she declines Stella's invitation to dinner and goes alone into several girls were already waiting. She refuses with a flight lieutenant of the R.A.F. and she said she was to see him again.

"You should have. You look like the kind of girl who can think for herself. Just think for a moment and then see if you can look me in the eyes and say that it was pure accident that made you come round that corner the very moment that I was hurrying along in such a flimsy temper that I nearly knocked you over. Everything is meant in this world. You can take that from me. Life's like a figure in a carpet. All set before you start. Nothing can be altered. Everything happens at the right time. Don't you believe me?"

"About things happening at the right time? Perhaps you're right." "Yes, that's why I say you can't say good-bye to me this evening's over. We've other things to do. If so they are very one-sided ones," she said with a smile. And she turned to the conversation. "Did you say we were to go to the 'Black Velvet'?"

"Yes. To the second show. We've plenty of time."

All the same it slipped by very fast as did the show. The whole scene, when the final curtain came, seemed to be a blur. Now Jane was struggling to get away. He said he had to go. "Don't run away while I get you." "Yes. To the second show. We've plenty of time."

She watched him move from her side till he was swallowed up in the crowd. There was something about the gleam and the swing of his shoulders as he disappeared from view that she knew she would never forget. She was pushing her own way through the crowd, came out into the inky darkness of a moonless blacked-out London.

She raced across Leicester Square and down Duke Street she wished, too late, that she was back in that foyer.

She was in bed and the light out when Stella came home some little later. The elder girl crept into her room. She said, "Jane, wake up, Jane!" Jane sat up in bed and Stella switched on the light. She looked at her and said, "Darling, you've been crying."

Jane assured her that she hadn't. Then she said she would be all right. She had felt just a little depressed. But she was quite all right now. She looked at her and said, "I had some food and then went to see Black Velvet."

"That should have cheered you up." Stella unressed, put on a dressing gown and returned with a tin of cold cream and a box of face tissues.

"Jane said herself the clothes. 'You can see all my nights when I'm gone. I bought myself pajamas today and think they are at least three times as good as the old ones.' Stella smiles. 'You'll be sleeping in chiffon nightdresses again tonight, my dear. You've got to. All the girls seem to get married once, they join the women's service."

Jane shook her head. "I wasn't get married. Stella." "Jane said herself the clothes. 'You can see all my nights when I'm gone. I bought myself pajamas today and think they are at least three times as good as the old ones.' Stella smiles. 'You'll be sleeping in chiffon nightdresses again tonight, my dear. You've got to. All the girls seem to get married once, they join the women's service."

There was a bleak look of suffering in the young girl's dark eyes. She shook her head. "No, I don't think I would," and after a moment's hesitation: "You're crazy as it may sound, I believe at heart I've never quite fallen out of love with him. I want to see him again tomorrow, nevertheless if I could hardly bring myself to speak to him I want to see him again tomorrow, nevertheless if I were ever to try to marry someone else, I don't know whether I could bring myself to go through with it." Jane's smart nose. "Darling, don't be sorry. I wish I hadn't made you think about him."

"That's all right. I often do. Sorry, but then I often think of 'Crash.' Even as she said these words she knew quite suddenly that Don't run away while I get my coat.

She wouldn't think of Tony any more. Jane went alone to Victory House the next morning. Stella had offered to go with her, but Jane had said she'd rather stay good-bye her at the flat. At Victory House she was directed to a room where several girls were already waiting. Some were alone. One or two middle-aged men stood beside their daughters wondering just what was going to happen next. Here and there were younger men who had sportingly come along to support their sisters. One girl had her beau with her. He when the time came for them to go, accompanied them on the train journey down to the camp and right to the very station, where at last his girl was forced to bid a tearful goodby to him.

With the start of the journey there came to Jane a feeling that she was leaving her old life behind her and entering the swing of her. There was chatter going on around her. Names were being exchanged and she was being pushed and held to let her join the service. Glancing at them, she judged they were all a good deal younger than herself and noticed that the younger they were the more they talked.

After half an hour in the train they arrived at their destination. They walked in a body to the R.A.F. station, where a male noncommissioned was awaiting them. He took them to the orderly room and signed their names.

Lunch followed in an enormous hut which Jane soon learned to call the cook house. The long camp tables were clean. She was given a knife, fork and spoon, and she was told to be ready for the time she spent at the training camp and which she must take with her. She said she would be back again every time she came to the cook house.

She was told to wear over N.C.O. Was this time—collected them and showed them their hut. Jane took in at a swift glance the long rows of beds, each with its twenty-two beds, each with a locker by its side. The sight of a stove at either end was comforting, for at least when these got going they were at least moderately warm. Here they were shown how to make their beds and given a brief indication of the following morning's duties for a little while they were left to themselves. Jane annexed one of the beds and began to unpack her belongings. Now indeed she was reminded very much of her first term at boarding school, when her conditions weren't half so comfortable. But, instead of being just a simple cot, there was one or two twenty-two. But, soon they were all beginning to make friends.

After the following morning, after supper in the cook house, they all sat around the two stoves and again talked and chattered. They were congregated together, talking in high, shrill excited voices. As if they were all in a great hurry, they crowded together at one end of the mess while the older, quieter ones sought the warmth around the stove at the other end.

Now the bare hut was transformed. Photographs had appeared on the lockers, photographs of mothers, fathers, brothers, sisters, and beaux. They went to bed early that night, and the following morning that few of them slept, but they were all smiling and good-natured after the following morning.

The next day they were very fatigued. There was the hut to be swept and scrubbed, the following morning to be cleaned out and lit. They all worked with a will and the mess was cleaned up with a will and a lecture on R.A.F. etiquette from a West officer and almost before they knew it it was time for lunch—or dinner, as the midday meal was called at the camp.

"I'm sorry I didn't have a lunch-or dinner, as the midday meal was called at the camp. I'm sorry I didn't have a lunch-or dinner, as the midday meal was called at the camp. I'm sorry I didn't have a lunch-or dinner, as the midday meal was called at the camp."

"That's all right. I often do. Sorry, but then I often think of 'Crash.' Even as she said these words she knew quite suddenly that she wouldn't think of Tony any more.

I find that most girls get their uniforms themselves that they wear when they're off duty, and wear the ones that are handed out to them when they are working."

ABOUT OUR SOLDIER BOYS

New Orleans, La., July 15, '43 Dear Rev. Stover and Friends:

I wish to take this means of thanking you for the book, "Strength for Service". It is really a big help to have something to refer to and read for daily thought and prayer. There are very few atheists in this camp, but of course, this is only a training center and no one has seen any action yet, or I believe there would not be even one. Men who really profess Christ and follow his teachings seem to get along much better than those who claim to be of no faith whatsoever. For those I feel sorry.

I find that faith in God and prayer are the greatest help a soldier has, and that no one realizes it better than just a soldier. In times of sorrow and loneliness there is great comfort in prayer and a few verses from the Holy Bible.

After lights are out every night one can hear silent prayers all over our barracks, and that is when even the most noisy and profane men are quiet even without an order.

There seems to be a wave of religious faith spreading throughout our camp, so I think if we have as much faith and pray as earnestly as we boys do in camp the great harvest (our Victory over the enemies) will soon be reaped, and after that the world will be a much better place to live for everyone.

Yours truly, Howard J. Egner.

Around the Square

(By Phineas Whittleseed)

FARMERS in this section are working long hours to get in the wheat, hay and oats. And the wheat is rolling into the local elevator at high speed.

WE are glad to report that the weather in this section the past week has been not only favorable for harvesting crops, but it has been ideal corn-growing weather, also.

KNOWING that Roy Carter does not smoke, we've been worrying for some time over the "baby cigar." Roy's the proud dad of a real baby boy. Perhaps the lines will be straight, now. As you know, Roy is an engineer and draftsman, and he does do a lot of pencil-marking.

"BIRTHDAY parties don't mean much," thinks Adriana Cok—of the studios bookkeeper at the Peoples National Bank. And we agree with her, for she received a beautiful diamond ring instead of a party!

TEN YEARS ago Marty Parcel and young Bob Nimmons used to speak many happy days together. And when young Parcel left Plymouth to make his home in Toledo, a correspondence was kept up which lasted until a few years ago. Time has made many changes, and now Parcel writes a letter to Fred Nimmons, asking about the boys he used to know. The letter is as follows:

North Africa, July 14, 1943
DEAR FRED: I suppose you will be plenty surprised to hear from me, but a letter from my Dad asked me if I ever heard from Bob Nimmons. I guess that Bob is in the Army or Navy or something, so that it is no use to write to him. Well, how are you and how is all of Plymouth? I bet that all of my old pals are in the Armed Forces the same as I, eh? If you get this, will you send me Bob's address so that I can drop him a line. He might be in my neck of the woods—you can never tell.

As you see I am a 1st Lieut in the Quartermaster. I've been in the service over two years now and overseas about 13 months. It is getting tiresome and at times lonely.

After Toledo I went south to North Carolina State College and spent four years there getting some education. I graduated as an engineer, but was immediately called into the army so never got to use my knowledge. Spent a year in the States on various and sundry posts and then was ordered overseas. We went first to England and spent four months there. Then we came along on the invasion down here in North Africa and since that time have covered the length and depth of the place. We've seen mountains, plains, rivers, seas, deserts, and all. We have also had the taste of that so-called "action" but our casualties were very light. Maybe we'll go along to the Continent sometime and help finish up this thing.

How is Ruth? Her children must be pretty big now. Where are Dutch Babcock and "Red" Coe? Do you have trouble getting labor for the farms? Are you still working in the hardware store? Drop me a line, Fred, and let me know how things are coming. And please send me Bob's address, if you can.

Well, I hope that this opens up a good correspondence.
Marty Parcel.

JOE LASCH has improved his barbershop by making changes in location of chairs and other equipment, and also by adding additional fixtures. Customers shouldn't expect better haircuts, we've always given them the best says Joe.

SUMMER'S half over and we've not been fishing. Well, that's one thing to think about.

ONE-FIFTH of all business in the United States is government owned. There shouldn't be a depression, even after the war.

Doings In Congress

Tired from the constant grind, members of Congress are home. They should be compelled to go back home every three months and keep in touch with the nation's thinking. Washington is no place for national thinking—too much foreign and financial intrigue. If members of Congress were to go back home every three months they would be in a better position to enact the nation's will. They would at least know what it is.

The job for Congressmen is no longer merely to consider and enact the nation's laws, but also to act as agents for the people in pounding common horse sense into a bureaucracy that has all but engulfed our nation. I know that a few object to constructive criticism. Their political affiliation is stronger than their desire for the welfare of the nation. These believe in concealing from the public the disastrous blunders of the bureaucracy. They would, ostrich like, stick their head in the sand, until an automobile or airplane came along and knocked them over.

My answer is that if a few of us had not had the courage to expose the blunders of the WPE and the OPA there would have been far less farm implements and repairs. It was our criticism that compelled the President to act and override his bureaucracy and allot more steel to the farm implement manufacturers. It was criticism that got Joseph Weiner, 36-year-old foreign-born New York lawyer, removed as head of civilian supplies. It was he who endangered our food supply by allotting less than one per cent of the steel to the farm implement manufacturers.

However, there is plenty of criticism to follow. I just received a letter from one of the largest implement manufacturers, who warns that unless Congress again acts promptly when it returns, there will be a greater shortage of farm implements in 1944 than there was in 1943. Congress made the bureaucracy decent, but there is again developing a "public be-damned" attitude.

There are now over three million civilians on the Federal pay roll. These are controlled by the bureaucrats in Washington. They know that they ought to be doing some useful work rather than trying to lord over the people. They lay awake nights figuring out new rules and regulations. It is not their fault. It is the fault of the system. Government by bureaucracy must be abolished.
