Council Meets

DISCUSSION OF STREET IMPROVEMENTS AND SEWERS ARE TOPICS.

In the absence of Mayor Derr at Tuesday night's council meeting, Ott Kinsell, acting mayor pro tem, took charge of the meeting and conducted it in a business like and dignified manner. Mayor Derr was on vacation, and was not able to attend the meeting.

Regular routine business was transacted and current bills were approved.

Several street improvements received discussion and are now under advisement. The village has its application pending for a supply of "hot-top" which will be used to advantage within the village, if the supply is granted.

In preparation for resurfacing of Bell street, the curb on the Bell street entrance into W. Broadway will be rounded off approximately four feet. This will make it much easier for motorists to make the turn into the street. It will necessitate removing a light pole and other work, which will not doubt be done this week.

If negotiations and agreements can be completed, there is also a likelihood that the corner of the west side of the Square, bordering Curpen's Jewelry store will be cut back a few feet. This will also be a benefit to motorists and pedestrians.

The Huron County Highway Department is completing the work of resurfacing a portion of the West Road. The village and the county have cooperated in a very splendid manner in getting the roadway in the corporation line which lead into the County Line and the West Roads, resurfaced. The village is bearing its share of the expense of all work done in the corporation.

Injured In Accident

Mrs. Phyllis Henry of Shiloh has received word from her husband, Pvt. A. C. Henry, that he is recuperating from injuries received in a motorcycle accident two weeks ago while on maneuvers in Oregon.

A member of the engineers, his motorcycle struck a snow bank, throwing him and causing severe injury to his leg. It was necessary to have the patient in a cast and the possibilities are that he will have to use a brace in walking. At present he is doing office work.

Pvt. Henry is the son of Mrs. Edith Henry of West High street.

RESUMES TEACHING

Mrs. Carroll Cashman will return to Toledo Saturday after having spent several days in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Cashman. She will resume her former teaching position at the Maumee County Day School.

Her husband, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Cashman, recently reached his destination overseas.

Drivers' Licenses Sale Get Off To Good Start

Printed explanations of the motor vehicle laws are available at more than 800 places throughout Ohio where deputy motor vehicle registrars are selling drivers' licenses.

Applicants for licenses are urged by Registrar C. W. Wallace to take his copies of the digest, which are printed in pamphlet form.

The licenses went on sale, Tuesday, Sept. 7th, and locally the sale got off to a good start. The public is urged to purchase their licenses as soon as possible, thus avoiding that last minute rush.

In Plymouth, Miss May Fleming, at the Advertiser office, and Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Ervin, at their home on West Broadway, are deputy registrars, and licenses may be purchased at either place.

Derr-Vandervort Out For Mayor; Vacation Over; School Opens

MANY FILE FOR OFFICES AT LAST MINUTE, TWELVE AN HOUR FOR COUNCIL

With last Friday as the closing day for the filing of petitions for the November election, many candidates in Plymouth sprung up overnight like a mushroom, making uncertain the outcome of the many offices to be filled for whom there are numerous candidates.

Back in 1942 our present mayor, J. B. Derr, won out over Harry Vandervort, who again tosses his hat in the ring for the mayorship. Derr's name appeared along with those of the present councilmen, and was filed shortly before the deadline.

Derr has been a public figure in Plymouth for many years and has served the town in an efficient manner as mayor. With the filing of the petition over the week-end he again becomes a candidate for this office.

Vandervort, who is well-known in Plymouth, is in personal work at the Fate-Root-Hatch Co. He made no public statement at the time of filing his petition.

There are twelve in the race for council. The present members, with one exception, are asking for re-election. They are L. R. Fetters, O. L. Kinsell, J. A. Laseh, M. T. Nimmons, H. V. Ruckman, H. H. Fackler is running in the place of E. E. Markley, who refused to run again.

Others who have filed as candidates for council are: W. W. Wirth, Raymond L. Steele, Gordon Brown, Jonathan A. Weller, Harold B. Shaver and Park W. Mosier. James Rhine, who has served as village clerk for a number of terms, remains unopposed in the forthcoming race.

There were no new petitions filed for Board of Public Affairs, except the present incumbents who are H. O. Downend, N. B. Shepherd and B. R. Scott.

Mrs. Carrie L. Gebert will oppose Leon Z. Davis, for treasurer of the village. Davis the present incumbent of this office.

There is no doubt that as the weeks go by, and on the eve of election much interest will be stimulated in this coming event. Filing petitions for township offices were the following: O. A. Bixler for Cass township trustee; C. H. McQuate for Cass township clerk; Stanley Moser for Cass township constable; Cloyd Sloan for Cass township trustee; Carl C. Carnahan for Plymouth township clerk; A. E. Blatter for Jackson township trustee; and G. J. Myers for Jackson township clerk. J. S. Shatzer also filed for trustee of Cass township trustee.

CHARGE KENTUCKIANS WITH THEFT OF CAR

Jesse Perkins, 18, and Elmer Perkins, 19, Saylerville, Ky., brothers, were arrested Sunday by police at Shelby on the charge of stealing a motor car at Willard last Saturday. They have been taken to the Huron county jail at Norwalk. The young men came to the Willard marsh about two weeks ago from Kentucky, and evidently became tired of their work.

MR. GINSBERG had been complaining of insomnia. "Even counting sheep is no good," he sighed to his partner in the clothing business.

"It is only good if you count up to 10,000," replied his partner. "Try that tonight."

But the next morning Mr. Ginsberg was still complaining.

"I did not sleep a wink," he said. "I counted the 10,000 sheep. I ached 'em, combed the wool, had it spun into cloth, made into suits, took 'em to the city, and lost $300 on the deal. I didn't sleep a wink."

I ALWAYS thought Frank Landefeld had a poker face. But on learning that he and Boyd Mitchell won high score in a BRIDGE game, I change my opinion!

WHEN Hitler was in Denmark some time ago he planned to visit their police headquarters.

A tactful Nazi official sent the police, in advance, six different photos of Adolf, hoping they would be displayed for the Fuehrer's visit.

When the Fuehrer arrived, however, none were on view, so the Nazi official took the police chief aside and asked: "Did you get those six photographs I sent you?"

The police chief pondered a minute, then replied: "Why, yes, I remember. And you'll be glad to know we've caught five of the crooks already!"

I CERTAINLY was glad Fay Ruckman HANDED me that big tomato last Friday instead of THROWING it at me! Fay takes the prize with this one, for I've never seen a tomato quite as large and so good as that would say, it was some tomato—weighed almost two pounds. Fay, since retiring at FRH where he followed blacksmithing, does a little of this work in between times and when he planted this particular plant, he must have used his "strong arm" Hanks, Fay, we're certain of having at least a quart of juice this winter.

ALTHOUGH 73 years of age, Sam Stine of Plymouth is able to go out and pitch wheat along with his younger farm hands. Mr. Stine and Ira Snyder, also of Plymouth, helped their friend end nephew, Roy Kirkendall, thresh wheat last week. They went out into the field and pitched the wheat on the wagons.

IT IS INDEED a pleasure to know that the reading books do attract subscribers, and we invite those who do not always agree with us, to tell us about it. However, when we say a thing or two, it is our opinion, in which we agree that we do not agree. The fact is we received the following card:

SINCE you always put all the complaints against the government in your paper might I suggest you put this in: I'm sure no one is suffering under the present rationing system and I am sure no one was with Bill Ross while he is home. It seems to me that a small town paper isn't well enough educated to complain about all our government laws. Less listening to un-Americanism from Her, who has a point of view is willing to help our FREE COUNTRY instead of running it down, would seem more sensible.

(Signed)

A THREE STAR MOTHER.

MY DEAR Three Star Mother:— I appreciate the courage and the attitude you take. It is very commendable. And it's true that Bill Ross or no other service man will starve under our present rationing system, but if you talk to almost any service man, you will really get his point of view in having to go through a lot of red tape in order to secure a few privileges while at home on his leave.

AS FOR complaints against the government, we have none, but for those that run the government there is still plenty of room left. Perhaps you have overlooked the many stories we have printed in

RUSSIAN MYSTERY

There will probably always be a lot of mystery surrounding the true nature of relations between this country and Russia. Our forms of government are at opposite ends of the pole and our ways of living are decidedly dissimilar.

But when we are fighting a war side by side against an enemy who was out to destroy both nations, there is every reason to expect an understanding to grow up between our nation and Russia which would take years to bring about in normal times.

We can take it for granted that Russia is just as anxious as we are to have peace after this war. Undoubtedly Russia will want to have a lot to say at the peace conference.

There may be disagreements at that time over the terms of settlement.

But if the people of our country will make every possible effort to understand and sympathize with the Russian viewpoint we can expect the Russians to do the same with us. We will both have the same final aim of a long-lasting peace.

Although our plans for achieving that aim may differ there is no reason why we cannot come to an agreement suitable to both nations.

But to do this, we must stop looking upon Russia with suspicion and try our best to understand that giant nation's problems and ambitions.

COWS WILL "MOO" FOR THEM

Although it is difficult to buy even a rubber band today, it is expected that we will have such an abundance of rubber after the war that there will be thousands of new products made of it.

That one may seem a little ridiculous, but the B. F. Goodrich company actually is working on that possibility right now. They believe that a rubber mattress or floor covering for stables will help maintain healthy stock by providing cleaner and more sanitary housing conditions.

Whether this particular product is finally developed or not, there is no doubt that many new uses for rubber on farms will be worked out by rubber technicians who are now working on the problem of selling more rubber goods to farmers.

In addition to the normal supply of rubber which we will obtain from the far east, and which was sufficient for our needs before the war, there will also be an enormous output of synthetic rubber. The total rubber supply will probably be more than twice what it has ever been in the past.

So don't tell your cows yet—but it looks as though all farm animals may lead a life of Riley in the post-war era.

ACTIVITY—THE ESSENCE OF HAPPINESS

In a small wooden house at Poughkeepsie, New York, lives a courageous man. He walks a bit slowly, but that is his story.

His name is Maynard T. Joy. One day a coal truck came roaring down upon him, and he was picked up, rushed to a hospital, and operated on. When he was better, the doctor came hesitatingly to his bedside. And then he told him what he hadn't been able to bring himself to tell before.

Maynard Joy would recover from his wounds and lacerations and broken bones, but he would be blind. Maynard Joy was shocked, crushed. But not beaten, for a spirit like Maynard Joy's is never beaten. He told me:

"At first, I refused to do any of the things that a blind man must do. I just wouldn't be classed as a blind man. But I knew that I would always be blind, and that I must adjust myself to new conditions."

He came to New York, to the American Foundation for the Blind, to try out a typewriter which would write in Braille. He had never seen such a typewriter, so a woman demonstrated it for him. The machine was so difficult to operate that Maynard Joy was struck with an idea. There should be a small, portable, easily operated typewriter for the blind.

Discouragements tumbled down upon him like water on the rocks below Niagara Falls. But he was equal to them. He made it. It was the loudest as noisy as the one he had had demonstrated to him.

He made another. It was better. Less noisy, much lighter, could be carried around. He was now absorbed in his work. He had a purpose; he no longer thought of his own troubles and affliction. He was borne along on the wings of courage. People began to call him the most cheerful man on the block. And he is exactly that.

He has made five different models; each one has been an improvement over its predecessor.

Wasn't all this striving and planning much better for Maynard Joy than sitting down and feeling sorry for himself? His work has made him happy and he may bestow a blessing upon thousands—yes, millions—of blind people in the world. He did what we all should do; when something happens to us that is beyond our control, we must adjust ourselves to changed conditions.

TODAY and TOMORROW By DON ROBINSON

TIPS . . . . . wages

To most of us a "No Tipping" sign is a warning against any restaurant, barber shop or service establishment in which we expected to have to hand out money to anyone who speaks to us.

Originally tipping was practiced merely as a means of showing our appreciation for good service. If a waitress arranged to get our ham- burger cooked just the way we liked it, or if a bootblack gave us an extra good shine, it seemed a natural thing to do to say "Thank you" with a tip.

But as this practice became more universal, employers soon took advantage of it by reducing wages and making employees depend on tips for their living. These hotels, restaurants, barber shops, bootblack shops, railroads, etc., began enticing people to work for them by telling them of prospects for good tips rather than the assurance of good wages.

In consequence, these employees now expect tips whether their service is good or bad and are more apt to leave a tip for a service so small than show any appreciation over being given a tip at all.

When tipping reached the point where Emily Post and other authorities took notice, they pointed out the public what they expected of them for various services. It is essential that tipping be done successfully in establishing a practice which lifted millions of dollars from the pockets of employers.

WATERS . . . . . business

As a business I recently attended in New York's biggest hotels, each waiter had a list of ten people to serve. The service at my table was particularly good. The waiter fairly threw the food at us and took no interest in whether his customers had what they wanted.

But when tipping time came I saw him take a quarter and a half note out of his pocket and put it on his plate as "bait" and then begin passing the plate to each person at the table. When someone put less than a quarter on his plate he uttered a sneering sound which made it clear what kind of a cheapie he thought that person was.

When someone gave him a quarter he neither thanked nor looked at it. His only expression of pleasure came when one man put 50 cents on the table and the waiter mumbled, "Thanks."

In such places tipping has become nothing but a business transaction. Even the smallest service establishments tip are now taken for granted.

Because this amount is a fairly small proportion of a bill, the public has not complained too much. But in practice, but practically everyone would be pleased to get back to the old-fashioned method of tipping, the only way to get a service instead of as a contribution toward wages. In most cases, today, it is the manner in which the tip, not the person to whom we give a tip, who gets the full benefit of our generosity.

MANPOWER . . . non-essential

As I looked over the recently published list of types of jobs which the War Manpower commission considers unessential, I was impressed by the fact that it included so many occupations which commonly call for tipping.

This undoubtedly means that many of the services for which we normally give tips will gradually be discontinued. As the draft and war industries absorb more manpower, we can expect to have to do without such services as checkers in hotels, eat in self-service restaurants and watch our own hats and coats when we check in check rooms. There will thus be less and less reason for tipping.

When the details of our better world of tomorrow are worked out, let us hope that our economic planners will not forget to relegate present tipping habits to the junkheap and substitute a plan whereby employees will be required to pay their employees instead of leaving it up to us.

When we want to give tips for super service that is our business, but when our tips are used merely to pay for an employee's wages, we help pay wages, the whole point of tipping is destroyed. We would like to see "No Tipping" signs posted in all establishments—and if we still want to reward someone who does an extra job, we should be treated entirely a personal act of no concern to the management.

Mrs. Milton Bright was admitted to the Willard hospital Friday evening.

CHAPTER VIII

"No, a fashion artist, shares an apartment with Stella, a free lance journalist. Jane joins the WAAF. The grass verge of the lane sees foot traffic and she is not alone with a flight lieutenant and Stella has a discovery that the lieutenant, Timothy, is Stella's divorced husband. Jane hears that Guy's message has been sent and that they are searching for him. She pedals to the home of Mrs. Stanton where she finds Guy. He leaves at once. Mrs. Stanton accuses Jane of doing five times the work of the flight gun which Flight Lieutenant Stanton and Junior Washburn call Jane of warning tips so he would miss the flight.

"That's all right. I didn't mind for myself. But when it came to Guy . . ."

Hunter's eyes hardened. Her voice was low. Of course, never before had Guy's message been sent to Guy when she told him tips wasn't there."

"Two other girls burst into the kitchen at that moment, clamoring to know if there was any tea going to be served. Jane said she would see about it. The girls thought two cups might be managed.

The next day on Friday the morning until eight in the evening all the girls in Jane's watch were off duty. At first Sparks had said she would go to London with Jane. But at the last moment she changed her mind and said she'd prefer to stay in the States. She had, of course she didn't mind. She hadn't seen Stella for some time. It would be nice to meet her and see how she was faring.

She set off to walk to the railway station, some two miles away. She trudged on, thinking what a heavenly day it was, thinking that it was so lovely to be in the air. Instead of early March, turning suddenly, she saw a car swirling up beside her and the driver's wheel. "Going to catch a train?" she asked. "May I give you a lift?" She hesitated for a moment. It was absurd to cut off her nose to spite her face. "Thank you."

"You said something as she sat down beside him. "I've not yet had the chance to take you for a ride. Let me take the other half of you. You heard of course that I arrive too late."

"I drove into a ditch in my hurry and that delayed me."

"Oh!"

"The car sped on for a few moments in silence. "It's a fine day," said Tips at length.

"I'm glad I ran into you just now. I wanted to ask you something. The girls are waiting for twenty hours' leave soon."

"I'm taking it next Thursday," she said. "I'm going home. My people have a rather pleasant place in the country and I'm going to stay with me. After all, I ought to introduce them to the girl I'm going to marry."

"And I have other plans, thank you," said Jane coolly.

"Oh!"

"Tips shot a glance at her. She seemed to have been hurt. She turned away from him again. As they reached the road to the station, she turned back to look at him in the opposite direction. Jane said sharply, "This isn't my way."

"I know it isn't."

"Well, what are you doing?" "Taking you for a ride."

"Would you please turn right around. There's a train at ten-thirty and I expect to be on it."

"Not on your sweet! I'll have other plans in mind."

"She gave a withering look. They drove swiftly along the wide arterial road and then, turning off to the right, they drove through a narrow lane. They sped on until at last they came to a dead-end at the end of a tree trunk. The car stopped at a standstill and stopped the engine. "This is a nice quiet spot for a picnic. I'm afraid," he took her in his arms and kissed her. She struggled hard to get free of him but he held her tightly. He managed to extricate one hand and she slapped his face and told him she was leaving. He let her go abruptly. "That, my sweet," he said reprovingly, "is positively old-fashioned. I'm disappointed in you. Girls don't do that these days."

"Don't they?" said Jane venomously. She slapped his other cheek even harder. She said bitterly, "You can try to shove me down with your other women, but I'm not going to stand for it."

MARY BETH OF WILLARD

Mary DeLores Roth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Roth, R. D. 3, Willard, O., was sworn into the WAVES at Cleveland, by Ensign Elizabeth L. Cullen. She was employed in the personnel department of the Trojan Powder Co. and applied for enlistment at the Navy Recruiting Station in Sandusky. She attended Monroeville High school. Miss Roth was sworn in Monday, Aug. 30, and will leave for Hunter College, New York, about Sept. 23 to begin her training.

FACE GRILL

She struggled hard to get free of him.

She wasn't much use struggling. He released her and in a flash she was out of the car. She stood on the grass verge of the lane, her face white with fury.

"Well," he said mildly, "what do you think you're doing there?" He pressed the self-starter. "It's all right. You can get back. I shan't kiss you again. I haven't time. It's probably disappointing you to hear it, but I too have an appointment in town. I'm due there before twelve. If we start now I can just make it."

"With Iris Stanton, I suppose?" he really meant this. She'd thought her tongue off the moment she'd said it.

He smiled. "Quite right. Though mind you I might try to put her off if you'd be a little more friendly to me. She started the engine and was springing the car around and drawing up beside her. "Are you coming with me? I'll drive you to station."

"No."

"It's a long walk."

"Right. Follow this lane back again to the main road, then it's a quick run to the station. You may get a lift."

She stared at him. He couldn't really mean this. She'd thought of course that once again he'd tell her not to be silly, hold the door open for her and say, "Come on. Jump in quickly." Sitting beside him and drawing up beside her. "Are you coming with me? I'll drive you to station."

"No."

FACE GRILL

She struggled hard to get free of him.

She wasn't much use struggling. He released her and in a flash she was out of the car. She stood on the grass verge of the lane, her face white with fury.

"Well," he said mildly, "what do you think you're doing there?" He pressed the self-starter. "It's all right. You can get back. I shan't kiss you again. I haven't time. It's probably disappointing you to hear it, but I too have an appointment in town. I'm due there before twelve. If we start now I can just make it."

"With Iris Stanton, I suppose?" he really meant this. She'd thought her tongue off the moment she'd said it.

He smiled. "Quite right. Though mind you I might try to put her off if you'd be a little more friendly to me. She started the engine and was springing the car around and drawing up beside her. "Are you coming with me? I'll drive you to station."

"No."

"Right. Follow this lane back again to the main road, then it's a quick run to the station. You may get a lift."

She stared at him. He couldn't really mean this. She'd thought of course that once again he'd tell her not to be silly, hold the door open for her and say, "Come on. Jump in quickly." Sitting beside him and drawing up beside her. "Are you coming with me? I'll drive you to station."

"No."

"It's a long walk."

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS

"Good morning, Doc. Your good wife tells me you're working night and day now so many of the younger doctors are in therapy."
"That's right, Judge, and I had I'm still able to do it. Had a long letter from Harry... that bright young fellow I was breakin' in to take over my practice. He said the boys in the service are getting the best medical care of any armed force in our history. They really should with all those brilliant brains and plenty of supplies to work with."
"Speaking of supplies, Doc, not many people realize that a large part of the war-alcohol required to make the medical supplies that are being used right this minute to alleviate pain, combat infection and save human lives, is produced by the beverage distilling industry. This entire industry stopped making whiskey months ago and has been working night and day producing nothing but war-alcohol."

"Nobody knows better than I, Judge, what an important contribution to our war effort that really is."

PLYMOUTH'S QUOTA IS $150,000

Right before your eyes you see a picture of a fighting American. He has the nerve and the courage to face the bullets, the bombs, and the dangers of war—he is fighting for HIS life but YOUR FREEDOM. All over the world the Stars and Stripes are waving, representing a group of Americans who have gone out to make the world a better place in which to live, and to bring FREEDOM to those nations who are oppressed.

The war is striking closer home each day—we're going to realize it more and more—we've got to get fighting mad—we've got to do more and more—for we're "the man behind the man behind the gun." We've got to keep supplies rolling to the front lines—we've got to feed more and more people—and to do THIS we've got to BUY MORE BONDS!

Today the THIRD WAR LOAN DRIVE OPENS. It means that every American will have to buy more

Bonds to back up our fighting men. As Americans, we are confident that the drive will succeed, but it's going to take EXTRA buying to reach the goal!

Plymouth's quota has been set at $150,000. It's not so much money when you think of what it involves. It will help to buy and build the needed implements of war—it will give our home boys the things they need—training, instruction, ships, guns, ammunition and hundreds of other implements that will help defeat the Axis. Plymouth will do its part!

When the solicitors call at your home be prepared to BUY A BOND. The solicitors are giving their time, and doing much work to see that Plymouth's quota is raised. As a citizen, and as a patriot, don't buy begrudgingly, but buy freely of the best investment in the World—U. S. WAR BONDS, which means Freedom for all!

SALE—Household Goods of Mrs. Jennie Vaughn estate at the home on High street, Shiloh, O. Poland China fairs, since 1915, decided to quit farming, due mainly to his health and the lack of help. Mr. Hamman, who has been specializing in the breeding of Poland China hogs, since 1915, decided to quit farming, due mainly to his health and the lack of help. In discussing the sale, Mr. Hamman stated that he was well satisfied with the price which his registered hogs brought, but that a scarcity of buyers was noted, which is due mainly to a shortage of corn. Feed is one problem that most farmers are facing. The line of farm equipment was sold at a trifle above normal prices, and there was a good demand for all which was offered. The sale was a finely balanced one. A daughter-in-law, Mrs. Jane Bushey Hamman and grandson, Raymond Richard, were the clerks. Their accuracy was remarkable, for at the close of the day, the statements differed by only six cents. The ladies of the Methodist church that served dinner, made a greater profit than at any previous sale. "All in all," stated Mr. Hamman, "the sale last Monday was one which was successful in every way, and I am quite satisfied with the result." John Baker, Ohio's Spotted Poland China auctioneer of Columbus sold the hogs, while Don Hamman auctioned the remainder of the sale. E. C. Geisinger was clerk. Friends and neighbors assisted Mr. Hamman in handling the crowd and the articles sold. Besides the hogs, of which there were 45 head, there were also 70 head of ewes, 12 cattle, and much farm equipment.

ISSUES WARNING

COLUMBUS, O.—Within two additional areas, Cleveland and Cincinnati, closed to in-migration this week, E. L. Keenan, war manpower commission director for Ohio, warned workers elsewhere throughout the state against leaving their present jobs to seek work elsewhere without consulting their local U. S. Employment Service office. The Cincinnati area was closed Monday, Cleveland Tuesday, Dayton area and the Lima-Sidney-Piqua-Troy area have been closed for some time. In addition to these areas where workers from outside are barred by WMC labor-management committee agreements, all area stabilization plans for Ohio areas carry clauses regulating in-migration. The customary procedure is to require any worker from outside the area to present a certificate of inter area clearance, and register with the U. S. Employment Service in the city where he is seeking a job.

ESTIMATED CROWD OF 500 ATTENDS HAMMAN SALE MONDAY

Despite the inclement weather which prevailed Monday, it is estimated that more than 500 people attended the farm sale held at Boyd Hamman's farm, one and a quarter miles east of Shiloh. It was one of the largest sales in this section for many years and attracted buyers from all over the state.

Mr. Hamman, who has been specializing in the breeding of Poland China hogs, since 1915, decided to quit farming, due mainly to his health and the lack of help.

In discussing the sale, Mr. Hamman stated that he was well satisfied with the price which his registered hogs brought, but that a scarcity of buyers was noted, which is due mainly to a shortage of corn. Feed is one problem that most farmers are facing.

The line of farm equipment was sold at a trifle above normal prices, and there was a good demand for all which was offered.

The sale was a finely balanced one. A daughter-in-law, Mrs. Jane Bushey Hamman and grandson, Raymond Richard, were the clerks. Their accuracy was remarkable, for at the close of the day, the statements differed by only six cents.

The ladies of the Methodist church that served dinner, made a greater profit than at any previous sale.

"All in all," stated Mr. Hamman, "the sale last Monday was one which was successful in every way, and I am quite satisfied with the result." John Baker, Ohio's Spotted Poland China auctioneer of Columbus sold the hogs, while Don Hamman auctioned the remainder of the sale. E. C. Geisinger was clerk. At the same time the Ringling family arranged to meet all the requirements of the ODT, which they approved the railroad tour, subject of course, to troop and war supply movements. To date, the Big Show has moved on schedule, for the Ringlings have extended the length of engagements in almost all cities in order to stay off the railway lines as much as possible. ## Cpl Robert Cornell Makes Acquaintance Of Star, Jane Withers

Perhaps it's the way his hair curls or again it may be that personality which the Cornell boys possess, but anyhow, Cpl. Robert Cornell of Ft. Stevens, Oregon, relates his recent experience with the famous Miss Jane Withers, popular movie star, in a letter to his wife, Mrs. Isabelle BeVier Cornell.

In the early part of the summer, Bob's brother, Gene, then located on the West Coast, wrote such a interesting letter when he ventured into Hollywood and heard Madame Chiang-Kai-Shek. There really should be a sequel to Bob's letter, though, for we are very anxious to know how Jane Withers had his name and address.

Excerpts from Cpl. Cornell's letter follow:

"Now for the other news, we received a call from headquarters yesterday to have a boat go to Chinook last night at 7 o'clock to pick up a party so I decided to go over with Dixon, since it was a nice evening. When we arrived the party was waiting for us, it was no other than Jane Withers, (actress), and her mother and a couple of officers. She had made an appearance at Ft. Colwell last night at Ft. Casey, today.

Well, we got them aboard and I went up to the bow of the boat for the return trip and she came forward where I was and talked with me for some time. She's quite pretty and not a bit stuck up. She asked where I was from and I told her Ohio, she wanted to know what part I did not tell her Plymouth, and I said 70 miles from Cleveland. She told me she had been to Cleveland a short time ago on a bond tour. We talked of several different things and I asked her if she had a book with her. She asked me if I had ever stayed at the Astoria Hotel, and I said yes. So she replied, "Well, that's the reason we're staying in Seaside."

Ha! Anyhow, when we landed she took a book with Dixon and me and thanked us for the ride and wanted to know our names and when I told her mine (pre-prepare for the shock I got) she exclaimed "What a name!" She asked me if I had ever stayed at the Astoria Hotel, and I said yes. So she replied, "Well, that's the reason we're staying in Seaside."

Between September 12 when the first series of brown stamps became valid and October 2 when the final sets of red stamps expire, both red and brown will be used for purchases. After October 2, only the brown stamps of War Ration Book Three will be used for the purchase of meats, fats and rationed dairy products.

3 GOOD SEPT 12

The brown ration stamps in War Ration Book Three will come into use Sept. 12 for the purchase of meats, oils, fats, butter and cheese, the Office of Price Administration announced in Washington last week.

War Ration Book Three, a replacement book containing ration currency to be used as stamps in current ration books run out, was distributed earlier in the summer by mail.

The validity dates for the new brown stamps are as follows:

- A (16 points) September 12 through Oct. 2
- B (16 points) September 19 through October 2
- C (16 points) September 26 through October 30
- D (16 points) Oct. 3 through October 30
- E (16 points) Oct. 10 through October 30
- F (16 points) Oct. 17 through October 30

The last three red stamps in Book Two also remain valid through October 2. Red stamp X became good on August 22, stamps Y is valid August 29, and stamp Z on September 5.

As in the past stamps will become valid on successive Sundays but, hereafter, they will always expire on the Saturday nearest the end of a month. This will give consumers and the trade the advantage of knowing the day of the week on which the meat-fats stamps will always expire, and will permit them to plan accordingly.

Between September 12 when the first series of brown stamps became valid and October 2 when the final sets of red stamps expire, both red and brown will be used for purchases. After October 2, only the brown stamps of War Ration Book Three will be used for the purchase of meats, fats and rationed dairy products.

The brown stamps in War Ration Book Three are similar in size and have the same point value as the millboard red stamps of War Book Two.

AROUND THE SQUARE

(Continued from Page One) connection with the Army and Navy and other phases of government branches. Also you will find almost weekly a complete rationing program, etc. And we have not stilled our space to the various bond, scrap and salvage drives.

AS FOR Listening to the Un-Americanism of Henry Fackler I am glad to say that I think Fackler and his associates are within their scope in taking the stand they have toward the government in agriculture. There is quite a bit more to be revealed in this light within the coming months. As for a weekly paper being educated enough to make criticisms, I feel that as an American citizen, we have that right, and while I have no Harvard Degree, I do at least claim to have the ability to use common judgment and horse sense.

PERSONALLY, I shall always place first the boys in service, and I greatly admire the millions of mothers who have given up their sons to help maintain a freedom which we all enjoy (although it is not to any great excess even in our own country) I am still of the belief that we have the greatest nation in all the world, and I am willing to make any sacrifice to keep it that way.
