

RAY FORD IS KILLED IN ACTION DURING INVASION OF LEYTE ISLE

Another war casualty which cost the life of one of Plymouth's finest young men, and cast a gloom of sorrow throughout the community, was the announcement received Sunday night by Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Ford from the War Department, stating that their son, Ray, had been killed in action on October 21, during the invasion of Leyte Island in the Philippine group.

Ray entered the army in March 1943 and took his training at Camp Davis, N. C., and at Camp Pickett, Va. He was then transferred to Fort Dix, N. J., being sent overseas in March 1944, just one year later. He was stationed in the Hawaiian Islands until the invasion of Leyte was made a few weeks ago, which took a toll of 1100 killed, 4500 wounded and 128 missing, according to reports issued this week by the War Department in this action.

Born on Feb. 15, 1925, Ray grew up in the community and was well liked by all who knew him. He was a member of the '42 graduating class of Plymouth high school, finishing school at the age of 17. After completing his local education, he assisted his father, Thurman Ford, at his garage and service station until he was inducted into service.

In early life young Ford became affiliated with the Methodist church and took an active part in its affairs and special programs. He was a member of the local Boy Scout organization and earned recognition of a Star Scout. Of clean, Christian character, Ray Ford held the high esteem of his boyhood chums and citizens of the community.

He was a member of the Anti-aircraft Division of the 504th Gun Battalion. He liked the life of the army, and was eager to get into action. He saw plenty of it when the invasion started, and giving his life for his country is the highest sacrifice any man can make.

News of young Ford's death spread rapidly, and there was a deep gloom filled with sorrow over the entire village, and the expressions of sympathy for the bereaved ones were many. This is the sixth casualty of the war that has struck home in Plymouth.

Surviving the young soldier are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Ford; two sisters, Ruth and Emily Rose, and one brother, Alan Ford, all at home.

The deepest sympathy of every one is extended to the family in the loss of their son and soldier.

OHIO HONORS OWN 37TH DIVISION DURING PRESENT WAR LOAN DRIVE

A salute to Ohio's famed "fighting 37th" division!

This tribute to the hard-hitting Buckeye division was the theme of the sixth war loan campaign in Ohio, which opened Monday, Nov. 20, Harold H. Bredlow, executive director of the State War Finance committee, announced.

With the state assigned a quota of $715,000,000 in war bonds to be distributed between November 20 and Dec. 18, Mr. Bredlow said the sale of the 37th.

Major General Robert Beightler, commanding officer of the Buckeye infantry division, will serve as the state's honorary chairman for the drive.

"Every Ohioan has thrilled with pride at the achievements of our division," Mr. Bredlow said. "The purchase of extra bonds in their honor during the sixth war loan drive is a practical way to acknowledge our debt to our fellow Ohioans of this battle-hardened division."

Although the 37th now has in its ranks men from every state in the Union, it was in the beginning preponderantly an Ohio outfit and the Buckeye state is proud of its record.

The division has fought in the New Georgia and Bougainville campaigns, five of its infantry units wear the presidential citation for heroism in action; two of its members, Frank Petzara of Cleveland and Rodger Young of Clyde, both killed in action, were awarded posthumously the highest medal in the army.

Some 327 have received the Silver Star for gallantry, 39 were awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, and one member has received the Navy Cross.

Some 229 have been wounded and the Purple Heart 48 of them have been wounded twice.

speaks for itself. It shows more than 30 Japs dead for each American killed. On New Georgia, it counted 10,000 dead for the Japs. This contrasted to 400 dead in the valiant 37th.

Military security keeps the current war news from the 37th street, but Ohioans expect to hear more from this fighting outfit.

Wherever the blow is to fall, we in Ohio know that General Beightler and his famous division will win new honors for the state and new glory for our great country.

WILL OBSERVE THANKSGIVING

Thanksgiving, which will be observed this Thursday, Nov. 23, will not be the kind of a day it has been in previous years. With more than two hundred young men in the armed forces and away from home, and with announcements of casualties which included the death of one local boy, the holiday will be observed in a quiet manner in the homes of most residents. In the years gone by the holiday drew many visitors into Plymouth, and especially former residents, but with transportation facilities greatly jeopardized at present, the usual inflow of visitors will be greatly curtailed.

Most of the business places in Plymouth will be closed Thursday. The local bank and postoffice will observe the festive day by being closed. The Plymouth theatre will start its show at 5:00 o'clock to afford entertainment for those who have a late dinner.

The day in general will be a quiet one in Plymouth, and no doubt will be an occasion to recall happier events of this occasion, with the hope that on another Thanksgiving Day the world will be enjoying and thankful for an enduring peace.

SPECIAL NOTICE

Let Us Give Thanks

For the preservation of our way of life from the threat of destruction;
For the unity of spirit which has kept our nation strong;

And for the promise of an enduring Peace

Thanksgiving Day Thoughts

By REV. FREDERICK LAMBERTUS

ANOTHER THANKSGIVING DAY! By special Proclamation of the President the nation is urged to go into the various places of worship and render thanks unto God for His gifts.

AT THIS TIME, perhaps more than at any other time, the minds of men are turned to the practical accomplishments of industry, trade, commerce and, last but not least, farming. In all these spheres we see human accomplishments developed to a high degree. Men have discovered and learned to cooperate with the permanent forces of nature. Man looks over the teeming life of field, forest, and sea; he contemplates the hidden treasures stored away everywhere — man is prone to think of his mastery over all.

THANKSGIVING DAY says to men everywhere — Pause, look up, reflect. For back of it all, controlling all, energizing all, is God. Be thankful to Him!

THE 117TH PSALM SAYS: "O praise the Lord all ye nations." It is the shortest Psalm in the Bible. God has revealed Himself in Nature. He is the Creator of ALL things. Nature sings of God in the morning and in the evening. "That maketh the outgoing of the morning and the evening to rejoice!"

DURING THE PAST YEAR we have experienced again so keenly how dependent man is upon the weather. Spring started out so well, and all looked prosperous. Then came a dry season and the crops seemed to be doomed. Fear was expressed that there would be a small harvest. Yet in time God sent rain and sunshine and the brilliant October sun ripened the corn, and another bountiful harvest is ours in our state.

GOVERNMENT REPORTS tell us that this year has been the greatest harvest in the history of our nation. There is a huge surplus to feed not only our vast army, but to supply the hungry mouths in the warring lands. And yet we speak of meat shortages and the like, grumble about rationing — but all have ample food to eat.

GOD REVEALS HIMSELF in Nature. God gives the soil. Without the "Good Earth" what would man do? God gives the seed. Each kernel of seed miraculously contains life. You have read recently how some peas brought out of the tomb of King Tutankhamen have been planted and they grew. Having been entombed over 3000 years the germ is still alive.

GOD GIVES THE FORCES which make the seed extract the virtues of the soil. That in itself is a miracle. God gives the sunshine, the rain, and the wind, which minister to the growth of the blade and which ripens the grain. God gives the intelligence which enables man to cultivate the soil and to acquire the art of agriculture. Say Isaiah 28:26: "For his God instructs him to discretion and doeth teach him."

WE TALK MUCH OF SCIENCE as being the factor employed to produce production. Yet what is Science but the rays and laws of Nature which God allows man to discover and put to use?

SO OFTEN MAN TAKES all this to be self-evident and takes the credit for his genius and discovery. But has not God given a mind to Man? Shall Man ascribe to himself the glory of his accomplishments and say: "All this I have wrought by the power of my skill and hard labor?" How far would man get if God would withdraw or change the forces of Nature? On this day, let us thank God for revealing Himself in Nature for the benefit of his human race. YES, LET US GIVE THANKS!

LARGE CROWD WITNESS PLAY

JUNIORS DELIGHT AUDIENCE WITH SPARKLING WIT.

"Pink pills for pale people," brown pills, green pills, and a bottle of left-over pills which should act as a balance for the rest in case one is omitted or overdone, is the atmosphere in which Grandpa Hatcher lives and makes the rest of his household miserable, by ordering them around and threatening to cut them off without a penny.

Such was the background for the Junior class play, "Grandpa's Twin Sister," presented Friday evening in the school auditorium. An exceptionally good audience saw the sparkling three-act comedy with visitors from Willard, New Haven, Shiloh and Shelby present.

Grandpa, taken by Bill Miller, draws forth many chuckles with his high-handedness as well as his worries over escaping the efforts of the Widow Williams, (Margaret Briggs) to catch him as her fourth husband.

Living with Grandpa are Clara (Evelyn Carnahan) and her henpecked husband, Edgar (Warren Wirth) who obediently obeys his wife's demands to act as a guardian for Grandpa until the final scene when he captures his audience with a "No, my lamb."

Louise, a grandniece, who is interested in Grandpa's money, was well portrayed by Lois Berberick and her prospective bridegroom Henry Collins (Wayne Ross) is interested only in Louise, if she gets the money.

Betty, a granddaughter, Cynthia Burrus, who is more interested in getting Dr. Wyatt, Eldon Sourwine, to see her as a young lady than in having Grandpa's money, cooks up a scheme to help herself and Grandpa by having the latter play the part of Grandpa's twin sister. Some terrible mix-ups occur but are finally straightened out.

Maggie, the cook (Verna Eise Smith) and her mail order husband, Adam McPherson (Dak Ross) were both very good and kept things in an uproar with their wit and humor.

The entire play was well presented under the direction of Miss Martha Bowman and Mrs. Anderson who were remembered with a gift from the class in appreciation of their coaching. Several specialty numbers were given by the rhythm band, under the supervision of Miss Joy Bethel.

Around the Square

(By Phineas Whittlesseed)

THE DEATH of Ray Ford, who was killed in action Oct. 21 in Leyte, reminded me that this was the first birth announcement we printed on our arrival in Plymouth, just twenty years ago in February. We've seen Ray crisscrossed at the Methodist church—take part in the cradle roll programs, and make his speeches or say his poetry and special occasions. He was, indeed, his mother's boy... being the first child in the family.

AND LIVING in Plymouth is like one big family. We heard so many words which praised him... by mothers who have sons in service... you'd think it was their own boy who had died on a battlefield. But, then, in war we must expect sorrow, for that is about all it means to any mother... she should know. Yet, Ray made a record for himself in Plymouth and in the army of which his family can be justly proud, and which helps bring back the memories of this youthful hero.

BANG, BANG goes the gun, and another cottontail. Yep, the hunting season's a-lerp, and the old fellows feel other the day after its opening. No outstanding story today, but Tommy Webber went out with a firm determination to get a rabbit... tramped in the rain all day, and did he get one? Ask him. Harry Kemp shot a baby rabbit. He could have saved his shell by reaching down and picking up the poor thing.

ERNE GILLETTE of U. S. Route 924, east of New Haven is having a sale Nov. 28th. He's got a nice string of cattle up, and it's two to one he'll have a good bunch of buyers on hand. And speaking of public sales, we've never seen so many. The farmers are really leaving the field, by the hundreds.

YOU'D NEVER dream P. H. Root attending a ball game, especially a football tilt. Well, after 26 years, he did. Tom, his son, told me that it was Doc's Day down at Columbus recently, and that you should have seen the boys give up their beds... and the very good behavior shown by the boys. The date really said what they were paying for, and that was thrown in for good measure.

WHEN ED CURPEN opens his jewelry store Saturday of the week, you'll be amazed when you go into his beautiful new place. For weeks Mr. and Mrs. Curpen have supervised the decorations and installation of fixtures, lights and painting, and now it has the appearance of a "Walt Disney Paradise." Pastel panels of pink and blue, predominate the walls which are a background for attractive shelves, lighted indirectly, giving a soft mellow glow to the merchandise displayed... new fixtures which are the latest in design, and a store full of items ready for Christmas, and the store opens Saturday, and everyone in Plymouth and vicinity should make it a point to stop in and see this modern gift shop.

ONE LITTLE GIRL was awfully worried last week. She'd picked up a name of a soldier boy, who has been overseas, and she's been writing to him for some time. Now, we hear, the boy is at his home in Elyria, and the last we heard, he was planning a trip to Plymouth, naturally, our little heroine is somewhat worried... probably about what she's been writing.

A STAG party was a feature of a convention and banquet of the Pea Shooters club, held Saturday night at the Walter Chaffin field house, on the South road. Those attending were F. T. Buzard, Jack Hoggset, Ark Gilbert, Ned Earnest, Jim Rhine, Wm. Root, Luther Fetters, P. H. Root, Chris Gysin of Cincinnati, and the host, Walter Chatfield. Well, it's a new name for me, but I'll have to take Chat's word for it!

ACROSS OHIO ON THE A. C. & Y.

History of Road Reveals Many Ups And Downs, And Present Management Shows Progress.

A Bit Of History

In a recent conversation with J. A. Root, he revealed to me that he was only a lad of 12 or 13 years when the A. C. & Y. made its initial run to Medina. Mr. Root stated that as a member of the band in his boyhood days, he participated in the ceremonies of the day when the first train rolled over the rails into Medina. Not saying anything about Mr. Root's age, but that incident was fifty years ago.

Early Beginning

Back in '49 at the time of the California Gold Rush, and before ribbons of steel connected the Atlantic with the Pacific, our pioneer westward to occupy lands made available by the government and to seek their fortunes in a wilderness that held much promise. Settlers would chain and the Far West exploited, the railroads laid their tracks to reap the golden harvest of this vast new territory.

The United States was a great agricultural country. No Iron Age or industrial development had come upon the scene and no capitalist prophesied that in the years to come the great growth of the country would be in agriculture to industry. As the Far West developed, so did the Middle West and great canal connecting Cleveland, Akron, Pittsburgh and Columbus, patterned after the Erie Canal in New York State came into being. Along these great waterways cities grew and as population increased the demand for more rapid transportation became of paramount importance.

Northern Ohio generously endowed by nature with unlimited natural resources awaited only the development and improved transportation to come into its own.

The Cleveland, Delphos & St. Louis Railroad Company was incorporated March 9, 1891, to build a road from Delphos, Ohio to Cleveland, Ohio, and built and put into operation a railroad from Delphos as far east as Carey, O.

The Cleveland, Delphos & St. Louis Railroad Company having become insolvent, a decree of foreclosure and order of sale were entered by the court on December 23, 1894, and the property was finally sold and the sale confirmed by the Court October 16, 1895. The purchasers were James Gallery and William Semple.

New Company Formed

The Cleveland & Western Railway Company was incorporated December 30, 1894 to construct a line extending from Cleveland, Ohio to Delphos, Allen County, Ohio, by way of Carey, Wyandot County, Ohio.

On January 6, 1899, William Semple, Jr. and James D. Callery, as trustees, conveyed to the Cleveland & Western Railway Railroad Company all the property of the Cleveland, Delphos & St. Louis Railroad Company the deed reciting the manner by which they succeeded as trustees under order of the court to their fathers, purchasers of said property, who had died since the deed had been made to them by W. F. Goodspeed, Special Master Commissioner.

The Ohio Railway Company was incorporated November 10, 1895, to build a line from Akron, Ohio, to Tiffin, Ohio. On July 1, 1897, the Ohio Railway Company filed a certificate changing its name to the Pittsburgh, Akron & Western Railway Company.

On March 11, 1899, the Pittsburgh, Akron & Western Railway Company and the Cleveland & Western Railroad Company were consolidated, taking name of the Pittsburgh, Akron & Western Railroad Company. This company constructed the road from Akron to Carey connecting with the Carey to Delphos line of the old Cleveland, Delphos & St. Louis Railroad.

Becomes Insolvent

On July 29, 1893, the Pittsburgh, Akron & Western Railway Company becoming insolvent, William A. Lynch was appointed receiver of the property, and the mortgage issued April 1, 1899, by the Company was foreclosed in a suit pending in the court of Common Pleas of Summit County, Ohio, July 31, 1894, and the road was ordered sold. William Williams, Master Commissioner, sold the property October 17, 1894, to one Fisher A. Baker, purchaser, who transferred and assigned his bid to Samuel Sherridge, and on June 7, 1895, the court confirmed said sale. On August 6, 1895, said Sherridge, purchaser, transferred and assigned his bid, with the consent of the court to John H. Sample, and on August 10, 1895, the Master Commissioner on August 10, 1895, deeded the property to John H. Sample and on the same date John H. Sample deeded the property to L. Conger and others, incorporators of the Northern Ohio Railway Company.

On August 14, 1895, these incorporators filed their certificate of incorporation of the Northern Ohio Railway Company (with the same route as that of the Pittsburgh, Akron & Western Railroad Company, namely Akron to Delphos via Carey) and said Company on October 1, 1895, assigned all of its property to the Lake Erie & Western Railroad Company for a term of 999 years. The Railroad was then operated by that Company from October 1st, 1895 to March 1, 1920.

A. C. & Y. Co. Founded

At the turn of the century F. A. Seiberling and H. B. Stewart, with a vision for the future, established plans for building a railroad east from Akron to Mogadore, Ohio to connect with the Wheeling & Lake Erie Railroad. On June 6, 1907 the Akron, Canton & Youngstown Railway Company was incorporated and the first train over this railroad was operated on October 1, 1912.

Effective March 1, 1920 the Akron, Canton & Youngstown Railway was acquired from the Lake Erie & Western Railroad by assignment, the lease of the Northern Ohio Railway Company and the combined properties of the Northern Ohio and Akron, Canton & Youngstown Railway, running from Mogadore to Delphos, Ohio, comprised one hundred and seventy-one miles of trackage across Northern Ohio, making connections at twenty-two different junctions with nine different railroads running north and south.

When the Akron, Canton & Youngstown Railway Company acquired the Northern Ohio Railway Company, it likewise acquired a fourth interest in the Akron & Barberton Belt Railroad Company, a switching and belt line railroad with twenty-three miles of main line trackage and a total of nearly forty-six miles of trackage serving Akron and Barberton, Ohio. The Akron & Barberton Belt Railroad Company was equally owned by four proprietary companies, namely: the Northern Ohio Railway Company, the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and the Erie Railroad Company.

Under date of April 3, 1933 both the Akron, Canton & Youngstown Railway Company and the Northern Ohio Railway Company went into bankruptcy under Certificate of the Bankruptcy Act as amended stating to the U. S. District Court that they were unable to meet their obligations as they became due and desired to effect reorganization. Shortage of cash brought about by the depression, bank closing and frozen investments were more responsible for the receivership than were decreased earnings.

Reorganization plans were filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission and hearings were held before that body in January 1937. In August 1938 the court issued a formal report prescribing a plan of reorganization and consolidation of the two railroad properties to be effective on Oct. 1, 1938. This report was certified to the U. S. District Court at Cleveland and after hearing before a special master, the court on October 30, 1939 entered an order approving the plan. Due to other technicalities, the plan, by statutory requirement, was again referred to the U. S. District Court for final confirmation. After hearing and approval of the U. S. District court under date of January 12, 1941 confirmed the plan and ordered it into operation. Other legal troubles followed until finally the reorganization plan was presented before the U. S. Supreme Court on April 1943 and the reorganization plan being confirmed by the highest tribunal in the United States, the way was cleared for the reorganization under date of February 1, 1944, all of the properties of the Akron, Canton & Youngstown Railway Company and the Northern Ohio Railway Company were merged into the present Akron, Canton & Youngstown Railroad Company.

"The Road of Service"

For many years the slogan of the Akron, Canton & Youngstown Railroad Company has been "The Road of Service". Competing on friendly terms with the larger railroads, the A. C. & Y. has justified this slogan and since Pearl Harbor this road, together with all the railroads in the country, has cleared the way to provide our Armed Services with the best in transportation.

With the coming of war the facilities of our railroads have been taxed to the limit. Nevertheless, carloads of war materials are going forward with the minimum of delay. It is interesting to note that in 1943, the twenty-four steam locomotives and 1,000 passenger cars, number of cars handled over the A. C. & Y. Railroad Company in 1940 was 69,462; in 1941 the total had increased to 86,502. Following Pearl Harbor, carloads of carloads handled has steadily increased. In 1942, there were 91,115 carloads handled; in 1943, 101,402 carloads, and in 1944 it will be handled, all with dispatch and satisfaction to the American shippers who expect and demand only the best in transportation.

New Improvements

Maintenance has been a severe test for all railroads. With priorities on steel and new equipment making the securing of supplies very difficult, the decrease in manpower due to employees going into the Armed Services of our country increased the maintenance troubles proportionately. With the re-organization of the Akron, Canton & Youngstown Railroad Company, a five year betterment and improvement program was adopted. New one hundred and twelve pound track is being laid, stone ballast is being substituted for cinder ballast, new gentiles and hoppy cars have been received and new locomotives are being built and will be received in the current year. All bridges are being reset, coaling plants renewed and the twenty-two junction points with other railroads are being conditioned to handle freight with the minimum of delay.

The Akron, Canton & Youngstown Railroad employees are re-trained railroad men and women. They believe in their road as being the "Road of Service" and they typify the spirit of this country in giving everything to hasten Victory and the coming Peace.

In July, 1944, the number of employees in all departments of The A. C. & Y. totaled exactly 704. The bulk of course, is operating the office force at Akron, down to the section men along the 171.31 miles of tracks. The entire personnel of the A. C. & Y. seems to be a big and happy family. If you could take a look at the security list you'd find a number of employees have been with the road for almost forty years. Take our own citizen, Ralph Ream, a former telegraph operator, who was forced out of his office work by poor health. He stayed with the road but has been on the section for 17 years. I haven't talked to Toby Whitmore lately, our section foreman who lives in Plymouth, but you can feel certain that Toby has been with the A. C. & Y. for a long time.

I found all along the road, an atmosphere of friendliness among the agents, crew members, section men, maintainers, etc. And right here, I want to say that the average railroad man doesn't come home long enough to know what is going on in his own home town, knows more about peepole and doings from one end of the road to the other than the average person knows about his neighbors. To prove this statement, I was talking to Doyle Taylor, who is firing on the New York Central, but cut B. O. Bluff. Doyle told me that he had heard so and so about the A. C. & Y., and the B. & O., and I asked him how he learned so much about individuals. "Oh, you just pick it up," said Doyle. Take my friend Charlie Fox (no relations in Plymouth) and he Jones and Deffenbaugh knew just about everybody along the line. And to save my soul, I don't know how they do it. They surely don't stop a train in the middle of a hay field to make an acquaintance.

Well, at any rate, you can talk to any Central B. O. Bluff or any other railroad employee in this section of the country, and when you mention the A. C. & Y. you can see a little look of jealousy pop up. The satisfaction this railroad has brought out the state... a friendly road, and one which has the interest at heart of the territory it serves.

Take one of the oldest employees of the road, the late "Cap" Swift, who was conductor on a run between Akron and Delphos. "Cap" was always "kid" about the A. C. & Y., but there was never a more law-abiding, trustworthy railroader that ever roared the rails than he. Always full of wit and humor, Cap kept most everyone in a happy frame of mind. There was one incident told me by his son, L. R. Swift, who was a member of my crew on the trip, of how his dad almost got thrown off his train by a lady passenger who had a small child with her. When Cap went down the aisle collecting tickets, the woman handed him one full passenger fare (just outside of Akron). Conductor Swift installed that she'd have to have a fare for the baby. "Why the child isn't anywhere near being six years old," the lady told him. "That makes no difference, re-plied Cap, "it will be by the time he gets to Delphos." At that point, everyone burst out with laughter. Swift always averred that the Lord had a hand in the founding of the A. C. & Y., and when he was asked how he meant that, he replied: "The Lord created all living and creeping things."

Getting back to the serious side of railroading, the A. C. & Y. went through the depression years with a splendid record... more tonnage, more earnings, and more expansion. And luckily for the nation, this road was ready for top performance back in December, 1941 when we were plunged into war. For as every citizen realized, we had a big job ahead, and it meant teamwork in our daily life. It meant that the American railroads had a job to do, and everyone will agree that the railroads have more than done their share in transportation. For without transportation we couldn't win a war, and the American railroader assumed a personal responsibility for the movement of vital loads. Since the outbreak of the war, the A. C. & Y. has proved to be a vital road... freight movements day and night, from the east and west, and each employee has gladly joined in seeing that the loads go through. And as the war draws to an end, you'll find every A. C. & Y. employee filled with a pardonable degree of pride in knowing that he has done his part. I wish every farmer, every business man, every housewife could make a trip that I did. For here in these A. C. & Y. employees you'd find the spirit of the true America... a teamwork that spells success in any venture... a group of real men who face the torrid heat of summer and winter's wintery blasts to keep America ahead.

As so to my friends who love railroading, I can truthfully say that this never-to-be-forgotten trip brings to a reality the dream of my boyhood days when I used to watch the old woodburners go by... the dream of riding in the cab—PWT.

IT'S LOVE, LOVE, LOVE — OR MAYBE THE MOON

It's crazy what love does. One ardent swain rubbed his sweetie's face with poison ivy — and won her. Putting on a dog collar, a luckless chap pitched a tent outside his beloved's house — and lost her. Read about the odd things love does, in The American Weekly with this Sunday's (Nov. 28) issue of The Detroit Sunday Times.

Another 12th Donor

An unexpected pleasure was ours the past week when we received a letter from one of our subscribers, Mrs. John Groover, of Alhambra, Calif., in which she states: "I enjoy your paper very much. In fact, I look forward to it. I usually get it the following Monday morning. I especially enjoy the letters from the boys 'Over there.'" "In your last week's paper, I noticed about Mrs. Ralph Dunlap giving her twelfth pint of blood. Enclosed find a clipping out of the Los Angeles Examiner, also twelfth donation, 'good work.'" The article referred to was as follows: "Traffic Judge John J. Ford, a blood donor himself, accused Donald D. Paxton, 32, accused of a traffic violation, what the ribbon on his lapel signified. It signifies 12 blood donations, your honor," said Paxton. "In fact, I was returning from the blood bank when I was cited." "Sentence suspended," said Judge Ford.

SEND CHRISTMAS GIFTS BY DECEMBER 1!

Obviously, the energies of the nation are concentrated on one vital war job. That is to maintain, without interruption, the gigantic flow of urgently needed military goods and supplies to our armed forces bitterly fighting the enemy, on land and sea, on battlefronts all over the globe. Uncle Sam is determined that the Christmas holiday shipping, which usually reaches huge proportions in December, shall not interfere with the war traffic in any way this year. So he is urging the American public to complete the sending of their Christmas packages to recipients in this country at a very early date. That closing date is December 1!

The Office of Defense Transportation has enlisted the assistance of the postal service, the Railway Express Agency and other important package-carrying mediums in the drive. With retail and department stores everywhere, they are backing up the slogan: "Shop Early and Send your Christmas packages before December 1!"

THEY still die - will YOU buy?

There are over twenty mothers in town and the work could be accomplished without any effort on the part of the solicitors. A very few neighbors to see would include all the work necessary. THE SIXTH WAR LOAN

Plymouth will have a definite place in the war effort during the Sixth War Loan. It is not only our duty to our country to buy bonds, but it is expected of us by our own boys who are giving everything.

MORE OIL FOR CIVILIANS

The probable end of rationing of oil for homes is one of the best pieces of news we have heard for some time—not because it is going to make our already comfortable civilian lives more comfortable, but because it is definite proof that the oil industry and the government have totally solved the problem of supplying sufficient oil for all war uses.

It is apparent that further release of oil would not be considered if there was any shortage in supply for our war machines and our war production factories.

We hope that release of more gasoline to civilians may follow in the near future, but because we can't get along all right without it, but because it will prove that every bomber, every tank and every fighting plane on all of our war fronts has all the gasoline it can possibly use.

COURAGEOUS THANKSGIVING

Our observance of Thanksgiving this year shares many likenesses with the Pilgrim's historic first Thanksgiving. We do not face the crudities of living experienced by our forefathers, but we again have been made to realize, as they did, the dignity and worth of human existence.

It is a strange Thanksgiving. There will be many tables with empty places. There will be many tables without the accustomed turkey because turkeys have gone to war too.

The first Thanksgiving was a triumphal day for the Pilgrims. They had endured hunger, disease, heavy loss of life and the hazards of a New England winter.

GET OUT OF MENTAL RUT

A letter came this morning from a young man of 33 who says he wants to get out of a mental rut. Think of that! Only a third of a century old and in a rut!

But we do get into mental ruts, that's true. Also we can get out of them. That's the good part. The way to get out is very simple. Do something new. For instance, go some place you've never been before.

When he was 51 he felt that he was getting into a rut, so he started in to learn Hebrew. It probably did him very little good, but on the other hand it showed he knew the secret of pulling out of a rut.

Here are four rules which, if you will apply them, you'll find will change your mental horizon:

1. Do something you ordinarily would not do. For instance, if you always sit in the last row of all meetings and had nothing to say, then turn in and become active in some organization.

2. There is nothing quite so helpful in getting out of a rut as to travel. Of course that can't be done now, but get out some travel books and take a paper journey to Tibet. Really learn something about that country.

3. Whenever you have a chance, go to see travel moving pictures. From time to time they are still shown in the theaters. And even though our war effort has cut down the number of lectures at museums there still are some lectures. Illustrated as they usually are, they will plunge you into new interests, probably give you new ideas.

4. Mingle with a different group of people. For instance, if you are sober-minded, then purposely cultivate some people whom you've probably regarded as dizzy.

Now all these rules simmer down to two things: Think new thoughts. Do new things.

Wide old Benjamin Franklin, who left us such a rich heritage of good advice, said that two things are easy to get into: debt and a mental rut. But you can get out of the latter with little effort if you really want to.

CHAPTER VI

Barred from the Navy's V-1 program because he lacked two years of college math, Master Dow tried to enlist in the Coast Guard but he turned down being a "facial expert." The doctor refuses even to examine him. Coming to a man, an old friend of the family, enlists him in the Navy for the V-1 program. But after weeks of waiting Lester learns they still insist on two years of college math. He contemplates joining the V-5 Naval Aviation and is sent to Asaceto Naval Base. Sixteen weeks of preliminary ground school pass and he is sent to the V-1 flight. Some time later he makes his first flight with considerable apprehension.

As soon as I was decently out of sight, I began to fly aimlessly in large, scalloped, sine-curve down the river. My control over the plane was absolute. I was sure of my flight. It was enjoyable. I skidded in the turns, the Glossop lash could not fall on my shoulders.

I wondered of the heading there was no one to object. I flew over the Potomac and circled around an excursion boat moving slowly down the river. My control over the plane was absolute. I was sure of my flight. It was enjoyable. I skidded in the turns, the Glossop lash could not fall on my shoulders.

After an hour of sleighing about the sky, I started back to the field. I had not been flying in striding unconcernedly past Glossop. This time he would have to be a passenger in the smug dialect of the experts.

Very nice upstairs today, Glossop. Very nice indeed. Glossop up four thousand. Average r.p.m.'s a 1700. The engine was running wing was a little heavy, but that doesn't bother us, does it, Ace? It's a new fellow and you know his navy wings, a sort of fraternal high sign.

Oh, you beautiful doll, I sang, and patted her on the instrument panel. The field was below now. I followed the correct procedure and turned my attention to number two-ninety-six. He had never got along like this before. Perhaps it was a perfect day for the engine.

The approach was professional. The tall struck lightly, and the wheels followed immediately. It was a perfect landing on this totally unexpected success, but you have the cutest altercations on the base. There was a noticeable swaying to the right.

"You ground-looped," I called in alarm. I moved the stick to counterbalance the disturbance. There was a perfect landing on this totally unexpected success, but you have the cutest altercations on the base. There was a noticeable swaying to the right.

Mr. Glossop crammed his large face into the cockpit. "You ground-looped," he gasped. "You ground-looped." I pointed all over the plane. "You unlocked the tail-wheel too soon," he said. "You idiot!"

No amount of technical evidence to the contrary could persuade me that I had not been deceived by feminine guile. I repeated stubbornly: "I didn't do it." I repeated stubbornly: "I didn't do it."

He rode sheepishly back to the hangar on the crash truck, while a crew pulled the plane off the runway. The crash truck returned to its normal channels.

In council it was decided that I should take the plane myself. Their lenient opinion was predicated on the fact that I had upset the crash truck. The ground loop was frowned upon, but still it was an improvement over the anticipated flight of the rock.

Slated by the review, I still felt that I had been punished by number two-ninety-six. There was something spiteful and spiteful about the landing. I waited until all the planes had returned from their last flight and the plane was in the line. She stood tinted, rain, and defiant

"My baby!"

In the evening clouds. There was about her something wild and unprincipled. "You St. Louis woman! I cursed her softly, and walked abruptly to the bus.

For two weeks I struggled for precision. I learned to land in a circle and how to make emergency landings. There must have been some progress, because planes that formerly bolted off like school toys fleeing the eighth-grade bully when-ever two-ninety-six appeared in the sky, now exhibited at least outward calm.

I passed my twenty-hour check and became eligible for advanced training at Corpus Christi. After the ordeal Mr. Glossop called me aside. He took my arm and hustled me around the hangar. I was used to being treated like cactus, and gentle hands unerved me.

"Without psych-logy," you'd have been a dead duck," he snapped his fingers. "I wouldn't have given that for you"—he snapped his fingers again. "It was the same as being a dead duck," he snapped his fingers again.

"It's a marvelous thing"—I paid my respects to science. "When I told you that and do you any myself, this fellow has to be handled psychologically. And, boy"—he looked at me joyfully—"did you give?"

After a minute he said: "I couldn't be like that and do you any myself. You understand that"—he explained his past behavior. In the red Glossop, psychologically speaking, there was apparently no therapeutic value at all.

"When I told you that and do you any myself, this fellow has to be handled psychologically. And, boy"—he looked at me joyfully—"did you give?"

"I must send you some of the new books, sir." It was the least I could do for him. A new cadet sided up, not at all sure of his ground.

"Excuse me what?" demanded Mr. Glossop, speaking from Olympus. "Take over, Freud!" I murmured, making for Fearless' car.

"Darling, don't squeal like that," he protested, shaking my hand. "I'm a baby in a blue blazer, swamping me with affection. Easy, dear, don't get dewy," said Father.

Mother disengaged herself. "You take the front," she said to Father. "and I'll take the back."

"Now, look!" I protested. "You just talk, dear," commanded Mother. "How was it? Did they whip you?"

"No, they didn't whip me. Are you having a good time?" "Wonderful! You've no idea how they've improved your rear," she smiled. "She's been well, hasn't she?"

"No, really. It's swell now," she insisted. "How's Mother?" she called to Father. "Glossop," he said. "What's about horsepower," Mother urged.

"You'll love that." Unwillingly I was launched on a technical lecture concerning aerodynamics and the theory of flight. "Wonderful! You've no idea how they've improved your rear," she smiled. "She's been well, hasn't she?"
