H. S. MYERS SUCCEUMS TO HEART ATTACK; SERVICES MONDAY
A heart attack suffered Friday morning about 11 o'clock while enroute to his home on the Spruce Mill Road proved fatal to Harvey S. Myers, well known Plymouth resident. An ambulance was summoned but he was dead upon arrival at the Shelby hospital.

Plymouth will inaugurate its basketball season in the local gym tomorrow night against Monroeville, last year's Huron county champions. Monroeville, in fact only one man from last year's championship squad, will naturally put up a strong and experienced team on the floor, thus keeping the local lads busy trying to stop them.

On November 4, 1894, he was united in marriage to Margaret Jane Dallas, present address in death on September 19, 1944. A farmer most of his life, the last few years he had been assisting in the care of the cemetery and employed on local street and road work.

Next Tuesday night, Dec. 5th, Plymouth will meet Shelby on the local floor. Shelby, a class "A" school, will of course, give the team plenty of opposition. Unfortunately for the first semester, Plymouth will be without the services of "Jake" Berberick, six foot, three-inch center from last year's team. Jake dropped out of school last Spring and he is not eligible for the first semester, although the squad will lack height it hopes to make up for it with speed as several of the boys are quite fast and shifty.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Charles Keiser of Ashland and Irene at home; one son, Kenneth C. Myers, a grand son. There are also five sisters who survive: Mrs. Marietta Tilton, New Haven; Mrs. Ida Dallas, Plymouth; Mrs. Walter Hurley, Willard; Mrs. Compton Carpenter of Willard, and Mrs. John Sheely of Anacosta, Mont.; and five brothers, Milo of Claire, Mich.; Earl of Owasso, Mich.; Frank, Mich.; Mary, Delbert of Bucyrus and Ervin of Shelby.

Managers of the squads are Allen Norris and John Turson. The church service will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow night and show that you are backing them.

Bazaar And Bake Sale

Around the Square

IF YOU'RE Christmas on giving a gift for Christmas, brother, you had better start buying! A survey of Plymouth stores indicates that you are going to be really a slim Yuletide season as far as "Christmas" merchandise is concerned. Better read the ads in this issue, and get to the stores at once.

I WOULDN'T tell it out loud, but I got a letter from Jim Crockett this week and when I read it, he's getting homesick. Jim and Bob Bachrach are down in Chicago, and Jim says that whatever they may write you about the place, well, it's a fib—the only trouble with those two guys is that they are just two more "Yankees" down South! At any rate, boys and girls, and in their own store, and there were many splendid remarks heard giving praise to its beauty and splendid merchandise.

SEVERAL PLYMOUTH boys in service are going to get a surprise one of these days. I talked a certain young lady into writing their boys some letters. Just as you get a strange piece of mail from around this neck of the woods, don't turn up your nose. It's not an action, but they ain't Smith, but she's blond—blue eyes, and a dream to look at! Now you guess!

FRIDAY NIGHT should be full of good fun and yuletide basketball fans for we'll have our first opportunity of the season to see the boys in action. They are just more Monroeville. Coach Root is rather shy about making predictions, but I'm safe in saying he's got 'em!

THE FIRST Christmas gift we're going to receive from the boys is the day I pay my light and power bill! Why? Because memmory of gross neglect of duty and extreme cruelty. They were married in Sandusky, June 15, 1944. L. L. Marquart and A. F. Weichel appear for the plaintiff.

ROMANCES in Plymouth are changing about as fast as the weather. Well, the boys will not always be wearing a uniform — we hope!

IF I HAD a thought for the week I'd be glad to pass it on, but the only thing I can see is a grand Christmas rush!

a judgment or other federal appointment. Soon or later the people will demand that Congress again write the nation's laws and tell these bureaucrats to jump in the lake.

I have made these observations because some people do not realize that a member of Congress has plenty of work to do. In addition, he constantly acts for the people of his district, through bureaus and agencies. Few realize how many people have grievances—are deprived of their rights and property. At that, only a few of these are reported. The federal bureaucrat generally feels that he can do no wrong. Again thousands submit without even a protest.

The House passed the new crop insurance bill. This bill insures the producers of wheat, oats, barley, cotton, flax and rye against loss due to drought, flood, hail, wind, frost, winter kill, lightning, fire, rain, and wild animals. It also insures against insect infestation and plant disease. The insurance covers 75% of the appraised average yield of any such commodity—not to exceed the actual cost or investment in the crop.

It provides that before, in any county, a commodity is insured, at least 50, or one-third, of the farmers must be organized. The object is that the premium on each commodity shall be sufficient to make the insurance self-sustaining. If the loss exceeds the available funds, the producers of such commodity are paid pro rata. In addition, the bill provides for experiments with fruits and vegetables.

This insurance is just a toe hold. Ultimately the farmer will get a price that will cover the production on 43 principal farm products. He will get this by having a floor—not a ceiling—equal to the cost of production. This will include all overhead expenses, taxes, interest depreciation and a wage for the farm family equal to the wage of the industrial worker. Unless this is done the farmer will again be made the shock absorber of the nation.

Many farmers are asking that the old feed and seed loans be cancelled. The Administration forces are opposed to cancelling these feed and seed loans. The collectors prefer to draw their salary and waste government funds, gas and tires. Congress, however, will take some definite step on these old feed and seed loans before next spring.

CIGARETS GO UNRATIONED

The shortage of cigarettes experienced throughout the country reflects the bad distribution due to war time conditions and the fact that the armed forces are now smoking a fourth of the country's total production, but no rationing of them is contemplated. The Office of Price Administration states. The War Food Administration reports that the number of cigarettes being manufactured for civilian and military consumption is the greatest in the history of the tobacco industry. Only a negligible amount of tax-free cigarettes is sent abroad. The consumption of cigarettes by our armed forces. Black market operations and hoarding are also believed to be the factors contributing to the spotty distribution and civilian shortages.

CHAPTER VII

Barred from the Navy's V-7 program because he lacked two years of college work, Lester Dowd tried to enlist in the Coast Guard but it turned down because of a "facial squiggle." The doctor refused even to examine him. Coming out of the man, an old friend of the family, arranged for Lester to get a commission in the V-7 program. After weeks of waiting, Lester finally got his commission. In joining the V-7 Naval Aviation and in setting out to sea, Lester Dowd was making his first real flight but he gets a three-day furlough and visits his folks in Chicago.

Mr. Raymond framed, raised one hand, and wagged his fingers. "I visualized him framed in the second arch by the sundial, leaning against an ornate fountain, with a champagne banked behind him. His young face burned in a copy of 'Jane's Fighting Ships'."

There was a moment of stunned silence. "Mother recovered first. 'Oh, really,' she said in a childlike voice as if she had just seen angels. 'How do you mean?'"

"We'll call it 'I Must Go Down To The Sea Again,'" suggested Father.

After much bickering we compromised on several rulin poses in the garden, and the garden, capitalized on maps, shadows, and gestures, except the sun, which was the center of the ordeal. Nobody doubted that for a minute.

I started upstairs to change from my uniform into a pair of tattered flannels, a shirt, and a sweater, and I found Lester waiting for me. "I'm looking forward to his rocking chair. Before I had taken two steps, he called me back to the kitchen and commenced."

"Lester," I started, "I don't ask you to do it?" "Now, there is a silly question." "I mean you don't think of me as the picture-making machine do you?" she persisted.

"No, dear, you've been more like a friend to me," I said devotedly. "Do me a favor, will you?" she asked, dropping all shame. "I promised Mrs. Brooks, and Mrs. Paul that you'd go to see them this afternoon."

"Don't forget anybody," I said, and started upstairs again. "You can't take it in your uniform," she instructed.

"I stopped. 'In my uniform?' I asked. 'You can't take it off,' she said sternly, pointing an accusing finger. 'It's your uniform, I know.' 'Nobody will care.'"

"If you go to see those people, I will go with you," she said. "All right. What'll I do, ring the bell and tell them I'm working my shirt and sweater?" she asked. "I'll send you some magazine subscriptions?"

"They all expect you. They simply want to look at you. They don't care about your work. We could make scheduled trips around Market Square?" she proposed in defeat.

"I called sourly from my room. 'It's good to have you home,' Mother smiled from downstairs."

Passing among Mother's friends was the topic of Lester's not consuming at a minimum two months' time was ever a joyless duty. In younger years it was part of an exchange system. The other member matrons in their turn did the same for Lester.

"The executive type," I said, pushing the glasses back up again. "I was down with the Committee," she apologized.

"The executive type," I said, pushing the glasses back up again. "I was down with the Committee," she apologized.

"The executive type," I said, pushing the glasses back up again. "I was down with the Committee," she apologized.

"The executive type," I said, pushing the glasses back up again. "I was down with the Committee," she apologized.

"The executive type," I said, pushing the glasses back up again. "I was down with the Committee," she apologized.

"The executive type," I said, pushing the glasses back up again. "I was down with the Committee," she apologized.

"The executive type," I said, pushing the glasses back up again. "I was down with the Committee," she apologized.

"The executive type," I said, pushing the glasses back up again. "I was down with the Committee," she apologized.

I started an arm across the back of the sofa.

"Look, everyone," she said, without raising her voice. "It's Lester Dowd. He's being an aviator, you know."

"Well, she might have got the same effect if she had tossed a glittery constellation of stars on the carpet and announced that she was the sultan, 'That's the Big Dipper.'"

The room was filled with the shrill, high-pitched racket of excited female conversation. I was passed around after the sugar cookies and scrutinized like the choicest article at a Grand Sale. Busy chatter flowed on all sides.

"Is that Florence Dowd's boy?" Mother knew what I went through with those cloudy eyes.

"And your shoulders are straighter." "This Mrs. Wright spoke. She seemed to remember me hobnobbing about like the jangler of Notre Dame."

I hunted methods to destroy the indomitable rebirth, but time is a skipping thing, and if the hamlet chooses to hail you home as a regenerate Prince Hal, who are you against such numbers? I was well aware, however, of the unpayable debt I owed the designer of the cadet's blue serge uniform with its ornate, never could have scaled such heights in tweed.

Her ranking position on the Committee for Food and Grains and the duties entailed kept me from seeing Miss Winward until the next evening. She came over after dinner and found her alone before a noisy fire, fidgeting something blue and shapely. She was suddenly pushed back on her head, where they were, and she was suddenly reborn as a woman.

Her blouse wrinkled, and skirt were all slightly displaced by the fury of her hair, but somehow it all blended in a fancy disarray. She was so absorbed in her labors she did not notice me.

"Whose what will that warm?" I asked from the door. "It's your coat, jumping up and coming at me like a pleader with the anonymous drygoods still impaled on the needles."

"You'd better put those knives down," I cautioned. "I was in my ear. 'I'm sorry I wasn't at the City Hall to welcome you home.'"

"No matter. I wouldn't have noticed you in the mob." "I was down with the Committee," she apologized.

"The executive type," I said, pushing the glasses back up again. "I was down with the Committee," she apologized.

"The executive type," I said, pushing the glasses back up again. "I was down with the Committee," she apologized.

"The executive type," I said, pushing the glasses back up again. "I was down with the Committee," she apologized.

"The executive type," I said, pushing the glasses back up again. "I was down with the Committee," she apologized.

"When I am with him," she continued, "I have the feeling that I am in touch with the importance of our day."

"I must be like sleeping in a newspaper."

"One time we were playing tennis and he stopped just like that and said, 'Ellen, we're going to win this damn war in forty-four.' For the rest of the afternoon we sat together by the court while he outlined a campaign to go to Germany, the soft under-belly of Europe, you know."

"He's mad," I said. "It may be right, and he may be wrong." "Ellen went on, 'but an experience like that makes it more than just a tennis game.'"

"It certainly does," you'd been playing doubles you could have had a Round-Table Discussion."

We talked aimlessly for hours. Occasionally, I could hear the hall clock strike. Finally, exhausted of inconsequential conversation, I picked up and went out to find her bent over, silently attack the knitting. For some reason I began to wonder if Water had ever kissed her, and if so, how he went about it. Probably ambassadors with black dice and water came to stifle the Master's impulse, and then the Prince himself arrived on a litter. He was so absorbed in his work, he murmured words of magic and tenderness, words of love.

"Tunis will be ours because of superior mechanical equipment. I had said softly, and pressed his lips to hers."

"As this plastic Genghis Khan to sweep all before him? I started an arm across the back of the sofa, pulled it over, and found that an attempt was under way to strike at the soft under-belly of romance. I had suddenly discovered I had to divulge accumulated thoughts."

"Lester," she said, "I've been thinking that you and I ought to have a relationship." "If you'd sat still for another two seconds there'd be no necessity for long-range planning."

"I don't notice you like you better than anyone in the world," she announced, sucking on one of the long white nappies. "Platonically; that's very nice."

"And now that I'm entering a new stage in my development I don't want to lose you."

"What new stage are you entering?" I asked abruptly. "Never mind what stage. But afterward everything is going to be so different. Anthony says all this is going to be a landmark year, and to include the house and its surroundings. 'I'd hate to lose track of you.'"

"I can't hang around you like a pool hall while you're developing." "I'm always so restless. Like a little boy. You never will grow up," she said.

"I don't know. Everybody says I'm much improved." "She went to look at her watch. 'I'm getting sleepy,' she said, unfortunately."

"Not so much as playing with the boys. But you've never seen such energy. Do you remember Mrs. DeKalb?"

"The woman who looks like a shoe?" "She accounted for two tons between Rockport and Moline."

"I always said that territory could be worked. For whom are you working your fingers to the bone?" I pointed to her knitting.

"I'm going to be a mitten for a while." "For what?" "For what?" "Give me time," she pleaded. "He won't be home from the Argentine until next week."

"That departure will rank as a master stroke in Pan-American design." "I've had a wonderful time with him." "I'm in the Adirondacks!" I asked, pressing for information. "Yes, that was lovely."

Doings in Congress

By CONGRESSMAN WILLIAM LEMKE

Congress is back on the job. Last week it started grinding out legislation. Only a few of the many bills before the Congress will be passed before it ends. All bills not passed will die when this Congress ends. Few people realize the number of bills that are introduced. There are now before the Senate and the House 9,000 bills and resolutions. No member has time to wade thru all these bills. Some are short, while others consist of fifty or more pages.

Under the rules, the same as in your state legislatures, they are referred to committees. CELEBRATE 50TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

In a beautiful setting of flowers, blooming plants, the companionship of children, grandchildren and near relatives, and surrounded by many home comforts, Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Pittenger received friends on Tuesday afternoon and evening, their 50th wedding anniversary.

The bride couldn't have looked more attractive fifty years ago than on Tuesday, and the bridegroom was the same proud lover for he gave her an orchid to wear on this special occasion, which matched her wife velvet dress in which she was attired. Happiness radiated from this home which they built twenty years ago. They have lived in town the past thirty years. They have been residents of this community all their lives. They enjoy the confidence and respect of all citizens, and are worthy in every way of the esteem of relatives and friends. The shower of gifts were many and useful. The table decorations were lovely with a large bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums in the center. Their two daughters, Ruth and Grace, received with their parents, and presented the hospital-ty of th thome.

The pictures were the courtesy of the Shiloh Community Grange which both couples are members.

The 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Keester was quietly observed by the immediate family, June 3 of this year. The Grange showered them with honors May 17. They too have been residents of the community all of their lives and enjoy the same positions socially and fraternally.

Well Known Citizen Dies

Last rites for Mrs. Della Iretta Arnold were held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the McQuate funeral home. She was born on a farm southeast of Shiloh, June 8, 1866 and was the daughter of Andy and Catherine Lybarger. She had lived on the home farm nearly all her life. She was a highly respected citizen, and a faithful wife and home-maker.

Surviving are three sons, Darley C. Frank and Wood, all of this place; Wood resides on the old farm; two daughters, Mrs. H. D. Myers of Greenwich, and Mrs. C. H. McQuate of Shiloh; one sister, Mrs. Elmer Garrett, also of Shiloh; eight grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Rev. Henry E. Boehm of the Lutheran church, officiated and burial was made in Mt. Hope cemetery.

UNDERGOES OPERATION

Mrs. William Noble was taken to the Willard hospital in the McQuate ambulance, Saturday, where she underwent an operation.

MRS. FLORA WARD DIES

McNeal of Florence, O., Mr. and Mrs. Everett Clay and two sons, Norwalk, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Powers of Attica, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Guthrie, Shiloh, and Mr. Chris Weber of Plymouth.

GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

The golden wedding celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Studer at their home in Norwalk, Sunday, Nov. 26, was a festive occasion, when sixty relatives gathered to pay their respects and to enjoy the hospitality of this lovable couple. Assisting in receiving were their three daughters, Mrs. Esther Powers, Mrs. Marie Babcock and Mrs. Irene Powers.

During the afternoon a brief program was presented consisting of the presentation of a "gold brick" and the reading of an original poem by one of the relatives together with a dramatic sketch of the lives of the bride and groom of fifty years ago. A wedding supper was served the guests at which all those over fifty years of age were seated at a table beautifully decorated with flowers, favors and a three-tier wedding cake for a center piece. Mrs. Studer is a sister of Mrs. Marie Babcock, who attended the affair with her son Gordon and Mrs. Earl Hankammer.

HOLIDAY GUESTS

Thanksgiving Day, Mr. & Mrs. Whitney Briggs served a turkey dinner to the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. Harry Briggs, Sr., and daughters, Mrs. Lucille Pollock of Mansfield, Betty, Zanette, and Margaret; Mrs. Harry Briggs, Jr., and children, Mr. and Mrs. Leland Briggs and children, Miss Florence Danner, Mrs. Edna Rhine and W. Anderson, and Mrs. Tom Garret. Cards were the diversion of the evening and all had a good time.

BIRTHDAY REMEMBERED

Sunday guests of Mr. & Mrs. Harry Briggs, Sr., were their daughter, Mrs. Lucille Pollock of Mansfield; Miss Florence Danner and W. J. Hatch.

Saturday being the birthday of Mrs. Briggs, she received many cards and gifts from her family and friends, including a beautiful birthday cake from her daughters, which was cut on Sunday when they served a dinner in her honor.

TOURIST CLUB ENTERTAINED

The Tourist club met Monday evening, Nov. 20th in the Stacy Brown home on North street. Mrs. Brown was hostess to nine members of the club and one guest, Mrs. Ringinger of Seattle, Wash. Following a lovely dinner Mrs. Ruth Nimmons had charge of the study hour. Two Central American countries were discussed, Nicaragua and El Salvador. After a short social period the club adjourned to meet December 4th, when Mrs. Nimmons will be the hostess and Mrs. Anna Root will have charge of the program.

KITCHEN SHOWER GIVEN BRIDE-ELECT

In honor of the approaching marriage of Miss Anna Mae Steele, a kitchen shower was given at the home of Miss Mary Ann BeVier, on Friday, Nov. 24.

Part of the evening was spent playing games, the prizes being presented to the bride-to-be later in the evening when she opened her presents.

Refreshments were served at the close of the evening. Those present were Misses Mirabelle Weller, Juanita Korman, Jeanette Chapman, Arline Ford, Francine Fortney, Zanette Briggs, Phyllis Miller, Joyce Archer, Anna Mae Steele, Mrs. Fred Schneider, and the hostess, Miss Adriana Franks, who was unable to be present, remembered Anna Mae with a lovely gift.

TWENTIETH CENTURY CIRCLE HOLDS THANKSGIVING MEETING

The Thanksgiving meeting of the Twentieth Century Circle was held Monday evening in the home of Mrs. Barriet Robinson. During the business meeting Miss May Fleming read a pamphlet is-ued by the "American Society for Prevention of Cancer," and it was decided to ask Mrs. E. R. Haines to speak on the subject after Christmas.

Mrs. Bechtel spoke in her usual interesting manner on "Women of the Old Testament," choosing Eve, Cain's wife, Sarah, Rebecca, Leah, Rachel, Jezebel and Michal, daughter of Saul, whose infidelity she disclosed only after some incorrect suggestions had been proffered.

Mrs. Stacy Brown, in presenting her prepared paper on "Women of the New Testament," said that "the remarkable thing about women of the Bible is that such complete portraits have been made of so few words." She chose Martha and Mary, Mary Magdalene, the wife of Pilate, the Samaritan Women and the Virgin Mary.

Ms. Berntha Hoffman's subject was "A Thanksgiving Reading." She read of the first Thanksgiving in the year 1621, also the Indian tribes had celebrated a Festival of Harvest for years before, and stated that Sarah Joseph Hale, editor of "Godey's Lady's Book" is the real founder of the day for Thanksgiving.

The subject for the call was "Let Us Give Thanks." Mrs. Earnest will be hostess for the Christmas meeting. Members are asked to remember the exchange of Christmas gifts.

MISS GONGWER WEDS REV. WOLF

Miss Marjorie E. Gongwer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Gongwer, 53 Parkwood blvd., of Mansfield, became the bride of Rev. Richard C. Wolf, son of Rev. and Mrs. N. S. Wolf of Bloomsburg, Pa., Saturday, Nov. 25, at 7 o'clock in the evening before the altar of the Central Methodist church.

Officiating at the double ring ceremony was Rev. N. S. Wolf, brother of the bridegroom, who was assisted by Rev. J. Frank Stewart pastor of the Central Methodist church.

Preceding the ceremony, Miss Elizabeth Burneson presented a half-hour's program of organ music including Bridal Song by Bald win, Intermezzo by Provoets, Liebestraum by Liszt, I Love Thee by Grieg, Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin by Wagner and Wedding March by Mendelssohn.

Miss Kathryn Raw, instructor of music in the Bowman street school, sang two selections, "Be- hold," by P. Hardon and "O Perfect Love," by Burleigh.

Palms and ferns with two large baskets of white chrysanthemums and pompons decorated the altar. Tapers in four seven-branched candelabra furnished illumination.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of heavy ivory satin. The fitted bodice was fashioned with a square neckline. The train of the lovely gown closed with tiny self covered buttons. The long tight fitted sleeves ended in points over the hands. A train extended from the long, full skirt.

Miss Gongwer wore her sister's (Mrs. Harold Worner) finger-tip length tulle veil, attached to a cap of ivory lace.

She carried a small white Bible on which was placed a white orchid with a shower of satin ribbon. Her jewelry was a strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Harold Worner was matron of honor, and the bridesmaids, Helen Myers of Elkhart, Ind., sorority sister of the bride, and Dorothy Lee Hill of Cincinnati, former college roommate, were bridesmaids. The gowns of the attendants were of white taffeta fashioned similar to that of the bride's with sweetheart necklines and short puffed sleeves.

Mrs. Worner carried an arm bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums tied with matching ribbon, and the bridesmaids carried identical bouquets of lavender chrysanthemums. The three attendants wore latticed taffeta head bands of white.

Rev. J. Louis Wolf of Lakewood was best man for his brother. Seating the guests were Sherman Mott of Delaware, Rev. David Mumford of Bucyrus, Morris Oldham of Ann Arbor, Mich., and Harold Worner of Mansfield.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Gongwer chose two-piece deep velvet dress of sheer crepe with black accessories. She wore a corsage of orchids as did Mrs. Wolf with her black crepe and ice blue trim and black accessories.

Following the ceremony, a reception for friends and relatives was held in the church parlors. For her wedding trip, the new Mrs. Wolf wears a dressmaker suit of black wool with black accessories. Her topper was of gold color.

Mrs. Wolf is a graduate of Ashland college and Ohio State university. She is a member of the Delta Kappa Gamma and Phi Delta Gamma societies. Employed as a teacher at Bowman school, Mrs. Wolf is an art instructor. Rev. Wolf is the instructor of Christian church history in the Lutheran Seminary at Gettysburg, Pa., and is acting pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church at Spring Grove, Pa. He is a graduate of Gettysburg College, Lutheran Theological Seminary of Gettysburg and Yale Divinity School.—Mansfield News-Journal.

Attend Services

Friends from this community attending the nuptials were Mrs. Helen Hoffman and daughter Susie, Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Clayton of Mechanicburg, Ohio, Mrs. Albert Hoffman, Mrs. Mildred Irene Woodworth MacMichael, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Pickens, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Thorne of Columbus, Mr. and Mrs. James White of Ft. Wayne, Ind., Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Ford and daughters, Miss Leon Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. James Root, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Stoodt and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Stoodt, Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. Orva Dawson of the Shelby Boy.

MARRIAGE LICENSE
A marriage license was issued at Norwalk to Dan G. Woolley, 31, and Dorothy J. Brown, 23, both of the Shelby Air Depot. Rev. Stanley Stall named to officiate.

TAX DATE HELD UP
County Treasurer H. B. Collier announces that the payment of the first half 1944 real estate taxes will be extended beyond December 30th.

Due to the fact that the several school districts were required to vote a renewal of levies at the November 7th election, approval of the rates by the State Tax Commission will not be forthcoming until mid-December, necessitating a postponement.

Statements for the tax-year of 1944 will be sent out in advance of the final notice date, which cannot be determined at this time. Each statement will have the final date for the first half and the second half plainly stamped on its face.

MOTHERS TO ORGANIZE

Mothers who have sons and daughters in the Service are eligible to join the Blue Star Mothers organization in Plymouth. This is a new organization here and the first meeting will be held on next Wednesday, Dec. 7, at 7:30 o'clock in the home of Mrs. Mabel McFadden.

Fifteen members are necessary before a charter is granted, and the preliminary steps will be outlined at this meeting. It is possible a number of officers from nearby towns will be present to help in getting the club started.

If you are interested in becoming a member of the Blue Star Mothers, be on hand next Wednesday.

ASKS ACCOUNTING
