BOY SCOUT COURT OF HONOR HELD THURSDAY NIGHT IN PLYMOUTH

In keeping with the trend of activities in observance of National Scout Week, the Johnny Appleseed Area Court of Honor was held last Thursday night at the Plymouth High school, and was well attended by citizens, citizens, and Scout officials from Shelby, Mansfield, Plymouth and Willard. The court was outstanding in three unusual events, the chartering of the first Air Scout Squadron in the area, headed by Harry Kemp, and to be known as the Parsel Air Scout Squadron 1 of Plymouth, Ohio. After the awarding of the charters, the squadron leader, Harry Kemp, administered the oath to the six members, Fred Wirth, Wayne Rose, Eldon Sourwine, Richard Wharton, Russell Baker and Jack Hampton at the impressive ceremony featuring the new members in the constellation of the great dipper signifying the seven stars in the constellation of the dipper.

Another event was the presentation of the membership cards of the 53 members of the Air Scout Squadron who are the new members serving with our country's armed forces. The court had three of the boys present to receive their membership cards, parents of those absent were given their cards. Scoutmaster Don Eisel, introduced the service men as William Day and Pfc. Harvey Robinson, U. S. Army, and Bill Fetters, fireman first class of the U. S. Army. Scoutmaster Eisel explained that the Victory Patrol was a recent activity set up by the Scout office of the Boy Scouts of America, Inc., recognizing and honoring past Scouts who have entered military service and a handsome banner was given to Plymouth Troop 1 to be permanently displayed in the troop room in honor of the boys and others who shall follow them. The third event was the ceremony of the court proper.

Give Addresses
E. E. Markley, of the Methodist Laymen's sponsorship group gave opening address. Rev. Floyd Dent, area Scout executive, who spoke on the subject of "The Worth of a Scout's Life." The audience rose to salute as three Eagle Scouts, Paul Scott, Gordon Sealbols and Sid Thomas of Plymouth, serving as color bearers, marched into the hall and the oath of allegiance to the flag was reaffirmed by the entire assembly.

Area President, L. A. Ott of Mansfield, gave a short address entitled "Scoutship is a Boy's Duty." The official court was held to order by Rex Ryder of Shelby, who first introduced the court. The court was presided over by the new warden of the second class. Next was the introduction of the new court scribe, James Carver, of Troop 1, Plymouth. Troop 2, Shelby, headed by Scoutmaster Edward Robinson.

The improvement calls for a bituminous treatment of approximately seven miles of the highway, and the contract will be let on March 7, 1944. ### No-Time Change Here

There's going to be a choice of time for Sunday night Masses, if you're going to fast time, while Shelby and Plymouth will remain on slow time. Willard had been operating on fast time for several months.

Mayor Wirth pointed out Wednesday that when the ordinance was drawn up last year, the dates for changing were put into the ordinance, and since this project in Plymouth will remain on slow time until March 13, when the clocks will be moved up, planning on traveling, always figure out whether you're an hour ahead or behind—and when you visit, making boring towns, consult a time table—you'll need it for the next few weeks.

ON ALL FRONT

Beating Japan's Torpedo Planes

By Frank Morris

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Collier's Weekly.)

I was on the bridge of a Pacific fleet aircraft carrier. Suddenly, straight as an arrow, a Jap torpedo plane came on less than 40 feet above the water and headed directly for our starboard bow. Through the sights, it looked to the gunners on this sixteen-foot-deck to be under fire for the first time, like one of those wooden miniatures they had learned to identify in shipboard lectures as a Mitsubishi 97 single-engine low-wing job.

But this was no model. Its size doubled every second until you could see the pilot plainly. On its came, unhesitating, malevolent into a stippled wall of steel built at its nose under the big ship's forefoot. A half-minute later another torpedo plane came skimming at us from the starboard quarter. Our gunners swung their mounts around sharply, opened fire and caught it squarely in midair before it could launch its fish. A puff of black smoke, a burst of orange flame and the Mitsubishi crashed into the sea.

The third plane in the attacking team made its run right on schedule in just another 20 seconds. This one hit the water. The force of the starboard side. Our gunners continued again. The blast of their shells tore the left wing apart, and the plane pitched to one side as it dropped its fish. The Jap pilot attempted to pull out of his spin, but his plane was beyond control and plunged into the water. The torpedo, meanwhile, streaked on past the carrier's stern, missing it by an uncomfortable margin.

"Wheel! Three runs, no hits, three errors." A baseball fan standing at a microphone of Carrier X announced the score.

Three more torpedo planes, using the same tactics, tried another attack on our task force half an hour later. This time they selected as their target one of our sister carriers zigzagging along a few miles to port of Carrier X. They had no better luck. The guns on every ship in the vicinity concentrated on them until each in turn was shot down before it could do any damage. For a while, we thought Carrier Y was in danger, when one of the planes exploding in the air appeared to be heading for a crash landing on her flight deck. However, it dove into the water on her port side, and the flaming wreckage drifted astern.

Both of these attacks on us, made shortly after noon, were inspired by revenge. That morning we had twined the Sun Emperor's royal fleet. Our task force sent its planes in—hundreds of them—to pay a visit at Kwajalein, a Japanese stronghold in the western Marshall Islands.

That visit had done the Japs any good, for it messed up some of their cruisers and other ships in Kwajalein harbor, destroyed a sizeable amount of the imperial air force and disrupted things in general. So flinging these suicide torpedo planes at us was just an example of blind fury, and we suspected there would be more of them tossed at us throughout that day and night.

Apparently what made the Japs particularly resentful was the fact that our task force had penetrated deep into an area they had believed to be impervious to an enemy surface force.

Sleam Past Jap Bases.

To get within bombing range of Kwajalein, our carriers and escort ships had to steam for most of 24 hours through passages between islands the Japs had been using for months as air bases and military outposts. Rear Admiral "Baldy" Fownall thumbed his nose at Wotje and Makopy as he guided his task force past these Jap island air bases to reach his objective. It was a bold maneuver and one the Japs knew nothing about until the first bombs and torpedoes struck Kwajalein.

"I WAS CONSTIPATED FOR MANY YEARS!"
Now I'm "Regular" Every Morning!

Constipated? Then here's an unsolicited letter you'll want to read: "I'd been troubled with common constipation for many years. I was taking laxatives and pills all the time, and feeling very weak and run down. I started again eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN daily. Now I have a regular, natural movement every morning, which helps me feel my best."—Gerald D. Hunt, 252 Kings Highway, Brooklyn, New York.

What is this seeming magic of KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN? Scientists say it's because KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN can really "get at" a common cause of constipation—namely, lack of sufficient "cellulose" elements in the diet. KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is one of Nature's most effective sources of these elements, which help the friendly colonic flora fluff up and prepare the colonic wastes for easy, natural elimination. KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is not a purgative. Doesn't work by "sweeping out." It's a gentle-cleansing, "regulating" food!

If you have constipation of this type, eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN or several ALL-BRAN muffins regularly. Drink plenty of water. See if you don't find lasting relief! Insist on genuine ALL-BRAN, made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of our dear uncle, Otis Moore, who passed away one year ago, Feb. 24, 1943: A precious one from us has gone, a voice we loved is no more. A place is vacant in our hearts, which never can be filled.

God in his wisdom has recalled the boon His love has given; And though the body slumbers now, His soul is safe in thee.

'Tis hard to break the tender cord When love has bound the heart, 'Tis hard, so hard, to speak the words: "We must on this earth part."

Doings In Congress

By Cong. Wm. Lemke.

LET US NOT BE BLIND KITTENS. Let us open our eyes and see what is going on. We are at war. It seems far away, it is real. It is not and has not been to the fathers and the mothers and the wives and the children that receive their news from the papers of the ones nearest and dearest to them.

WHILE OUR SOLDIERS ARE sacrificing their lives and limbs in the winning of the war on foreign battlefields, it is our duty to protect the homefront. It is our duty to keep the American farmer and the American factory going so that when our soldiers return they may again readjust themselves into civilian life.

UNFORTUNATELY THERE IS a little clique in some of the alphabetical set-ups that is selling the American farmer, laborer and small manufacturer in foreign market places. Some of these alphabetical set-ups are entirely under control and influence of foreign people—not citizens of the United States.

ONE OF THE LATEST REVELATIONS is that our Government now owns half a billion pounds of foreign wool. That another half a billion pounds is in storage here. This half a billion pounds is not here under bond. In addition, we now import 600,000,000 pounds of foreign wool annually. It is now admitted by these alphabetical set-ups that every suit of clothes that was bought by our men and women within the last two years was made out of foreign wool while our domestic wool is being pilped.

WHEN ONE OF THE AGENTS of the International WPA that we have just created was asked to buy some of this Government wool he stated that he could buy foreign wool cheaper. This, although, we furnish 60 per cent of all the money for this International WPA while the other 44 nations, together furnish only 40 per cent. At a meeting of Members of Congress it was conceded that unless this huge surplus of wool was gradually marketed, and unless imports were checked the wool market would be completely demoralized.

OUR TAXPAYERS ARE BUILDING railroads in Latin-America and oil pipe lines in Canada and Iran. Some of our government agencies are even undercover training foreign citizens along agricultural and industrial lines. These at the expense of the taxpayers are secretly being sent from State to State to inspect American agriculture and American factories. This so that they can produce these products more efficiently for our international banks and manufacturers in foreign lands with cotton and peon labor.

THE INTERNATIONAL CLIQUE is clever. It works through the metropolitan press, the radio and theatres. It owns and finances attractive magazines. It even got its poisonous tentacles into our churches and schools. It works on people's sympathy rather than on their better judgment and intellect. Its foreign complex is now being revealed in all its ugliness. I am confident that it will now be completely repudiated and that never again will its treason endanger the life of the American Republic.

LESSON LEARNED IN LAST WAR?

WE AMERICANS are a magnificent people. We will fight for what we believe in but when the going gets tough, we take him by the hand, put him on his feet and assist him to a speedy recovery. We did just that following World War I. We were largely responsible for the acceptance of an armistice. We fought for lenient terms for the defeated enemy in opposition to Clemenceau and Lloyd George. We loaned the enemy money—which he did not repay—which to him was his quick recovery. We did not understand the German character.

I know a German gardener, now a loyal American citizen, and he knows the German character. I will remember my first conversation with him some two years ago. World War II was just opening so far as we were concerned. Our conversation turned to that subject.

"It was a mistake for the First World War to have stopped before the Allied armies marched into Berlin," he said, "before the German people had fully realized what was on the home soil meant to them. Had they had that lesson, a Hitler would not have been possible and this war would not have happened."

That German-American gardener understands, better than I do, the German people. He knows the lesson they must have before the idea of world dominance is removed from their minds.

This time let us hope it will be different. May we have "unconditional surrender" in all that implies and as amplified by the Teheran conference. May there be no bargaining as to terms. May the German people know, as they have made others know, what the word on the home soil means, actual land war as well as air bombing. Germany, it seems, will learn only the hard way, just as the French under Napoleon, had to learn the hard way. We hope for no softening of the terms but should we, in a new burst of self-minded generosity, urge such a thing, the Russians will complete the job that must be done if Germany is to learn that war does not pay, that might does not make right.

CHISELERS AND WAGE EFFORT
IN THE SLUSH AND SNOW and mud of Italy, in the slimy tropical jungles of the islands of the South Pacific, in the air over Germany, Burma and China, men are fighting and dying that we and they may remain free. They are doing their part of the job on the battlefronts with no thought of personal advantage.

It is the rare exception for any of us on the home front to not have someone dear to us—a son, grandson, husband, brother, nephew, or friends—numbered among those on the battlefronts. One and all those dear ones offered everything, including life, that we might continue to enjoy the blessings of liberty.

Under such conditions it is not easy to imagine any of those on the home front using their talents as a means to personal gain. Who of the producers of food, plants, tanks, ships and guns are so base as to make of the needs of a nation their means for extra profits, a few paltry dollars. There are some such chiselers. Who of the workers are so base as to use the efforts of the men who are a club with which to enforce demands for increased wages? That there are some such chiselers was again demonstrated when several thousand coal miners refused to sign a closed shop on Armistice day because they would not be paid time and one-half.

All such chiselers, whether they be the producers of goods, or the workers in the mines, factories and on the farms, are not loyal citizens. They are traitors, not alone to their government, but to those dear to them serving on the battlefronts.

'I'LL GET INTO AN ARGUMENT WITH GENE TUNNEY OR ANYBODY ELSE WHO SAYS THAT FOOTBALL HAS NO TRAINING ADVANTAGE IN THE ARMED FORCES.

The speaker was Lieut. Tom Harmon, former Michigan All-American halfback recently recuperated from burns suffered when he bailed out of his blazing plane in China last October.

Harmon isn't exactly soft-spoken in speaking of the value of athletics to the armed services. His feelings are positive. In a recent interview he expressed himself quite forcibly on the subject.

"Speaking merely as a former football player, I want to say that American pilots excel Axis fliers because they are better conditioned, and the reason is that they have played organized sports since they were kids."

He asserted that American pilots have a "tremendous advantage" in aerial battles—"they don't like to lose, and when somebody is throwing lead at you, it makes a big difference."

"When I walked out of the jungles last spring and got back from that raid in China last fall, my fewest training really counted. I don't think I could have made it either time without that advantage."

"That advantage" is an important one. Two men may be similarly strong, intelligent, weight and the other factors which influence the survival of the fittest. But if only one of the men has had athletic training nine out of ten times he's the man who comes through with flying colors in an emergency.

Outgoing Divided

Looking Baseball More than one major league club owner, with an unparalleled number of private problems, is distinctly pessimistic over the 1944 outlook for big league baseball.

Sam Breadon, president of the St. Louis Cardinals, probably voiced a minority opinion when he expressed serious doubts about baseball's chances of operating during the coming season. In the gleamiest statement made to date by any major league executive he said: "The way players are being taken by the draft, it does seem questionable whether they will have enough left to start the season."

The Cardinal prey said he considered 19 players—eight, pitchers, two catchers, five infielders and four batters—the absolute minimum with which a club could go through the season.

Checking over his available major league roster he discovered that he did not have 19 men he could depend on definitely to start the race in April.

Dual Problem

Dewitt stated that "there's a dual problem not only of having enough players but of having players of major league caliber. After all, we can't put a municipal league team on the field."

Peckinpaugh agreed with Breadon's estimate of a 19-man minimum, adding: "Right now we have—or think we have—at least 25 men, but what we'll have two weeks from now is problematical. We're all in the same boat, at least."

Dwarf Fruit Trees Suited to Gardens

Smaller Plants Produce More; Easy to Handle

While dwarfing of fruit trees is a common practice in Europe, there has been comparatively little interest in this practice in this country, says W. L. Howard, a University of California professor of pomology. In "Home Fruit Growing in California" he outlines the advantages of this method of cultivation in small orchards and home gardens.

European, he says, have perfected special methods of training known as espalier and cordon, with numerous variations, which cause the trees so treated to be smaller than normal. Climatic conditions of western and southern Europe are very well adapted to fruit growing, and the people as a whole are far more interested in their fruit trees than we are. Since, however, land is scarce and the average citizen with a tiny garden wants to grow as many things as possible, dwarf fruit trees seem to have been the answer.

Small Deciduous Trees. Most if not all of our deciduous trees are reduced below their normal size in three general ways: by heavy pruning, especially in summer; by partially starving the roots by confining them in pots or boxes; or by cutting them up. The roots of other trees that naturally grow more slowly or remain smaller. The use of dwarf or partially dwarfing trees in the modern city are employed both here and abroad, although careful pruning is important in holding down excessive wood growth and in keeping dwarfed trees both small and fruitful.

Although pears are commonly grown as dwarfs in this country, dwarf apples are seldom seen. In Europe peach trees are reduced in size in order to adapt them to cold foggy climates by growing them against walls or under glass. The small need for such special-purpose trees in this country accounts for their scarcity.

Dwarfing a tree is popularly supposed to shorten its life. This is not necessarily true, although in practice dwarf trees are often permitted to overbear and consequently do not live so long as they might otherwise do. Under expert management such as English and French gardeners give their trees, dwarf peaches, for example, may live to an age of 75 years.

Dwarf Apples.

The Paradise apple, a natural dwarf, serves as a stock for reducing the size of any variety of apple grafted upon it. On this tree, trees may be so much reduced in size that they can be grown in 10- or 12-inch flower pots. If planted in the ground they will range in height from three to six feet, the height depending upon the variety. The training they receive—that is, the kind of pruning—has much to do with their size. The Doucin apple is a natural half-dwarf. Varieties grafted upon that root attain about half their normal size.

Dwarf apples are trained to various shapes. The young trees are often set two or three feet apart and made fast to a three-way trellis for no particular purpose except the ornamental effect they give. They are generally tilted over at an angle of about 35 degrees and kept pruned to a system of spurs. They will begin bearing the second year. This is a favorite method of training in the English fruit gardens, but the trees require much detailed attention. It would be safer for the amateur to set them about four feet apart.

Dwarf apple trees usually bear too heavily but if judiciously thinned, will produce larger fruit than the same variety does on standard roots. Even with only fair treatment, dwarf apples should live for 25 years, provided they are kept fertilized, are properly pruned, and are not allowed to overbear—the last being the most important. Under ideal conditions they will live much longer.

Homemade Egg Candler

It is not unreasonable to believe that the public will lose confidence in baseball if it isn't sound enough to last through a crisis. Along with that loss of confidence would come a loss of interest. Just one season without baseball and the game would lose some of its standing as the all-American game. No matter how many men there are on the roster next year, and no matter how ancient or decrepit they are, each major league club should operate on a year-to-year basis, of course. The only way to do this is to have a...

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

With synthetic tires experts emphasize again that speed is important in determining tire mileage. The legal limit of 25 m.p.h. has been found to be the best mileage conservator with synthetics, just as it was with tires of crude rubber.

Tire cords lose elasticity as they grow older, which accounts for many blowouts when a well-worn tire strikes a rough spot in the road.

War-time regulations are saving nearly 200 million less miles a year for the country's highway transportation system. Converted into tires, this conserved mileage means a lot to the rubber program.
