

GENE CORNELL KILLED IN ACTION ON INVASION DAY

Staff Sgt. Gene Cornell, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Cornell, was killed in action, Tuesday, June 6, over England, according to a telegram from the War Department received here Tuesday of this week. While no details of Gene's death have been received, it is believed that he was in the great air armada which gave protection to our forces on Invasion Day.

Young Cornell, so far, is the first Richland county casualty reported as a result of the invasion drive. Pvt. Emerson Snyder, 33, of Lucas, has been reported as killed in action in France, June 8, two days after the invasion began. Gene was born Aug. 12, 1921, spending his entire life in Plymouth. He graduated from Plymouth high school in 1939, and for a few months attended an art school in Cleveland. Returning to his home, he assisted his father in the grocery store.

On October 6, 1942 he entered the service at Camp Perry where he remained one week. He chose aerial warfare, through letters, vocation through, was in many camps over the country. His training sent him to Atlantic City for two weeks, then to Santa Monica, N. C., and to Santa Monica, Calif. He had six weeks training in the desert at Dagdet, Calif., and from there to Henderson Field in Florida. He also had training in other camps at Salt Lake City, Los Angeles, Calif., Tucson, Ariz., and Alamogordo, New Mexico. Then on December 25, 1943 Gene's group assembled at Lincoln, Neb., for the take-off for overseas service. He was stationed in England, near London.

Young Cornell, a top turret gunner aerial engineer, saw action over Berlin, Paris and other Nazi held cities and territory. In a recent letter home, he indicated he had made 15 missions over enemy territory, and had seen more than once the heart of Berlin. Besides his parents, Gene leaves four brothers, Arthur of Shelby; Robert, who is in the coast guard, and stationed at Ft. Stevens, Ore.; Lawrence (Pete) in the artillery, and last stationed in New Guinea, and Weldon Cornell of Plymouth; one sister, Mrs. Harriet Harrington, of Mansfield, also survives.

Community Shocked
Although two hundred young men from this community are in the armed services throughout this war, news of Gene Cornell's death was a great shock, not only to his family, but to hundreds of

A. F. NORRIS RITES FRIDAY

WELL KNOWN CITIZEN DIES AT SHELBY HOSPITAL AFTER LONG ILLNESS.

A cerebral hemorrhage proved fatal Tuesday evening at 9:45 to Allen French Norris, 59, at the Shelby hospital. Mr. Norris has been a semi-invalid for the past 18 months as the result of a stroke from which he never recovered. Sunday morning he was removed to the hospital when his condition became worse and he passed away there Tuesday evening.

Mr. Norris was born in Portage, Ohio, August 3, 1884, the son of Edmund and Elizabeth Norris. While a resident of Plymouth for many years, he had been employed as a clerk at the B. & O. Railway in Willard. He was a member of Richland Lodge, F. & A. M. No. 201.

Survivors include his widow, Lula, two daughters, Mrs. Raymond Hatch of Shelby, Mrs. Glen West of Plymouth, and two sons, Allen Jr., with the U. S. Army in England, and Russell with the U. S. Army at the Embarkation Center in New York. One sister, Mrs. W. S. Wallace of Genoa, O., and one brother, E. A. Norris of Toledo, and one grandchild, also survives.

Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at 1 p. m., at the Miller-McQuate funeral home with Rev. E. R. Haines, pastor of the Methodist church officiating. Interment will be made in North Baltimore, Ohio.

friends and acquaintances. He is the second in the armed forces to die in action from Plymouth. The late Capt. Elmer Parsell was killed in April, 1942, when his airplane crashed into a tree in India as he was taking off to meet the enemy.

The youngest of the family, Gene grew up in the community and into a personality that made him a friend to everyone. His association through the years in his father's business added to his knowledge and understanding of people.

After leaving home and entering the service, he was devoted to his work, through letters, many of which have been published in the Advertiser, and they brought humor to our readers.

Gene was thoughtful, tactful and understanding, possessing an unusually pleasing disposition. It is but natural that a community who has known a young man of this calibre, joins in with the family in their bereavement in the loss of son and brother and a very promising young citizen.

COLLECT SCRAP PAPER MONDAY

LOCAL SCOUTS TAKE TROPHY FOR SECOND CONSECUTIVE YEAR.

Members of the local Boy Scout organization will contact homes in the village, MONDAY, morning, June 26. The truck will start from the Square at about 8:00 o'clock.

Citizens are asked to set out all waste paper, magazines, cardboard, newspapers or rags. Paper is a very vital necessity to our boys overseas, as practically everything they have or own is either shipped to them in cardboard or is wrapped or made from paper.

Let's not let them down at a time like this and back them to the fullest. Plymouth stands high among the villages in Richland county. An effort is being made to make Ohio a 5 pounds per person state. If this is to be the case, Plymouth will have to meet a quota of approximately 8500 lbs. of waste paper. This goal has been nearer in past drives, but let us best that quota this time and show the boys we are behind them to the fullest extent.

If you are not going to be at home Monday morning, please cooperate by putting your paper on the porch where it can be seen from the street.
Our many thanks to the citizens of Plymouth for their splendid cooperation in past drives.

Survivors include one son, Alto Brown of Shaker Heights, and one daughter, Miss Ruby Brown of Lakewood, two grandchildren and two sisters, Mrs. Frank Kenestrick and Mrs. Walter Trush, both of Plymouth.

Mrs. Brown was a devout member of the Methodist church and its various organizations, taking an active part until the past six months when her health began to fail, and she went to make her home with her son, Alto, in Shaker Heights.

Quiet and reserved, Mrs. Brown was a good neighbor, a loyal friend and will be sadly missed not only by her immediate family but her many friends as well. Fire, fanned by a strong wind, swept through the Mittwanga summer resort on Lake Erie on Monday, destroying six summer homes, several garages, damaging five others and the Keewadyn hotel, causing a loss estimated at $40,000.

The fire started at the home of John Strutton, manager of the Norwalk Home Savings & Loan Co., when sparks from a chimney set a roof on fire. The house was destroyed. The annex of the hotel was also destroyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Myers, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bachrach and family are vacationing at the resort this month. Mr. Myers and Mr. Bachrach had returned to Plymouth Monday morning before the fire, but upon arriving here they received a call to return at once. The Myers car was somewhat damaged by the intense heat, and two other cars were lost in the blaze.

Forty years of wedded life is a long time, and being a physician in the community for that period, Dr. Searle has made many friends who will be glad to take the opportunity to congratulate him and Mrs. Searle on this occasion. If only "Doc's" babies were to come by the event, there would be over 1300 people at the Searle home next Wednesday.

Mrs. Searle, since making Plymouth her home, has been active

WANT BETTER SECOND STARTS

Although all veterans discharged from the armed forces have the right to get back the jobs they had before the war if they want them, only 25% discharged so far have applied for their old jobs. Since discharged veterans are now entering industry at the rate of 70,000 per month, this probably indicates a trend that will continue when the war is over.

Today the majority of returned veterans are seeking work in war factories, which explains to some extent their lack of interest in their former place of employment. But undoubtedly there are a large number of young men who were dissatisfied with the work they were doing before the war and will make every effort to get off to a more attractive second start when they return.

What type of work will be most popular among the returning soldiers and sailors will depend on conditions and opportunities at the time, but it is expected that a large percentage of city boys will look for opportunities in small towns and rural areas. Having compared notes with fellow soldiers from country towns, many a boy who has always lived in the city will realize that life is less hectic and more complete away from the maddening crowd. If the opportunities are available, there is little doubt that the postwar trend will be away from the cities.

SPLENDID INVASION REPORTING

Radio newsmen are to be congratulated on the splendid eyewitness accounts of the invasion which they risked their lives to obtain. Their dramatic accounts, recorded on ships during battle, while flying through the air in parachutes, on the beach or under fire, set down a new record in bringing to the people the most realistic picture ever obtained of what our boys are going through.

It seems to us that, by these broadcasts, radio may have found its place in the news world. It has proved, beyond any dispute, that it can, under such circumstances, bring the people something they cannot obtain through reading. One of the newsmen writing for newspapers set down an equally outstanding job of reporting the invasion under fire, and their accounts will be cherished as the most authentic documents tracing the history of the war.

But the thing that struck us after both reading the newspaper accounts and listening to the radio broadcasts was the fact that there was no feeling of repetition or of one reporter or the other getting the news first—each was performing a separate function and both were equally interesting to the public.

MAKE CANDIDATES SHOW COLOR

It is time for the citizens of the United States to realize they are approaching one of the most critical national elections in the history of our nation. Basic principles are involved which affect the continuation of our constitutional form of government. They are in no way connected with Republican or Democratic partisan issues. The war our boys are fighting is non-partisan, for the purpose of enlarging liberty and opportunity for all the peoples of the world.

For more than a decade, Republican and Democratic politicians here at home have been promoting so-called "emergency measures" which have bit by bit been restricting the individual in many phases of his daily life. The necessities of war have accelerated this movement, and now it is becoming more evident each day that many bureaucrats in both parties, who have gained a liking for government controls exercised over the individual, are "processing" the people through publicity and propaganda and utopian proposals at government expense, to extend centralized government control permanently or as far as possible into the postwar era.

Anyone who wants to read, can see a deadly parallel between this sugar-coated process and the one which engulfed European peoples and made them slaves to an official aristocracy. How often do you hear a candidate for political office come out and unequivocally praise the United States, its constitutional form of government, the liberties its people enjoy, the luxuries and necessities that have been delivered to them by our industries in a measure far exceeding that enjoyed by any other nation? Too many candidates for public office assume that our philosophy of government and private enterprise have outlived their usefulness; that they must be curbed, changed and controlled; that government must become the dominant factor in our daily lives and that we must ape the teachings of some foreign nation that has brought nothing but misery and disaster to its people.

This process must be reversed. The people must demand men in public office who are proud of the American system. Men who do not give it lip service one minute and in the next breath propose measures that would restrict individual opportunity.

The United States was built on the principle of a government being best which governs least, on the principle that public officials are the servants, not the masters of the people; on the principle that government confine itself to the functions of governing and not enter into activities which compete with the livelihood of the citizens which it taxes. These are basic ideals. They are what our boys are fighting for. Let our losses in independence when government goes in to help us. The business man loses his independence. The boy in school loses his future opportunity. When the government becomes the master, the people become the slaves.

These are fundamental issues on which every candidate for public office on any party ticket should be forced to express himself. In a hundred ways, warning flags are flying to arouse our people to the inroads that are being attempted on American Liberty. As war measures, we will accept any hardships and restrictions necessary to bring victory. But now, as never before, we must safeguard our future by rejecting proposals in which individual liberty and opportunity stand in the ground on which individual liberty and opportunity stand in this nation. You can't accept state socialism, even in small doses, and retain your independence. In the coming postwar era, our people must be the master not the servants of our government. Never in our history was this issue of such paramount importance as in the coming election.

SGT ALEX BACHRACH WRITES A LETTER WHILE IN ENGLAND

This week we are pleased to publish an interesting letter from Sgt. Alexander Bachrach from England. Sgt. Bachrach is the son of Mrs. Josie Bachrach of Plymouth street and, while he has been away from Plymouth a number of years, he still retains his interest here and frequently returned, prior to his induction into the armed forces. Like all other boys he is anxious to complete the work at hand and return to the good old U. S. A.

Sunday, May 14

Dear Friends:
I wanted to write to you long ere this and tell you I am receiving the Advertiser (sometimes a little irregularly due to the overcast mail) and how much I enjoy it and like all the other boys, who are away from home, I read it from cover to cover (even the want ads) and it provides a real tie with home.

It really doesn't seem so many years since we lived next door to each other, but when I read about your Sid and the other boys his age joining up, I guess it has been some time at that, for the years slip by and we don't realize it.

It seems like only a short time ago that we pupils under Supt. Miller were parading around town to the tune of "The Old Schoolhouse ain't what it used to be," campaigning for our new school and then I remember it is 14 years since our first class graduated there and we sure were proud.

I guess from the letter so far you must guess that I am a little homesick today and I am taking it out on you, for no matter how nice they treat us here, none of us would trade any part of our good old U. S. A. for it all.

The pictures you have in the paper are all very interesting and are as good as any published by city papers.

When I finish reading the Advertiser I pass it around to the other boys here in the room, for in spite of the fact they don't know anyone in Plymouth, they find the various columns and pictures of interest to them all.

I am rooming with three other boys, all from Indiana - Evansville, Lafayette (where I went to Purdue) and Elwood, which is Wendell Wilkie's hometown, and which we have a lot of fun kidding him, especially since Wilkie withdrew his hat from the presidential race.

We are having lovely weather over here and the outside is a mass of colors - everyone has a flower garden in the front of their house and a victory garden in the backyard.

Every house is either surrounded by a wall or a neatly maintained hedge and all the homes are either red brick or stucco, but contrary to the way we do at home, people do not trim their window frames and consequently they are quite a drab.

Everything, of course, is strictly rationed over here so all the kiddies are pestering us for candy or gum, but we are rationed too, so become a little selfish which is contrary to American habit, but they all seem fine and healthy, so I feel sure they have enough to eat.

We had a hard time at first getting accustomed to the toilet blackouts at night, but since we have turned our clocks ahead for daylight saving time...

WORK NEARS COMPLETION

Work of the Huron County Board of Revision may be completed in about two weeks. W. E. Wilkins, a representative of the Clevelinshaw Auditing Co., which made the recent periodical reappraisal of Huron county real estate, has been co-operating with the board in the matters of complaints filed by owners of business blocks, industries and similar establishments. It is stated that many of the complaints of excessive valuation appear to be groundless.

dark summer time, it doesn't get dark until about 10:30 or 11:00; but it sure will be grand to see the bright lights again, and we all hope it won't be too long yet until we will see them.

Everyone of us is awaiting the opening of the second front and we are all anxious to get into it and have it over with as we all know there will be a glorious ending for the Allies and believe me the morale of everyone is the highest and we are all full of confidence.

CHAPTER X

Mrs. Manvers-Pollock, a guest at Pole Star House, off the coast of England, believes that signaling is going on at night. She says John Wynter, a government agent who has come from London to check up, and he notes a very important signal the darkness. He asks the signpost, Alfred Cummins, to show a message to the darkness. Later Informer Wynter that "that man" is at the hotel, and has taken a rooming house. Wynter details Cummins to watch the man and report back to the office. Fergus Letier, a Nazi spy, in the shop of the girl, loves, and who is under suspicion. Letier, who is the destruction of Wynter by stringing wire on the roof of the hotel, said Alfred Cummins says Wynter off.

"I thought perhaps you wouldn't come back!" Shaking and weeping, she was in his arms. "He held her close to him. "Odette," he said desperately. "It's so frightfully important, my darling, between you and me. Especially just now. Tell me all that frightens you."

Only two more nights before she committed the supreme crime against herself and her soul. "I haven't anything to tell," said Odette. "Men always think women are the verge of some ridiculous confession or other." Did he or did he not wish he had never met her? He was sure he would never see her again. While Odette, fingering herself face downward on her bed, began to weep.

Mrs. Manvers-Pollock heard Odette creep out of Mr. Wynter's room. She saw the man and Mrs. Manvers-Pollock drew the curtains back and pressed her white face against the glass. Fergus was back and drew the curtains again.

The following night Alfred made his plans. He started out and he uttered a little scream as a voice spoke at his elbow. "Made a good job of it, Alfred!"

"Yes, sir." "Yes, that's all right," Fergus said. "I've got along home now." "If you were," said Alfred, thankful for the words. "Fergus said, "Hell Hitler!" Fergus grinned. He was pretty certain the boy was to be trusted, but it was the same old story. He would follow that Alfred was double-crossing him if Wynter answered the signal. He might be on the alert on his own account for any signals. If only he could put that down as the way Fergus suddenly felt reckless. Carefully picking his way down to the beach, he hurried across the room, crept down the stairs and into the Star House. It was half-past three, just the time to catch Mr. Wynter. He had to get out of his packing business, he could cut round and be back again before anyone noticed it. It was vital the case was all with papers! It was sure to contain a code.

Fergus suddenly stopped walking about the room and clasped his hand to his pocket. "Seen a leather case, Alfred?" "Is it his?" "A case, sir. Is it his, sir?" Alfred, standing half inside the cupboard, draped with a mackintosh, had taken the case out of his pocket. There were times when you had to go so as to hold on tighter later.

"Yes, that's it," Fergus felt his hand go shoo. "That was an important case, Alfred," Fergus could afford to speak faintly now. "Yes, sir," said Alfred solemnly. "It was a ghastly disappointment, but he had done the right thing in handing it over immediately." "If I did go to bed, I shouldn't be clear tonight. I hope Miss Hanke doesn't bungle the job. Thank God she's not here. The man at the Star House, otherwise that beggar would have thrown a spanner into the works by having her there."

"Yes, sir," said Alfred, feeling vaguely disappointed. Set free at last, he went to the stairs, thinking that this affair was really ending very tardily - to him, at least. He went to the door and opened it. "You mustn't show your face here," he said. "You're not to be seen."

"Dead, why?" John's quick brain leaped. The wire; something had happened. "Mr. Letier, he came home pleased. Done in the beggar," said Alfred. "Done in the beggar. Half a second. Wrenching open the door, John took the stairs two at a time. The empty, pitch-black, wind-swept bedroom told him what his terrified brain was trying to deny. He was alone. As the shaded lights of the coast guard ambulance shone faintly by the door, John took the stairs two at a time. Alfred by the arm and felt a step or so behind.

"Here, then, it's silence for you," he said. "Now is the time to show what you're made of. This is war, Alfred. It's the best of things that happens in war. But you and I must get Letter somehow."

you a few lines and here I am still rambling on and on, so I'll stop right now, and if you have read this far, I'll say again, I enjoy receiving the paper and always look forward to it.

With best regards to all your family and to everyone in Plymouth, I remain,

Sincerely,
Alex.

THE ADVENTURE

BY PAMELA WYNNE

"Oh, God help me!"

"You must pretend you know nothing about it. Do you understand?"

At the hospital John interviewed the house surgeon. The lady had been a patient in the hospital, never did, and locked doors always aroused suspicion. She began her preparations for the job she had to do. Her torch, her pocketbook, her code written out in big letters on a piece of cardboard. Now she could rest until midnight.

The old grandfather clock in the hall had struck half-past midnight. It was a quarter of twelve. John heard the first drone of a plane. He opened his window. Nothing in sight yet. Her lips drew down. She stepped inside Odette's room. The room was pitch dark, but the drone of the plane was very audible. She must be by the open window, behind the blackout curtains—he had looked at the window the day before, when he had also removed the key from the lock.

The key was in the lock. With a steady click the door opened. He stepped into the room and closed the door. "Hold out your hands." Mechanically she did as she was told, and the tinkle of the handcuffs sounded as he clipped them on her wrists.

Shutting the window he picked up the torch and card and set it on the sill. Then closing the curtains he turned to Odette.

"Please. That's all over and done with. Now you are only a spy and I the man who has caught you. I suppose you know that you will be in the hands of the law for a long term of imprisonment."

"I don't know what you mean. I'm only looking out of the window."

"Listen." As she stood up there he held up the torch. "You are only a spy and I the man who has caught you. I suppose you know that you will be in the hands of the law for a long term of imprisonment."

"I don't know what you mean. I'm only looking out of the window."

"I will tell you," said Odette suddenly. "I will tell you, even though you can manage it. That she was sobbing as he put his arms round her.

"How can I dress with you here?" "You can't. I shall go away and lock you in."

Above the HULL

By LYLE HULL

Easy-Come Easy-Go

We went to an auction the other day where was sold everything from a hand rake, with two teeth missing, to a sinister looking Gurnsey ball whose disposition had apparently not improved with advanced age. There were colored prints of dismal looking thatched roof farm buildings and there was a forlorn axe covered with what appeared to have once been red skin. There was every variety of old-fashioned farm implement ever invented—or Paris of them; and there was every variety of rusted and some ancient crockery. The prices which this junk brought were unbelievable. An antique Holstein cow sold for $185 actual money; a pair of some looking three paneled imitation Chinese screen set some "pushovers" back for more than it had originally cost.

The family which owned this collection of refuse needed the money badly and everyone was delighted that there had been a sucker born so frequently. But they couldn't see that the community, wherein this slaughter of innocents occurred, is fairly representative of most other communities in our easy-come easy-go land.

Most everyone is making money these days, and millions are saving it. But there are other millions who are probably never making the sensation of being "dead broke" and who are "blowing it in" today. I intend to write about this in a year. It reminds this correspondent of the year 1925 when he was thousands of dollars "over" in "cleaning up" in the great Florida

This Week in WASHINGTON

Washington, D. C. (NWNS)—On the eve of the Republican convention, Thomas A. Dewey, Governor of New York, is expected by many majorities of front rank and Washington officials to win the nomination. Polls, state primaries and caucuses have shown Dewey as the Republican party's choice. Dewey is to be way out front at the present moment.

But as the actual time of decision arrives we hear more and more talk about "dark horse" victors. Many news reports are undoubtedly created by men who feel that Dewey is not the man to beat President Roosevelt. In addition to the men who have strong sectional support, such as Governor Bricker of Ohio, we also hear names mentioned of men who have not been given much attention before—such as Donald Nelson, head of the War Production board, and Eric Johnston, president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce. Most analysis agree that if Mr. Nelson's name is brought up at the convention it will not be treated without serious consideration.

The feeling is still almost unanimous here that President Roosevelt will seek a fourth term. Dewey will have little difficulty in getting the nomination. His popularity has undoubtedly been increased by the invasion and charges that his health might not be good enough to stand another term have been refuted by a series of physical examinations which are reported to have shown that his health is better than the average man of 62.

But although it looks as present as a fourth term is gathering momentum and may have considerable support by the time the Democratic

Author of "HOW TO WIN FRIENDS and INFLUENCE PEOPLE"

HOW TO GET ACTION
Have you ever tried to get a busy man to do something for you and failed? Well, here's one way to succeed. It's told by George Palmer Putnam in his book, "Wide Margins."

He wanted to get Roy Chapman Andrews to write a book about his explorations in the Gobi desert. You'll remember that Mr. Andrews was the man who found the million-year-old dinosaur eggs.

Roy was in China exploring the earliest known man, bones and fragments which, later, became known as the "Peiping Man." So George Palmer Putnam cabled him, asking him to write a book on the subject. He received a message which said, "We will talk when I return." Hopeful.

At last Roy arrived in New York, but George Putnam wasn't going to take a chance on a hurried office talk, so he invited him to his home in Connecticut. Then, to get away from all distractions, they took a walk Sunday morning alone together. Then George painted a glowing picture of the book and the profits that would be derived from it. Roy listened intently, then said that he was too busy.

George was stumped. But he was thinking. Then he said: "You have proved to my complete satisfaction that you haven't time to write the book. In all my circle of acquaintances I don't know anyone as busy as you are and as you are going to be for a year. Now that we have it settled to the satisfaction of both of us that you are too busy to write a book for me, when are you going to write it?"

Roy Andrews was taken by surprise. "Well," he said, "that doesn't leave me much of a leg to stand on, does it?"

"When are you going to write it?" insisted George.
"Finally," Roy agreed to begin within a month. It so happened that Roy had been hurt in a polo game in Peking, and now had to go to the hospital to have his shoulder reset. That was George's chance. As soon as Roy was recuperating, George sent a stenographer to the hospital and the book was started. In a short time it was finished—"On the Trail of Ancient Man."

How had Publisher Putnam got a busy man to do something? He had agreed with Roy Andrews that he was the busiest man in New York—then had swung down a challenge for him to go ahead and write the book, anyway. And Roy got it done.

Miss Zetta Brooks Becomes Bride of Harry Sybrandt At Cleveland

The Peoples Methodist church in Cleveland was the scene of the wedding Saturday, June 17, of Miss Zetta Brooks of Elyria and Harry Sybrandt, of Spencer, O. The ceremony at noon was performed by Rev. E. B. McBroom, former pastor of the Plymouth Methodist church.

lore for all. There were spectators too, for in the course of the evening, more and more gathered. The men became the winners of the game and when the ladies had grown tired of the strenuous exercise they sought shelter against the chilly winds in the spacious and beautiful home of the hostess while the men had a game by themselves.

Ample provision had been made by the committee to provide refreshments for a large gathering. And such it was. Sixty-three men and women, young people and children were treated generously to large helpings of delicious home-made ice cream, cake and wafers and coffee. The Carnahan-Ford ice cream brand was praised by everyone.

It was late when the folks thought of going home but not before some of the men, too, had been pressed into service by helping with the stacks of dishes. Even Dr. Searle had a hand in this and he didn't even kick in his new profession but faithfully did his share with the rest. It was indeed a very fine social affair enjoyed by all.

Mr. and Mrs. Carnahan are the proud owners of one of the finest farms in this section in Ohio, and a hearty thanks is extended to the gracious hosts to have this meeting at their home.

Doings In Congress

By Cong. Wm. Lemke.

THE HOUSE PASSED SEVERAL amendments to the bill extending the life of the OPA. The amendments improved the bill and give some protection against the bureaucrats. I supported them, but I was against the bill as a whole. It should be abolished. They say the OPA keeps prices lower than they were in the last war. That is an untrue statement. It costs more to live now than it did in World War I. It is true that butter and sugar were lower, but you never paid $10 per hundred pounds for potatoes in World War I nor, anywhere near it. You never paid from $15 to $20 per hundred pounds for onions in World War I, but you did in some places in World War II.

THE OPA HAS SPENT MIL- lions of dollars of the taxpayers' money without any real accomplishments. It employs hundreds of super-snoopers chasing around the country spying on and interfering with the people who transact the Nation's business, and who do the Nation's work. It insulted the small businessman and challenged the farmers and the working man's integrity. It added confusion upon confusion, issued edict after edict—each one contradicting the other.

IT TAKES A PHILADELPHIA lawyer to figure out what it is all about. It may truly be said that the right hand of the OPA never knows what the left hand is doing. The people are bewildered and angered. Little wonder that the President was forced to give the OPA personnel a shake-up or two. In justice to himself he ought to shake it up some more.

LET ME GIVE YOU JUST ONE example. Recently we had an egg crisis. The farmer in the midwest received as low as 14 cents a dozen, while in Washington the ceiling price was still 50c a dozen. Where was the OPA? A ceiling of 50 cents a dozen in one place, a market of 14 cents a dozen in another place.

NOW THE GOVERNMENT HAS 14 million crates of eggs on hand. These eggs are in danger of becoming overripe. So some bureaucrat suggests that they be mixed with other products and fed to livestock. Now I never knew that cows ate eggs. I would not be surprised but what somebody in the OPA got the idea that if they fed eggs to cows, cows would lay eggs. That would be on a par with writing to a Texas stockman, asking how many male and female steers he had on hand. It would be on a par with suggesting that farmers take the shoes off the horses' feet at night so they would not wear out.

IT IS MY HOPE THAT THE War will soon be over and with the end of the War will come the abolition of the War Agencies including the OPA. We will then be able to devote all of our time to a constructive program; including the development of the Missouri River Basin Project, use of our lignite coal and other natural resources, and adopt a cost of production program for all farm products.

MUCH TO LEARN IN BEE CULTURE

War rationing of sugar has caused a revival of interest in bee-keeping, declares V. H. Davis, horticulturist specialist of the Farm Bureau Cooperative association. In line with this, many people are taking to raising bees who never before had any such experience. "The beginner has much to learn about this most interesting insect and may make many mistakes before he secures the results of which he has been dreaming," says the horticulturist.

The Farm Bureau specialist says that there are three general classifications in bees: (1) the queen, whose responsibility it is to lay the eggs, (2) the drones, who fertilize the eggs, and (3) the workers, who "clean house" and provide the honey for the queen and the drones.

"The hives," claim Davis, "should be turned to the south or southeast, and should be kept in the shade during the hottest part of the day." A beekeeper's equipment should contain a veil, a pair of gloves, and a smoker. Davis says that complete information can be obtained from bee culture books and from the county agricultural agents.

YOUR INVASION!

FROM General Bradley, leading the Invasion ground forces, right through every rank, American men now face a brutal, desperate, able enemy. For this invasion has only begun—before our fighters lies a hard and bloody task, one that demands all their courage, backed by all your faith in their ultimate victory.

That faith will be tested many times in this invasion—in grim struggles, setbacks, possibly even temporary defeats. It will be up to you to remember that early victories usually only mean more savage opposition from a foe made more bitter, more ruthless as the shadow of his doom grows larger—up to you to keep that faith in days and nights of gloom as well as in hours of triumph.

There is little that you can do to show that you realize what they must face, perhaps for many months. But one thing you can do—back the attack with every dollar you can spare! Let the Bonds you buy in this greatest of Drives be the measure of your belief in their ultimate victory!

"TOKYO ROSE" FAILS TO DOWN BOYS' MORALE
San Antonio Aviation Cadet Center, Texas, June 7.—"Japanese propaganda has just the opposite effect on the boys out there" from what the Japs expect it to have," said Aviation Student Norman McQuown, major in training at the Aviation Cadet-Fre-Technical school at the San Antonio Aviation Cadet Center. During the two years spent in the Central Pacific area, McQuown spent many days and nights listening to "Tokyo Rose," chief "breaker" of American morale.
"She came on every night with something like this: 'Good evening, you American soldiers. Would you like to hear some music like you hear back home?' (Music) Doesn't that make you homesick? It's a beautiful moonlight night back in Ohio. Wouldn't it be fun to be there with your favorite girl dancing to this beautiful song? Why do you stay out here and fight when you could be having a wonderful time back home?"
"But it didn't work the way they wanted. It only made us more determined to stay and battle the 'out,'" McQuown said. "It was more of a morale builder than breaker."
McQuown, 24-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce McQuown, 19 Maple Street, Plymouth, Ohio, enlisted in the Army in September, 1941, and was sent to Hickam Field in March, 1942. During the next two years he was stationed in various islands of the Central Pacific.
Three brothers are also in the service. Floyd, 27, is a pilot on B-24; Noel, 30, is in the Navy, stationed in Memphis, Tenn., and Kenneth, 21, is in Anti-Aircraft in Inglewood, Calif.

WAR BONDS ARE INSURANCE FOR U. S. FARMERS
The farmer has more reasons for buying War Bonds than any other group of Americans, according to Merrill L. Predmore, director, agriculture section, War Finance division of the Treasury Department.
"The farmer is a capitalist as well as a laborer. Like any person with capital invested he must have a financial reserve to keep his business sound. Nothing makes as desirable a financial reserve as War Bonds, and the smart American farmer will put all possible resources into this investment field before the 16 billion dollar Fifth War Loan drive ends July 31st," Mr. Predmore said.
Mr. Predmore suggested that farmers invest in bonds the cost of replacements of buildings and farm equipment and needed repairs that cannot be made now because of the shortage of materials and labor. "Invest in War Bonds the money to be used for farm and home improvement after the war," he advised. "The three 'E' bond is as liquid as a dollar bill, and yet after one year it grows in value—a value backed by the United States government.
"Investment in War Bonds will provide a financial back-log for those unfavorable years that may come later. Recall what happened after the last war when farm prosperity broke.
"The financial welfare of the farmer for the next two decades will depend on the use made of the higher farm income of the war period," Predmore stated.

Best insurance for the years ahead is today's extra income salted away in War Bonds. The success of the Fifth War Loan depends on all our citizens but the farmer with an eye to the future can be a big factor in the drive to victory," Predmore said.
