"Newspaper advertising has been one of our chief means of promoting sales of food, despite the fact that many lines in wartime are rationed or otherwise restricted." C. M. Robertson, president of the Kroger Grocery & Baking Company, said recently.

Advertising of Kroger stores in daily and weekly newspapers last year cost $1,460,000 or more than half the total expenditure for all advertising, radio and display. The company operates in 18 states and uses about 1,200 newspapers for regular weekly food advertising.

TEACHERS QUIT

Mrs. Ava Arnold has resigned her position as teacher in the Shiloh schools. Mrs. Arnold has been an instructor in our schools the past nine years. She was able, conscientious and untiring in her efforts to impart her knowledge and produce practical results from the pupils. Her work was exemplified when eleven of her pupils received certificates of high standard from the Business Education World, for their work on test material. Others received recognition for rapid writing on the typewriter and others in penmanship in shorthand. The Red Cross Standard first aid certificates were granted a number of pupils taught by the only two qualified teachers in the schools, Mrs. Arnold and Mrs. Huston.

On Monday of this week Mrs. Edna Long resigned her position in the schools. Another splendid teacher who, during her four years residence here has won the hearts of the old young as well as winning a husband.

Popular in church and social circles, and popular with pupils who loved her as an advisor and as a confidant. We are looking forward to the time when this personally beautiful woman will make her home permanently in this community with her husband, Sgt. Earl J. Huston.

The board of education have two other vacancies to fill. A teacher for music and mathematics.

Mrs. Arnold is now a member of this community, whom we heartily welcome, and whose husband will appreciate his ideal helpmate.

Dwight Waller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leland Waller is at the Diesel school at Norfolk, Va.

Mrs. A. C. Henry receives an interesting letter from her husband, dated June 28, from the south Pacific. Excerpts from the letter say:

"Hope you are getting my letters as I try to write every day. I'm on night duty now and rather like it, as in my daytime I am out exploring on this island. It's really beautiful here but it doesn't keep me from getting so homesick; it nearly drives me nuts. If it wasn't for your wonderful letters and dreaming about the future with you and the boys I wouldn't go on.

Enough for that. Now to tell you about this place. There are lots and lots of different flowers here. All colors and sizes. The jungle is just like one would imagine. You can't go only a little ways without the aid of a hatchet. I've never seen anything like so many other things to make up for it. Yesterday I went up on a mountain, and I looked way down in a valley. Phyllis, it was beautiful there. Going on down the mountain, Mr. Barnes expects to undergo an operation this week. Friends can reach him by addressing the hospital, room 440.

There are great white birds about the size of our turkey-buzzard back home. They yell and it sounds almost human. The napkin ring they use is made of pig that is as tame as any dog. We whistle and he comes running, then we rub his sides and he lays down and goes to sleep. Suppose Ned will try to tame a pig now. On my way back I passed through a river village. The whole family smokes a pipe, even the little children three years old. Ned, these little boys and girls never have candy or gum or any toys to play with. Their dad works every day and the most any of them get is $4.00 a year. We sure couldn't live on that could we? Aren't you glad that you and Danny are in the good old U. S. A? The natives wear a grass skirt and are fat, dirty and dumb. Their old broken teeth and strings hair makes you think, but I feel awfully sorry for them.

Guess I'd better ring off for this time. Kiss the boys every night for me. Money has been sent to you. Keep your chin up, as this can't last forever. I'm proud of you, as everyone writes and tells me how they love me.

All my love, Your husband, P.S. Tell Mom and everyone hello and to keep the letters coming.

Almost forgot to tell you I take a swim in the ocean every day, but not far as the sharks are thick.

THE PLYMOUTH THEATER 11:30 P.M.

Doings in Washington

By CONGRESSMAN WILLIAM LEMKE

CONGRESS recessed until August 1st. This in order that all members could take the conventions and get acquainted with the people back home. This is as it ought to be in a democracy. In my own State we have just gone through a primary election. I am grateful to those who supported me. I find no fault with those who honestly opposed me. If our Republic is to live, we must always give honest expression to our convictions through our vote. But in this age of slander and falsehood we must be sure that our convictions are based upon facts and not fiction.

DURING this recess I have been acting as a member of a subcommittee on Public Lands. This subcommittee has been in connection with land taken by the government. Few people realize that the government now owns twenty-four per cent in area of lands in the U. S. In other words, the government now has five simple title to one-fourth of the nation. In addition, it owns five or ten per cent by lease or by retaining mineral rights.

IN MANY cases the bureaucracy grabbed far more land than was necessary for any effort. It is the way we have handled the grab and waste. I just returned from Wahoo, Nebraska, where our committee held a hearing. At that hearing it developed that the government had grabbed 17,500 acres for a munitions and bombing plant. They gave the farmers twenty days to vacate.

They tore down and destroyed all the homes and buildings. Now they find that they need only 5,000 acres and are leasing to other farmers 12,500 acres that they disseminated the owners of. NOT ONLY did they wreck these homes wantonly and unnecessarily, but the War Department, and the Federal Land Bank appraisers as stooges, virtually grabbed this land at far less than its value. This about two years ago, and some of the cases are still pending as taken farmers have not received all of their money. Every attempt to delay was employed. I repeat, beware of government by bureaucracy.

ANOTHER result of the government taking these lands is that many schools having lost the connection with these lands are unable to continue. That was one of the objects of the hearing at Wahoo. In other cases county governments can no longer function because of these lands are the biggest part of the lands from the tax rolls. This is just one of the many problems that Congress must solve within the coming year. In one of the hearing districts the government took eight per cent of the land, and then threw the tax burden on the other twenty per cent. This district was bonded for $500,000.00. The government shifted entirely upon the shoulders of the twenty per cent. This is worse than confiscation.

CHAPTER II

Madame Fabre-Lusinigan becomes toignant when her old butler, Rudolph, had coffee after her. Rudolph explains his clumsiness by pointing to a picture in the paper showing a small party and the two costumed ladies. The caption: "The Princess Meridelle of Bonhomme Fricot's army wives. To be seen at retreat with rich uncle in Canada. Rudolph says she is a 'rich uncle,' and explains that at Graten she was the Baron Rudi de Morpin. Madame insists that he stay at the Chateau Philibert as the Baron Morpin, and that he bring the Princess and her cousins as his guests.

Three Out of Four Will Can Three out of four women expect to can fruit and vegetables at home this season, according to a national survey reported by the office of war information. Canned peas, tomatoes and asparagus by OPA after supplies on hand had sold rapidly, making room for the new pack. Civilian supplies of peas, tomatoes and asparagus are expected to be 20% smaller during the current pack year than during the peak year of 1943. To help pay for the current fruit and vegetable crop, 700,000 full-time or 1,400,000 part-time workers must be recruited, the war manpower commission says. Because of the need for overseas service men on canned fruits and vegetables it is imperative that these foods be made available to them.

Swap Help Across Border Farmers are used to swapping help, but this summer two countries, the United States and Canada, will swap grain harvest help, and forth across the border, the U. S. department of agriculture announces. With border crossing formalities suspended, Canadian threshing outfits will help harvest the western grain crops until Sept. 15, and American machines and crews later will reciprocate in the Canadian prairie provinces until December 15.

RECENT RULINGS HANDED DOWN BY ATTORNEY GENERAL HERBERT

Placing of four or fewer children in a private home for temporary care by the Portage county juvenile court does not violate the Ravenna zoning ordinance which limits use of property in the district to single family homes, attorney general Thomas J. Herbert said this week in an opinion to Theodore Tilden, Portage county prosecutor.

The fact that the court arranged for payment of a fixed subsidy to the owners of the home to keep it available for service does not take the house out of the character of a private home.

Mr. Herbert pointed out that the legislature in providing that private homes might be used to house juvenile court wards had said that such private homes shall have the same legal status under the laws of the state as private residences.

TOWN and FARM IN WARTIME

Free Maternity and Infant Care Service men's wives eligible for emergency maternity care are urged to apply at the beginning of pregnancy so that their health and that of the child can be better safeguarded, Katherine F. Leno, chief of the Children's bureau, Department of Labor, says. Medical, nursing and hospital care for the service man's wife are provided during pregnancy, childbirth, and for six months after childbirth.

DAIRY CHECKS FOR MAY-JUNE

Saturday, July 1, all County Triple A offices in Ohio started making dairy feed payments to farmers on an opinion to Carson Hoy, Hamilton county prosecutor.

A special school at a county hospital must be under the supervision of the county superintendent of schools. It is immaterial.

There had been a sad moment when going through them she had come upon Michel's photograph.

holding it close to her, when she heard Roger's step on the stairs. She put down the picture hastily, but Roger's dark eyes found it at once. "Forgiven him, Tante Mimi!" "None of your business." She gave him her cheek to kiss. "And why are you sneaking up the back stairs?" "You told me to, over the phone—don't you remember? I'm the housekeeper's nephew now. What is all this anyway?"

"It's Rudolph, the prince's brother. He's been letting everyone in this silly little country of his that he owns Philibert and is worth a million. I didn't have the heart to tell these poor, hunted children that he was Roger's father. Roger, it would have been cruel to do so. Had you seen them when they first walked into Philibert this evening—"

"I can imagine," said Roger slowly, "but I've seen an old man sitting in a chair, a tall, elegant figure in the uniform of a flight lieutenant. He had been over and back twice. 'I'm glad you did it, Tante Mimi. It was like you. I'd never think of such things.' I have never known the situation. You and Mike are the ones who think of such things. You've told me you've forgiven Mike—it's about time you brought his handsome mouth out and fighting. But ungrateful, headstrong, irresponsible!"

Roger held up his hand. "He's your all over, that's why the two of you are so close. He's your father's death. It's all, Madame Fabre-Lusinigan, Mike was the apple of your eye and you know it. The harder you yelled at him, the louder you swore at him, the more you loved him."

The old lady scowled fiercely, then blew her nose and grabbed hastily for a cigarette. "You're too smart, Roger—always were—too darned smart."

Roger grinned, shook his head, watching the prince's young nephew, Duke, now what about the royal guests? Is the housekeeper's nephew permitted to have a peep at them?"

"They are at dinner now. I take it you dined before you came here?" "Indeed, yes. I flew up, you know, and I dined at the Tremblay. He's on his way to Quebec. I'll go down on the bus tomorrow. Curious, isn't it? I don't think I won't go away until it's satisfied."

"The princess is not a poppy shod, my nephew, she's a girl who knows down and see that those children are having sufficient to eat and drink. I'll be sure to start to walk around the table and wait on them. You stay here until you're satisfied."

Roger stayed there, smoking quietly in the slow summer dusk, watching the purple villa of the hills above the chateau, loving the deep yellow green of trees and lawns, but life was good; life was good; life was good. How good it was to be thought, he never would have realized had he not seen Michel's photograph. He had not seen Michel's photograph. He had not seen Michel's photograph.

Princess of the Circus

There had been a sad moment when going through them she had come upon Michel's photograph. holding it close to her, when she heard Roger's step on the stairs. She put down the picture hastily, but Roger's dark eyes found it at once. "Forgiven him, Tante Mimi!" "None of your business." She gave him her cheek to kiss. "And why are you sneaking up the back stairs?" "You told me to, over the phone—don't you remember? I'm the housekeeper's nephew now. What is all this anyway?"

"It's Rudolph, the prince's brother. He's been letting everyone in this silly little country of his that he owns Philibert and is worth a million. I didn't have the heart to tell these poor, hunted children that he was Roger's father. Roger, it would have been cruel to do so. Had you seen them when they first walked into Philibert this evening—"

"I can imagine," said Roger slowly, "but I've seen an old man sitting in a chair, a tall, elegant figure in the uniform of a flight lieutenant. He had been over and back twice. 'I'm glad you did it, Tante Mimi. It was like you. I'd never think of such things.' I have never known the situation. You and Mike are the ones who think of such things. You've told me you've forgiven Mike—it's about time you brought his handsome mouth out and fighting. But ungrateful, headstrong, irresponsible!"

Roger held up his hand. "He's your all over, that's why the two of you are so close. He's your father's death. It's all, Madame Fabre-Lusinigan, Mike was the apple of your eye and you know it. The harder you yelled at him, the louder you swore at him, the more you loved him."

The old lady scowled fiercely, then blew her nose and grabbed hastily for a cigarette. "You're too smart, Roger—always were—too darned smart."

Roger grinned, shook his head, watching the prince's young nephew, Duke, now what about the royal guests? Is the housekeeper's nephew permitted to have a peep at them?"

"They are at dinner now. I take it you dined before you came here?" "Indeed, yes. I flew up, you know, and I dined at the Tremblay. He's on his way to Quebec. I'll go down on the bus tomorrow. Curious, isn't it? I don't think I won't go away until it's satisfied."

"The princess is not a poppy shod, my nephew, she's a girl who knows down and see that those children are having sufficient to eat and drink. I'll be sure to start to walk around the table and wait on them. You stay here until you're satisfied."

Roger stayed there, smoking quietly in the slow summer dusk, watching the purple villa of the hills above the chateau, loving the deep yellow green of trees and lawns, but life was good; life was good; life was good. How good it was to be thought, he never would have realized had he not seen Michel's photograph. He had not seen Michel's photograph. He had not seen Michel's photograph.

Entered at the Post Office at Plymouth, Ohio, as second class mail matter under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

NO SECRET TO U. S.

"Robot planes" have been known in the United States since the last war, and are neither new, nor secret weapons, according to the National Inventors Council.

Lawrence Burt Sperry of the Sperry Gyroscope company filed application for a torpedo of the airplane type on April 18, 1918.

The other inventor, now chairman of the National Inventors Council, was Dr. Charles F. Kettering, of the General Motors Research Corporation.

THE NEW WONDER DRUG

The wonder drug, penicillin, has become a reality for the public after months of experimentation. The cures effected by penicillin have seemed so sensational to the people reading about them, and the mystery surrounding the drug has grown to such proportions because of the extremely small supply available to the public, that it is good news indeed to direct its movement that it may be caused to travel over a desired path and land upon a predetermined objective.

Immaculately clean factories now house great vats in which the penicillin mold is grown. In a few short months production has been taken out of the bottle stage and expanded to the point where three-story tanks are used to hold the mold plants.

Author of "HOW TO WIN FRIENDS AND INFLUENCE PEOPLE"

ON STIMULATING OTHERS

Down in Durham, N. C., lived a doctor, A. G. Carr. Some would call him a country doctor, but he was far more than a doctor, for he had the ability to stimulate people, to make them want to be at their best, and to do things, to accomplish something worth while.

Now, there also lived in the same town a man you have heard of, a man who flamed across the American sky like a meteor. Washington Duke, the founder of the great tobacco fortune. He came after the bitter days of the Civil war when the people of the South were poor.

Well, the man who provided him with the most stimulation was Dr. Carr. Once he said, "I can take money away from other men. From Dr. Carr I take away ideas—and his ideas mean more to me than the others' money."

When Wash Duke got along in years he decided to hit it up. See the world. He was in good health and so far as health was concerned needed no one to accompany him.

The very essence of teaching is inspiring others to wish to accomplish things. A great teacher is a great inspirer.

Charles W. Eliot was president of Harvard university for 40 years. In his later days he said: "I have seen a great many teachers come and go. The knowledge that some of them had was profound. But I think that the greatest teachers I have known were those who most stimulated those around them."

TRANSPORTATION PROBLEMS PREVENT VISIT TO PLYMOUTH

This week the Advertiser is reprinting a letter from Mr. F. C. Graham of Cove Orchard, Ore., stating he will not be able to make his Plymouth visit as he had originally planned.

A former resident of our town, Mr. Graham advised us a number of weeks ago that he planned to visit Plymouth in June or early July. However he has been delayed in his start and now the need for travel accommodations for the wounded soldiers is so urgent, he will defer his trip until early fall or until transportation situations clear up.

However, he states, "I am very thankful for the opportunity morning from Mrs. Helen Ensel enclose my check for the Boy Scout grounds now in development. The fact that I am a past Scoutmaster is further evidence that the gift, although a humble one, is from the heart."

The gift is gratefully accepted and acknowledged and the Scout troop has only begun to realize the value of the great number of former Plymouth citizens in various parts of the country, who remember their own childhood days spent here and are willing to help the Scout Fund.

The Scouts are also very thankful for contributions received from local friends and include $10 from Max Jump; $5.00 from Wilbur Kessler, and a check this morning from Mrs. Helen Ensel Bergen, now of Marietta, and $10 from Mr. and Mrs. Ford Davis.

LUTHERANS AT THE CRESTLINE CANTEN NEXT THURSDAY

Cup cakes, cookies and sandwiches from Plymouth will again be served the boys in service at the Crestline Canteen next Thursday, July 20.

The Lutheran Ladies of the church have volunteered to serve the boys who pass through Crestline that day and a conservative estimate is now given as 1000.

To feed this number it takes huge quantities of food and each and the Lutheran ladies are asking all interested to assist in the project.

Cup cakes, loaf cakes and each can be turned into Mrs. E. L. Earnest. Today, Thursday, the women from the Presbyterian church are serving.

QUOTA MET IN PAPER DRIVE

In the month of June, Plymouth met its quota in the waste paper drive, when slightly over 7,000 pounds were collected by the local Boy Scout organization.

One of the few towns in this vicinity to meet its quota, local citizens are to be commended in their cooperation in this effort. Even with this amount of paper much is still not saved and every effort should be made to save scrap paper.

The next collection is scheduled for late next month. Let's all get behind the wheel and put Plymouth above the quota, so that when things are over, we can say we did our part in the drive for waste and scrap paper.

Members of Troop One wish to thank local citizens for their cooperation and to the Fate-Rogers Health Co. for its donation in this drive.

ATTEND CAMP

Hulbert Metcalfe, Kenneth Donaham, Donald Smith and Donald Cunningham are attending the Patrol Leaders camp at Camp Avery Hand Jr. this week. The scouts while there participate in "commando raids", stalking, night trailing, compass work and much physical training.

Both are intimately associated. The body receives nothing that does not have an influence upon the soul and the soul partakes of nothing that does not have an influence upon the body.

The families of the Brotherhood and friends of the church are cordially invited.

INJURED IN FALL

Ernest J. Atyeo of New Haven, fell from a load of hay Friday afternoon dislocating several vertebrae in his back.

He received medical aid in Plymouth and is reported to be getting along satisfactorily. He is the father of Mrs. Virgil Sutton of Plymouth.

FATHER DIES

John Hoffman dies in Mansfield Sunday Services Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hoffman attended the funeral services on Wednesday afternoon for Mr. Hoffman's father, John Hoffman.

The deceased had been in ill health for some time, but his condition was not thought to be serious. He passed away Sunday evening at the Hamman Rest Home in Mansfield at the age of 82 years.

He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Eric Reed of Shelby; one son, Frank of Plymouth, and a step-son, Charles Keller of Shelby rural. There are also 11 grandchildren and 12 great grandchildren. His wife passed away in 1912.

He was known to many in Plymouth, having made his home with his son, Frank, a number of years ago.

VACATIONING IN THE MOUNTAINS

A card this week from Mrs. Mary Lerch Fenton of Hollywood, Calif., but formerly of Plymouth, makes their two weeks vacation this year sound ideal, especially since the weather here has been so extremely hot. Up in the San Gabriel Mountains, just 85 miles from Hollywood is Wrightwood, 7000 feet elevation, delightfully cool through the day and cold at night. In fact, the past week it dropped to 27 degrees and froze the orchards on the mountain sides, much to the despair of the owners.

Mr. and Mrs. Fenton are living in the Wrightwood Lodge, which is a winter sports resort as well as a summer resort. More than 400 cottages are now in the park and an army camp is nearby. Officers live here with their wives, and mail is received daily from the San Bernardino post office. It is a splendid way to spend a vacation and they are greatly enjoying it.

LOCAL BOY FLIES 250,000 MILES ON MISSIONS IN PACIFIC AREA

Second Lieutenant Paul Root, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Root, of the army air corps, who is home on leave, states the war in the Pacific area is one filled with many hard tasks, and that the job will be a long and tedious one to complete. However, with the arrival of thousands of tons of supplies and equipment and many additional planes, the Allies have gained the upperhand, and slowly but surely the Japs will be defeated.

Before signing up with the air corps, Lt. Root was an enthusiast of air travel. Since entering the service he roughly estimates that he has flown 250,000 miles, of which 85,000 miles were made over open water. So far, he figures he has been in the air approximately 1500 hours.

During the past year and a half young Root has been stationed at bases in Australia and in New Guinea. In the beginning he was doing liaison and reconnaissance work for the air force; rescuing plane crews, dropping supplies and other work that carried many risks with it. For these missions his squadron received the distinguished flying cross. His plane was the first to land at Nadzab, New Guinea, after the town had been taken by paratroopers.

For the past several months, Lt. Root has been flying transport planes from Australia to various islands in the southwest Pacific. The transports move supplies and mail from the Australian bases to points on the front lines, and the task is routine—supplies and mail move on schedule. "When we first started on the transport runs," said Lt. Root, "we had to be accompanied by a fighter escort. But things have changed. We have air supremacy over all the important routes, and patrols are keeping the airlines free from enemy ships. Our transports go out on their missions now with a high degree of safety from enemy attack."

"I've seen the headhunters—crossed the highest mountains at 13,000 feet and was over Bismark Sea when our ships cluttered up thirty Japanese boats. These experiences will live with me forever, and they made a thrill on each trip."

"Speaking of conditions in Australia, Root states that the people there really know that a war is going on. They are taking the war seriously and making many sacrifices. Everything one buys is rationed, and there are many items which cannot be secured. However, the morale of the people is exceptional. The people in Australia do not stand for a "black market" to exist in any line of merchandise. They feel that the responsibility of fair distribution is on the shoulder of each individual, and as a result there is "no cheating." While in Australia is very mild. Warm days, but severely cold nights. The climate is enjoyable most of the year.

Arrangements were made to take the priest to Port Moresby where he was placed in a hospital. An operation was necessary, but he survived. On his way home, Lt. Root came across the two missionaries on the boat, whom he had met on the island, and during the boat trip they became close friends. Lt. Root pointed out that the men in the southwest Pacific area hold a high regard for the missionaries. They have been a great aid in helping rescue plane crews who have been shot or forced down in the jungles. In return for their work the pilots usually circle over the missions, dropping to the missionaries cigars, cigarettes, tooth paste and other small articles.

The two missionaries with whom young Root became acquainted had been in the Pacific area for thirteen years. They were supposed to have returned to America at the end of the ten year period, but the war caught them, and they were forced to stay an additional three years. Through the establishment of missions throughout the islands, they have become close to the natives who look upon a white man as a god. As a result crews that were forced down in the jungles had a chance of getting back to their outfit because the natives were told that the white man was their friend.

Lt. Root pointed out that the morale of the American soldier and sailor remains high, but that most of them are fighting for only one thing—to get back home. He related how he met Leo Kennedy last March while in Australia, and of the fine visit they enjoyed. He has not seen any other boys from this section.

Glad to be back in Plymouth for a visit, Lt. Root is anxious to go back into service. He left Plymouth Wednesday for a visit to his sister, Mrs. R. L. Baxter in Elmira, N. Y. He reports to the "Boomers" that he will be in Miami, Fla., July 21, where he and his wife will spend two weeks before he gets a new assignment.

CONTROL OF BEAN BEETLES

T. H. Parks, Extension Entomologist, Ohio State University

Information indicates the Mexican bean beetle, which is much more injurious to the victory garden beans this year than in 1943. The insect is appearing on beans earlier in the summer and in larger numbers than is usual for this time of year. The beetle has been collected in hibernation far from gardens where they fed last year and, during May, have been returning to garden areas and feeding on bean foliage almost as soon as it appeared.

While no young larvae have been found at Columbus up to June 2, the eggs are being laid and the adults are feeding on the undersides of the bean leaves.

Their work should not be confused with the "spotted bean beetle" which eats completely through the leaf, and which has been present in advance of the Mexican bean beetle. The latter devours the leaf only through the upper membranes without feeding on the upper surfaces, hence must be controlled by applying the insecticide from beneath rather than from above.

The best insecticide to use is 0.5 per cent rotonone, which is strong enough to kill the Mexican bean beetle when put on with a duster and is distributed evenly. Two ounces of this dust will cover from 50 to 75 feet of

"HOMESTEADS, HELL AND HISTORY"

The Boomers tamed the west the hard way! Colonel H. row bush bears, depending upon their size. Applications need not be made when dew is on.

It is very important to have a sprayer or duster fitted with a deflector that will direct the material to the undersides of the leaves, and this should result in the death of the insect within a few hours. Spraying is practical, but unfortunately rotenone suitable for spraying is available only in the extracted form which is sold under trade names and which are not available everywhere.

Hand-picking the adult bean beetles and crushing the egg-masses between the forefinger and thumb is entirely practical. On small garden plantings, this will do much to prevent injury later, and patrolling the bean planting two or three times a week and picking off the adults and disposing of them is almost sure to delay the time when insecticides need be used.

No other crop in the garden returns as much for the prompt application of insecticides as the bean crop. Neglecting to combat bean beetles is likely to result in the loss of your beans.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS . . .

"I've had a lot of calls for that book you took out last week. Tell the Boys Back Home. How did you like it?"
"Fine, Sarah, fine . . . it's just the kind of book I like to get hold of. . . I enjoyed every word of it. Wish I could have along with the author myself . . . actually living with the men right on the fighting fronts. He got mighty close to them and they certainly opened up their minds and their hearts to him."

"There were lots of new things in the book I hadn't seen in any other reports from front-line writers. But there was one question the men asked the author that I have seen time and time again in these stories. That was 'Are you going to put prohibition over on us soldiers again . . . and without getting our vote?'"
"I noticed that, too, Judge, and I think the least we can do for those fighting men who are doing so much for us is to respect their wishes on that subject."

Plymouth Boy With Airborne Troops In France

Kenneth Fox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Proctor Fox of Plymouth rural, writes his folks that he is now in France, having gone in with the airborne troops in the Invasion. Prior to that time he had been stationed in England. His letter, which we print here, gives an idea of the conditions found in Normandy following the invasion:

"Dear Folks:
"I'm sorry that I didn't write sooner but I think you know the reason why. We don't have much time for writing. I'm in France now. Went in with the airborne troops. It's very pretty country, that is as pretty as it can be with battles going on. You should see the nice big hole in the ground that I live in about four feet deep. Sometimes when I drive the jeep I have to talk to a Frenchman. They don't know what I'm saying and I don't know what they are saying, so we just make a lot of motions.
"Now don't worry about me as I'll get by somehow. 'Sounds like a song.' This is Sunday evening and at a little cemetery I saw a lot of French people come and hold services at the graves and put flowers on them.
"Tell Richard I said to keep writing and that I'm OK.
"Love,
"Kenneth."

Freddie Keeler, motor machinist mate, first class, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Keeler of West Broadway, who has been in the South and Central Pacific areas for the past year, hasn't been fortunate enough to return to the States on furlough, but his wife of Swanton, Ohio, received first hand information about him from a shipmate.
"Bill Neumann of Minneapolis, Minn., writes:
"Dear Mrs. Keeler:
"I served on board the same L. S. T. as Fred up until a short while ago, when I was fortunate enough to get a break and be sent back to the U. S. for schooling.
"Fred asked me to write for him while I was here and it is to this end I'm now proceeding. Fred wants you to know that he has received all of your letters from May. The last I saw of the fellows they were all fine and in good spirits. Their operations were to take them to the Central Pacific area about which you have probably been reading in the papers.
"Fred is perhaps one of the best-liked persons aboard ship. He is by far the hardest worker aboard; were it not for his working ability, our ship would not be in as good shape as it is today.
"You can well be proud of the splendid job your husband is doing and I'm sure you are.
"I'm sorry I'm not much of a letter writer. If there are any questions you'd like to ask, I will be very happy to answer them the best I can.
"Sincerely,
"Bill"

Goes July 28th
Wayne Hough, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hough, expects to leave on July 28th. He has joined the Marines.
Change of Address
Richard (Dick) Rule has a change of address this week, but he's still down in the "land of sunshine," viz Milton Fla. Dick writes: "It looks like I'll be here for a long time. They are really in need of tower operators and the squadron won't let you go unless you have been here for a year.
"We handle sea plane and land plane traffic, and it gets rather confusing at times for I haven't gotten on to the swing of things very good yet. I'm working the night shift and it's sort of a guessing game to know who you are talking to most of the time, but it is very interesting and a lot of responsibility with it. Everything that goes wrong is blamed on the operators, but they usually work out of it.

"The paper has been coming through every time and I'm sure glad. It gives a pretty good idea where everybody is and that's the only way of finding out."
"Dick's new address is listed in the address column.

Were You Ever A CIRCUS SUCKER?

It happens like this. Down the aisle way, lined on either side with side-shows and the usual raucous voices of hawkers, comes a man with two small children. The man isn't interested in any thing in particular and gazes from right to left falling to notice an approaching balloon peddler—but the children DO. With calculated stride and constant patter he deftly places a brightly colored blimp in the hands of each child. Still the man doesn't notice. "That will be twenty cents, sir," he says, turning to the man. "For what," asks the father? "The balloons your kiddies have," replies the vendor. And Daddy suddenly realizes how cleverly he has been roped in. But what can he do? Take the balloons away and risk the children crying? Look like a cheap skate to the milling crowd? No, he buys 'em just as our master salesman knew he would.
