

RICHARD L. BURDGE SEES PLENTY OF ACTION ON "FIGHTING LADY"

Richard L. Burdge, aviation machinist's mate first class, USN, Plymouth, served as turret gunner in a navy Avenger torpedo-bomber plane based aboard the famous "Fighting Lady" while that carrier lashed out at Japan's inner defenses.

Recently returned home on leave, the avircrman was attached to air group three, which was on the carrier whose earlier exploits in combat are dramatized in the navy's documentary film, "The Fighting Lady."

An enormous amount of damage also resulted from the air group's attacks on 76 airfields. Led by Commander John T. Lowe jr., USN, of Lexington, N. C., the "Crazy Cats" operated over Tokyo for three days without losing a man. During these strikes the navy airmen accounted for more than half of the total of planes they shot down during their tour of duty.

STUDENTS DIE IN AUTO-TRAIN CRACK-UP

Commencement activities in Shelby were overcast with sadness when one of their members Miss Joanne Kaple, 17, was killed Saturday night in an auto-train accident at the North Gamble street crossing in Shelby, which also cost the life of a junior class boy, Alton Frank Zink, Jr.

Two others riding in the Auto, Miss Wanda Jane Kaple, Sister of the girl victim, and David Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Jones of Shelby escaped death when they observed the approach of the train and jumped from the auto.

The four young people were returning from the school's annual junior-senior prom and were proceeding north on North Gamble Street. They saw a train standing near the crossing and thinking it was the one which caused the warning "fisher signs" to function, began to cross the tracks.

Young Zink, who was driving, then observed the approach of the passenger train and attempted to back his auto off the tracks. The motor stalled and the crash resulted.

Funeral services for Miss Kaple were held Tuesday in the Shelby Memorial Church and burial made in Greenlawn Cemetery, Plymouth. She is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Kaple, three sisters and five brothers; her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Minnie Millon and her paternal grandfather, Joseph Kaple, Tampa, Fla.

Private services for Alton Zink were held Tuesday at the Dye funeral home and burial made in Oakland Cemetery, Shelby. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alton Zink, sr., a sister, Mrs. Francis Lux, Shelby and his grandparents, Earl E. Dier of Shelby, formerly of Plymouth and Mrs. Florence Yohn, Shelby.

NEWSREEL OF NAZI ATROCITIES

The news reel coming to the Plymouth Theatre Sunday and Monday will reveal the unbelievable atrocities committed by the Nazis in their camps.

Scenes are shown at Graslleben where the wounded, emaciated Yanks, captured in Von Rindstedt's bulge attack in 1944, are fed and given medical care by the tank armies of liberation; Hadamar where 35,000 political prisoners had been slain largely by poisoning; and Nordhausen where the tortured prisoners live in utter filth, stumble around with their broken skulls and starved corpses strew the ground.

We read about these horrors but are unable to believe unless seen that the German people could stoop so low; they will be shown at the local theatre Sunday and Monday.

This news reel is ten days old, being filmed just before the arrival of U. S. Senators and newspaper men, who inspected their camps and saw the same horrors you will see.

Rural Life Sunday To Be Observed Here

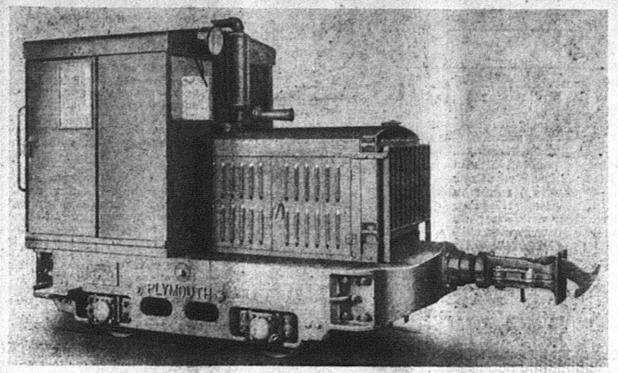

Rural Life Sunday, May 6th, a national observance of importance to the farmer, will be observed locally with a special sermon by Rev. H. L. Bethel, pastor of the Presbyterian church at 11 o'clock Sunday morning.

18 Plymouth Locomotives, Purchased By the Army, Are Shipped to Burma By Air

The above photo shows one of the 18 Plymouth 5-ton Locomotives that were built at the plant of the Fate-Roof-Heath Co., and delivered in record time. The locomotives are being used in Burma.

Eighteen locomotives, built in 92 days, have been flown to Burma in the first air-locomotive flight in history to help counter the British Army's supply problem there, the War Department announced this week. General Gresham Somervell, Commanding General, Army Service Forces, received a wire on January 8 1945, from the U. S. Commanding General, Burma-India Theatre, asking that delivery of 18 five-ton, gas, meter gauge locomotives, already approved through Lend-Lease, be expedited because "advances in Burma require expansion of transportation equipment."

That same day, action on the urgent request began through the International Division, ASF. The Fate-Roof-Heath Company, Plymouth, Ohio, was alerted by telephone on the rush order even though the contracts had not yet been placed. Written confirmation followed.

On June 2 February officers of the ASF conferred direct with the plant management at Plymouth, worked out a packaging list and cabled the Burma-India Theatre to arrange air priority.

Impetus was added when the Air Transport Command told ASF the locomotive would have to be in Miami, Florida, ready to be flown, by April 17. ASF Officers, including Transportation Corps rail experts, hastened to the Plymouth plant. To expedite assembly, they hauled the 18 fans for the locomotives from Indianapolis, Indiana, to Plymouth, Ohio, by car. A trucking company hauled mufflers from Chicago to the plant and ASF in all obtained 35 AAA priorities or directives to rush all the parts needed from various cities. These included engines, fans, mufflers and gears.

Assembly of the first three locomotives began on March 27. The engines were put together, tested, and knocked down for shipment within two days. Then the three, weighing 12,000 pounds each complete with cranes and accessories, were rushed by the Transportation Corps' Traffic Control Division to Miami, Florida. They were loaded into two transport planes and sent half way around the world to their destination. For the entire shipment of 18 locomotives, 27 planes were used.

In a letter of thanks to General Somervell, Sir Walter Venning, Director General of the British Ministry of Supply Mission in Washington, D. C., said: "Your service has accomplished what, in my opinion, is an outstanding achievement. This expression of thanks for a job well done would be incomplete without reference to the manufacturers — Messrs. Fate-Roof-Heath, who, in spite of handicaps incidental to a rush order of this kind, succeeded in meeting the deadline date."

Sir Walter Venning added that "every Division of your Department has cooperated to the fullest possible extent. Thanks to that cooperation, we have succeeded in meeting the desired delivery schedule, shipping the locomotives by air in a knocked down condition, through the courtesy of the U.S.A. Air Transport Command."

"At the end of their journey they will be available for practically instant service which I am told is essential to the continued successful progress of Mountbatten's southern advance in Burma."

APRIL WEATHER

April showers will not bring May flowers this year because May flowers had bloomed and gone by the end of the month. April seemed more like the month of May, with "apple blossom time" before the middle of April and shade trees fully leaved out before the end of the month.

As usual, with such an early Spring, fruit trees were bound to get "nipped." There were six heavy frosts during the month—the latest on the 30th—just when the average for the month is 52.2 degrees. While it is too early to determine the extent of the damage to fruit in general, it will doubtless be considerable. It is reported that even wheat may have been damaged by the late frosts.

While most oats have been sown and are coming up, much Spring plowing has been delayed due to wet ground and lack of tractors and equipment.

The highest temperature for the month was 83 degrees on the 11th; the lowest 26 on the 6th. The average for the month was 52.2 degrees or 4.6 degrees above normal.

Total precipitation for the month was 3.15 inches, or 33 inch more than normal. The greatest 24 hours was 68 inch on the 2nd. There were 15 days with 01 or more of rainfall, mostly during the last half of the month. A trace of snow was recorded on the 5th, and 18th and light hail on the 20th. High winds did slight damage on the 5th and 17th.—J.A.R.

OPA CITES 24 VIOLATORS OF CEILING PRICES

Twenty-four grocery stores and markets were found to be in violation of ceiling prices during the April check conducted by volunteer price panel assistants of the war price and rationing board, Mr. Fred Link, chairman of the price panel reported today. The violators will be called before the price panel and the local board for conferences immediately, he added. The panel has the authority to arrange the administrator's claim for three times the amount of overcharges or 50, whichever is greater, in all cases of "willful" price violations.

During the recent survey, price panel workers checked on 82 grocery stores and markets and these stores visited 48 were found to be observing all the price ceilings and the posting requirements of the food regulations.

"The high degree of compliance in this area reflects the determination of merchants and consumers to hold the price line," said Mr. Link. "By working to remove price ceilings, we are fulfilling our responsibilities for observance of wartime rules and requirements."

Local housewives now busy with the spring housecleaning, decorating and repairing were reminded today that many of these services are safeguarded by ceiling prices. Included in the services covered by ceiling prices are paper-hanging, painting, decorating, plumbing, bricklaying, carpenter work, roofing and siding, electrical work, general contracting and heating contracting.

When these services are supplied on a unit-price basis, such as per roll for paper-hanging, per-hour for plumbing or per-square foot for roofing, the ceiling price should be the same as that charged during March, 1942, plus legal increases in the cost of material and any labor wage increases up to October, 1942.

If they are supplied on a contract basis a similar pricing system, also adjusted to increased labor and material costs is used. Still other OPA regulations place ceiling prices on repair work for most kinds of electrical appliances, the chairman said.

Any consumer wanting additional information about the ceiling price on any kind of service charge should telephone the price clerk at the ration board.

The Club mutually agreed to go ahead with plans as previously outlined for V-E Day. George Hershiser spoke on the post-war projects and those leading the list were first, the school project; second, the street program; and third, the sidewalk situation.

There were thirty-six in attendance and the success of the club is assured by all signing up for another quarter. The May 15th meeting will also be at the Methodist church.

EDITORIAL

ERNE PYLE

TO MOST mothers and fathers, the next best thing to getting a letter from that boy in the service was to read Ernie Pyle's column. Some of us were not fortunate enough to be able to get hold of his column regularly, but in many towns throughout the country where it was not published, copies were clipped out by relatives and sent by mail.

Ernie Pyle was the one war correspondent who could make us really feel that we were what our boys were experiencing. He lived with the boys in the foxholes. He was in the thick of one battle after another. His columns didn't bother with what the generals were doing. His whole concern was with the reaction to war and the warlike life of the G.I.s from little towns all over the country.

When Ernie Pyle was killed by Jap machine bullets the whole nation grieved. Through his columns he had become a close personal friend to millions of us. And we couldn't help thinking when we heard about his death that there was one more column Ernie would have given anything to write. He would have liked to tell us how it feels to die. He had told us practically everything else about this war.

PULLING OUR BELTS IN

THROUGHOUT the war we have heard a lot about the necessity of "pulling our belts in," but statistics on food consumption indicate that probably the greatest "sacrifice" we will have to make is to pull our belts back to normal.

For the figures for 1944 show that our civilian food consumption—in spite of having 10,000,000 of our normal population fed by the government—was nine per cent above prewar levels.

We may not be able to get just the food we want at the time we want it, but as a nation we certainly have been eating in record quantities. Of course the main reason for this is the increased income of so many people which has raised the nation's standard of living. If prosperity continues after the war, when food of all kinds will be more plentiful, there is no doubt that food consumption will soar to record heights. Poor people like good food and plenty of it just as much as rich people do—and as average incomes rise food consumption will keep pace.

In 1945 there may be a little less food available to us than there was in 1944. We may have to drink more milk and cereals and eat less meat, but it doesn't look as if any American, during this war, is going to learn anything about what it is like to be hungry.

FACING FACTS WON OUT

A CRISIS arrived in the life of Sarah Bernhardt the year she became a great-grandmother. She had made millions and had spent it all.

All her life the sheriff was just a couple of jumps behind her. She was always in debt; pawnbrokers had a secret entrance to her home; she was always late and to be observed. She realized that her only hope depended upon putting on a play which would be a great financial success. The best one seemed to be one dealing with the life of Joan of Arc. But there was a catch. One of the biggest scenes in the play dealt with the trial of Joan, who was a young girl. And Sarah would have to play that scene as Joan. Could a great-grandmother play the part? Would the audience laugh her off the stage?

She thought about it a while and said, "I have always believed the best way to face an unpleasant fact is to face it fairly and squarely, not deal in subterfuge, or even try to soften it. People like you to be honest with them. And if you are honest they likely will step over on your side."

A vast sum of money was spent on producing the play. If it failed, Sarah still would be only one jump ahead of the sheriff.

Her supporting company became nervous, for Sarah was 55 and no amount of paint could make her look a young girl. Finally the big night arrived: the greatest critics in Paris were there. The supreme test had come. Then came the cross-examination scene. When the moment arrived, Sarah walked to the middle of the stage so that she stood apart from everyone. On one side of the stage were the judges perched high on their impressive seats.

The chief judge said: "Prisoner, what is your name?" "Joan."

"What is your age?" "Sarah took her time and turned so that she faced the audience, so as to take it into her confidence, and said firmly: "I am nineteen years old."

There was a moment of silence at the audacious words, then the audience broke into applause. The audience liked her frankness and liked her facing the issue squarely, and they became her ardent supporters. The next day the critics said in the papers how wonderful it was that a woman no longer young could play the part of a 19-year-old girl. By facing the facts squarely and not trying to hide something, Sarah Bernhardt won over not only her audience but also her critics. It is this way outside of the theater, too. If you have to present an unpleasant truth, do not hedge. State it fairly and firmly and whoever you are dealing with will respect you for it. Many years ago, Benjamin Franklin said: "Years have taught me at least one thing and that is not to try to avoid an unpleasant fact, but rather to grasp it firmly and let the other person observe I am at least treating him fairly. Then he, it has been my observation, will treat me in the same spirit."

Doings in Congress

By Cong. W.M. LEMKE

THE SAN FRANCISCO CONFERENCE is on its way. Many objected because the conference was not opened with prayer. This may be an unholy sign, but it does not necessarily mean failure. If we are to have an international organization, maybe we will have to become half pagan, and the pagans become half Christian. Molotov's objection to Stettinius as permanent chairman is not serious. We will overlook that if Molotov will keep his hands off of Finland, Poland and the Balkan States.

IN THE MEANTIME, A MAJORITY of Congress still feel that their first duty is to improve their own Government. Therefore, I introduced a constitutional amendment limiting the term for President and Vice President to six years and making them both ineligible for re-election or election to either position. This amendment makes it impossible for the President, or the Vice President, to perpetuate himself in office through the three million Federal employees.

IT WOULD REMOVE THE temptation of granting special favors to States and individuals in the distribution of patronage, and the handling of billions of dollars of public funds. It would curb political graft and waste. It would make the President free to appoint those best qualified for positions rather than political chinchmen. He would then serve the best interest of the nation rather than seek the temporary plaudits of office seekers.

IT PROVIDES THAT THE PARTY candidates for President and Vice President be nominated by a direct national primary, and elected in a national election. These elections to be held in odd years, so that the President and the Vice President would be nominated and elected with either Federal or state candidates.

THEN, THE PRESIDENT could not tell Members of Congress that they came in on his coat tails. They, he and the Members would have to come in on their own coat tails. It would create a more wholesome respect between the Executive and Legislative branches of our Government.

THIS AMENDMENT WOULD make it possible for new parties to be formed provided there was considerable demand for same. Existing parties would welcome this as it would tend to create greater interest, and produce a higher standard of political integrity within their own parties.

IT WOULD GIVE THE PARTY voters a direct voice as to who shall be the party nominee. It abolishes the obsolete electoral college, which never functioned as intended. Why not count every vote in determining the final result of the election? Why disfranchise voters just because their party is a minority party in their particular state? Let us count the votes for each candidate.

PAY SUBSIDY

WFA To Pay County Butterfat Producers 17 Cent Subsidy For April.

Announcement made by the war food administration that a feed subsidy of 17 cents a pound will be paid to farmers for the butterfat they produce in April is good news to cream producers of Richland county. A subsidy of 10 cents a pound was paid for butterfat produced in the first three months of this year. This bill, which is intended to stimulate butterfat production, was the last one signed by President Roosevelt and was subscribed by him a few moments before he died.

Under the provisions of the amendment, the subsidy paid to producers of butterfat will now be based on the weighted average national subsidy on whole milk for each month. That is, the per pound subsidy on butterfat paid to cream producers will be one-fourth of the production payments on 100 pounds of whole milk produced in the various regions throughout the nation.

Officials of the National Cream Quality Program estimate that the average monthly subsidy to be paid to cream producers in April will average 17 cents a pound on the butterfat that they produce.

Harry Truman: From Farm to White House

From a Missouri farm to the White House—Harry S. Truman came to the last stop on that long road when he took the oath as President of the United States, late on the afternoon of April 12th.

The man upon whose shoulders rests frightening responsibilities was born 61 years ago, May 8, 1884, on a farm near Lamar, Mo., the son of John A. and Martha E. Truman. When Harry was four years old, his folks moved back to Jackson county and settled on a 600 acre place, a few miles outside of Kansas City, Mo. The Truman clan had been in Jackson county since 1842.

Harry's mother, who is still alive at 82, came from an adjoining farm. Her people, the Youngs, had also lived in Jackson county a long time. She was born in 1852.

The new President attended public schools in Jackson county, graduating from Independence, Mo., high school in 1901. All through his school days he helped to till the huge acreage, which was planted mostly in corn.

Poor eyesight (the always wears glasses) kept him out of West Point after he had passed the rigorous scholastic examinations. He went to Kansas City and worked at whatever jobs he could, drug store clerk, newspaper mail room bundler, and bank clerk. Finally he returned to the family farm, where he remained for several years.

During his stay in Kansas City he had enlisted in the National Guard. He advanced through the grades of noncommissioned rank. When the United States entered the war in 1917 he went to field artillery school, and became a lieutenant. After serving in France in the Argonne and St. Mihiel campaigns, he was advanced to a captaincy. When he returned to this country he held a major's commission. Later, in the army reserve he became a colonel.

Soon after returning from war in 1919, he married Bess Wallace, a school teacher in Independence. One child, Mary Margaret, was born to them. Deciding to enter business, he pooled his savings with a friend and opened a haberdashery shop in Kansas City. The sharp recession of 1920-21 brought failure and loss to Truman.

Castigating about for some other career, Truman decided to try for some small political office. He ran for county judge and was elected.

While a Student

President Harry S. Truman has indicated that he will closely follow general policies of the late President Roosevelt, in order to bring a quick and lasting peace to the world.

Only two hours and thirty minutes after Franklin D. Roosevelt's death, Harry S. Truman became President of the United States.

President Was Watching Senator

President Roosevelt, who had been watching the Missouri senator, began to consider whether Harry Truman's abilities might not better serve the country in some executive capacity. No opening developed of sufficient importance, however, and Truman continued with his legislative duties and his committee work. He had been slowly forging acquaintances throughout the senate. Though not spectacular, his personality, integrity and energy won him respect and admiration. He also had many friends in the house of representatives.

When Roosevelt decided on the momentous step last year of running for a fourth term, he also had to make a choice for a running mate. After hesitating a long time he let it be known, just before the national convention met in Chicago, that he believed Harry Truman would be the most satisfactory choice. Truman

Early Days of War

Harry S. Truman entered World War I as a lieutenant of the Missouri National guard. He saw action at Saint Mihiel and the Argonne and was promoted to captain and major. When war ended he was a colonel of the reserve corps.

won the nomination. He was elected with Roosevelt in November. As vice president, Truman has stuck close to his duties as president of the senate. He has kept in close touch with the world-embracing activities of war-time Washington, and so was ready to assume the duties of chief executive when the call came so unexpectedly.

Studied Law While in Office

While in office Truman realized that a knowledge of law was essential to any further advancement. Consequently he entered the Kansas City School of Law at the age of 39, and studied nights for three years. He was admitted to the bar soon after graduation.

From 1922 to 1934, with the exception of one term, 1924-26, he held county offices. In the 1928 election he became presiding judge, a step higher. He was rapidly growing in political stature.

In 1934 he was jumped over numerous other aspirants, and entered as regular party candidate for the United States senate, somewhat to his surprise. He had been intending to run for county collector. Although comparatively unknown, the party label carried him to success.

Wisely recognizing the limitations that inexperience placed upon him, Senator Truman remained rather inconspicuous and silent until he could learn his duties and study the issues that came up for consideration.

It was not until his second term that he began to take a vigorous part in law-making and other business of the senate. He leaped into public notice in February, 1941, when he was appointed chairman of the special committee to investigate the war program. This group of senators became known in headline language as the "Truman committee."

During the next few months Truman and his colleagues toured the country, investigating war contracts. Through the committee's recommendations a saving of $200,000,000 was effected.

FHA GIVE FORMAL DINNER-DANCE FRIDAY EVENING AT AUDITORIUM

The climax of the active school year of the Future Homemakers Association was Friday evening, April 27th, when they entertained at a formal dinner-dance the senior girls and faculty in the Plymouth high school auditorium.

Pastel shades of pink, yellow, purple and green crepe paper were suspended from a wire framework, representing a portico with flower-bedecked archways leading into the two-room compartment. Black and white latticed crepe formed the ceiling and tables were arranged U-shape.

Covers were laid for fifty-one guests at the beautifully decorated tables lighted with tapers arranged in groups of four at regular intervals on a base of green ferns. Floating parasols were artistically arranged while small umbrellas in pastel shades as favors holding the evening's program added color to the scheme and carried out the theme of "April Showers bring forth May Flowers."

The three course dinner, was prepared by a group of mothers of FHA members and served by twelve eighth grade girls in dark blue skirts and white blouses. Miss Evelyn Carnahan presided as hostess.

Mistress of Ceremonies was Miss Olive Kennedy; invocation, Margaret Kemp, and a piano solo by Agnes Roberts. LaWanna Brown as president of the group spoke on Great Women in Home Economics and gave special mention to Miss Isabelle Biever formerly of Plymouth who was instrumental in organizing the Home Ec Department in Schools. Other numbers on the program was a vocal quartette by Sally Steele, Donna Jean Curran, Patie Darling and Joy Lee Bradford and concluded by remarks by Miss Elizabeth Mohr, Home Ec Supervisor.

At nine o'clock escorts of the girls arrived for an evening of dancing and Effie and her Spineries were not only the surprise but the hit of the evening. Sitting on their elevated platform and dressed in fashion of long ago were Miss Effie with the drums, Miss Miscellaneous with the clarinet and Miss Mehitabel with the saxophone. A spinning wheel, the emblem of the F.H.A. was cleverly arranged on the platform and a huge banner proclaimed to the audience that Effie's Spineries (with the aid of dance records) could give forth the world's best dance music.

Effie's Spineries (with the aid of dance records) could give forth the world's best dance music. Effie and her assistants were the result of long hours of work by the girls and their wall paper cleaner faces were very expressive with their musical talent.

The last project of the year by the FHA was voted a delightful success.

They especially thank Miss Mohr their advisor for her valuable advice and assistance, the mothers who helped in the kitchen, Wayne Ross for his album of records, Mr. Beck who helped with practically everything, Mr. R. McCarty for the crepe paper, Brown & Miller for use of their truck, those who loaned old-fashioned dresses, Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Anna Belle Knight who also gave such wonderful assistance and the various committees and all who helped in any way.

LOCAL TEAM TO ENTER COUNTY BALL TOURNEY

Probably for the first time in the local school history at least for a number of years, Plymouth will have a team in the County baseball tournament. The tournament starts today and is being held on the Ontario diamond, with Plymouth meeting Lexington, and Union playing Ontario. The tournament winner will represent Richland County in the district tournament at Old Fort next week.

The local lads opened their season last week against Willard, a class "A" school, and dropped a close game 7-3.
Monday the team journeyed to Tiro. Going into the last half of the fifth inning Plymouth was leading 4-4 when Bill Miller who was pitching and who usually is reliable suddenly weakened. Tiro soon had three runs across the plate with no outs. Berberick came in to relieve Miller, but before the side could be retired four more runs crossed the plate. The final score was 11-6. Fenner, with two doubles and a single, led the attack for Plymouth.

Next Tuesday Plymouth will meet Shelby on the local diamond. The game is called for 3:30. The box score of the Tiro game follows:

SOLDIER NEWS

To Earl Stevenson and Glenn Swanger:

Germany, April, 1945

Dear Folks: I'm sitting here with a program of the Community Service that was given in my honor, and with the two recent letters from my mother.

I can hardly believe that it is true and that it is me, that the program is telling about. I want to thank you folks for all your thoughts and acts of appreciation. I imagine you two, Glenn and Steve, are responsible for the program, because mother mentioned your names, but for the many others whom I don't know about, would you please extend my thanks to them. Thanks to Mrs. Butler, Mrs. Wiersberger, Rev. Bobber, Rev. Haines, and Dr. Fankalster.

I know they made it a very nice program. I would have loved to hear them tell it. I hope you understand how I feel because I can't really tell you how deeply grateful I am.

Seeing the heading, "Shiloh's Angel of Mercy," I don't know of anything that could be true because I, as the many others, who are away, feel that there's no place like Shiloh, and no finer people to be found than the friends we left back there.

We are all anxious to get back home and take our places among you again.

I keep on the watch for all the boys that I know are over here. We have little time for visits, but I'm always hoping, whenever I do go anywhere, that I might see someone from home. I believe that I charge at every soldier in Paris for three days, but was disappointed.

Because our boys are such wonderful soldiers and patients, I feel that it is a privilege to be here with them, and if I have eased their pain or aided in their comfort, it is my small contribution.

We are proud of you folks back home because we know we have the best food, clothing and supplies in the world. All because you have worked and sacrificed to organize it.

Enclosing my thanks and best wishes to you all and hoping to be home soon, I remain,

As ever,

Mary Ferrell

Ringgold, Texas, and then served at many stations in this country as an enlisted staff member.

Assigned overseas early in the war, Col. Raymond was stationed at Bizerte. His major duty was setting up maintenance and supply depots in North Africa for repairing and maintaining the B-24 bombers.

Moving into the Italian theatre, Col. Raymond was stationed last in Bari. He was there during the heaviest air raids on that town. He lost all his gear and equipment when the hotel in which he was living was completely destroyed during the raid. As a result of an air raid on Bari, Col. Raymond re-sustained a back injury and was returned to this country on the navy ship U.S.S. Refuge, on her maiden voyage as a hospital ship.

"I feel that this depot is in excellent condition, and that the personnel both military and civilian are doing a fine job," said Col. Raymond. "I believe that the largest permanent AAF depots, will continue to develop with additional classes being sent here from leased facilities that will eventually be closed. I know that this depot will occupy an important part in the post war plans insofar as the air forces' activities are concerned."

A native of Mt. Vernon, Ohio, Col. Raymond is married and has one son, Richard Ringold, age 8. The Raymonds now reside at 82 East Main street in Shelby.
