MRS. CHRISTINE, "Grandma"

Johnston is off on a week's jaunt to relatives in Pt. Clinton and Fremont. Grandma left in good luck, and we wish her all the best. She has plenty of milk, but she catches so many mice, the pup should be well looked after, to say nothing of a half glass of milk. She has many plants, and many, many other instructions. Even at eighty-four years of age, household duties must be performed and Grandma is a little dubious that her daughter, Mrs. O. M. Lamoreux can get them all done to her complete satisfaction... but she can try.

in a lot of territory the other day when he was telling me all about the new "water-proofing" service he is now giving at his cleaning and pressing establishment. It's called Aridex, made by DuPont, and we make all garments water-proof. Oh, heck, I mean raincoats, jackets, hunting togs, etc. If you want to know WHAT to use on, ask "Red."

TOM KUNICON does blush once in a while.

At least I saw his face turn red Wednesday afternoon while down at the foundry. Tom had just finished up a big hunk of sand into a mold, and when he got ready to use the crane, he couldn't find the hook. The boys swear he covered it up in the sand!

WELL, kids, only a few more here. Get you back to school. More headaches for the teachers. More worry for you... oh, well, let's don't worry about it too much. Some parents are glad to see school start, too!

COMMUNITY "CLUBBERS", and

I don't mean "knockers", and enjoyed a real picnic gathering at the Mary Fale Park Tuesday evening. Attendance was off, but those who came didn't regret it. Now that summer is over, the September meeting will be held at the Presbyterian church, Tuesday evening, Sept. 3, at 8:30. McQuate, Miller and Thomas will supply two programs for the coming month, so don't forget the date of the first meeting.

IT PAYS TO HAVE THE RIGHT HERO story and asked him some questions. The boy impressed him; he was earnest, sincere, ambitious. So he got him a job as a newspaper reporter. At the time, young Alexander could see his here in the General Electric laboratories.

Time passed. The young Swedish man was set to work on a "high frequency alternator." He spent two years on it, encouraged from time to time by his hero. At last it was completed and installed at the station at Frank Rock, Mass. On Christmas eve, 1906, that alternator enabled the station to transmit the first broadcast in the history of the world. Newspaper headlines gasped.

Alexander, inspired by his hero, continued to experiment and invent; to perfect the alternator. He did so much for it that it became known as the "Alexander alternator." He then turned out still more radio devices.

Alexander has 272 patents. He has been known as the "American father of radio." His name is revered in the world of invention. The determining factor in his life was when he found a hero and determined to model his life after him. So, fathers and mothers, encourage your son to pick out the worthy hero. He may lead you to some fine accomplishments.

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON What Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson can or will do to restore dignity and decorum to the United States supreme court is a subject of interesting conversation in Washington.

For the sake of the court and also for the sake of the nation, let's hope that Chief Justice Vinson can use his courage and his administrative ability, his judicial knowledge and his reputation for setting major disturbances among conflicting personalities, to bring back once more a smooth working, dignified United States supreme court.

The last days of the 79th Congress brought to light some new and startling examples of the use of riders attempting to defeat legislation favored by a majority or to obtain approval of measures opposed by a majority or by the President.

This combination was used first by Senator Wayne Morse, (R-Ore.) when he threw the smoke into an uproar by introducing the million-dollar anti-poll tax bill as a rider on the Tidewater Lands bill under consideration. Senator W. Lee O'Daniel also threatened a comparable filibuster rider tactic.

As a result of these tactics, Senator William F. Knowland, (R-Cal.) introduced two resolutions in the senate seeking to prevent riders by forbidding amendments not germane to bills under discussion. He also sought to amend the rules to amend the 50-year old cloture rule to permit limitation of debate by a mere majority instead of the two-thirds rule. Of course no action was taken on these resolutions.

MARRIAGE LICENSE A marriage license has been issued at the Crawford County Court House to Cyril Leo Studer of Tiro, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Studer and Emma Rehman of New Washington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Rehman.

Doings in Congress

By CONGRESSMAN WILLIAM LEMKE

At last America is again taking her position as a nation that is more interested in justice and decency than in dictatorial aggression. Secretary Byrnes talked turkey to Molotov — to Russian aggression and liquidation.

Too long Byrnes sat complacently, and listened to Molotov talking of Spanish fascism and Russian democracy. A liquidator of other nations' people, and thief of their territory and property, talking democracy should have been enough to have insulted Byrnes' intelligence.

Now that Byrnes has called a spade a spade, let him continue the good work. Let him call the bluff of every dictator—of every aggressor—small or large. Let him expose their double talk to the world, and public opinion will put a halt to their murderous aggression. Less than that the American people will not stand for.

Months ago Generals, fresh from the battlefields, informed us that Russian liquidation of other nations' people could be stopped if our State Department had the guts to call the bluff when it was now, and not ten years from now.

World War II was the result of appeasement, and public opinion while a dictator prepared to conquer the world. Stalin, Dictator II, has the same desire that Dictator I Hitler had. Let us not repeat the mistake. Let us inform Molotov and Stalin now that we will not enter into an armament race with them, but into a disarmament race.

Let us inform them in no uncertain terms to get out of other nations' territory, and into their own boundaries and stay there. Let Byrnes inform them that we do not mean "maybe" when we make that demand. Then the world will join us, and public opinion will bring about that result. Then there will be no World War III.

Now let Secretary Byrnes get the word of the foreign colony hibernating in the Department of State. Let him get rid of Bill Clayton, the British cotton king. Let him get rid of Dean Acheson, that commie inclined individual. Let him clean house from top to bottom, and he will become one of America's foremost statesmen.

If we are to have lasting peace, it must be based upon justice—not hatred and vengeance. After World War I, there were some twenty-three European nations. HOLDS OFFICE

The following article taken from a Quarterly Bulletin, Society, Sons of American Revolution will be of interest locally, inasmuch as Mr. William M. Pettit is a brother of Jos. E. Pettit and E. B. Pettit, both of Shiloh.

"William M. Pettit, elected to the office of Vice President general for the Central District at Trenton on May 16th, affiliated with the Sons of the American Revolution about twenty years ago, serving his Chapter at Dayton as Secretary, Treasurer and President. He has been on the Ohio Board for fifteen years, and has served as State Secretary, Registrar for eleven years, during which time he supervised the organization of six chapters and has seen the membership of the Ohio Society double. He served three years as chairman of the National S. A. R. Library Committee, and was one year on the National Executive Council. He has attended the National Congress consecutively for the past twelve years.

Mr. Pettit's first major activity was teaching, followed by twenty years as newspaper publisher. Since 1907 he has been engaged in the practice of law.

Mr. Pettit found much of personal historical interest in attending the Trenton Congress as his ancestor, Nathaniel Pettit, settled near the Falls of the Delaware in 1828. He served in which the New Jersey State House is located and a portion of Trenton being sections of his grant. Another ancestor, Robert Stacy, was a prominent commissioner-judge for West Jersey, and the coat of arms emblazoned on the Stacy-Trent Hotel china, used at the banquet of the Congress, was that of the Stacy family.

Mrs. Pettit, an Ohio girl from Minah Creek, is deeply interested in D. A. R. and genealogical work with her husband, and contains features in D. A. R. and local publications.

Save Buildings As Stack Burns

The Shiloh Fire Department responded to an alarm at 11:30 p. m. Thursday at the Shiloh Laser farm four and one-half miles south west of Shiloh where a straw stack and baler were destroyed by flames which threatened the farm buildings. During the baling operations the straw stack toppled over on the tractor and caught fire. The tractor was badly damaged, the baler and considerable fence burned and one unidentified man was severely burned about the hands and arms. The baler and tractor were owned by Fred Heister of Centerton.

The Shelby water truck responded to a call for help in saving the barn which seemed almost certain to catch fire and water was also secured from Shiloh. Mayor Swanger wishes to thank the ladies of the American Legion who went to the Laser farm and served lunch to the volunteer firemen who were fighting the blaze. He also wishes to express appreciation to those who aided in securing additional water from Shiloh.

The farm belongs to W. R. Richards of Willard and the loss is partially insured.

WHY NOT NOW?

"Deep in the heart of Texas, a farmer was brought to the hospital, seriously ill. For many days he lay on a hospital cot in a deep coma. One morning he revived, and turning to the nurse, asked: "What day is it?"

"Why it's Springtime!" was the astonished reply.

"Springtime! Then I can't die now, for it's plowing time," was his desperate answer.

It is now springtime for your soul. Why not allow the Lord Jesus to begin His work in and through you? Tomorrow may be too late.

ENCOURAGE CHILDREN IN HOUSE PLANNING

If you see a man working with pencil and paper on his desk or at a table, the chances are a crossword puzzle no longer occupies him—he is far more apt to be sketching plans for the new house he hopes to build for his family than he can get materials and labor. And where a woman's pocketbook used to bulge with shopping lists and receipts, it now holds penciled designs for bookcases and built-in cupboards. These are signs of the times, for most of us are living in more crowded conditions than we like, and enjoying it. The plan for a new house on paper helps the waiting time seem shorter. But are the children included in this paper stage of the new house?

They should be. Let them see the blueprints and Laura's diary should be just as full of sketches for their own rooms and for things they like to see built into the house as any father's pockets and Mother's purse.

So don't do all your house planning when the children are asleep. Let them share the fun of suggesting improvements they've admired in houses they have visited, for children get about into more playmate's homes than their parents are apt to visit. The two closets with the built-in dressing table between them which Laura admires in a friend's room may be the very way to solve her school girl need for a closet for playthings, since she hasn't outgrown her fondness for them, and a closet for the teen clothes in which she's beginning to take an interest. Beside it's a great incentive to husbands to be able to keep clothes separate from boxes and other objects.

And Don is sure to have ideas for a workshop that his parents couldn't possibly dream up as satisfactorily. Then, adults enjoy a quiet, orderly existence—children like noise and excitement. Why not plan room arrangements together, from both points of view, since you have to live in the house as a family.

Let the children share the budgeting, too. Corners always have to be cut when you are finally confronted with actual costs and making choices. If you can't have both the ground floor screened porch and the screened sun gallery over the garage, let the children choose on which means the most in comfort and enjoyment.

The children can contribute to the finance too, by earning small sums and by giving up some accustomed luxury. If Laura wants more expensive wall paper than the budget allows, she may be willing to do with fewer sweaters and frocks to help pay for it. And saving for a cherished new room is a wonderful incentive for cutting down on sodas!

It is one of life's happiest experiences, building a home. Even birds begin to sing in it. So don't make the mistake of thinking that children lack this instinct for, and pride in, ownership of a home.

Miss Mary Clark of Marion was a guest the past week in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Archer and family.

House And Home

By MARY E. DAGUE
Author of Sister Mary's Kitchen

CAREFUL planning means in hot weather can get their share toward keeping us cool. Old Mother Nature is very canny in providing us the foods for summer eating so if we take our tip from her and serve fruits and vegetables in abundance we won't go wrong.

Soup and salad combinations are ideal foods for luncheon, dinner or supper on lazy hot-weather days. Their appetizing appeal in crisp salads served with hot or jellied soup and both these foods are quickly and easily prepared. In order to cut down on bread use flaky, fresh crackers with the soup and salad meal.

Add potatoes, salt and milk and bring to the boiling point but do not let boil. Add pepper and sprinkle with crumbled bacon.

Milk a mixture of milk and water with a mixture of melon balls, seedless grapes and orange sections on a bed of watercress. Serve with French dressing made without a trace of onion or garlic.

Thieves Enter Greenwich Garage

GREENWICH—Unidentified persons broke into the Chevrolet garage here, operated by Charles Crum, but were evidently frightened away before they could take approximately $500 from the office safe.

Authorities said the intruders used a blow torch to cut a circular hole around the dial of the safe, and had begun cutting thru the sheet metal protector.
