Plymouth Seniors Enjoy Three Full Sightseeing Days in Washington

By Mary Ellen Thomas
As far back as I can remember I have gone to Willard to see the train pull in and leave. I watched them change engines, take on water, and have wheels checked. It was a thrilling experience. I wondered where the train went after it pulled away from the station. After the diesel engines took the place of the steamboilers, it was still more of a thrill to see the streamlined "bug" come quietly into the station, toot its horn, and smoothly go on to its destination. I promised myself that someday I would get on that train, but at that time I did not think I would be one of them to have the time of my life taking a trip to Washington, D. C. on the train I had seen pull out of Willard so many times.

We, the Seniors, had been looking forward to this trip for many years. Thru our special projects and the co-operation of the town, we raised the money to pay all expenses. We asked Mrs. Mable Lanus, our sponsor, had been corresponding with Mr. Casey of the B&O, to make reservations and all accommodations. The whole trip was completely planned ahead of time and the schedule looked as though we weren't going to miss a thing. The date had been set for June 1, 9:30 p.m. The "Columbian" had to leave time until 10:00, but we had to have time to get organized and things under control.

There were twenty-one of us and two chaperons, Mr. and Mrs. Lanus. The group was divided into smaller groups; three of four, two of three, and one of six. The heads reported by calling out the numbers in order; 4, 4, 4, 3, 6. The day finally arrived and we were rather disgusted at the way the train was running. It had been raining for weeks. We met at the station with raincoats, umbrellas, and rain gear. It was a relief to see us off in spite of the rain. Mr. and Mrs. John A. Root had a wonderful surprise for us. FOOD! The basket certainly came in handy and we enjoyed it to the last crumb.

We Board the Train
We got on the coach and with the help of the stewardess, we found enough seats close to each other. Some of us had never been on a train and as we pulled away from the station, it was altogether a new and different experience. After an hour or so we received pillows and put them to good use. Stopping at Akron, the coach was cleared so that we had it to ourselves. Some sang, played cards, and some of us looked out the windows at the countryside. Soon the lights were dimmed. Most of us were too excited to sleep an afraid to miss anything. We next stopped at Youngstown where we saw the open blast furnaces making steel. They lit the sky with a orange glow. It was a beautiful against the darkness of night.

A few were sleeping now and before we knew it we were in New Castle, Penn. The country was getting hilly and you could see the outline as the hills grew into mountains. Nestling in a valley of Western Pennsylvania hills and mountains, where the Allegheny and Monongahela join to form the mighty Ohio, is the metropolis of Western Pennsylvania—Pittsburgh, often called the "Workshop of America." This was our next stop. It was almost like Youngtown with its many blast furnaces. After passing through this great city, more of us fell asleep.

The next important stop was Cleveland, Maryland, too. It was about 5:30 a.m. From then on it was a straight run to Washington. By this time everyone was up and ready for breakfast. The dining car was just one coach behind us. We had quite a time trying to walk, but we finally made it and sat down. We ordered, and the maid in detail in getting your food into your mouth without getting it all over your face.

It came into the Capital, Washington, D. C. at 9:45 a.m. Everyone was intact and we met our guide, Mr. Clifford Myers. He took us to our Sightseeing bus where he introduced us to the bus driver and we were off to see the sights of Washington.

It is visible from every direction. It is, indeed, as beautiful as the pictures.

Many Places of Interest.
At 1:30 we had an appointment to personally meet Stanley Reed, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, who was made possible by Mrs. Eleanor Searle Whitney. We were in time to hear the opening session of the court.

After this appointment we headed for lunch. Everyone was enthused about this fine idea. Feeling much better, we started on the road again.

We next stopped at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. This building is known as the world's largest and most modern. It is designed, printed and finished all the paper monies, stamps and securities of the government. We saw them making millions of dollars, all crisp, green and new. There was much to see in the Pan-American Union Building. This building is, in a sense, the Capitol of the American republics in the Capital of the United States, for it serves as the home for the great principle of Pan-American unity of the Americas. The architecture is of Latin American, and the chief feature of interest is the typical Spanish patio in which they are growing many tropical plants and trees. There were two huge colored parrots, one of which was 78 years old. Behind these was a small brown colored parrot which the guide said was raised in Mexico and was a very able talker. Since he came from Mexico, he could speak only Spanish, and the guide said he was permitted to translate it due to the meaning. The bird must have been scared of us because he never let out a peep. We were raised in the building are four beautiful marble columns costing $10,000 each. The guide said there were only twelve in the United States. Besides of the marble pillars, the building contains a large and handsomely appointed assembly room called the Hall of Americas, where distinguished ambassadors, national, diplomatic and social nature take place.

Going on, we came to the Smithsonian Institution. After getting through the building it was quite an experience to see what it contained. At first glance, the building looks like a castle of red stone. It is surrounded by beautiful park grounds. Directly north of the Smithsonian Institution is the Natural History Building. Having only an hour to see both buildings, we saw the most important exhibits. It would take weeks to see all the examples of the handicrafts of the ancients of the old world, sculpture, metals, and glass, clothing of the centuries, development of transportation, scientific developments and historic relics. We came back to our Hotel Ebbitt, where we were getting a bit tired. This hotel accommodated three thousand students from all over the country who had come on the sightseeing tour similar to ours. We had a couple of hours to rest and clean up before our supper. Whitney had secured tickets for us all to see the "Late Song" at the National Theater. It was a very touching stage play of Chinese people.

The last day finds us tired from the long day, but it seemed so hot it took us awhile to sail to dreamland. It seemed before I had closed my eyes, I heard something ringing. It pertained to my morning in the racket, so I picked up the telephone and said "hello." Someone at the other end in a very pleasant voice said "Good morning, 7:00-7:00." Somehow we managed to get half awake and go downstairs for breakfast.

Our bus and "Waster" guides were waiting for us. This bright Tuesday morning we went to the Washington Monument. We were going to go up into it, but it was getting so hot that we were just wanting to do the same thing. We went on to the Pentagon Building to meet Secretary of War, Robert P. Patterson. On the steps of the building we had our pictures taken with Mr. Patterson. You could put all the people of Plymouth in this one building several times.

From here we headed for the White House. We saw the famous East room, blue room, green room, and the many more. The White House cameras were allowed and you went single file all the way across the lawn. The magnificent ter, the priceless vase, the famous paintings, the rich hangings and the ornate furnishings—all these things are most interesting and must be seen to be appreciated. There is nothing but the business about the Executive Mansion such as has characterized similar places of abode in European countries. There are no stables and historic house of its kind does not exist anywhere in the world.

Alumni Association Ask Cooperation

The officers of the P. H. S. Alumni Association would greatly appreciate the paying of the current years dues ($60) by all members who have not already done so. A great many have been in their dues, but many others have failed to do so, and the payment of the same would wipe out the deficit incurred in this year's program.

We have been to considerable expense in the purchase of our dinnerware, as well as several other items calculated to add interest and beauty to our annual banquet and dance. We are counting on the cooperation of all members in this matter.

Dues can be sent to the treasurer, Mrs. Helen Sams, Plymouth, or to any other officer.

A Queer One

Here's another one to add to your Believe It or Not experiences. Kenneth and Ralph Sourwine who reside with their father Cliff Sourwine off route 224 called a frank woodchuck. And judging from his looks, he would be grandpa type of them all. It was a long ivory like tusks protruding from the upper part of its mouth which stuck up on each side of the upper jaw.

It is so unusual, that the boys are having it mounted and put on each side of the upper jaw.

A Few Mayflower Annals Can Still Be Purchased

Did you want a Mayflower Annual for the year 1947 and forgot to place your order? There are still a few that can be purchased at the Plymouth Advertiser for $1.50.

The annuals are good reference books in years to come, contain many pictures of every senior and junior as well as class pictures of the other classes. School activities, class will and other items of interest are to be found in the book.

Plymouth Ni in Lose to Celeryville

The Plymouth Merchants ball team lost a hard fought game last night to Celeryville in the Celeryville nine. Proforma held the merchants in hand and was relieved by Wiers in the 5th inning. Celeryville benches 3 singles to town and put runners on 1st and 2nd but by very good fielding Wiers pitched out of it. The last half of the "T" Vanderbilt had the 3rd terms, and on an error got to 3rd where he was brought home on a sharp single by M. Vanderbilt.

IMPROVING

Saddle Club To Stage Horse Show Sunday

The heavy rains of last Friday night and Saturday caused a postponement of the horse show, which was scheduled to be held here last Sunday. The show will be held this Sunday, June 15, weather permitting.

Don Willet, president of the Plymouth Saddle Club, which is sponsoring the show, stated that the grounds will be put into condition this week-end, and plans will be carried out for the holding of the show this coming Sunday on the Riggle Farm (the old Seton place) just east of Plymouth.

Decision to postpone the show wasn't definite until heavy rains started falling Friday night, and the sponsors decided then that the ground would be too soft on Sunday. Too late to give publicity notice of postponement to many who desired to enter horses, the telephone call poured into Plymouth Sunday to give publicity notice about the weather, and whether or not the show would be staged. Quite a number of people had already come to the show and were disappointed to learn of the show's postponement.

However, with the hot winds and sun on the middle of the week, there is every indication that the show will be held Sunday, June 15, and promises to be one of the biggest attractions in this section of the state among horse lovers.

Community Club Has Fine Meeting

Twenty-six Community Clubbers met in banquet hall Tuesday night to attend the regular monthly meeting of the club, which proved very interesting and enjoyable. A very nice dinner was served at the Stevens Restaurant by Mr. and Mrs. Earl Lambert, the main dish being baked ham and sweet potatoes. A vote of thanks was extended to the restaurant for a splendid meal and good service.

Taking his chair as president of the Club, Rev. Patrick asked for reports of the secretary, Earl McQuate, and treasurer, J. E. Nimmons. Reports of various committees were made, including the new projects committee, which is seeking additional parking space for the village; new benches to be placed on the walkway around the Square and waste paper receptacles. The committee is to meet with the village council in July in furtherance of the above mentioned projects.

It was voted to hold the July meeting on the second Tuesday of the month at the Mary Tate Park. This will be a pot luck affair, but out into the far West, ice cream and coffee.

On Thursday, June 9, Community Club members, and other interested citizens, will gather at the park to assist in assembling tables, benches, and other work which will add much to our park for the current season. Anyone wishing to help will please contact Elmer Markey or Ott Kinsel at the Park on Thursday afternoon, June 19th.

A transportation committee to work with the FRI committee on Plymouth Day at Chippewa was also appointed. A survey will be made during the next two weeks to determine whether or not a projected number of tickets can be sold so a guarantee can be made to the B. & O. in supplying a special train to Chippewa on Plymouth Day, which has been set as Friday, August 15th.

Two new members were added to the roster: J. O. Schreck and Ford Davis. A special effort is being made this month to step up the membership to sixty, and with an open air meeting at the Park a big increase in membership attendance is expected.

Following the business session Miles Christian took over the program, and he used his experiences as a navigator in the Navy as the subject for his talk. From the time he entered the Navy until the day he received his discharges, he had many thrilling experiences, as well as a number of humorous incidents. As a navigator, he told of the basic methods used on ships to locate positions; and the one time he became really puzzled was when he was in the middle of the way Island, although his ship was some one hundred and fifty miles away from the island. The highlights of his talk included his early training in the Navy; some of his experiences with convoys in enemy waters; the uncharted spots in the South Pacific; the Pacific; Neptune and the boys who cross the Equator; and references made about some of his skippers. Mr. Christian's talk was a very instructive, pleasant, entertaining, and refreshed humor brought hearty laughs. To clubs, organizations, or any group who are a speaker in our program, no mistake will be made in securing him.

SHORT VISIT WITH SLOAN

Mr. and Mrs. C. Sloan, Rt. 1, Sandusky, are visiting with their widely known as good farmers, but they didn't have anything to boast about with only three acres of oats in, and not even a garden plowed. Even with a backward season they remained somewhat optimistic, and it's two to one they'll have something to show for their effort at harvest time.

BROTHER DIES

ASHLAND—Services for Ora Melville Ward, 49, who died on Tuesday night at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Ward, were held at 10:30 a. m. Friday at the Heyl funeral home with burial in Nova cemetery.

Mr. Ward, a truck driver and member of the Methodist church, leaves his widow, Ruth; of Sturgis, Mich.; one son, Raymond E., now in Tokyo; two daughters, Virginia and Mrs. Sturgis, Mich.; one brother, O. W. Ward of Myers Beach, Fla., formerly of Plymouth, one sister Mrs. Lawrence Harris of Elyria and his parents.

Important Meeting

Sunday morning at the Lutheran Church, there will be a very important meeting in doing close of the morning service. All members are urged to be present to help on the decisions to be made at the meeting. The White Cross Hospital, Columbus, Mrs. Farnwall remains about the same.

One of the most deep-rooted fallacies of the past fifteen years is the allegation that machines always put people out of work. "Technological unemployment" was the phrase most used in this connection. And it was often used. This week the Automobile Manufacturers Association released some interesting statistics. Nearly 5,421 million workers, or one in every eleven in the U. S. now are employed in motor-trucking fields. The 4,750,000 workers in and around make up the nation's largest single occupational group outside of agriculture, says the AMA. So the automobile, which is largely unemployable, has unemployable (technological unemployment once more) has created far more jobs and more wealth than ever involved in the wire and feeding of Old Dobbin.

A VACATION IS always too short. But an accident can cut it shorter—and turn pleasure to pain. The Ohio State Safety Council suggests you take carefulness with you and let your car take the rest of your body. Have a good time—for a long time.

FOLLOWING eight weeks or more of continuous rains just about drove everyone around these parts to despair. As for myself, after the deluge of last week, I was so saturated and ready to give up. Strange what three days of sunshine can do, isn't it? Here I am again, all better, made me feel very interested in my column once more. And as I ride over the country roads I can see a smile across every farm house. So, let's hope Old Sol stays with us for a few days more.

DURING the past six weeks all I could think of was the plight of the farmer who has been smothered in himself sick. The very thought of having a hundred acres of ground and not a seed planted, made me feel very unhappy. And don't think that I happen as a whole wasn't beginning to worry somewhat. Not only did the rains raise havoc in Ohio, but out into the far West, and into a large portion of the eastern states. The loss so far will run into millions, but the farmer has a fighting chance still. The chance for most of the crops, with the exception of oats . . . provided we have a late fall.

SOME PEOPLE in Plymouth are really wizards. They have served a few garden spots with quite a nice showing of beans, cabbages, tomatoes, lettuce, carrots, and other things. They have used boards to get onto the ground. But most of us are making every hour count in getting in some seed plants this week. With the rain, the soil is so wet, I am told that the wet weather certainly DID make a difference in garden planting. It is way down below normal seasons.

ENJOY A SHORT VISIT WITH Mr. and Mrs. C. Sloan, Rt. 1, Sandusky, are visiting with their widely known as good farmers, but they didn't have anything to boast about with only three acres of oats in, and not even a garden plowed. Even with a backward season they remained somewhat optimistic, and it's two to one they'll have something to show for their effort at harvest time.

WHEN the fight was on we'd wave flags from the housetop, there were many "Yets" rather anything and everything for the boys when they get back home." Yep, that's what we said, but we didn't mean it. You see the war's over two years now, and the boys are pretty well set, so why worry about the boys who did the job for us? You know the story. Today, there are many "Yets" rather get back into the front lines to keep on asking for a place to live. Ask any one of them. We've been in our own homes. "Anybody who's been in the war and really deserves some consideration. Think it over, and we'll arrange an interview."

YOU CAN sidestep ladders, scare black cats out of your path, be careful about breaking mirrors on Friday, the 13th but you can't

LET'S EXPLORE OHIO State Parks

This summer, week after week, you and your whole family can have more fun by making greater use of Ohio's 40 splendid State Parks.

Covering more than 140,000 acres of forests, lakes, hills and ravines, they offer you a wide choice of natural surroundings, with fine fishing, swimming, camping and picnic facilities. So skillfully have these parks been located that there is at least one, and frequently several of different types, within an easy drive of every city and town in the state.

These parks belong to the people. They are in part under the management of the Ohio Division of Forestry and in part under the Division of Conservation and Natural Resources.

In addition, dedicated to your use, are the national parks and the new recreational areas centering about ten lakes and dams of the Muskingum Conservancy District.

Hundreds of thousands of Ohioans visit these State Parks each year but the grounds are so large that all find room for a Sunday picnic or a longer vacation right here at home.

Many of the parks have natural lakes or water-controlled dams and developments. Well-stocked with fish they have facilities for boating and water sports. In most of them there are camping sites open to family groups; in some there are cabins which may be rented at a moderate fee.

Arrangements for camping sites and cabins may be made through the Ohio Division of Forestry, Chillicothe, Ohio, or through the Lakes and Parks Section, Division

In Memoriam
In fond remembrance of my wife, Mary Edna Link, who passed away one year ago on June 13, 1946:
"I was on a Thursday evening,
I never forget that day,
An angel came and whispered
I must take you dear love away."
Oh how sad was the summons
It nearly broke my heart
As I watched the spark
Of life depart.
She had a way of smiling
A heart as pure as gold
To those who knew and loved her
Her memories are dear to hold.

Junior Legion Team Loses First Game

The Plymouth Junior Legion team was defeated last Sunday by the Galion Junior Legion 16-2. Although the score was large, it was the first League game played by our boys. Inexperience and ineffectiveness of our pitchers was the big trouble. With a few more good practices our team will be giving them all a real game of baseball.

Saturday afternoon at 2:30 Shelby Junior Legion comes here for another League game. So Sunday afternoon our boys go to Crestline, Ohio, for a game there.

Around the Square

—sideline work around your birthday, even if it is on Friday the 13th; so another year will be added to the age of John Leas, William Teal, and Miss Joanne Lawrence, whose birthdays fall on this fateful date... better, be careful, or you'll be sorry.

IN THIS BLESSED land, opportunities lie on every hand—and so do a lot of people—but, being designated as a hard job a number of folks can't find it.

THE SAGE REGRETS that this is a woman's world. According to his version, when a man is born people say, "How is the mother?"; when he marries, they say, "What a lovely bride!"; and when he dies, they say, "How much did he leave her?"

LEE FARNWALT (they call him John) purchased the lunch room belonging to John Bralfor the past week. The room is located on the North side of the Square. Mr. Farnwalt was formerly employed at the Air Depot and Pioneer Rubber Co. He will continue along the same lines, serving lunches, sandwiches, pop, etc.

IF IT'S true about sugar rationing coming off, I'm afraid we'll all in for it... more weight, I mean. Remember how you used to bake those good old cakes and pies? Of course, we've enjoyed them occasionally, but now with plenty of sugar it can get to be a habit, you know.

Children Present Program Last Sunday

The Children's Day program in the Presbyterian Church was both unique and interesting. It was written by two of the teachers and was a playlet in four acts. The first set forth a group of children playing at the Jones' home. Some one suggested singing and from this it developed several did not attend Sunday School. The next two scenes were in other homes where children talked it over with parents and agreed to go to Sunday school the following Sunday. The last scene was the Children's Day service at the Sunday School the following Sunday. Children in the five lower classes had the program. They had the scripture, prayers and solos. The pastor spoke on "Able to Make Out What the Will of God is."

Want to Run a "Collective" Farm?

Was reading the other day about the "collective" farms they have in certain countries. It seems the folks who run them have plenty of help . . . good hours . . . and the best equipment.

Sounds pretty nice — till you learn that the "farmer" doesn't own his land, or even farm it, in our sense. He takes orders from the state; produces whatever they want him to produce, at prices they set. Even his off-hours are spent according to state regulations. No, that would never go here.

We're willing to work hard, but we like to farm the land our own way, put our own value on the crops, and relax as we like — if only with a temperate, companionable glass of beer.

From where I sit, collective farming may produce results. But the American way — freedom to work and relax as we see fit — is what makes this country a great place to live. So let's not change it!

JUMP'S

On the Square The Store for Men and Boys Plymouth, Ohio

With Ice 800 Feet Thick And 60 Below, Wearing Too Many Clothes Was Uncomfortable At South Pole

Five months with Byrd's expedition in Little America proves a "thriller" for Ralph L. Redden, Chief Petty Officer, U.S. Navy, son of Mrs. Catherine Redden of Miami, Fla., formerly of Plymouth, Redden, who has served in the Navy for seven years, was chosen to go along with the recent Expedition into the antarctic region.

Redden, a mechanic on a DC-3 equipped with skis, relates some interesting things the men found at the southern-most tip of the world. The entire force was known as "Operation High Jump" at Task Force 68. Redden sailed on the Olympus, which was the flagship. There were four thousand men in the group which were divided up into three sections as they entered the outer edge of the icy region. Byrd was with the group in which Redden served during the trek into the icy wasteland and he gave high praise to Adm. Byrd for his work during the entire expedition.

Leaving the States, three ships and an ice-breaker started the southern journey on December 2, 1946 requiring 90 days for their destination. The ships were supplied and equipped with every imaginable thing that could be needed for such a venture. At Panama the men had liberty, and as they crossed the Equator, the routine ceremony of Neptunus

Rex was held with a gala event being staged for the occasion. And then the party slipped down quietly to the Southernmost tip of the world.

Entering the icy regions the three ships traveled as far as they could, and then the "Northwind", which was the ice-breaker for the three accompanying boats, dug in a harbor, which was the base for the ships, and located about 3 miles from Little America, the base Byrd established in 1941. Redden relates an experience one night, before camp had been completely set, and the men were still aboard ship, when the boat whistle blew, giving an alarm of danger. Some of the men had gone ashore for sight-seeing, and at the sound of the whistle rushed back to the boat. The danger occurred when a huge iceberg broke away from its mooring of solid ice, and drifted out into the channel of the harbor toward the boats. It was hard to tell the course of the tremendously large iceberg, and with the channel or entrance to the harbor being so narrow, it was the opinion of the crew that the ice floe could land in the channel and block the ships. However, the current took the iceberg to the shore line away from the ships and complacently barked hoses for the five months. In that part of the journey which the ships had to travel through the ice floes it was necessary for the "Northwind" icebreaker, to rescue one of the ships from an ice jam which threatened to crack up its hull.

For a hundred miles out the ice builds up on its land base over onto the ocean. In some parts the depth of the ice, or rather thickness, is said to be 800 feet. At least it was this thick on which the men lived. The ice travels about a yard a day, and according to measurements taken at Byrd's camp in Little America, which was established in 1941, the ice had traveled a distance of three miles. All land is covered with ice except some of the mountain peaks which range in height to more than 10,000 feet. These tall peaks are covered with snow and ice, with an exception of the last 1500 feet which are found to be fairly bare.

Blizzards during the summer season are quite as frequent as in the winter, but they are severe. The length of a blizzard may be an hour, a few days or weeks. Redden related how a few of the men had to make a trip from their work hut to their tent, when a blizzard came up. It was necessary to station one man just a few feet from another until the tent was located, and this was with the aid of a barking dog in the tent. The distance the group had to travel was only one-sixth of a mile, but it is far enough for men to get lost in one of the icy blasts. Incidentally the snow isn't flaky in the antarctic region as it is in North America, but rather on the "sandy" side, and with the wind blowing at all times it's very easy for drifts to form.

The men were cautioned about wearing too many clothes. By overdriving, body heat builds up, and freezing can be easily attained when this is done. Chief Petty Officer told of one incident when he had to go out, and with the weather exceptionally cold, he added another pair of socks. It wasn't but a few minutes before he removed one pair, and his feet became warm again. Sounds strange, but it's true. For sleeping the men used sleeping bags and a cot, and this covering was sufficient.

With all the modern camp cooking equipment available, the men were served hot meals daily. Preparation of food was easy, as most of it came in cans and ship refrigerators, where the meat was then stored in a local ice box. As an example of the preservative qualities of the antarctic weather, upon reaching Byrd's camp in Little America, at which Byrd left food supplies when he broke camp in 1941, meats and chicken remained in perfect condition after all these years, as well as the other food. Sickness was not known among the men, as there aren't any germs that can survive in the frigid air. No one suffered from colds, asthma, etc. The metal dinnerware, utensils and such that were left from the 1941 venture, remained in its original condition, corrosion of any kind had failed to set in. Even chocolate bars, which had remained at the camp, were in perfect condition, and some of them were brought back to the States. As a source of water supply, only ice is used. Water is obtained by filling a bucket with snow and ice, placing it over a red hot stove for about five minutes, and suddenly, the entire batch of ice turns to water. There is no rainfall at any season in the antarctic, and the ocean water remains as brine.

Vegetation of every kind is missing in the South Polar Region. The only living thing that inhabits the ice supply is many quins, seals, whales and a limited number of bird species.

Just before the expedition was to leave for home, a hut was built and the ice supply for thirty-five men was stored. This was a precautionary measure as in the final take-off, an accident could have happened, and those men involved would have been left until a rescue party could reach them. However, things went off smoothly and all got out safely. So the supply for many some day can be handy for some traveler who may have gotten lost from civilization.

In saying farewell to Little America, the men were granted the privilege of naming one of the mountain peaks for anyone they chose, and Mr. Redden picked out a tall, slender ice peak as a namesake for his wife, and called it Norma Redden Mountain.

Clarence C. Searl, a farmer residing at RD 2, same village. In the petition, Searl was charged with possessing a dog which attacked the child last August 18, inflicting and scarring him permanently.

Penguins Are Curious

Redden stated he found the penguin a very interesting . . . bird or fish . . . about half. As the ships docked the little fellows waddled over to the ship, twisted neck and squinted their eyes, and seemed to ask the question: "What are you doing here?" The penguins depend largely upon small feet, crabs, and other sea food for their living. They dive beneath the water to catch their quarry. They are somewhat intelligent to the extent that they will seek out another penguin if a feeding time comes, they gather on the ice around the edge of the water, and they go into a huddle, which results in one of them being the only one to see the surface and back out to the ice. This is a signal that there are not any seals near, and they all return to the water to get their dinner.

The average penguin is about four feet high, weighs approximately 75 pounds, and is a harmless and helpless creature. In contrast to the frigid zones of the north, Eskimos do not live around the south pole; northern lights are never moon are visible. It was one day about two o'clock in the morning, when it was a little cloudy overhead that Redden saw the effects of a sunrise and sunset at the same time . . . a very peculiar sight, he said, and one which he will never forget. Other than the high mountains of snow and ice, the many miles of ice covered water, life in the antarctic is one lacking interest other than knowing and finding out what to do to survive in subzero weather.

As an expedition to study the scientific reaction of the polar region, there were many scientists in the group, and they, with their expensive and precious instruments, made many findings which will help the progress of mankind in the years to come. The 4000 men and ships returned to the States April 14, and Redden received a sixty day furlough which ends June 18. He was in Plymouth last week-end, visiting his sisters, Mrs. Henry VanLoe and Mrs. W. A. Knight, also his brother Wallace. He left Monday night for a visit in Atlanta, and will call on his mother, Mrs. Catherine Redden, who resides in Miami, Fla., before returning to Norfolk, Va., for new assignment.

Mr. Redden expects to remain in the Navy for a 20 year period. He already has served seven years, and during the war he was stationed on the ships Yorktown and Ranger. He served in the African campaign and also the Panama Canal zone.

Too Many Clothes A Hazard

There were two days during the expedition that thermometer registered higher in Little America than at Miami, Fla. The warmest weather recorded in Little America was 35 degrees above zero. There were two days that the temperature was 32 degrees, while in Miami, Fla., on the same two days, the weather bureau recorded 30 degrees. Remember? The coldest weather recorded during the five months period in the antarctic was 26 below zero.

Even with this intense cold,

One Long Bright Day

It was one day about two o'clock in the morning, when it was a little cloudy overhead that Redden saw the effects of a sunrise and sunset at the same time . . . a very peculiar sight, he said, and one which he will never forget. DELIVER FEW CARS
Only sixty new autos and twenty-four trucks were delivered to Huronco, residents during the month of May, compared to eighty automobiles and thirty-three trucks delivered in April, according to figures released by the National Credit Bureau. The slowdown on production was attributed to lack of essential steel in the automotive industry.

DOINGS IN CONGRESS

By Cong. Wm. Lemke

Congress this last week tossed two hot potatoes into the President's lap—the tax reduction bill and the labor bill. What the President will do no one knows. He may veto one or both of the bills before you read this. Again, he may veto one and sign the other or he may permit both to become laws without his signature.

The tax reduction bill is not what we hoped for, but it does reduce taxes. I feel that a majority of Congress would have preferred a simple raise in exemptions. However, the bill was brought in under a gag rule and no amendments were allowed.

The Government is now taking, and spending 57c on an average, out of every dollar that we earn. It is collecting this by way of income and indirect taxes. A common hotdog sandwich now has seventy-three hidden taxes. Rome fell when it took ten per cent out of production. Our Government is taking fifty-seven per cent.

The Army and the Navy have been the most reckless squanders of public funds. This was pointed out by Congressman Engel, Chairman of the Subcommittee on Army Appropriations. This is no criticism of the Army or the Navy. They are trained in fighting—in destroying—not in financial matters.

The squandering and wasting—the giving away of billions to the rest of the world must stop. Nineteen hundred and forty-eight will be the crucial test, for America. The American people must be given clear-cut issues. They must decide whether or not we are going to continue to denude our Nation for other nations, or take care of ourselves.

In regard to the labor bill, that is a real hot issue. I am fully aware that the public has heard only one side—the side of the industrialists and their paid propagandists—but there is another side. It is true that there have been abuses by labor. It is true that these should have been corrected. It is equally true that the present bill goes far beyond correcting these evils. Its aim and its purpose is to crush labor organizations. It would take us back to the dark ages of the gun, the club and the strike breaker. It will not cure the evil. It will not prevent strikes.

Space does not permit me to discuss the pro and cons of the labor bill. It will undoubtedly be passed over the President's veto if he vetoes it. However, it will accomplish just about as much as the Smith-Conally Act did, which is nothing. An intelligent labor law, carefully considered and aimed at existing abuses, and written by Congress rather than by a corporation lawyer, would have accomplished much more for the good of the Nation.
