Jackets Drop Two League Contests In Weekend Play

New Haven's Yellow Jackets experienced a difficult weekend as a result of two defeats in Huron-Erie County league play.

Friday night, on the local floor, the Jackets kept within striking distance of Greenwich's Shamrocks until Wayne Robinson and Bob Newmyer were ousted from the personnel list. Then the Shamrocks romped off to a 74-52 victory. The Shamrocks are undefeated.

Saturday night, at Monroeville, the Jackets saw the up-country five draw away in the last half to a 56-54 victory, despite a strong New Haven rally in the final eight minutes.

New Haven reserves fared a bit better. They defeated the Greenwich sub. 37 to 27, but lost to Monroeville, 44 to 37.

Where Were Cornell's Cagers When Lights Went Out? Out in Front, 8 to 5

Cornell's cagers brought their season's record to five won and three lost last week, but the big story is the game that got away.

The Cornell lads were three points ahead of Attica on the Atlantic floor when the lights went out. An automobile struck a light pole, cutting electric service, and the game was suspended with the score 8 to 5.

In other activity, the locals were dumped by a Crestline quintet, in overtime, 75 to 72, despite a 25-point performance by Jake Berberick. Bugsy Bettac had a dozen markers for Plymouth.

On Nov. 29, the Cornell squad beat the Congress A. C. on the home floor, 67 to 46, with Berberick and Bill Chronister each netting 13 scores.

The preceding games wound up as follows:

61 New Cases Filed With Court Clerk

Sixty-one cases of which 23 were civil, 20 criminal and 18 divorce, were filed with Huron County Clerk of the Court of Common Pleas Data W. Call during November, he announces.

Fees of $1,320.20 were collected. Certificates of title issued amounted to 978, with notaries of liens issued at 433 and cancellations of liens issued 444. This indicates that sale of automobiles in the county has dropped off substantially.

Land Taxes Will Increase

At long last, we are informed that land values in Huron county have been revised and that some of us will be paying more taxes.

It was in the cards, this increase in appraisals. Some years ago, it was decreed by law, and a lot of money was spent to get professional appraisers on the job to revise the existing appraisals.

This was delayed, for what reasons, exactly, we are not sure, and the truth is that with the reappraisal which has just been put into force, it will not be long before another will be required by law.

Let him - or those - responsible take note that the citizens of Huron county are entitled to better treatment than that. It is bad enough that we have to pay more taxes, but the felony is compounded when one falls on top of another.

If, as seems probable, at least some of the delay was occasioned by the need to obtain a team of qualified appraisers, the county commissioners might give some study to the desirability of obtaining the full time services of an appraiser who would serve Huron county. We might even go along with the half-time services of a professional appraiser, sharing him with, say, Seneca county.

If, on the other hand, there are other reasons for the delay in putting the new tax appraisals into force, the guilty persons should be brought to book and told pointedly that we will not tolerate this again. We don't need to wait this long, we don't want to, we don't figure on doing so. It's our money they're fussing around with, and we mean to see to it that it is not wasted.

Senatorial Recount

The senatorial recount points up some facts which we think bear repeating:

1. There were some gross violations of the election laws during the last election. Poll watchers were inside the voting booths with voters. That these were primarily Republican poll watchers is particularly damaging because their candidate won, or at least we think he won. The recount will show.

2. The Republican candidate ran far behind his party, nationally, which is explained in part by the fact that voters in Ohio are a peculiar lot - personality counts a great deal. This is a good thing.

3. It not only costs money to run, it costs money to get a recount. If it should develop that Senator Burke is the real winner, it is only fair that his money should be repaid him. He relied upon an honest count. He was entitled to an honest count. If he has to spend his money to prove than an honest count was not given, it is a bad thing for us all. Who should pay the expense of a recount is beyond us right now. Perhaps it should be Mr. Bender. But Mr. Burke's money should be given back to him if it develops that he won.

4. Despite the efforts of the man who has been the best secretary of state of the whole 48 so far as getting election rules and laws before the people is concerned, the irregularities are too numerous. Some method of rectifying these irregularities must be found, a method which is fair to everyone.

There is a lot at stake in any senatorial election. We owe it to ourselves to insure that the choice of the people gets to Washington honestly, and that after he gets there, he stays honest.

The enterprise of Plymouth's Christian young people in organizing to sing Christmas carols to the sick and shutins is commendable. We hope, however, their music will not be limited to those who are merely sick in limb.

Some of us are sick at heart and soul, and the Christmas message by music will make us better. We hope the singers will come around to our house.

THE AMERICAN WAY

It's Not Only The Water Level That Gets Raised!

How -- and Why -- Piece Gets Written Explained

The editor's note to The Advertiser's country correspondents seemed suitable for public consumption, because everybody wants to know, at some time or other, how things are done - and why.

Readers are requested to bear these rules in mind when turning in news items, when telephoning news to the editorial office or to country correspondents.

Even a newspaper has a style, which is the way it writes things. Generally, in capitalization, there are the "up" style, and the down" style. Examples: "up": New York University; "down": New York university. This newspaper follows the "down" style.

Styles of writing vary from news papers to news papers. The New York papers write it, "The Rev. Thomas M. Brown and Mrs. Brown." Other newspapers write "Rev. Brown," which is common jargon but patently incorrect. A man is reverend just as he is stout, fat, thin or skinny. Reverend is an adjective. One does not refer to a man as fat. Subsequently he could not correctly be referred to as reverend.

Dwight D. Eisenhower, president; Richard Nixon, vice-president; Twin boys were born to Mr. and Mrs. Iva Crouse.

Richard Nixon, vice-president;

We avoid the use of very. An old-time editor has said, means damn. Damn is indecent in a family newspaper. Hence, avoid it.

We never abbreviate such titles as treasurer, secretary, vice-president, or the like. And we always write the office after the name, as "Dwight D. Eisenhower, president; Richard Nixon, vice-president."

We tabulate them, as: Dwight D. Eisenhower, president;

Richard Nixon, vice-president;

We avoid the use of very. An old-time editor has said, means damn. Damn is indecent in a family newspaper. Hence, avoid it.

We never abbreviate such titles as treasurer, secretary, vice-president, or the like. And we always write the office after the name, as "Dwight D. Eisenhower, president; Richard Nixon, vice-president."

We tabulate them, as: Dwight D. Eisenhower, president;

Richard Nixon, vice-president;

We address Roman Catholic clergy by the title "The Rev. James O'Neill" and thereafter "Father O'Meara" or "O'Neill".

We always refer to a church by its full title, as "First Presbyterian church, Shelby Evangelical United Brethren church," never "Presbyterian church, Shelby FUB church." We always try to list the correct name of an individual, Not Buster or "Shorty," but "William" and "James." If an individual is better known by his nickname, then write it, "William (Buster) Brown."

Note that we never refer to an Ohio city of town as being in Ohio. We assume that is so. Cities or towns outside the state are so designated, as Princeton, Ill., Plymouth, Mass., and the like. Towns like Medina, Van Wert, Ironton and such appear without the state abbreviation before them.

On abbreviations, we use those approved by Webster's, except Rev. Dr. Ph. D. B. A., M. A. (or A. M.). We do not use an abbreviation for attorney, and do not preface a man's (or woman's) name with such a title. Abbreviations of states, provinces, and countries are used by Webster's, except that we use Cal. to Calif., and N. D. to N. Dak.

From Our Files of Yesteryear

Five Years Ago

Donald Cunningham was recuperating from injuries which he received when his car turned over.

Carl Loftland, H. H. Fackler, and Roscoe Sheely were hunting in Pennsylvania: no deer.

Henry Vanderbilt bought the house of C. W. Burkett.

Louis Henry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Henry, was baptised at the Methodist church.

Jim Metcalf and Ray Beard were engaged in the candy making business in Shiloh.

Robert Koser completed his apprenticeship as a baker.

Ed Trauger had been released from the hospital, and Mrs. James Gullett was limping with a sprained ankle.

Lamb Chi Omega sorority had a Thanksgiving party with Beany Ford and Evelyn Burkett hosts.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ross celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at a gala open house.

Dr. C. O. Buttner, A. W. Firestone, and George Page attended a hearing at Columbus concerning the closing of the NYC station at Shiloh.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ross celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at a gala open house.

By the 1870's a German lithographer who had immigrated to Boston began producing Christmas cards that were such masterpieces of reproduction that experts marvel even now at their color and quality.

In a brief span of 20 years, Prang started a trend which continues today in reproducing art masterpieces as Christmas greetings.

For example, famous canvases of the Madonna and Child by such artists as Murillo and Van Cleve have been reproduced this year.

One Nellie purchased the Nelson silver yard at Willard.

Harvey Myers died suddenly of a heart attack.

Eugene Beeching had completed basic flying and graduated from the Marana Army Air Base at Tucson.

Frank Fenner had been wounded in Germany.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Pittinger and Mr. and Mrs. William Kester, all of Shiloh, celebrated their golden wedding anniversaries.

Dean Dawson was in the Philippines, and Keith Dawson was in Germany.

Anna Mae Steele became the bride of Roger Miller at First Presbyterian church.

Henry Chapman was in Willard Municipal hospital minus his appendix.

Mrs. Delia Arnold died after a long illness.

Nell Gerbet and Hal Myers got together in India where they were both stationed.

Charlotte Wolfe was a guest of the Robert McIntries.

Twin boys were born to Mr. and Mrs. Iva Crouse.

Alough this little Christmas greeting bear little resemblance to the cards sent by Henry Cole in 1846, one element has remained almost unchanged. Hardly a one fails to repeat his message: "A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to You."

U.S. SAVINGS BONDS

Bargains being what they are, don't overlook one of the best this Christmas season: U. S. Savings Bonds.

A great many folks think they buy bonds for the purpose of loaning money to the government, and in a sense, that's true.

Their real purpose is to permit the Secretary of the Treasury to manage the currency.

When citizens invest money in government bonds, whether by negotiation or otherwise, a substantial amount of money is taken out of circulation.

This has the effect of making what remains in circulation the more valuable, of making it buy more over the long run.

Course, the owners of the bonds leave where it is.

O. P. Ward opened a new night club on the Square.

Mr. and Mrs. Pugh, was elected to head the Maid of America for the coming year, Mr. and Mrs. John Weaver celebrated their fortieth wedding anniversary at a surprise party given by friends.

Miss Bowena Buruma became the bride of John DeHaan on Nov. 29.

Almost every school child can take $10.75 and turn it over times in a year to give the government the $6.25 profit over 10 years, and go on to make more in the same year. That's what bonds are for. If inflation has wiped out your dollar, here's one way to shore it up.

Punchboards can do without. Even honest ones, that pay 90 per cent to the puncher.

Phil thinks the matter of store business hours is one which their proprietors and customers can work out. Any number of working hours for the small business is worth it.

Business hours for the large businessman, and certainly more than ordinary skilled labor.

If his customers want him to stay open all the day and night, he's got to decide if the extra sales volume - whether it is $10, $100 or $1,000 - is worth the extra time.

In Phil's home town this problem presented itself for many years, and now they've worked it out fairly well.

The banks stay open Friday until 9 p.m. and open Saturday until 11 a.m. Night depository accommodates merchants. That gives the bank employees, at least, that long weekend. Stores close promptly at six on Saturdays. That gives the business men six hours more of weekend.

Friday night is the only night the stores stay open.

At other days they stay within agreed-upon working hours.

Afternoons during the cooler months, but do close at noon.

Wednesday from June 15 to Sept. 1.

One merchant put it this way, at coffee hour the other day: "I'm not going to be closing up on Wednesday nights now cost a few dollars, but it's worth it.

It's not totally lost. It'll come back as soon as people get used to the new hours. But, heck, you don't get something for nothing. It you close on, say, Wednesday nights, you're making a step for yourself. You've got to pay a little for that. If you're kind of a miser, consider, it'll come back."

They're our sentiments. All of which to say, gentlemen, whatever you think is right in the way of store hours, we'll go along with it.

Phil went coon hunting twice last week. Once, he went to a friend, he saw no coon (but racked some), but did see lots of foxes.

Richard, his host, and his brothers, John, Joe and Ted, other time, he saw a coon, that scurried up a tree. A new $135 dog went right after him up the tree and never did come back, even though we dug down to find the tree in three different places. We stopped and asked 'one farmer at 11 p.m. if we could hunt on his place. He was so pleased he asked us in for coffee. Said we were the first in his memory police enough to do that.

Around the Square

— By Phineas Whittleseed —

There is something about sitting inside when it's snowing outside that warms us - mostly cut. To kick the week off, a nice note from Mrs. D. Himes, the former Betty Collier, who has recently arrived in what she describes as a nasty clime in Dear Old Lyme - England. Her better half serves with the USAF there. Got there via the SS United States, flagship of our merchant marine, and has been doing some sightseeing. Nice stuff to see, don't waste a minute of it, pal.

We got out last week, despite Our George coming down with the screaming measles, two blank stocks, help obtained by reliable Tom Riordan at Greenwich, Clair King of that town, and finally, at 3:15 a.m. the Old Maestro, Tommy, who smilingly got out of his warm sack and helped us out. More to the point, we got hearted about it all, but a compensation man at the Marine Corps told us, "Son, when you rub metal against metal, you always have trouble. It's not whether it's how much." So Thursday we sacked up and piled out when the small fry came home from school.

The sight of that pine tree makes us wish it were there all year long. And when we get the chance of our dreams, we like to have it shaded by firs, so we won't have to leave the leaves. And don't be telling us about the pine cones and needles. Please tell us about the pretty and a shame to shake up.

Vignette: no hero to his employees or his family, so we don't doubt they'll razz us when this hits print. But it's time to take our hat off to a guy who's always helpful, the first business we met when we came here. A gay, cheerful, doesn't grumble, doesn't complain with his laugh, doesn't mind when it comes to coffee, a solid citizen all the way around — E. B. Miller. Step out and take the grip, friend.

Doesn't it beat all what animals will do? Look at Bill Ellis' pig. And that steer that was turned in to Bob Meiser. And our mutt that'll sit on the doorstep of wherever we are on the Square until we come out or you let him in. Man finds a piece of meat, dog comes along and asks for it. Twin boys where we were, and the reply was: "he's around the Square somewhere. Look for a red cocker sitting outside and you'll find him inside."

Best wishes to young Chub. Chum, chum, the first 80 years are the hardest.

Times have changed. Time was when it was a big thing on Christmas for our Old Man to take the machine (that's what we called it where we were raised, not a car, a machine) to look for somebody who hadn't a Christmas (or Thanksgiving) dinner share with us. We used to find them, mostly honest souls who were indeed in need. Guess there isn't that much need anymore. They used to say thank you, and not feel at all hurt or proud. Nowadays, often some body a free dinner and he'll give you a withering look and in the next breath ask for the dough. To that extent, times have changed for the worse.

Overheard in the schoolyard (and doubtless overheard from our favorite tee-vee comic): "I wouldn't kiss you if I was a French general."

We hear tell that punchboards are making inroads again. Our attitude is that of Bill Jump: stamp the danged things out. Not that they ever bothered us a whit, because we've never played one. But there are those who lack willpower, and their kids as a consequence lack what they deserve. Like at the circus that played here last summer. Lady came in and point blank asked, "What're you going to write about that racket they were running at the circus the other night?" We didn't know what we didn't know the lady. But we knew what, and she pinned us down. Our reply was that her husband is a grown man and ought to know his business. And his answer to that simply shushed us up: "Yeah, but who'll tell my grocer that?"

Punchboards we can do without. Even honest ones, that pay 90 per cent to the puncher.

Phil thinks the matter of store business hours is one which their proprietors and customers can work out. Any number of working hours for the small business is worth it.

Business hours for the large businessman, and certainly more than ordinary skilled labor.

If his customers want him to stay open all the day and night, he's got to decide if the extra sales volume - whether it is $10, $100 or $1,000 - is worth the extra time.

In Phil's home town this problem presented itself for many years, and now they've worked it out fairly well.

The banks stay open Friday until 9 p.m. and open Saturday until 11 a.m. Night depository accommodates merchants. That gives the bank employees, at least, that long weekend. Stores close promptly at six on Saturdays. That gives the business men six hours more of weekend.

Friday night is the only night the stores stay open.

At other days they stay within agreed-upon working hours.

Afternoons during the cooler months, but do close at noon.

Wednesday from June 15 to Sept. 1.

One merchant put it this way, at coffee hour the other day: "I'm not going to be closing up on Wednesday nights now cost a few dollars. It'll come back as soon as people get used to the new hours. But, heck, you don't get something for nothing. It you close on, say, Wednesday nights, you're making a step for yourself. You've got to pay a little for that. If you're kind of a miser, consider, it'll come back."

They're our sentiments. All of which to say, gentlemen, whatever you think is right in the way of store hours, we'll go along with it.

Phil went coon hunting twice last week. Once, he went to a friend, he saw no coon (but racked some) but did see lots of foxes. Richard, his host, and his brothers, John, Joe and Ted, other time, he saw a coon, that scurried up a tree. A new $135 dog went right after him up the tree and never did come back, even though we dug down to find the tree in three different places. We stopped and asked 'one farmer at 11 p.m. if we could hunt on his place. He was so pleased he asked us in for coffee. Said we were the first in his memory police enough to do that.

And Now Buffalo!

Although he's roasted an estimated 50 tons of beef in his day, Leo Barnes, veteran Plymouth dealer in meats, admits his experience in roasting is still the finest in his field.

He seasoned and roasted about 550 pounds of Oklahoma buffalo. More correctly known as a bison, which is protected by the U. S. Department of Wildlife and the Interior department, the animal was slaughtered by permission and shipped here for roasting. It was served Dec. 1 in Lexington High school to 464 guests and an estimated 55 helpers by the Richland County Soil Conservation office, Robert Hilliard, and his office.

Mr. Barnes says he had the meat on the spits 26 hours, and nary a shred was left when the diners were through.

Isn't So, About Dan, Say Muzzle Loaders

Don't believe what you read about Old Hawkeye and Daniel Boone? They couldn't shoot that well.

Take it from Richard Fackler, Ralph Hunt and the other members of Plymouth Muzzle Loading club - it can't be done. They can prove it, because they've a collection of muzzle load rifles which they boast just as Hawkeye and Dan'l Boone did.

At 50 yards, sometimes, they say, you can get a shot group of five rounds that would be no larger than Rocky Marciano's fist. But the emphasis is on what was used in the 18th century.

The principle is simple. The riflemen pack some black powder from a powder flask down the muzzle of his gun, then cuts a patch or piece of wadding, as Dan'l called it - which he places over the hole. On top of this goes a ball of lead which he has cast himself in a mold specially constructed for the purpose. (Mrs. Riflemens yell about the noise of the gun in the kitchen stove with lead filings, no real fan lets that bother him.) A big straight razor, like Grandpa used, comes out next: it's to trim the patch, which is usually made of denim, although the riflemen often argue which is better - denim or cloth cotton. Then the load is rammed down the barrel until it's home - right smack against the firing pin, which actuates a small cap such as you find in the head of a shotgun shell.

Ain't the pieces hold your breath (if you don't, it'll bob up and down with your breathing) and fire. When the fire and smoke clear away, check your bullet.

Plymouth Muzzle Loaders shoot generally at ranges of 50 and 100 yards on their range in the gravel pit on the property of Mrs. Golda Priest in Baseline road west of town. The club is about a year old, having had its first meeting in November, 1953, and celebrated its first anniversary with a turkey shoot on the E. B. Miller farm in Plymouth East road.

What's the attraction is a common question. "Well, you've just got to like to shoot a muzzle loader," answers Mr. Hunt. "I used to shoot them when I was a boy. It's really something to go with that crude arrangement you can hit what you're aiming at."

The boys - those who remember their CI lessons - landed and grooved, and the muzzle velocity with a good, stiff load of black powder is perhaps 750 feet a second. And the heavy lead ball, the speed dies down after it's gone 50 yards, naturally.

Nobody with a fancy sight arrangement is allowed to compete. That's competition unfair to the spirit, says Mr. Hunt. "We all use open sights, and we get along as best we can."

His own collection is an imposing one. He has a Tower musket, a 16-gauge shotgun, a 36 bore (an inch) of the type that was used by both Confederate and Union troops in the War between the States. The British manufactured the weapon and sold indiscriminately to both sides.

He has a fowling piece, single barrel, that's 16-gauge of English origin, made in 1825.

How'd he get it? "Oh, I just traded," he answer, non-committally, making you suspect there's more to it than that. You wonder who took whom.

He has a Kentucky full stock rifle, caliber .42, that was made between 1830 and 1840, and a light carbine rifle that's a century old. It's caliber .36.

Then, too, to round out his collection, he has a Flaubert dueling pistol. "Call it a saloon pistol," laughs Mr. Hunt. "Back in the old days around New Orleans, these characters used to like to shoot for drink, and they bought these guns made in Paris for the purpose."

It's a breech-loader, loads through the side rather than through the muzzle - and equivalent to a boy's calibre .22.

The powder is bought by mail.

Three pounds of powder lasts a long time, says Mr. Hunt. Ball is made in steel. Steel ball, which is manufactured in India, and is widely used in this region.

There's a state organization, the Ohio Muzzle Loading Rifle Association Inc., to which Mr. Hunt and some of his colleagues belong, and it helps to keep the enthusiasts informed of the doings of this group an that.

Given a chance, Mr. Hunt was asked, just how fast can you load and shoot if you had to defend yourself? "About a minute, if you load carefully," is his considered answer.

Thinking of burgary? Try a house where the man is a muzzle loader - it's safer.

SCOUT NEWS

Eagle patrol started the meeting with the advancing of the colors. Then we said the pledge of allegiance, the Scout oath, the Scout law, the Scout slogan and the Scout motto.

Then we cleaned the Scout hut and studied first aid. Then we studied Morse code and had a game. Also, we had refreshments, compliments of a visitor. Then we retreated the colors.

AN HOUR'S WORK

An hour's pay for the average American industrial worker will buy 7 3/4 quarts of milk while in India a day's wages for a skilled worker will buy only 3 quarts of milk.

Young Nicky Hunt (upper photo) exhibits some of his father's collection of old muzzle loaders. The weapons in the top photo are as described in the accompanying story, in that order.

In the lower photo, the photographer has caught a good glimpse of the molds in which the lead ball is cast.

Hot, lukewarm and cool fans of muzzle loading are invited to communicate with Mr. Hunt.

Baxter Proves Nitrogen Value

In three years on the place that formerly belonged to his father-in-law, Willard O. Baxter has learned that...

1. If you pump nitrogen fertilizer into the ground, it'll make you a net profit of about $13 an acre, and he proved it this fall.

2. For dollar input, sheep make him about as much money as anything he has on the place.

3. Beef cattle fed on grass with grain supplement will pay off.

The Baxter place lies in Route 598 just a stone's throw north of New Haven, and it's a New Haven concern. It measures just over 140 acres, and Mr. Baxter has it broken up into five enclosures of about 24 acres apiece, plus his "maneuvering ground." On it he runs about 40 head of beef cattle, some 60 sheep; in normal times some 45 to 50 hogs (though he has just sold them off for the season), and about 20 laying hens.

With sheep go through the Greenwich yards, which Mr. Baxter helped to organize some years ago, and he has two prized rams that he wouls offer for double blue lambs for sale through the Greenwich pool. His hens are primarily for breeding egg purposes, and he sells them Elyria hatcheries, who raise well-hed fowl. The hogs and beavers go through Cleveland, for the most part.

Lamb Man Shows

How to Grade

At Greenwich Pool

A grading, sorting, and shearing demonstration was held in connection with the Dec. 3 lamb pool at the Greenwich yards.

Virgil Brannigan of the Cleveland Producers Livestock Association explained the pool grades which were based on the weight of each grade. Those attending were invited to practice grading a pen of lambs. A representative group of the lambs graded by people attending the demonstration will be slaughtered and on display at the meeting on Dec. 9, 8 p.m. in Greenwich High school.

Ralph Grimshaw, extension sheep specialist, was on hand to explain the shearing demonstration put on by two boys of the Greenwich F. F. A. The shearers were Kenneth Weatherbie and Ronnie Kissel.

To Warm Springs

Neice of Mrs. Henry Van Loo and of Wally Redden of Plymouth, 12-year-old Janice Redden, daughter of City Attorney Officer and Mrs. Ralph Redden, was flown to Warm Springs, Ga., yesterday to enter the foundation sanitarium for the treatment of infantile paralysis.

Janice was stricken with the dread disease in September while she was a resident of Atlantic City, Providence, R. I., to join her father, then stationed there, prior to overseas movement to Belfast, Northern Ireland.

For five days she hovered between life and death in C. V. Chapman Hospital, Providence, while the Navy and the Air Force cooperated in flying her father home.

When the senior aspect of the affliction had run its course, Janice was paralyzed from her neck down. She will undergo treatment in the foundation, which was organized by the late President Roosevelt and is financed by the March of Dimes.

Janice will receive holiday greetings addressed to her by Plymouthites who will remember her from visits here if time and seat to the Warm Springs Polio Foundation, Warm Springs, Ga.
