No Description. Police Need Lasso To Catch Fugitives. No sooner does the police chief go to bed than things start to happen in Plymouth.

Fugitives seemed to be the docket over the weekend. Two were at large about 5:30 p. m. Saturday. A posse was organized as soon as the fact became known...

On Sunday, the police department was alerted to track down a prisoner reported to have escaped from the Willard calaboose. Fifteen minutes later, Willard police called to say the escapee had been apprehended on Highway 99 out of Willard.

Fred Port reported to the police Sunday an unexpected visitor at about 3 a. m. An automobile driven by Nelson Mann, near Willard, went out of control in Highway 61 and wrapped itself around a telephone pole and a tree in Mr. Port's yard.

Mr. Mann suffered a slight cut on his face and a heavier one on his wrist, since he was fined for reckless driving.

An Attica automobile turned into oncoming traffic in the Public Square Sunday and collided with another driven by Dalles Reed. Damage was slight and no complaints were filed.

Police were called upon to track down an errant motorist driving an out-of-town car on a paved, hauled school bus driven by Harry Almond, who reported the license tag number. Research established the driver, a resident of 230

Building Increases. Building, which has been behind the national average, has shown a moderate increase notably in Huron county, and there are signs that for a year or so new building of a sort that is certain to add more workers to the local economy, will continue.

The building trades are siphoning a considerable volume of idle workers off the labor market, and the resumption of farm activity, which was retarded by late rains, has contributed to a lessening of unemployment pressure.

There is still high demand for skilled labor. Unskilled labor, which is already in over-supply, will be worse off in the near future as the local economy continues to expand.

Unemployed Workers. Unemployed workers are still in high demand for skilled labor. Unskilled labor, which is already in over-supply, will be worse off in the near future as the local economy continues to expand.

Elementary School Graduates at New Haven

Right grade scholarship test: Lima Wright, and Ruby Deaton; third row, Raymond Slesman, and Howard Thurnsbury, Lenvel Barnett, & William Burns, honorable mention.

With two out in the last half of the seventh frame, Plymouth's Pilgrims broke a 5-11 deadlock and eked out a close 6 to 5 win over New Haven High school Friday on the Plymouth diamond.

Larry Root started on the hill for Plymouth and was touched up rather freely. He gave up three singles sandwiched around a pair of passes before John Fox came in to relieve and fan Postema to end the inning.

Plymouth came back strongly in the fourth, inning with three scores. Fox and Garrett got to Sam Predieri, New Haven tosser, for singles, and the leaky New Haven defense let in the runs.

New Haven had added another run in the first half of the fourth and Plymouth pecked away at the lead with single runs in the fifth and sixth.

Handsome Jim Hunt, the Pilgrim's center fielder, led off the final frame with a pass. Jacobs sacrificed him to second, and after Fox had fled deep to right, Hunt went to third. The New Haven nine resorted to strategy at this point and walked Root, Plymouth's clean-up hitter, intentionally. Garrett attempted the steal, but was caught by a one-base blow down the left field, scoring Hunt.

John Fox pitched creditably for Plymouth after relieving Root in the first inning and received credit for the victory. Although he gave up only eight hits, Predieri could not rely on the club's out-muscled Plymouth, seven errors off a five.

Although there's been a spate of hiring, because factories which had been shut down or on short hours received orders necessitating immediate resumption of production, unskilled labor is generally weeded out rapidly.

Unskilled labor settled a strike for 40 per cent of what it asked. The Newwalk local is up to the same tactics, striking for $2.07 an hour. Add to this the fact that hardly anybody wants to invest in a 17- or 18-year-old likely to be called up into military service before they're long, and the picture for young male graduates is not bright.

Females who can type at 90 words a minute and take stenographic dictation at 40 will find good opportunities, the survey showed. Good jobs as secretaries will hardly be reserved for the inexperienced, but stenotypists should find no difficulty in obtaining employment at fair starting salaries.

Graduates to Cities. State officials concerned with employment consider that opportunities in the immediate area for employment are poorer than elsewhere in Ohio, and except for one or two exceptions, they believe that new graduates will need to search for work in such cities as Toledo, Sandusky, Cleveland, Columbus, and Akron.

Reports from Toledo and Sandusky, however, are to the effect that job hunting is not easy. One out of ten wage-earners in Toledo is out of work, and the city has organized a special labor-management-laborer-citizen council to seek ways and means of providing employment. A strike in Sandusky, immobilizing 450 shift labor market.

New opportunities seem to be concentrated upon what the new Ohio Turpentine construction has to offer and on the soon-to-be-started Janesville Cotton products operation at Norwalk. The Janesville firm will turn out a rubberized hog bristle in a plant which it purchased some time ago from Schauss Furniture Co.

B & O Rehears. Employment in Huron county appears to be better than in Richland. The Baltimore & Ohio shops at Willard have returned 16 to work, leaving only five idle from the layoff that occurred in January. Norwalk Truck Lines looks forward to a good summer after a spotty winter. Rockwell Manufacturing Co., makers of gas meters and gas flow control devices, and Rotary Printing Co. of Norwalk report no serious drop in employment.

Winkler Depot Policy. Substituting the whole situation in Richland county, and in fact the whole area surveyed, is the hiring of a firing policy at Wilkins Air Force depot in Sheps. The work is that about 3,000 employees will be kept on during the next few months, unless the world situation improves. The heaviest expansion of the air force should develop, and that opportunities for lower paid help, semi-skilled, female, will be better than in other areas.

Retail business, although characterized by spottiness, is better than expected. First quarter figures for all of Ohio showed a sales total three per cent under the total for the first quarter of 1953. Shoe stores, women's ready-to-wear stores, florists and family clothing stores and household appliance and music stores were the heaviest offenders.

Shoe stores, for example, were down 21 per cent in three sales figures for March, 1954, by comparison with a year ago. Except for larger centers, such as Mansfield, the merchant whose turnover depended less on seasonal and promotional activity fared better. In the small towns, most merchants fall into this category. Grocery-meat stores, for instance, did not over cost, but business in

Northern Ohio Opens New Switchboard, Outside Toll Booth

A new outside toll telephone booth will be inaugurated by the Northern Ohio Telephone Company for the repair and maintenance of roads within the village. The Village Council voted Tuesday night to send the Village Clerk to the next meeting of the Huron County Board of Commissioners to solicit support for the repair of West Broadway and the construction of a new bridge over the creek crossing North street.

This innovation brings to Plymouth, together with other changes incident to a remodeling of the telephone service, the best telephonic communications in its history.

Mrs. Laura Gleason, Chief Operator, says there has been an increase of 300 telephones in this exchange in the last six years. This heavier usage necessitated the installation of new positions which will mainly handle long distance calls. The Plymouth Exchange now handles between eleven and twelve thousand toll calls a month, and it is anticipated that there will be a continual increase.

The installation of these two additional positions, which now makes a total of five, also makes the installing of additional cables to carry the increased load. It is necessary for the company to increase its employees.

There are now 11 operators. Mrs. Laura Gleason, chief operator, Mrs. Ingaba Scott, Mrs. Belle Forger, Florence Alexander, Enice M. Kruger, Mary R. Lawrence, Marie Linder, Gertrude Marvin, Eloise Porter, and Bonnie Young are starting.

Training takes about ten days to two weeks, Mrs. Gleason says. The only private exchange switchboard in Plymouth is that of the Fate-Root-Attaica, which is owned by Cavalier is the operator. Miss Cavalier received her training from the Northern Ohio Telephone Co. at Attica, and has been on this board for a year and a half.

Council Seeks Aid For Road Repairs

Although the absence of Mayor Glenn West, who is in Canada on vacation, prevented full consultation on the matter of county assistance for the repair and maintenance of roads within the village, the Village Council voted Tuesday night to send the Village Clerk to the next meeting of the Huron County Board of Commissioners to solicit support for the repair of West Broadway and the construction of a new bridge over the creek crossing North street.

Head-on Crash Takes Lives Of Three People. One man was killed instantly and a woman died on the way to Willard hospital after a head-on collision of two cars on U. S. 224, two miles west of Willard, Saturday.

The dead man was Robert Wilkinson of Attica; a Korean war veteran who would have graduated tomorrow from the Tiffin Business college. The woman was Mrs. Frieda Williams, 61, wife of Walter Williams, who was a cook in an Attica restaurant.

It was said that the cars collided at a high rate of speed. The Williams' vehicle was proceeding toward Willard on a weekly shopping trip Wilkinson and the driver of the other car, Mrs. Williams' standing, were returning to Attica after a day's work at Hershey Electric Co. Willard.

Funeral services for the two were conducted Monday, Mr. Wilkinson left his bride of two months, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Williams, and one and one sister, Mrs. Chester Gillett.

Both Mr. Stallings and Mr. Williams were reported to be in critical condition in the Willard hospital. Mrs. Williams is survived by her husband and four sons, Russell of Shadyside, Walter of Medina, and Richard and Howard, both of Attica.

Second New Store In Week's Time Opens on Square. For the second time in a week, the Public Square gets a new business.

Dietrich's Dairy Freeze & Lunch will open officially Saturday morning. Although the firm has been doing business since 1947, it is now being expanded.

The business will specialize in the retail sale of ice cream and dairy frozen products, light lunches and soft drinks.

The store will be open from 6:30 a. m. to midnight, daily. It has been completely remodeled and redecorated and is able to accommodate 36 persons seated at one time. Retail sale of food and refreshments will also be conducted there and an open bar for 10 persons on the sidewalk may be served.

The proprietor, Harold Dietrich, will head the staff, which also includes his wife, his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Burrell, and his son, Richard.

'Doll Lady' Elected To Head Group In Cleveland Area. Mrs. Walter Chatfield of the Shiloh road was honored Saturday night as president of the Cleveland Doll Club Federation. For the past two years she has served as secretary of the group.

Mrs. Chatfield is known in this area as "Plymouth's Doll Lady." Approximately 12 years ago Mrs. Chatfield became interested in a newspaper appeal for Yule dolls, gifts to confined children in hospitals and began designing them. Since then she has made and dressed 12 dolls each year for the Rainbow hospital in South Euclid, Cleveland. Her dolls for this year are being made and dressed.

Each doll, regardless of who receives it is completely outfitted with hat and coat, suit, a day dress and a party dress, nightgown and slippers, and a kimono and shoes. Last year she made 508 pieces of clothing for the 12 dolls. Each year she makes dolls for 12 to 15 girls, and a child is chosen by the hospital staff to receive it.

Three years ago Mrs. Chatfield was given the honor of being chosen by a lady friend in Cincinnati, whose grandmother had brought them to the States from Germany. She then became interested in collecting dolls and from this small beginning her collection now includes four and five hundred dolls, or 8 degrees above normal.

Beef Market May Be Watched by Keeping Eyes On B&O Sidings

Half Now, Half Later Cattle Buying Pattern Suggested to Feeders

The word is out to cattle stockers and feeders to buy half of 1954 needs now and wait out the market for the other half.

Which about sizes up the picture of Richland and Huron county beef cattle enterprise until weather conditions in the beef cattle ranges materialize.

Residents of Plymouth have a good opportunity to sense the pulse of the important beef cattle industry, which supplies a rapidly growing population with its principal meat needs, without stepping out of town.

Dave and Bob Bachrach, partners in Bachrach Company, operate on four spreads surrounding Plymouth and in their headquarters at Walnut street the second largest stocker cattle operation in Ohio. Their product, which Dave Bachrach beats the trails of, is shipped into the local yards by Baltimore & Ohio railway, classed as to size and quality, and shipped out by rail as prompt to a hundred or so buyers of stocker cattle between Plymouth and New York.

From what these and other experts are able to determine, weather conditions in the Southwest have about as much to do with prices as anything else. If rainfall on the western ranges improves, the cattle market will go up. The price of beef will firm out, and the beef farmer - who only last year asked for government support of falling prices - will recover what he lost last year. If rainfall does not improve, cattle prices will drop, more than the seasonal fluctuation that normally ensues after May 1, and feed prices of corn will follow them along.

Good rains late last year brought a prompt response in cattle prices. The rains brought grass along and put water in many dried creek bottoms. This impelled ranchers to hold on to cattle that they normally would have marketed. It also spurred demand for short supplies of feeder cattle that were available locally. Accordingly, prices of all grades and cassettes of stockers advanced 50 cents to $1 and in some cases medium and good thin lightweights of both steers and heifers were more than a dollar higher.

Steers go into feed lots were scarce, but not so scarce as buyers willing to enter the market at $20 or $21 couldn't be satisfied. Stockers in this area reason that if the drought in the west persists, cattle will be sold at bargain prices later. However, there have been recent signs that better rainfall than last year is improving the situation in the Southwest. This has a tendency to increase demand by beef cattle ranchers and to keep prices up. Thus Richland & Huron county feeders are hedging; buying now, waiting for the other half until later.

The market for cattle will influence corn prices, and local farmers wish they could lay hands on beef information just now. Because the whole question of whether to conform with the federal corn allotment program is in the balance. Farmers are having to make up their minds now. In a few weeks it will be too late. Corn that is not planted now will be lost for the season.

The signs so far are that those who can stand the risk will not go along with the program, while those that cannot - who stand to lose their farms if they guess wrongly - will go along with the corn allotment program because they are forced to do so.

How much the stocker industry relies on adequate information is shown by the fact that cattle feeders, dealers and others in the beef cattle business can't say exactly what the normal demand for cattle is. They speak of 93 million head of cattle in America, for a population of upwards of 160 million people. The population has grown, and continues to grow, faster than the census authorities reporting eventually to the Department of Agriculture can amass sufficient data to reach any valid conclusions. The truth is that nobody knows what is a fair figure for a normal beef cattle demand. The man who can lay his finger on it has the answer to the $64 question and, incidentally, an open door to a fortune.

Plymouthites whose main interest is in the price of steak and roast at the grocery store will need to keep their eyes on the situation throughout the summer. If the B & O trains of the Newark division pour into Bob Bachrach's siding at Plymouth such that the rate of arrival of beef cattle exceeds 22-25,000 head a year, it would be a sign that meat prices will go down. If the rate is less than that, meat prices will hold firm with a tendency to rise. The method which Bob and Dave Bachrach pursue is not complicated, but it requires a whole of a lot of managerial ability and up-to-the-minute knowledge of market conditions. Plus a knowledge of transportation problems, a better than working knowledge of beef cattle, a good line of credit at the bank, and iron nerves. The Bachrach can tell you of a number of times when the cattle were worth less by the time they stock pens than when they were bought 48 hours before. The market is that fickle!

The first essential is considerable space, and the Bachrach have in part solved that requirement by buying four well-established farms totalling about 500 acres. Some of them, such as the 106-acre spread on the County Line road east of Plymouth, are reserved entirely to grazing. Others, such as the Carnahan farm southwest of the village, are being readied for planting in corn, wheat, rye and oats.

North of Plymouth, along the B & O tracks, is a good example of what was necessary to make production and out of waste. The tract immediately west of the railroad was first bulldozed, then drained, and then worked and seeded. Wheat is up about nine or ten inches in spots, notably where the land is drained, and less than that in others. At the Carnahan establishment, the Bachrach are building a new concrete block and timber classification and waiting pen with a capacity of from 350 to 450 head. It will be ready in three or four weeks. Efficient ramps onto which both trailer and truck loaded cattle may be passed have been installed. Standing for the heavy trailers and trucks has been firmed up and given easy access to the road.

Cattle such as the Bachrach deal in which can be had for from $19 to $24.50 a hundred depending on quality, right now, and the market seems to be holding.

Whether farmers of lower Huron and upper Richland counties will wish to buy will depend on dollars and cents computations. The big question is feed costs. Feeders and stockers obviously can't compete with the Western stockers whose feed is so cheap that he can put 250 pounds on a 500-pound animal in six months for a net out-of-pocket cost of $18, or a bit over seven cents a pound. The feed in the west is cheap when the rains fall in quantity and keep the grass up. When the rains are poor, and surface water is short, feed prices skyrocket and the cost of maintaining feeders runs out of the rancher's control. Then he sells at prices which are lower than the market.

Beef then becomes cheaper for the householder. But don't expect any cheaper beef prices for a while until the situation clarifies. The best guess now is that ranchers and farmers will manifest strong demand, gambling on continued better opportunity to market their principal crop - grass.

For in essence, it is a matter of marketing grass, which the plains grow in abundance. Beef cattle are only an agent, a portable one, by which the farmer can market his grass. The cattle eat the grass, put on flesh, mature, go to market for slaughter, furnish steaks and roasts for the nation's meat tables, and the farmer is eventually paid for his grass.

A corollary factor is that conditions change very rapidly. Rains fall in unexpected quantity over a three week period can turn the trend from sell to buy, from lower prices to higher ones, and if the rainfall in Texas and Oklahoma that appeared last week behaves as predicted, the price of beef cattle will hold on during the summer and will be high until fall. At no time is it likely to be as high as at May 1, but it is unlikely to drop so far as it did last year.

From the standpoint of the stocker-feeder, the outlook is good if the rains hold up. From the standpoint of the consumer, the outlook for lower meat prices - lower, that is, than the present levels - is poor.

Meanwhile, the Bachrach operation in Plymouth will afford anxious table consumers with a good barometer of what's in store for the fall. All you need to do is watch.

The big spread shown upper right is the Bachrach Co. layout north of Plymouth, where little fellers like the chap shown lower left, a prime example of a young beef who will one day be a steak, are kept a few days en route to feeding lots all over the United States.

Milk Cooler Used In Bulk Pick-up

Milk Cooler such as used in new dairy experiment by producers selling to Willard Dairy.

Factory Production Delays Prevent Start Of Bulk Milk Pick-up by Willard Dairy

Production delays at the factory have thrown a hitch into the plans of Willard Dairy to inaugurate its bulk milk pickup system this week. But Robert Hamilton, operator of the establishment, is hopeful that the truck with its storage tanks can be serviced promptly.

The tank, which is illustrated above, holds 250 gallons of fresh milk which are refrigerated to below 45 degrees Fahrenheit immediately upon dumping of the freshly taken milk from the milk pail.

Nine producers have joined the program, and Mr. Hamilton is hopeful that additional producers will join the program once it is in effect. He is assisting the establishment of milk coolers by aiding in the acquisition of a suitable type of storage tank. This tank, which is manufactured by Creamery Package Co., can be obtained through the Willard Dairy.

The tank will hold about 1,700 pounds of milk when it is full. The plan is to have the tank emptied every two days by siphoning its contents into the bulk pick-up truck on which is mounted a tank large enough to accommodate the produce of several farms.

Milk which has been chilled to below 45 degrees Fahrenheit will not warm up enough to endanger its sweetness nor increase its bacteria count in the comparatively short time it is stored in the unrefrigerated truck tank. The truck returns to the dairy to empty its contents as often as may be necessary, but usually not more than twice a day, depending on the proximity of the producer to the processor.

The tank must, of course, be installed on a concrete floor so that it can be kept clean. The illustrated tank could be equipped with a direct conduit so that milk could pass from the cow direct to the tank. This would entail the establishment of milking parlor at such a level that the freshly taken milk could flow by gravity into the tank, involving a recessing of the tank or raising of the milking parlor. Both are practical.

4-H Leaders Hold First Year Meeting

The Huron County Junior Leadership 4-H Club held its first meeting of the new club year May 12. Fred C. Wise, Associate County agent, explained the objectives of the Junior Leadership Club to the 26 4-H Club members present.

The Junior Leadership 4-H Club is open to any Huron County 4-H Club member over 14 years of age who has completed three years of club work and has his or her adviser's recommendation. The purpose of the Junior Leadership club is to provide an opportunity for older members to learn more about the organization of 4-H Clubs so that they can help the advisers with their own local 4-H Club. It also gives older 4-H members an opportunity to meet together for social activities as well as instruction.

Too Wet for Oats

Wet weather has delayed oat planting on most farms so that emergency crops will be necessary, John Wells, Huron county agricultural agent, reports.

Since oats is virtually planted to precede wheat in the rotation, the only replacement that most farmers can use is soybeans. The Monroe variety of soybeans is the best adapted for Huron county types of soils. This variety, Wells states, is the earliest of all varieties and can usually be combined around the middle of September. Wheat, can then be seeded in time for a good crop.

In case late planting of corn becomes necessary, Ohio M-15 hybrid will be one of the best of the Ohio hybrids for a short growing season.

Emergency pasture and hay crops are limited to soybeans and Sudan grass. Sudan grass seeded at approximately 30 pounds per acre with an application of 400 to 500 pounds of 5-10-10 will make an excellent pasture for cattle in about two months. Sudan grass should not be pastured after frost. Soybeans drilled solid will make good emergency hay crop.

60 Attend 10th Anniversary Meeting Of 4-H Tractor Program at Chicago

The first of three regional conferences in Midwest states marking the tenth anniversary of the 4-H Tractor program, held in Chicago May 12-14, was attended by more than 60 representatives of the federal and state extension services of 16 states, the national committee on boys' and girls' club work, and officials of the Standard Oil companies of Indiana, Kentucky and Ohio. The three oil companies are the program's donors, providing member awards, literature and leader training funds in their respective territories.

Their interests from 'Old Dobbin' to farm tractors," said Guy L. Noble, director of the national committee on boys' and girls' club work. "Not only are they keenly interested in mechanized farming, but they are learning about the efficient operation and care of farm tractors through a nation-wide program which has attracted more than 335,000 rural youth during the past 10 years in all 48 states. More than 25,000 volunteer leaders have also received training during that period."

Only Dip Controls Sheep Ticks, Lice

Ticks and lice on sheep can only be controlled by following a dipping program, John Wells, County Agricultural agent, reports. The Huron-Richland Lamb Pool Improvement association is sponsoring a dipping service for sheepmen throughout the two counties. C. F. Williams, who operates the equipment, has been dipping in Huron county during the past week. Farmers should take advantage of this service if satisfactory gains are expected on the spring lamb crop.

Drenching with phenothiazine should also be done immediately so that worm eggs will not be distributed on new pastures. This drenching service will not be offered but materials are available at the Greenwich Lamb Pool yards. Rotating the ewes and lambs on new pasture at three week intervals will also help in controlling parasites, Wells states. Permanent pastures should be avoided for sheep where it is possible.

The purpose of the meeting was to review the progress of the 4-H Tractor program during the last 10 years and to announce an expansion for 1955 to include training in the operation and maintenance of farm implements.

It was pointed out that the continued expansion and success of the 4-H Tractor program depends largely upon qualified volunteer leadership. Results of a five-state study on leadership just published show that a majority of superior 4-H tractor leaders are farmers and implement company representatives, between 30 and 45 years of age.

Acclaimed as one of the fastest growing projects in 4-H, the tractor program is teaching 4-H Club members how to prevent costly breakdowns and fuel wastage thru an organized program of instruction conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service.

Scholarship Award Goes to G. Shaffer

George F. Shaffer has been notified by the Board of Societies of the United Lutheran Church of America, that he has been awarded a scholarship to continue his graduate study.

The scholarship will be applied to graduate work. Shaffer will begin his studies at the Southern Baptist Seminary, Louisville, Ky. His first work will be at the Norton Episcopal infirmary in Louisville, beginning June 1. While in Louisville he expects to complete his graduate work to receive the degree of Master of Theology.

Attending the graduation service Sunday at the Fourth Lutheran Church, Springfield, were Mr. and Mrs. Royal Eckstein, Mr. and Mrs. R. MacMichael and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Thorr Woodworth and Mr. and Mrs. H. Shaffer of Plymouth, and Mr. and Mrs. M. Stricker, of Shelby.

The Rev. Dr. Julius Bodensiek, professor of religious and Theological seminary at Dubuque, Ia., gave the commencement sermon. Dr. Bodensiek only recently returned from work in Germany. The benediction of the closing service was conducted by the Rev. Dr. T. A. Kantonen, who returned from mission work in Germany especially for this Hamma graduation.

Library Receives Some New Books

The following books are now available at the Plymouth library. FLAMES OF DARKNESS, by Hans Van Stack, Against a colorful South African background, saturated in mystery and occultism, "Flames of Darkness" tells a story of primitive passions and emotional turmoil. The author was born in the old Transvaal, South Africa, and is now a naturalized citizen of this country, residing in Sandusky. For the past nine years he has conducted a human-interest column in Sandusky newspaper.

MANY HEAVENS, by Virginia Sorensen, a novel set in Utah during the period after the abolition of polygamy among the Mormons. It tells of a doctor married to a woman who was announced to be his later love for a young protegee whom he and his wife send to study nursing. An authentic picture of the individualistic, strong-minded Mormons, by the author of "A Little Lower Than the Angels."

MY DEAREST LOVE, by Emile Loring, Vibrant and colorful, "My Dearest Love" combines all the elements of sparkling setting, mystery, and yearning. A romance that has always entertained Loring's many devoted readers.

THE KENTUCKIANS, by Janice Holt Giles. This is a book about the people who first straggled through Cumberland Gap, and carved farms from the primeval forest. It makes the reader experience the danger and beauty of life on the American frontier. David Cooper had hunted the Kentucky wilderness with Daniel Boone before the first settlers crossed the Appalachians. No love of land or home or woman had been strong enough to hold David until he met Bethia. It was for her he cleared his patch of forest, planted crops and built a cabin.

A SUNSET TOUGH by Howard Spring. This is a tale of triumphant adventure, of tragedy and of love. By day Roger Menheniot was an ordinary bank clerk - the best survivor, he supposed, of an illustrious old clan in the Cornwall countryside. He knew little of life beyond the windows of his boarding house. Suddenly he found his life shattered in a spectacular fashion by three people: a fearsome old man, a strange lady, and Kitty, the woman who could rescue Roger from himself and scandalous disaster.

FIRE AND THE HAMMER, by Shirley Barker. Lass Marvane was the fiery red-headed daughter of a blockade runner of the 1770's. A free American meant to Lass that she could do what she wanted - love whom she willed - and if she willed it - love one man to the death. To the man she loved, Marlon, it meant following the Quaker "light," refusing to pay taxes to the Continental Congress, and with five other wild fighting Democrats, starting a private war. The Doeps straggled across Pennsylvania highways, becoming an outlaw legend of their times.

"Forty Plus And Fancy Free" by Emily Kimbrough. It started innocently enough - four grandmothers deciding on a holiday in Europe. The plans were sound - just bare necessities. But the trip was far from routine. From Paris to the Coronation the ladies encountered, everything from musical chamber pots to the collapse of a trans-Atlantic broadcast. A laugh-filled book by the author of Our Hens Were Young And Gay.

Miss Caudill Feted

Twenty-five guests were present Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Ralph Fisher of Shelby for a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Allene Caudill of New Haven, bride-elect of Jack Best of Crestline. The wedding took place Sunday at 2:30 p. m. at the New Haven Methodist church.

Refreshments were served at the close of Chiverting by Patsy Meek, Eileen Maddox, Shirley Fisher and Mrs. Ralph Fisher.

Others present were Pat Yoick, Ruth Bowman, Grace Schreick, Mrs. Caudill, Mrs. Post, Mrs. Fisher, Joyce Bowman, Betty Booker, Carole Whisler, Joy Auer, Jean Nearhood, Lolo Kempf, Virginia McKown, Joan Armitage, Marge Seasley, Anita Buckingham, Bernice Buckingham, Joyce Wyatt, Agatha Bremer, Wanda Pugh and Mary Miller.

After being operations of the high school basketball courts, the young men are now members of the same team—Uncle Sam.

Mrs. Pitzen Speaks To Church Groups

The Bethany and Wesleyan Circles of the Plymouth Methodist church were guests at a delightful supper Sunday evening at the home of Mrs. P. W. Thomas, Mrs. Earl McQuate, Mrs. Jack Launey, and Mrs. Frank Pitzen. The tables were attractively arranged with locales of the valley and titles set in the bases of hurricane lamps, and each place was marked with a small card depicting a church symbol, the topic of the evening. Mrs. Frank Pitzen gave an interesting talk well illustrated on the use of symbols in church decoration. She explained the various meanings of the symbols most commonly used and brought out the fact that today there is a trend in America toward beautifying the interiors of our churches by this method. She also added that anyone who is interested in the background of symbols may find very interesting reading in the Plymouth Library. The evening ended with short business meeting at which plans were completed for the Alumni dinner to be held May 29.

From Mansfield

Membership climbed to 492 in 1945, 533 in 1946, 623 in 1947, 774 in 1948 and 918 in 1949.

"Our goal is to bring 4-H membership in the county eventually up to 1,500," Wilson said.

"This year," he said, "we have seven more clubs, two in the northern end of the county and the rest in the Mansfield and southern section."

"There is still room for expansion, especially south of Mansfield, and that is where we hope to increase in the next few years," he said.

Wilson, a 33-year-old native of Mansfield, started as an associate agent in the Richland County Agriculture Extension Service last June 6.

He was appointed to the position vacated by the resignation of Allen Lacey.

Wilson was graduated from Ohio State university with a degree in agricultural education. Following his graduation from college, he Greenfield three years.

He served as a platoon sergeant with the Fourth Armored Division Medical battalion during World War II, spending 19 months in the European theater. Married, he and his wife live in Mansfield.

From Norwalk

State law requires the reappraisal of any tax district to be reappraised for tax purposes once every six years. Real estate in the county is now appraised at prices and dollar values of just before the war. Obviously, they are unrealistic. The purpose of the reappraisal is to make them more realistic and reflect the loss of purchasing power of the dollar and the enhanced value of land and buildings brought about by developments during and after the war period.

Business Survey

March, 1954, than a year ago. Filling stations were up seven per cent and general food stores were up two per cent.

Already reports are that second quarter business turnover will more than match that of 1953. Small businessmen who were worried in March are pleased in May: business has picked up, turnover is improving, the "scare" has passed, wouldn't have been so bad, despite the relative severity of the adjustment suffered by the area, if they had had prompt, accurate information of both a national and local character upon which to base their next moves.
