

Council Approves Lease With Option For Parking Lot

By a vote of 4 to 2, the village council approved Tuesday night a motion to instruct the village solicitor to prepare a lease agreement, with a built-in option to renew the lease for an additional period of three years, providing for the rental at $75 a year of the parking lot.

The sense of the council was that in two years another council may feel that conditions will differ substantially and if it then deemed advisable to continue the arrangement, the option will hold the village's occupancy of the lot. The owner of the lot is Edward Ramsey, who has informally expressed agreement.

Street repairs
 The property owner on West Broadway inquired of the council if that street would soon be repaired and touched off a lengthy discussion of the whole problem of street repair. It was agreed that West Broadway and the Public Square are most in need of repair, and available funds should be expended for that purpose.

Assistance from both Richland and Huron counties will be sought to accomplish the West Broadway repairs, but the village must first settle outstanding obligations to both counties for work performed last year. The bills, which total about $400, were directed to be paid from current revenue.

The council devoted some time to the need to speed up negotiations with the Columbus consulting firm leading to the construction of the sewage disposal system. It is the council's intention to urge the consultants to resurvey the existing system, to ascertain which of the existing mains can be utilized (if they meet the approval of the State Board of Health), and to renegotiate the contract so that net cost to the village will be substantially less than the gross figure in the vicinity of $425,000 which is now the total.

It was pointed out by Councilman Roy Eckstein that the matter must be closed not later than 90 days before the November election, which gives a deadline date of early August. With less than eight weeks remaining, speed is essential.

Speed Up Studies
 What lies ahead is a speed up of studies that have been hanging fire for some weeks. The preparation of an alternative project designed to meet with the requirements of the State Board of Health while at the same time to reduce the total cost.

The council instructed the Superintendent of Streets to remove the wallpaper from the council room and to take up the partition between the rooms and the adjoining chamber so as to make one large room. Councilman Elmer Marley volunteered to oversee the installation of moulding and woodwork if the Street Superintendent will clear the plaster. The work will be undertaken within the month.

At the same time, a new coat of paint for the hallway and lavatories in the village building was authorized.

Informal discussion of the village's liability in the event of an accident to its employees was conducted with emphasis upon the extent of insurance. The matter was tabled.

Reports Approved
 The monthly report of Mayor Glenn West and of Clerk Carl Ellis were unanimously approved. A full council attended the meeting. The council noted that the balance in the general fund is again high, and took heed of the fact that relatively heavy disbursements against the fund are likely in the next few weeks. It appears to be possible to pay the Street Superintendent's salary from the proceeds of this fund, at least for a time, and the Council instructed this to be done.

It was announced that the new police cruiser has been paid for in full and that a contract for the new equipment had been made on the contract acquired recently by the street department.

Street Superintendent Bill Moore revealed that rainstorms had swollen drainage ditches in two locations and requested instructions. He was told to open a drain in both instances, seek out tile drains under the roads, and endeavor to run off surface water in that fashion.

Police Chief Robert Meiser presented a negative report.

Mothers Authorize $800 to Help Fence, Cafeteria Programs

Plymouth school district has no plans to consolidate with any adjoining district, Superintendent M. J. Coon told a Mother's Club meeting at the elementary school Tuesday afternoon. The group heard a paper read by Mrs. Max Smith on the merits and demerits of consolidation and reorganization of school districts.

Elementary School Principal Wayne Strine broached the need for a fence to enclose the elementary school playground through Superintendent Coon. It was pointed out by both men that despite the detailing of three teachers to supervise playground play, children habitually chased balls and other playthings into the street and crossed the paths of automobiles and trucks, especially those calling at the Bachrach stockyard.

Spirited discussion as to the type and cost of a fence and the means of erecting it ensued, and finally Mrs. Hannum, newly elected president, appointed a committee of five men headed by Mr. Coon to investigate costs and merits of various types of fencing.

The retiring president, Mrs. Frank Brinson, reminded the group of the need in equipping the cafeteria, and the upshot of this was the passing of a motion to empower the executive committee, consisting in addition to Mrs. Hannum of Mrs. Roy Eckstein and Mrs. Robert Kessler, to disburse not more than $800 during the summer months to assist either project.

A report on the Summer Reading Program was delivered by Mrs. Earl Cashman and volunteer readers were recognized.

Superintendent Coon stated in response to an inquiry from the chair that the Plymouth high school would indeed be closed this autumn, but the building would have to be made to fit the needs. In the long run, he said, the only solution is to accommodate children belonging to the school district.

Family Week Honors Mothers Day Sunday

Plymouth churches will climax observance of National Family Week with Mother's Day services Sunday morning. At 10:30 a. m. local pastors prepared sermons relating to marriage and family.

The Plymouth Presbyterian Church will cap the family week observance tonight with a fish fry at the church. The public is invited. A silver offering will be received as payment for the fish.

The Rev. Mr. Ralph M. Felix chose "How to Find Happiness in Marriage" as the topic for his Sunday sermon. Selecting his text from St. Mark 10:9, Mr. Felix pointed out that mutual appreciation, mutual forbearance, and mutual faith are essential to a successful marriage.

The pastor, who announced from the pulpit that he and Mrs. Felix are celebrating their 35th wedding anniversary, said that no marriage can be happy if it is poisoned by suspicion and jealousy and undermined by merely a secular view of life. God's presence in marriage is as essential as the presence of the two partners, he said.

The Rev. Mr. L. E. Smith, pastor of the Methodist church, will speak on "Notable Mothers" at Mother's Day services Sunday, and there will be special music by the church choir. The church will also have a secular program. The church will also have a secular program.

Despite unusually heavy late April rains, the present seeding of oats and held up plowing generally, Richland and Huron county farmers anticipate no worse a season than last year.

Like every prediction, this hinges on an important "but": the year will be good if there is no dry spell during July.

Mayor Proclaims Clean Up Week, May 10-12, 13-14

May 10 and 11 will be official Clean Up Week in the Huron county part of Plymouth, and the next two days in Richland county. Mayor West announced today. He issued an official proclamation calling upon all residents to assemble all refuse and litter for collection by the street department on those days.

Street Superintendent Bill Moore announced that his truck will collect all manner of litter and refuse except garbage if suitable containers of whatever material are filled to comply with the spirit of the ordinance. Litter and refuse of other materials will be picked up, he says.

Mayor West took special pains to point out that this is an opportunity for all residents to assist in the cleanup of litter and refuse at no cost. He urged all residents to comply with the spirit of the ordinance by making an earnest effort to clean up their premises.

Councilman Elmer Markey at the same time requested all residents to engage in a bit of personal soul-seeking for the purpose of repairing sidewalks on public thoroughfares. He says that many sidewalks are in desperate need of repair, but that he thinks all property owners will effect the required maintenance and repair without admonition laid under the ordinance governing sidewalk repair if they are given time.

Accordingly, it is his intention to put off the official sidewalk inspection for another two or three weeks in order to allow property owners to accomplish the required repairs. He said that he gives them the benefit of any doubt—they may have been held up from doing because of the wet weather.

Board Votes To Dispose of Lot; Insurance Coverage Considered

Plymouth's Board of Public Affairs voted Monday night to reject acquisition of the mortgagee of the village water and electric plants in the sale of a plot of ground and building located on Birchfield street.

The question arose when the mortgagee, Mansfield Savings & Trust Bank, made formal inquiry of the clerk of the Board with respect to insurance on the property, which is adjacent to A. C. & Y. tracks south of the Public Square. The Board promptly decided that the property has no value as adjacent to the tracks.

This brought up the whole question of adequate insurance upon properties and equipment for which the Board is responsible and after considerable discussion the Board voted to summon an insurance consultant, who was to appear Tuesday, to submit recommendations and estimates for more complete insurance coverage on both buildings and contents.

Clerk Carl Ellis submitted April bills for payment together with a statement of accounts as of May 1, as follows:

ENLISTS IN NATIONAL GUARD AT MANSFIELD
 James H. Frederick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Frederick of the North Street Road, has enlisted in Mansfield's 164th squadron, Air National Guard. He was one of five new enlistees, including a student in the local schools.

In The Advertiser

The Advertiser presents today a page of opinion and comment. Readers will find Phineas Whitehead's weekly observations on it, together with four special columns from Washington, Columbus, Mansfield and Norwalk, each pin-pointed to serve the needs of readers in Richland and Huron counties.

In the same section, there appears the first of what the management hopes will be a group of agricultural and industrial sections, designed to keep readers abreast of economic and sociological developments in this area.

The editor will appreciate comments, whether favorable or otherwise.

Ambulance Trips

Clyde (Skinny) Owens, Willard, suffered a heart attack Monday morning while working at the Fate-Root-Heath Company foundry. He was removed to the Willard hospital in the McQuate ambulance for care.

Glenn Haas was taken to the Willard hospital Saturday in the same ambulance after breaking both bones in his right ankle. He was assisting in a tree trimming job at the Mary Fate Park when the ladder on which he was standing was bumped and he fell to the ground. Others on the job were Woody Utis.

Richard county farmers were expected to seed just under 50,000 acres of corn, 37,000 acres of wheat, and 32,000 acres of beans. The acreage is fixed by federal acreage allotments totalling 30,592 acres and a wheat allocation of 24,572 acres. As in the case of Huron county, since corn and wheat acreage is fixed by federal controls, farmers must shift acreage heretofore normally reserved to oats to either soy beans or buckwheat.

Developments in the livestock industry during the coming summer are apt to result in increases in the livestock population to bring it by November 1 to somewhat as follows:

Huron county: cattle, including milkers: 20,000 head; hogs, including piglets: 20,000 head; sheep and lambs: 22,000 head.
 Richland county: cattle, including milkers: 2,000 head; hogs and

Regulars Win Out In Ohio Primaries

G O P Winner

Leech, Weaver Win In Huron Balloting; Robinson Successful

Organization candidates won out in Richland and Huron counties Tuesday's primaries.

In Huron county, the compulsory vote for Bernard Kean, county auditor, received 1,884, heaviest expression of opinion in the county. A. D. Baumhart, Jr., who had the backing of the Republican organization, defeated three other candidates for the nomination of his party for 13th District Congressman. His district total was 10,202. In Huron county the figures were Baumhart, 1,385; Johnson, 152; Kellogg, 251, and Schultz, 364.

County Commissioner O. W. (Bill) Leech, garnered 1,090 ballots and defeated Warren McIntyre, who had 713, and Max Phillips, who had 413, for renomination. J. K. Weaver easily defeated his opposition for the Republican General Assembly nomination.

Charles A. Mosher, Oberlin publisher, was victorious in the Republican race for the State Senatorial nomination. He downed Robert E. Henderson, 1,692 to 985. Neil S. Robinson, trounced Carl E. Freiberger for the General Assembly nomination, 2,265 to 573.

The Huron county vote was extraordinary light. Richland county vote was light but less so than in Huron county.

Representative George H. Bender of Cleveland whipped Ohio Senator William Saxton of Mechanicsburg for the Republican nomination for United States Senator. Bender was leading young Saxbe over the top of the vote to press by about one and one half to one. Huron county voters returned Saxbe over to Bender, 1149 to 1,100 voters.

Barring Another Dry Year, Farmers Well Off to complete two large foreign contracts.

Seed merchants and other experts report that a rise of about $1 a bushel may be expected before June 1, after which it seems likely soy bean prices will fall slightly. This should help poultrymen and other feeders, whose feed bills are kept high because the concentrate in them derives from soy beans. Good seed beans are still high and probably will not fall in price, although there seems to be considerable volume of beans less satisfactory for seeding.

In other phases of agriculture, there were no signs of impending pressures. Banks reported good liquidity of farm credit, which was moving routinely on a short-term basis. There were no unusual seasonal demands for quick money.

Another dry summer like 1953

and some farmers in Richland and Huron counties may be hard put. Meteorological reports this week indicated that summer rains would be more plentiful this year than last.

Huron county farmers were expected to seed just under 50,000 acres of corn, 37,000 acres of wheat, and 32,000 acres of beans. The acreage is fixed by federal acreage allotments totalling 30,592 acres and a wheat allocation of 24,572 acres. As in the case of Huron county, since corn and wheat acreage is fixed by federal controls, farmers must shift acreage heretofore normally reserved to oats to either soy beans or buckwheat.

Developments in the livestock industry during the coming summer are apt to result in increases in the livestock population to bring it by November 1 to somewhat as follows:

Huron county: cattle, including milkers: 20,000 head; hogs, including piglets: 20,000 head; sheep and lambs: 22,000 head.
 Richland county: cattle, including milkers: 2,000 head; hogs and per cent of parity system last year at $1.68 a bushel, shelled, in Richland county in 1953, and wheat at $2.29 a bushel. Although no figures for the 1954 wheat support price have been released so far, the signs are that Richland county wheat producers will do a bit better than the national average, which shapes up so far at $2.31 a bushel.

In other phases of agriculture, there were no signs of impending pressures. Banks reported good liquidity of farm credit, which was moving routinely on a short-term basis. There were no unusual seasonal demands for quick money.

Another dry summer like 1953

Anticipated harvest figures for the two counties are:

Huron county: corn, 2.5 million bushels; wheat, 1 million bushels; soy beans, 700,000 bushels.

Richland county: corn, 1.52 million bushels; wheat, 800,000 bushels; soy beans, 875,000 bushels.

The national agricultural picture is somewhat clouded, notably on the question of price supports. Farmers generally are resigned to some sacrifices in the level of price supports, but hope that deflationary trends will keep prices at least downward movements in the price support ladder, so that revenue at harvest time will have relatively the same purchasing power as revenue last year when price supports were higher.

Time alone will tell, but nobody is discouraged.

Plymouth-Shiloh Methodist Churches Close Year With Splendid Reports

The fourth quarterly conference of the Plymouth-Shiloh Methodist churches was held in the Plymouth church at 7:30 p. m. Sunday, May 2, with the Norwalk District Superintendent, Clark W. Cooper, presiding. Reports from the heads of various departments of the two churches were presented. Some of the highlights noted were an increase of 24 per cent in the pledge for Mission Work by the Shiloh WSCS for next year, the organization of a younger women's circle at Shiloh, the Esther Circle; all bills paid and balances in the current expense funds at both churches; a gas furnace installed and paid for in the Plymouth church at a cost of $1,400; an increase in benevolent giving. The pastor, the Rev. Mr. L. E. Smith, reported 31 baptisms and 22 members received thus far this year. Church attendance has shown an increase the past winter and spring at both churches. The choir at each church is active, the Shiloh choir being composed of some 25 high school age youth with an almost 100 per cent attendance every Sunday morning. The property of both churches was reported by the respective trustees to be in good repair and the total valuation set at $112,000 with no debts against it.

The following officers were elected, confirmed and/or appointed to serve during the next conference year, the term of service beginning July 1.

Library to Open New Room Tomorrow To Accommodate Small Fry Readers

The fourth room at the Plymouth library will go into use tomorrow. For the first time the younger readers of the village will have a reading room of their own, states Mrs. Harold Shaffer, librarian.
Five new shelf units have been finished and are installed. The work was done by Elmer Markley and Harold Shaffer, who donated their labor and time. The junior-size table and chairs have been painted and varnished a soft rose color. Mrs. Peyton Thomas, owner of the building, has paneled the room with knotty pine and installed new lights. The book and magazine rack has been refinished in natural wood.
The books in this fourth room will be for pre-school children and pupils of the first, second and third school grades.

The Plymouth library is now recognized to be one of the best small town libraries in this part of Ohio, both in equipment and service offered, and has had visiting librarians from Thailand and the Netherlands sent or brought by library authorities.

How It Grew
The library began in a very small way with two donated bookshelves in the Girl Scout rooms over the Post Office in 1922, with Mrs. Emily Jeffrey in charge. Mrs. Jeffrey and Mrs. Lucille Funk supervised the growing accumulation of girls' books and their checking system.

By 1924 the library had outgrown the Girl Scouts and arrangements were made to move to the Board of Public Affairs room, where townspeople could make use of the available fiction and non-fiction volumes. Mrs. Jeffrey, Ohio, both in equipment and service offered, and has had visiting librarians from Thailand and the Netherlands sent or brought by library authorities.

The need of a library board was seen, and in 1926 the first group was organized. Officers elected were Mrs. W. A. Doyle, chairman, Mrs. G. A. Artz, assistant chairman, Mrs. Herschler, secretary, Mrs. Jeffrey, assistant secretary, Mrs. Elmer Rogers, treasurer, Mrs. Jeffrey, librarian, Mrs. Herschler, assistant librarian.

MRS. HANNUM ELECTED TO HEAD MOTHERS CLUB

Mrs. C. L. Hannum was unanimously elected president of the Mother's Club of the Plymouth elementary school for 1954-55 at a meeting of the group Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Royal Eckstein was named vice-president and Mrs. Robert Kessler, secretary-treasurer.

MOVED TO WILLARD

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Phillips and family, who have been living in the home of Mrs. Bertha Armstrong, just north of town, have moved to Willard.

WILL BABY SIT in your home, 5 days a week. Miss Chandler, Phone 1351, Plymouth, O. 6p

LOCATES HERE AFTER FOUR YEARS WITH AIR FORCE

Mr. and Mrs. John Howard and infant daughter are now residents of Shelby. Mr. Howard has recently received his honorable discharge from the U. S. Air Force. He served four years with the Air Force, and comes here from Puerto Rico, where he was last stationed.

Mrs. Howard, whose husband is a carpenter, met and married in Puerto Rico. She was the daughter of a staff member stationed there, and reports she finds Shelby and life in Ohio very different from the regimented life around the service bases.

BACK HOME
Harold Dietrich has been dismissed from the Shelby Memorial hospital where he was taken the past week for observation and is now recuperating at his home on West Broadway.

ON COUNTY FAIR BOARD
Carl Ellis, member of the Huron county fair board, will be in Norwalk today to meet with the board to plan the Huron county fair.

ILL AT FAMILY HOME
Miss Wilhelmina Gebert is confined to her room at the Gebert home on Trux street, following a heart attack with complications, which she suffered Wednesday of last week. Friends are very sorry to hear this news and sincerely hope she recovers soon.

Poultry Business Grows Phenomenally in Huron County Region

Farmers Make Profits On Broilers, Turkeys In Fairfield Township

Phenomenal growth of the broiler and turkey raising business has marked agricultural development in Huron County over the past five years. It is a stimulus to town and farm, and what is more, it is slowly changing eating habits and affecting the consumer right down home—under his belt and in his wallet.

Two typical operators are Richard Albright, who has 479 acres just south of Peru on State Highway 61, and Lowell Ruggles, Benedict elementary school principal at Norwalk, who runs 5,000 broilers every 11 weeks at his establishment on Old State road east and south of North Fairfield.

Generally speaking, the broiler trade has suffered from overproduction this spring, and accordingly prices are down. But producers are by no means despondent, and they figure that prices will firm up as feed prices taper off and summer eating habits assert themselves.

In the turkey trade, the emphasis and trend have been toward the production of poult for frying and roasting at lower weights. Mr. Albright, a tall, fair-haired product of Ohio State University, plans to install 40,000 turkey chicks on his spread about July 1, birds which will be ready to market just before Thanksgiving. Other growers in the area are running turkeys now, and plan to follow Mr. Albright's lead later on.

Five years ago the turkey population of the area was negligible. Now it is a burgeoning business. Why?

For one thing, governmental and private agencies have pushed new markets. Consumers have been introduced to turkey in numerous forms and sizes. Last year the turkey business was good, and growers in this area anticipate that farm effort to 10 per cent more birds will be put on the ranges this year than last, despite recommendations by the Turkey Marketing Association to hold production down to last year's level.

It is a risky business, the raising of turkeys, and operators run a big gamble. It is necessary to have scientific feeding, careful control of disease, proper breed selection, and prayer. It is a highly mobile operation, and if when the results notes that marketing conditions are or are likely to be adverse, he can switch to broilers or other stock by prompt shifting of his young birds' fliers.

The frier business has grown by leaps and bounds. One dresser in the area who processes about 800 birds a week in January is now occupied with better than 5,000 birds a week now. The growth is estimated to be between 70 and 500 per cent. Naturally, this also stimulates employment.

This growth has caused the old roasting chicken, the four to eight pound bird, to disappear from the consumer's table. The farmer simply cannot raise them fast enough and cheaply enough to make a profit. Accordingly, he has switched to other birds.

Mr. Albright plans to establish a breeder flock of some 3,500 birds on a 150-acre farm four miles south and one mile east of Peru. The breeding flock now numbers 1,000 head, and when young Gordon Albright returns from his air force duties in Japan he will be associated with his brother and their father in this venture.

Then the brothers plan to get into the killing and dressing and commercial marketing aspect of the business. From all appearances, they should be able to supply Plymouth area consumers with quality meat from white feather birds. The traditional gobbler is dying out. Reason: white feather birds dress out whiter and cleaner.

How the industry benefits the soil and the economy generally is an interesting aspect of the business. Turkey litter is excellent fertilizer, but the farmer must be careful how it is spread. It is rich and powerful, and will burn if not evenly and lightly spread and carefully disced into the soil.

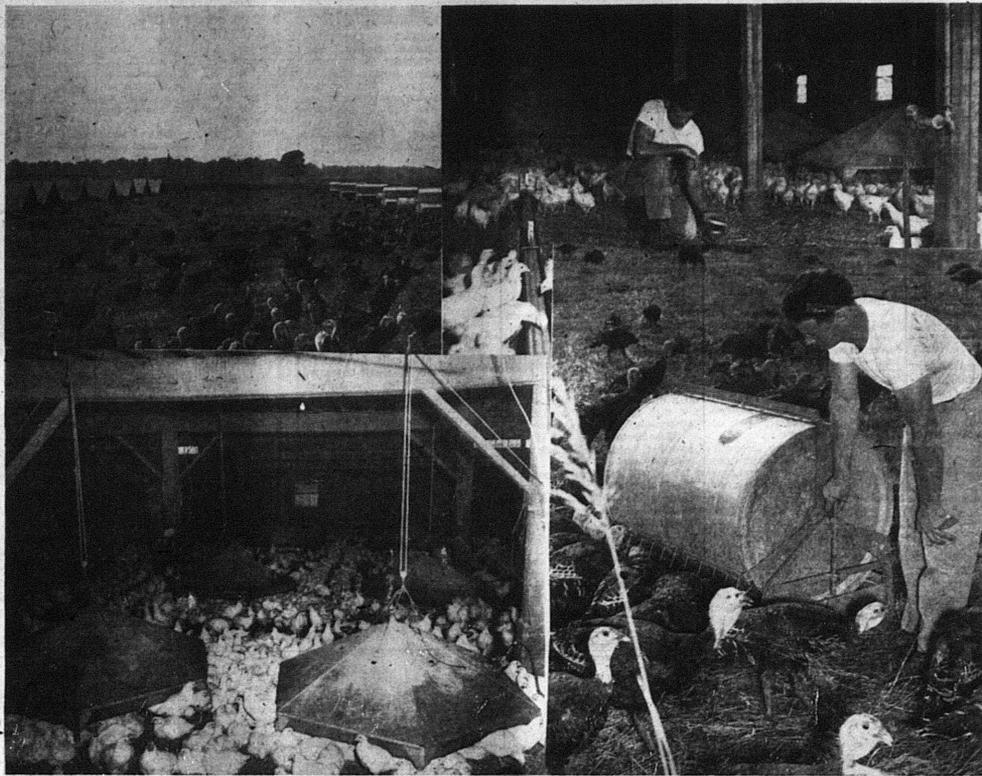

Peanut shells from Virginia are shipped in by the carload and spread on the floor of the brooder houses for footing. Manure mixed with this vegetal matter makes good fertilizer.

The Albright brooder house is a two-storey affair with a feed storage bin located squarely in the center. From it feed for the birds drops through a patented mechanical feeder and is moved by vibration around the troughs so all birds get enough.

The waterers are filled from a tank wagon equipped with a pump that delivers 95 gallons of water a minute. The waterers have to be trucked up and down the range, which is planted in legumes first, then grass, then a broome-ladino-salfia mixture, so that the birds will have food and drink at all times.

They have to be kept warm when the weather is raw, too. For this purpose Mr. Albright operates LP gas-fired hovers at an estimated cost of about two cents a chick or half cent during cold weather and a half cent a bird during warmer temperatures.

The whole operation is managed as an efficient business. Mr. Albright keeps careful cost records, consults regularly with the marketing cooperative and with the Ohio Turkey Breeders' Association, which is managed through the state agricultural extension service, and with dressers and processors on the industry. It pays off.

How did young Dick Albright get into the business? His father, Clayton Albright, was for years and is now a producer of certified seed (wheat, oats and corn) on contract. His sons, Richard and Gordon, brought up on the farm, naturally turned to agriculture as a vocation. Dick attended Ohio State University, specialized in poultry husbandry, and graduated with the class of 1950. Poultry raising and the seed business complement each other nicely, and if the growers in the Plymouth area can avert a rapid disease growth (turkeys are notoriously subject to infections, but the growers keep their eyes on them and quickly place affected birds in cull pens this year should be slightly better than last.

That disease bugaboo is a hazard in the broiler business, too. Growers in Huron county report that a wave of bronchitis, which they suspect is cyclical by nature, swept through flocks this past winter, causing them many difficult hours.

But they have survived and despite high feed prices and a general market scare, capped by what is estimated to have been a 20 per cent overproduction of broilers in the area, they are confident that 1954 will be a payoff year.

Lowell Ruggles, who lives in a pleasant wale east of North Fairfield with his pretty rehired wife and two daughters, is a good example of what the broiler operator does.

Mr. Ruggles runs a little better than 5,000 broilers every 11 weeks in a big concrete block brooder house south of his farmstead. The present crop consists of about 2,000 chicks obtained from Page's Hatchery at Shiloh, operated by the amiable and competent Joe Page and his father, and 3,000 from the Amstutz Hatchery at Canton. All are Arbor Ace White Rocks, first generation strain, a specially selected bird to develop faster and heavier than other broiler types.

Mr. Ruggles looks after the birds during the day, and it is not particularly trying work, because of the mechanical devices installed to assist her. The chicks are fed mechanically. A time clock starts and stops the mechanical feeder so that it runs 15 minutes and shakes mash and other feed down on troughs which circulate through the building.

There are numerous watering troughs, both mechanical and patented, during early stages of the group, but later the smaller watering devices are removed.

The Ruggleses have 12 hovers, heated by gas, to warm the birds, which are never allowed on range. Litter of peanut shells is cleared from the building after each 11-week period and spread as fertilizer. The Ruggleses also run a flock of about 30 sheep. They keep additionally about 1,000 laying hens, and market the fresh eggs.

The procedure of installing 5,000-odd chicks is repeated every 11 weeks. Thus the Ruggleses turn out about 24,000 broilers a year.

The activities of Richard Albright and Lowell Ruggles are typical of the sensible change that is occurring in agriculture as a result of changes in the habits and tastes of a growing population of living the farmer's standard of living of a general farm labor shortage, and of properly managed scientific research financed by farmer and townsman alike.

MIGRANT COMMITTEE HAS DINNER MEETING ON WEDNESDAY

The Willard Marsh Migrant Ministry group met at the Church of Christ in Shelby on Wednesday for a dinner meeting at 12:30 o'clock. The guest speakers were Mrs. Charles Bruno, of Dayton, who is chairman of the Ohio Migrant Ministry of the United Church Women of Ohio; Mrs. Phillips Curtis, of Columbus, who is with the Women's Department of the Ohio Council of Churches.

The migrant committee this year plans for five weeks of recreational and summer school work with the Spanish-speaking workers on the marshland farms. There will be two Spanish speaking field workers directing the committee project which will begin about the middle of June.

Richland Fair Cost Budgeted At $23,655 With Deficit $5,555

Richland County fair will be staged over four days commencing August 11 at a cost budgeted at $23,655, of which it is estimated that $5,555 will be deficit.

Members of the board of the fair have received approval of these figures from the Richland county commissioners and are going ahead with the program, which calls for the annual tractor-pulling contest on opening day. On August 12 pony rides, the greased pig contest for boys, mule racing, a motorcycle show and dancing will be featured.

Friday, August 13, will be Richland County day. Bicycle racing, a parade featuring eight bands and participation by the U. S. Marine Corps, and more dancing will be offered.

The livestock and marching parade is scheduled for closing day August 14, together with more mule racing, the awarding of prizes, and more dancing.

The fair board has earmarked $2,700 for prizes in junior and senior exhibits. Prize money totaling $3,000 has been set for schools, granges, tractor pulling contests, garden clubs, pony races, bicycle races, tug-of-war, donkey race and the annual fair dance.

Awards to 4-H exhibits have been fixed at $3,700 and an additional $3,000 not available last year has been authorized for senior animal exhibit.

Fertilizer Answer For Wet Gardens

Delay in gardening because of wet weather can be speeded up with heavier applications of fertilizer. John Wells, Huron County Agricultural Agent, says.

Where gardens have not yet been plowed, an application of 500 to 600 pounds of 10-10-10 can be made before plowing. Since gardens are usually one-fourth acre in size, this would mean using about two bags of fertilizer. Wells states.

In addition to the plow-down application most plants should have additional amounts of 5-10-10 or 8-8-8 fertilizer at planting time. This can be put on satisfactorily if the fertilizer is placed under the seed or mixed with the ground alongside the row.

Where plants are used, as in the case of cabbage or tomatoes, approximately one teaspoon of fertilizer applied in a band around the plant is satisfactory.

Varieties should be considered rather carefully by the home gardener if freezing of vegetables is planned. Some of the common varieties recommended for freezing are stringless green pod bush beans, Thomas Lexton peas, Fordhook bush lima beans, and Golden Cross Bantam or Frost Gold sweet corn. Wells says that some newer varieties are on the market and are satisfactory for freezing, but should be checked for their adaptability.

CARD OF THANKS
I wish to thank Doctors Cahill, Faust and Emery, and the Willard Municipal hospital staff for their excellent services; friends and neighbors for their thoughtfulness and gifts while I was a patient at the hospital. Everything was greatly appreciated.

Reception Good For Polio Shots

The first polio vaccine inoculations were given Friday at the Shilo school and Dr. Chas. Butler, physician in charge of the field trials in Shiloh, reports that not one child cried. The youngsters accepted this "shot day" as a matter of course, not realizing that perhaps medical history was in the making.

Children in the first three grades, with parents' approval, received the first of the three inoculations. Blanche Arnold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wood Arnold, was the first Shiloh pupil to be inoculated. Pupils were called alphabetically.

Dr. Butler was assisted by his office nurse, Mrs. Hester Brewer, and others of the county health department.

The second inoculation will be given Friday, May 7. Children absent on this day must be taken by the parent to the health department within four days to receive a make-up inoculation.

The third inoculation will be given three weeks later.

Shiloh F. F. A. Boys Install Officers

The new officers of the Shiloh FFA were installed at the regular meeting last Wednesday evening. Officers installed were: Kermit Noble, president; Harmon Sloan, vice president; Harry Humbert, secretary; Tom Kranz, treasurer; Ollie Cole, reporter; and Ervin Fackler, sentinel. The outgoing officers took part in the ceremony.

The newly-installed officers presided over the remainder of the business meeting. Plans were made to purchase fertilizer and seed for the 26 acres on Ronald McBride's farm in which the boys will plant corn.

Several members are also looking forward to attending the State FFA Camp Muskingum the last week in July.

The last few days, the FFA boys were busy preparing the school grounds for installation of a flag pole and playground equipment. The work was under the supervision of G. D. Seymour, FFA advisor.

'Hey Pal, Are Ya Hep? Gimme Benzedrine' To Be Heard Friday

Plymouth pharmacists should be prepared for a land office business in benzedrine tablets tomorrow. About 100 customers for the stay-awake pills are expected to attend the annual Junior-Senior banquet and all-night party scheduled to get under way at the high school at 6:30 p. m.

Mothers of junior class students are preparing a steak dinner under the direction of Mrs. Russell Barbour. A special variety program will follow the banquet. Doris Gooding and her orchestra will play for dancing until midnight. The guests will then depart for the Plymouth Drive-In, where Ed Ramsey has arranged a cinema program lasting to 3:15 a. m. The Plymouth police car will furnish escort to and from the Drive-In. The young people will then return to the high school for a Reception from 3:30 to 4:30 a. m., after which the juniors' mothers will serve breakfast in the home economics classrooms.

LIBRARY BOARD MAKES PLANS FOR SUMMER

At the Library Board meeting Thursday at the Plymouth library, Mrs. Inez Shaffer, librarian, announced that the material for the Summer Reading Club program had been received from the county librarian at Mansfield. Mrs. Earl Cashman presented the plan and theme at the Mothers Club meeting Tuesday at the grade school and also to the teachers and pupils.

Before the business session opened, the Board members had a surprise handkerchief shower on the library page girl, Georgianna Pitzon, who will graduate this month and will no longer be able to assist in the library work. Pearl Lucas, who is a junior at high school this year, began her duties as a page May 1, having met the requirements of the librarian and the county staff.

Mrs. Shaffer reported that the fourth and new room for the library would be ready for use the following week, and that at the close of the present school year further changes in the library shelving would be made.

New books ordered were "Clown" by Emmet Kelly, "Minties of the Last Meeting," by Gene Fowler, "The Cobweb," by Wm. Gibson, and "Never Victorious, Never Defeated," by Taylor Caldwell.

The May meeting of the Board will be held at the library rooms on May 27.

TEENAGE ROAD-EO POSTPONED

Due to inclement weather and conflicting activities at the site of the course, the Shelby-Plymouth-Shiloh driving skill contest sponsored by the Shelby Junior Chamber of Commerce will be postponed until Saturday, June 5 instead of May as previously announced. The May 1 deadline shown on the applications is to be disregarded. Application forms are now definitely in the hands of the respective school officials and may be obtained upon request.

Boys and girls with driving licenses or permits up to and including 19-year-olds are eligible to take part. There is no entry fee and local winners are eligible for more than $125 in local prizes and a winner or winners will be furnished transportation to the state contest on June 26. This program is widely acclaimed by law enforcement agencies and representatives of the State Highway Patrol, the Richland County police force will serve as judges. Applications may be obtained at The Advertiser.

CALLED TO KENTUCKY FOR FUNERAL SERVICE

Mrs. E. B. Curpen received notice Monday of the death of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Edward F. Vooris, of St. Petersburg, Fla. She left Wednesday to attend the funeral services at Danville, Ky., and will stop at Oxford enroute, where Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Fey will join her. Mrs. Curpen returned to Plymouth only Saturday from a visit with her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. James Doanes and daughters, of Dallas, Tex. The Curpens visited in Florida this late winter with Mrs. Vooris, and her sudden death was unexpected.

CHANGE OF RESIDENCE

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Gill have moved to 34 Portner Street. They have been living in the property of Ed Phillips on Dix Street. Mrs. Phillips, who wintered in Wilcox, Ariz., has returned to Plymouth.

Kindergarten News From Mrs. Fackler

Birthday parties were in the air last week at Mrs. Eleta Fackler's kindergarten, and Happy Birthdays songs floated around the air in that neighborhood.

David McQuown observed his sixth birthday on Wednesday last week, with the assistance of his mother, Mrs. Norman McQuown and little sister, Cheryl. He treated the afternoon class with ice cream and decorated cakes, and the children enjoyed singing the birthday songs and playing games, which David chose.

Sherry Nesbit, of Shiloh, whose sixth birthday was Friday, plays hostess to the morning class of kindergarten. She was assisted by her little friend, Audrey Dawson, and party hats were given to all the children to wear. There were favors, ice cream, and a large decorated birthday cake upon which stood a costumed doll, carrying a lighted candle upon her head in place of the usual little candle lights. After singing Happy Birthday to Sherry, the class played games and listened to stories.

Last Week
Mrs. Fackler announces that this will be the last week of kindergarten for this season and that "graduation day" for the classes will be Friday. Mothers and grandmothers are entertained on the last day of the kindergarten.

SUNDAY, MAY 9TH, IS MOTHER'S DAY

Gov. Frank J. Lausche has proclaimed Sunday, May 9, as Mother's Day in Ohio. In announcing the date, the governor called upon Ohioans to join with others throughout the world in paying "to our mothers . . . the honor and respect which has been demanded of us in the Ten Commandments."

The seniors will leave Willard early Sunday morning, May 16, and will spend two days in Washington and three days in New York! They will return to Plymouth Saturday morning, May 22. Sponsors of the class trips are Mr. and Mrs. John Amick. The seniors will stay at the Ebbitt Hotel in Washington, Sunday and Monday nights and the Piccadilly Hotel in New York, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Polio Inoculation

Forty-three pupils in the first three grades at the elementary school received their first in a series of polio-vaccine inoculations Thursday, April 29. Everything went very smoothly and the children took it as a matter of course. They were called for the inoculation in alphabetical order and none of the children has had any adverse reactions to the shots administered by Doctors Faust and Hannum thus far. Half of the children got the vaccine, the other half do not. Time will determine the value of the program.

Self Confidence Wins If Enemy Respected, Coach Tells Banquet

"The right approach, in my view, to any ball game is confidence in yourself, but don't go overboard on your opponent," Robert Fowle, coach of St. Aloysius' School basketball champion's which won the Class B title in Ohio in 1953, told the Plymouth High School Athletic Association banquet Thursday night. About 100 persons attended.

Coach Fowle addressed his audience with a matter-of-fact recital of difficulties encountered by the Perry County school in fielding a team, obtaining equipment, and meeting a rigorous schedule. Until five years ago, there were no boys enrolled in the school. The first squads were coached by a priest, and they were soundly beaten by large shores. Determination and pluck carried them through, Coach Fowle said, and the 1952-53 basketball squad won 18 straight games. It went nowhere in the tournament, the speaker said, and the 1953-54 team bettered the record by winning 24 contests while losing only four.

The small school, with only 27 boys enrolled, plays six-man football, which Coach Fowle described as a stiff game with plenty of contact, basketball, baseball, fields a track team, engages in weightlifting (and tied Ohio State University for second place in the championship of St. Aloysius' School in golf), and is considering a golf squad. When the football team started out, it had no money and no uniforms. Headgear and shoulder pads were borrowed from opponents until the team was able to collect sufficient funds to purchase this equipment.

"A team's play is better when the pressure is off," Fowle said. "That is, if you don't absolutely have to win the game, I think a team plays better ball, shows more teamwork, and produces a better performance. But give me a team that will fight on even when the cards are stacked against it, down through the last minutes, and win or lose, that my kind of team and the kind of boy I want to work with."

Peyton W. Thomas, Sr., was toastmaster. He introduced Arthur L. Paddock, Jr., new editor of The Advertiser, who spoke briefly. Al Marvin delivered the welcome in behalf of the Athletic Association and Percy Dean responded to the athletes. Coach Fowle presented awarded monograms and sterling silver footballs and basketballs and megaphones to the following:

Football award, silver balls, Larry Root, Percy Dean, Royal Eckstein, and Jack Utiss.

Basketball awards, silver balls, Larry Root, Percy Dean, Royal Eckstein (manager), Lee Steele and Ron Muncie.

Basketball awards, monograms, John Fox, Otis Port, James Jacobs, Ray Einsel, Ed Taylor, John Elliott, James Fidler, Donald Fidler, John Fetter, Bud Berberick, James Hunt, Donald McKinney and Robert Stroup.

Cheerleaders awards, silver megaphones, Janis Taubee and Shirley Bradford.

Cheerleaders awards, monograms, Sue Heblig, Janet Norris, Jeannette Bettac, Mary Robertson, Rose Fenner, Joan Postema, Daher Huzovich and Sandy Huzovich, mascot.

The Rev. Ralph Felix pronounced the grace and the benediction.

ATTEND TEACHERS TRAINING

The J. & J. Studios, Norwalk, Willard, Plymouth and Attica, owned and operated by Joyce Beamer and Janice Oldham, sponsored Ann Leak and June Berberick, teachers in J. & J.'s Plymouth Studio to attend the Prep Session of Cleveland Chapter No. 281, National Association of Business & Affiliated Artists (NAADA), Hollywood, in Fenway Hall Hotel, in Cleveland, on Sunday, April 25.

The 5 hour training session included one hour each in Modern Ballet, Tap, Character Ballet, and Ballroom dancing. This instruction session precedes the two-course of specialized training that assistant teachers and advanced students of the studio selected to attend, will receive in the Junior Seminar at the NAADA Convention, Chicago, July 6-23.

Joyce Beamer and Janice Oldham accompanied these teachers and a great deal of knowledge was gained by all.

DISMISSED FROM HOSPITAL

Pvt. David Hutchinson was released April 17 from a hospital in Japan where he was admitted with his trouble. He is now being treated at the Orinade Depot in Tokyo and after a month will go back to the hospital for a check-up. His ears seem to be all right.

David is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rosecoe Hutchinson of R. D. 1, Plymouth.

Tom Zork, who is recovering from a serious illness, is now recuperating at her home in Attica.

Band Concert 'Finest in History'; Heavy Applause By Big Audience

The finest band program yet given in Plymouth was heard Sunday afternoon at the high school. The Plymouth School Band presented its annual Spring Concert. The concert of all music was given a first reception by a large audience that, in spite of the storm of the afternoon, filled the stationary seats of the auditorium. Some were later seated on the folding seats at the edge of the playing floor where the baton twirlers entertained with their routines.

The audience was thrilled by the presentation of good music by this group of 54 band musicians, many of whom are yet in the elementary school. The student players were attentive and alert, and responded well to Mr. Robert Durbert's baton, which seemed almost a very part of him as he directed.

"We listened we wondered what would the world do without good music! All of us who attended were given a real respect for the hustle and bustle of everyday mercenary routine and it was a pleasure to listen to young folks who are accomplishing something in a constructive use of music time."

The concert was well staged and timed. Everything moved like clock work. The program was not too long, and when the big audience would have enjoyed more, which is a very good sign.

The first three numbers, "The Star King," "Apprentice Suite," and "The Syncoated Clock" were also used by the Richland County Musical Festival at Shelby this year. At Plymouth's concert, new band instruments was added to advantage, the musical alarm clock. The rhythm in the percussion section of the band was really appreciated by the audience in this number.

The descriptive novelty, "At the Minstrel Show," made a good concert number, and with M. D. Durbert acting as interlocutor, musically speaking, both the audience and the band members enjoyed this.

"Semper Fidelis" was given a good hand, and both of the Rodgers-Hammerstein-Yoder numbers, "Oull' Never Walk Alone" and "Ball' Him," were successfully gotten across to the audience, judging from the rapt attention, and the applause. "On The Trail," from the Grand Canyon Suite, was something really big for a school band to attempt and the musicians acquitted themselves well. It is good training for youngsters to aim high.

Nelson Roberts and John Fetter were the two soloists with the band this year, and as both are underclassmen, will be heard from again.

The Drum Major, the Senior Majorettes, and Junior Majorettes in their graded routine, and were given a nice hand. This is the last year for the three majorities. Georgianna Pitzen has been in the band since the summer of 1950, and was head majorette until succeeded by Drum Major Nelson Roberts. Carol Kiess and Janet Miller joined the twirling staff with Mr. Durbert states that the four can be rated high in the band twirling class.

The concluding concert number "The Stars and Stripes Forever" really climaxed the afternoon. Nancy Miller, sixth-grade student, had the piccolo solo of the number with the poise and tone of an old-timer in band work. She was commended by added applause.

Following the National Anthem, an encore was given in response to the applause, "American Patrol."

Band Awards for this year were presented by Mr. Durbert at this concert. Awards are given only to high school students, who must rate the senior band, attend a high percentage of both practice and concert, and have a good standing in their band instrument lessons.

In appreciation of his work with the young people and his service to the community, the Band Mothers presented Mr. Durbert a check with which to buy a band uniform for himself. Plymouth is proud to have him as their music instructor in the schools.

Arvin Kindinger, of the Crestline Music Store, surprised the school by being present and making recordings of the concert numbers. He complimented Mr. Durbert and the band highly on their performance.

The concert is over, but the general opinion around the Square is that we would like to hear the band again before school is out this year! Another interesting comment made after the band concert was over, concerned the colorful picture which the band made, with the bright red uniforms, gleaming instruments, and background of bright flags, the American, and the band banner. A free will collection of $114 was given at the intermission for band expenses.

At the conclusion of the afternoon, the Band Mothers Club served a supper-lunch, to all of the band personnel in the Home Economics room. Mrs. Roy Carter was chairman of this committee that required much planning and work to serve around 60 people.

Personal Items

Mr. and Mrs. Don Barnes and Miss Mildred Dawson, of Columbus, were guests in Plymouth Sunday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pitzen. Mrs. Barnes is a R. N., and was a special guest of Jean, their friendship having begun in Children's Hospital while Jean was a patient there.

Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Root will leave today, Thursday, for Elmira, New York, where they will visit their daughters and families, Mr. and Mrs. Harland Wheadon and Mr. and Mrs. Rexford Baxter.

Dr. and Mrs. John Tschappat were overnight Friday and Saturday guests of the latter's sister, Mrs. P. W. Thomas and family. They were enroute from Cleveland to their home in Dayton, Ohio.

After spending the Easter Vacation with Mrs. W. M. Bittinger and family, Dr. and Mrs. George B. Sickle and son Bill of Swarthmore, Pa., have returned to their home.

Mr. Frank Myers of the North Street road spent Thursday and Friday with his brother and wife, who reside south of Ashland, and his cousin, Dwight Haysen and wife, who live south of Hayesville, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Steele of Waynesville, Mich., motored to Ohio over Sunday and Monday and called on their daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Snyder of Galion, and also in the home of Mrs. Steele's sister, Mrs. Barney Robinson and husband of Willard, R.D. While in Plymouth they stopped at the Advertiser office and renewed their subscription for another year.

The filing period without penalty closed on March 31st, and a special offer has been made to mail citations while the penalty is at the lowest stage. In many instances the forms mailed were laid aside and forgotten, in others the property may have been transferred but a return should have been mailed back stating the date and circumstances of such transfer.

Where no response is received the auditor's office has no alternative but to make a forced settlement, on the basis of the last return on file.

At the week-end about 60 more returns were filed than at the same time a year ago and advance payments were considerably higher, due it is thought, to so many paying the full tax year.

Mail Personal Tax Citations

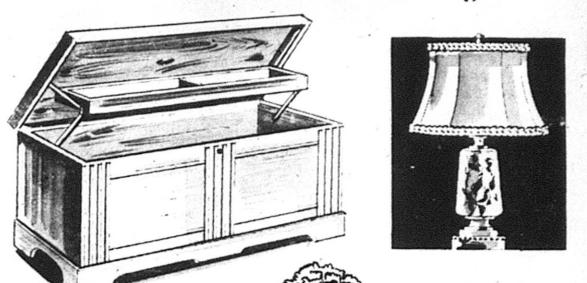

Personal tax citations have been mailed out by the Huron County Auditor's office to the first hundred of 500 who have failed to file personal tax returns. The citations will be released in stages of a hundred unit until all have responded.

A School Record

Ninety-six years is a long time to send your children to school. Not many of us would live that long, that is if you took the years individually and consecutively, but with eight children well, it's a little easier, so says Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Steele.

When their son, Lee, graduates with the 1954 class from Plymouth High, he will be their eighth and last child to graduate from the local schools. Not every one of them did graduate from Plymouth High, which is an unusual record.

Mr. and Mrs. Steele's oldest child, Margaret, now Mrs. Robert Kessler, who resides on the Shiloh road, graduated in 1941; Anna Mae, now Mrs. Roger Miller makes her home on Mills Avenue. (Mrs. Floyd Harrer) of Chatfield, was a 1944 graduate and Marilyn (Mrs. James Gullett) of West Broadway, Plymouth, was of the class of 1947; Lewis, now residing in Mansfield, is a 1950 alumnus and Denton, at present a graduate of the college year later or 1951; Jessie, who also resides at home, graduated in 1953 and this year Lee joins the rank of his older sisters and brothers.

The five older children are all married now and when they all get together on Sunday night along with eight grandchildren, well, it is really a family reunion.

Lutheran Missionary Society is Friday

The Lutheran Women's Missionary Society is scheduled for Friday, May 7 at the home of Mrs. Eva Lawson, 204 West Avenue. Mrs. Sloan is the leader and the time is 7:30 p. m.

GO TO PENNSYLVANIA

Mrs. Dessie Johnson left Sunday morning from Mansfield for Lancaster, Pa., to assist in the care of Mrs. G. McEflin, of Williamsport, who is now at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mark H. Ryder and husband.

Mrs. McEflin wintered in Florida but has been a patient at St. Joseph's hospital in Lancaster more recently. She is a sister of the late Mrs. Stacy Brown.

Mrs. Katie Erwin was released April 19 from the Willard Municipal Hospital where she recently underwent surgery and is now recuperating at her home in Attica.

New Method in Dairy Industry Expected to Bring Several Changes

Willard Dairy to Start Bulk Pickup of Milk When Truck Arrives

A whole new pattern of marketing in the dairy industry in Huron and Richland counties may result from a new undertaking by the Willard Dairy in about two weeks. Bulk pickups of fresh milk from producers in the Willard area will be initiated by the dairy with a new 1,500-gallon capacity tank truck that is expected to arrive about May 17 from the manufacturer at Fond du Lac, Wisconsin. The principle of bulk pickups has grown tremendously over the past few years in dairying areas in Wisconsin and Far West, notably the Midwest and Washington, and has worked successfully at Lancaster, Ohio, where Dobbs Dairy has been following the practice for about a year.

Prospecting Necessary
The inception of such a service is not without some opposition, and is strongly by milk processing firms to join in the program. The argument is based on dollars and cents and profits, on better sanitation and on certain inescapable scientific facts relating to the rate of deterioration of milk under refrigeration.

Basically, the principle involves the storing of daily milkings in a refrigerated tank by the producer. The milk processor calls once every two days to siphon off the milk and supply into the insulated tank truck. The milk is transported to the processor's plant, where it is passed - still unrefrigerated - by human hands, and is relatively unexposed to the air and other contaminations - into stainless steel processing tanks from whence it is pasteurized. Under ideal conditions, when the producer has established what is called a "milking parlor" and a milking machine which empties directly from the udder to the storage tank, fresh milk is exposed to the air only for the comparative instant when the filled bottle slides from spout to the canner, a matter of seconds.

Not every milk producer will, at the outset at least, undertake such a program. Some 20 odd producers will follow the simpler method of emptying milk from the milking machine receptacle into the storage tank located in the milk house. One producer in the Willard area is planning the establishment of a "milking parlor".

This involves the construction of a battery of stanchions into which milk cows are led at milking time. After the washing of the udder and the rubber suction cups of the milking machine are affixed and the milk flows directly by gravity into the storage tank, where it is immediately cooled to below 50 degrees Fahrenheit. The second milking empties into a supply which has been chilled to below 45 degrees Fahrenheit.

Milk Has Low Bacteria Count
Milk which has been thus stored for 48 hours is said by scientists to retain a low bacteria count and to be wholesome and suitable for human consumption. It does not take on any disagreeable odor or taste and the immediate cooling and pasteurization has been kept for as much as three weeks' time without deterioration.

The inception of such a system is a slow process, chiefly because the farmer realizes two facts: he must either get into the program with both feet by adding to his herd, and must make certain cash outlays for the storage equipment, or set out.

Public and private agencies realize these facts, too, and milk processors are gratified by their response. Firstly, the Production Credit Administration, taking its cue from the U. S. Department of Agriculture Experiment Station at Beltsville, Md., has a liberal credit. Farmers are required to buy a share of participating stock in the amount of $5 for each $100 borrowed. A chattel mortgage for three years against the equipment and any mortgage-free equipment on the farm, as guaranteed by the PCA, interest at six percent being collected.

Amortization Is Fast
Supporters of the program point out that in this manner dairymen can amortize the payment of their new equipment in three years time, and with the saving to the processor of between 28 and 43 cents per hundred pounds of milk marketed, the producer who moves 100,000 pounds of milk a year (that is, a man with about 12 milking head the year around) can make sufficient savings to pay for the new equipment (about $2,000 for an 18-animal herd) over five years. In short, the equipment pays for itself in five years.

Robert Hamilton, operator of the Willard Dairy and the brains behind the plan, estimates that producers living west of a line drawn three miles east of Willard will be able to realize savings of about 39 cents per 100 pounds of milk marketed by channeling milk through the Willard collection system, and those living east of that line will be able to realize savings of about 30 cents a hundred pounds.

Mr. Hamilton did not undertake his new program without careful consideration of the issues involved. "About last December," he says, "when we decided to go ahead with this program by buying the tank truck, we approached our producers and asked them to join in the plan to start the program in the Willard area, and we would help them and give them counsel and guidance to the best of our ability, or they could seek out another grade A processor. The response has been good and we think it will be better. When producers realize the savings to be made and the resultant improvement in quality and the elimination of backbreaking work in lifting milk cans into and out of coolers, onto and off trucks, and the like, we think the response will be greater still."

Mr. Hamilton believes that the producer who produces three to four cans of milk a day with a potential increase is ripe for the new method. Other producers are too small to invest in such a program. They, however, retain a good market for their product through the condensed milk processors.

Cattle Increase Certain
As the program grows, the dairy cattle population of the area is certain to increase. A dairymen finds that with the speed-up time for milking, he can accommodate about twice as many milking animals as when without the milking parlor.

Considering the fact that the Ohio Department of Health endorses the contention that milk does not deteriorate when stored under the conditions stipulated in Mr. Hamilton's program, and that the federal and state governmental agricultural extension services fully support the program as a common sense manner of improving matters, it seems only a matter of time until those heretofore reluctant to accept the method swing into line.

These have chiefly been health officers of communities which use large quantities of milk and which rely upon outlying areas for their source of supply. Obviously, the quality of milk must be controlled. Health officers have been reluctant to go along with new ideas, especially involving the principle of 48-hour storage, because there are so many 24-hour operators whose milk does not meet minimum standard.

Good 1954 Crop Of Vegetables Expected From 3,500 Acres Planted In Muck Land

Some 18 muck land farmers, most of them of Dutch stock with a high ethical sense of competition and marketing, have about 3,500 acres of rich peat-laden soil under cultivation west of Plymouth this spring. If prices hold up, and insect and disease invasions can be effectively controlled, production in 1954 should about equal that of 1953.

But the development that all of Ohio will be watching is the program made with the management of the new conservancy district, which is year old this spring. A specialist firm from Indiana, which has been engaged by the farmers themselves at a cost of $6,000, is presently conducting surveys on the land. It will guide the board of governors of the district in their decisions respecting water management during this and succeeding years.

The Ditch, as it is called, is a natural watercourse which over 55 years has been progressively widened and deepened to furnish water for the truck crops grown on the rich land. There is insufficient water for all the needs of the area, particularly if a dry spell should turn up in July. After long litigation, the Celeryville farmers succeeded in obtaining designation of an area bounded by the restaurant in New Haven-west end of the Lockwood farm - county line road. Burr Knaut's farm as a conservancy district. The board, which consists of John Stambaugh, Frank Wiers, and Ben Van Zoest, will consider the recommendations of the engineering firm. It will then remain for a board of assessors, which has not yet been appointed, to determine the amounts which each farmer will be required to pay to finance the development, which is anticipated to cost in the neighborhood of $250,000. Bonds will be sold to obtain ready funds, and payments by farmers will amortize the bonds.

Competent estimates place acreage planted in truck crops more or less as follows: celery, 700 acres; radishes, 525 acres; onions, 700 acres; potatoes, 1,050 acres; leaf and head lettuce, spinach, carrots, beets, and endive, 525 acres.

The first crop of celery and radishes is expected to be ready the first week in June. Plants have been started under patented paper to keep them warm and a good start is reported by most farmers. Rain which has hampered planting elsewhere in Huron and Richland counties does not seem to have held up seeding in the muck lands. Muck land generally can be worked sooner after a rain than loam or marl. Potatoes are being seeded this week, indicating that many producers do not consider that the ground is too wet to inhibit germination of the seed potatoes.

If the growing season should prove to be wet and humid, producers will be watching for insects and diseases. Thrips, a form of lice, affect onions. Celery is often stricken with a blight and leaf blight, a sort of fungus which attacks the plants when they are not growing so fast as they could or should grow. Nematodes sting the roots and cause galls on the roots. The root then can no longer feed the plant.

Last year was a bad one for potatoes, as leaf hoppers and beetles swept into the crop early. But the outlook for 1954 is not bad. Potatoes prices slipped badly in 1953. Whereas in 1952 they were averaging $3.00 a hundred pounds, they were only $1.80 in 1953. Onions were hurt also. A 50-pound sack sold for only 90 cents in 1953, as against $2.40 in 1952.

These factors have naturally caused growers to think about marketing in 1954. It is estimated on a national basis that potato plantings will run about 13 percent down from last season.

But nobody expects to suffer. For one thing, the growers in Celeryville seem as secure as a farmer can be. So far as can be ascertained, their farms are paid for. Their equipment is unmortgaged, and the majority of these thrifty farmers are raising their own stock, which is a healthy situation for the economy.

The growers in operation in the Celeryville area might well be taken from the Huron-Richland Lamb Pool committee began in Huron county early this week, John Wells, County Agricultural Agent, reports. All consignors to the Greenwch Lamb Pool from Huron County have been contacted regarding this service and dipping needs for this year indicated. Approximately 1,000 head of sheep will be dipped. Wells reports.

Lindano or benzene hexachloride has been giving the best results for ticks, lice, and scabies control, according to Wells. Lindane is being used by C. F. Williams, who will be dipping sheep in both Huron and Richland Counties.

Drenching service is not being offered this year, however, materials are available at the Greenwch Lamb Pool yards.

Additional requests for dipping should be directed to the Agricultural Extension Office, Court House, Norwalk, at once.

Marie Mumea Weds Shelby Man In Double Ring Ceremony Saturday

In a double ring ceremony in the Plymouth Presbyterian church Saturday afternoon, Miss Marie Mumea, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adam L. Mumea, of 127 Franklin Street, Plymouth, was united in marriage with Dean A. Moorman, son of Mrs. Anita Moorman of Route 1, Shelby. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Ralph Felix, pastor of the church.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attired in a strapless, waltz-length satin gown covered with white shirred at the neckline, with a tulle jacket with turndown collar and pointed sleeves. She wore a double finger tip veil and carried a white Bible with carnations and lilies of the valley.

She was attended by her sister, Alice Jean Mumea, who wore an aquamarine taffeta dress overlaid with white lace and net, a white net stole and cap. She carried a colonial style bouquet of pink carnations, white lilies and roses and wore a white pearl choker and earrings.

The church was attractively decorated in the spring motif with two beauty baskets placed behind the altar. Two candelabra of seven candles each lit the ceremony.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Donald Moorman, of the Shelby address. Ushers were Ronald L. Bendle, of Mills street; Gerald Dean Mumea, brother of the bride; and Charles Moorman, of Auburn avenue, Shelby.

The bride's mother was seated at the front of the church. She wore a navy blue and white checked taffeta with navy and white accessories, and her corsage was of white carnations. Mrs. Moorman's suit was navy blue, her accessories were pink, and her corsage was of pink carnations.

A reception in the church rooms followed the ceremony. The wedding cake, the first eaten at the room, was a four-tiered creation with a miniature bride and bridegroom with wedding bells at the top. Mrs. Eva Steele, of Elyria, aunt of the bride, officiated with the cutting after the first piece had been cut by the bride couple. She was assisted by Miss Rita Keith.

Mrs. David Sam, and Miss Jeanette Mumea poured at the buffet table. The young ladies who served the bridal table were Carol Jo Cunningham, Janet Miller and Patty Young.

Miss Faye Goldsmith presided at the bridal book.

The dining room was beautifully decorated with lilies and tulips, and the color scheme of pink and blue was used throughout the room and for the table decorations also.

Mrs. Charles Vandasdale was in charge of the gift table, and assisted by the ladies of the church.

The couple departed immediately after the reception for a short honeymoon trip. For traveling the bride wore a light aquamarine sleeveless dress with V-neck and short sleeved taffeta jacket. Upon their return, the couple will live at 212 West Main Street, Shelby.

Mr. Moorman was graduated from Shelby high school with the class of 1948. He is employed at Carton Service. His wife, a graduate of Plymouth high school in 1952, is employed at Wilkins Air Force Depot, Shelby.

ing since the end of the war, the theory is a good one. However, in small towns where there has not been any great housing development, and houses for the most part represent building during the two wars, when one bath was common, having one bath only is not a fair integer of the ability of a householder to pay for the sewage system. It is argued, since many householders simply have not gotten around to installing the other.

There is pretty general agreement that if a special fee system is introduced, the interpretation of householder should read "he who occupies a house, whether lessor or lessee." Thus the whole charges do not fall upon the owner who rents for income.

Of course, the fact that insurance companies, who have large investment funds, may become actively interested in financing the system does not preclude that investment bond houses are shovled aside. Quite on the contrary. Investment houses are still vigorously seeking good investments, and are putting more private investors the argument that income from municipal improvement bonds is not subject to taxes.

The Ohio State Board of Health has put a number of communities among them Plymouth, in the position of having to do something about sewage disposal, but the communities are not submitting to pressure very readily. On the other hand, the Board of Health contends that no pressure is intended, that its actions in issuing temporary permits to discharge raw sewage into natural streams were wholly in the interest of good health. The communities respond that the health of the village checker is almost as important as the health of the people, and so long as there is no immediate danger of the outbreak of disease, the villages and towns will go ahead slowly, investigating every angle of the problem, shopping here and there for the best job at the cheapest price, and easing the burden on the small town taxpayer.

Last spring, the commissioners and election board officials drove to Norwalk and Sandusky to look over the automatic machines. It was in Huron county they checked the Automatic machines. In Erie county they inspected Shoups.

Nothing was decided at that time because there was not enough money on hand to take positive action. But everyone was satisfied with one thing: automatic voting machines were all that anyone ever claimed they were and would be bought in Richland county.

An abortive attempt to get voting machines was made back in 1948. It failed, however, to get the necessary support from the commissioners at that time and died.

Do You Want a Scout Program? Come Out Friday

The Johnny Applesed Area Council of the Boy Scouts of America conducted a recent school survey to determine the number of boys of scouting ages who wished to have fun and adventure of a Scouting Program in Shiloh.

The parents of these boys are invited to attend a short discussion concerning how we can have a Scouting Program for our boys. This meeting will be held on Friday, May 7, 1954 at 8:00 p. m. in the Shiloh School building. The boys are not to attend, only the father or mother. Mr. Morris Lucas, representative of the Johnny Applesed Council Area will be present to present the results of the survey and to aid in the development of such a program.

Scouting is a Character Building, Leadership Training, and Citizenship Practicing program. It will be valuable to our boys and to our community to have Scouting.

IT'S A DOG'S LIFE!

If there is a dog in Plymouth with more license tags than our office bound, "Cookie," let him (or her) step forward. Thanks to the Huron county auditor and the payment of $2.00, "Cookie" now boasts a shiny brass tag around his neck with two holes in it indicating he is safe from the pound officer until January 20, 1955.

The tag is mounted with the others hanging on his collar, and if readers wish to see his collection, "Cookie" will be glad to oblige if they will call at the office.
