

Holes Look Back On 50 Years' Marriage

"The trouble with marriages today" the man was saying, "is that people don't know who they're marrying."

Speaking from 50 years of experience, he ought to know what he's talking about. What's more, he courted better than four years. And after discussing the matter with his partner in marriage over half a century, Charles Hole, 74-year-old retired farmer who lives just over the village line in Route 61, adds one more point:

"If you get married for another reason than just to get married." That reason, he makes clear, was love. Sunday, May and Charley Hole will observe their 50th wedding anniversary with an open house arranged by their daughters, Mrs. Fred Port and Mrs. Reed White.

The Holes were married by the Rev. William Coby, at his home, residence, now the home of E.W. Coy in New Haven, and after the ceremony she put on a hat as big as the Sunday school plates and wore a black skirt and they took the buggy to the train for St. Louis, where they visited the World Fair of 1904. It was there they became acquainted with two famous nuisances, one of which has grown while the other diminished.

The one that diminished was a song: "Meet Me in Saint Looney, Looney, Meet Me at the Fair." The rest of it went:

"Don't tell me the lights are shining
Anywhere but there.
I will be your tootsie tootsie
We will dance the hootchy-kootchy."

Meet me in Saint Looney, Looney, Meet me at the Fair."

The St. Louis Fair that year was famous for the exhibition of the new Mazda electric light bulb, a new song, and that other nuisance, the automobile.

May and Charley Hole say their first automobile that trip. They've seen a good many of them since, and their attitude hasn't changed much. "They've made it a lot easier for some of us, and a lot harder for some others," Mr. Hole says.

The automobile wasn't designed for entertainment, the Holes recall, at least in those days. Plymouth had precious little entertainment that attracted large gatherings, they remember, but one of them was an attempt to blow the ceiling out of the village council. Down in North street the barn now adjacent to Don Kinsey's garden was equipped with roller skating rinks, but only when it was ready to be opened.

Fearing Punishment, Boy Takes Own Life

Fear of punishment by his step-father, because he went swimming without permission apparently killed young Daniel W. Jackson, 13-year-old North Fairfield boy, to take his own life with a .32 calibre pistol, according to Huron County Coroner Charles Edel.

Young Daniel was dead upon arrival at Willard Municipal hospital after a break in the dash in his step-father's car from his home above the Valley Inn in North Fairfield.

His step-father, Jack Schaeble, and his mother, Mrs. Cora Reid, heard a shot from the apartment above the restaurant, and when the former investigated, he found the boy lying on a sofa. Funeral services for the lad, who is survived by a sister, Yvonne, in addition to his parents, were conducted Monday by the Rev. James McGraw, pastor of the North Fairfield Methodist church. Burial was in North Fairfield cemetery.

ed," it was condemned as unsafe. The barn is still being built all these years, giving rise to the suspicion that the objection was less to the stability of the building than to the desirability of having a skating rink.

The Holes went to farming in the New Haven road, just two farms north of the tract bounded where Charles Hole, with the help of his grandson and his son-in-law, his own house a few years ago. And this while he was working full-time hours a day at Fate-Root-Health Co., where he was night watchman. Prior to that time, the Holes lived at 139 Sandusky street.

After nearly 35 years on the farm, Mrs. Hole's health failed somewhat, so much so she couldn't do the work of a farm wife any more, and they moved to town. But farm life still has its satisfactions, and the Holes keep their "fingers green" with a bit of gardening and some pumping of the brown-and-white spotted mare belonging to the Port children.

Charley never took much of an interest in politics, but he kept up on farm problems. For the farmer's present predicament, Mr. Hole has little sympathy. "The farmers brought it on themselves. They listened to the fellows who preached government control and got drawn in, and now they can't get it out."

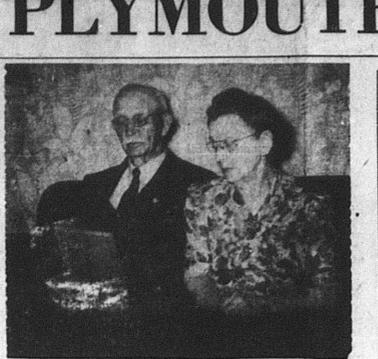

"What, then, would he do about it? That's easy - let supply and demand control the farm situation. When that happens, the farmer will do what's necessary."

Every man who's been married 50 years has some stories to tell about the embarrassing things he did when he was young, and Charles Hole is no exception. "Once after I'd seen May until about two o'clock in the morning, I was driving home in the buggy and I fell asleep. Good thing the horse knew the way home, what's more, I had another fellow with me, and he fell asleep, too," says Charley Hole, chuckling.

The Holes have seven children, and they'll all be there Sunday to help celebrate. There are four girls, Lena, who never married, and Emma, now Mrs. Fred Port, and two boys, Cleveland Frazee of Tiro, and Lucille, now Mrs. Reed White, and three boys, Clarence of Elyria, Melvin of New Haven and Leroy of Mansfield.

There are 13 grandchildren, but no great-grandchildren as yet. Churches go along their lives, the Holes are members of the North Fairfield Methodist church and Mr. Hole is janitor of the church.

First Polio Fatality Recorded in Area As Signs Girl Dies

The first polio fatality of 1954 in this area occurred Thursday with the death of Barbara Joan Signs, 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Signs, of 14 East Emerald street, Willard, at Cleveland City hospital.

At the same time, two more polio cases had been detected in Richland county, one of them a young girl who had participated in the Salk polio vaccine program. It is not known whether the child received the vaccine or the saline control inoculation.

She is Barbara Berry, 6. Mansfield girl who was hospitalized for further treatment.

The Signs child was stricken after a visit to Lake Erie, together with her younger sister, Jane, who was similarly afflicted. Jane is on the critical list in the same hospital.

The family returned to Willard for treatment by its physician, and after two days, the children were removed by ambulance to Cleveland. En route, the elder child suffocated, and a stop was made at Elyria for an ambulance equipped with oxygen to assist in breathing made difficult by throat paralysis.

Barbara died 24 hours after her disease was suspected to be polio of the bulbar type. Her sister, whose polio is not of the bulbar type, remains in critical condition.

Note: Webster's Collegiate dictionary describes bulbar as "referring to the medulla oblongata." The medulla oblongata is the lowest or posterior part of the brain, tapering off into the spinal cord.

A regular mass was sung in St. Francis Xavier church, Willard, Saturday at 9 a.m. and interment in St. Joseph's cemetery followed. The child would have been in the seventh grade in Willard public schools in September. She was a member of the St. Francis Xavier church and of the Girl Scouts of Willard.

Neither Barbara nor Jane participated in the polio inoculation series conducted during May and June for the reason that Huron county was not participating in the program. They were the second and third Huron county cases this year. The first, which was confirmed earlier last week, was a 10-year-old girl at Norwalk.

Richard county has two polio cases so far in 1954. One of them is a 30-year-old husband and father in Shelby, Alva Yarmen. The other is a Belleville child.

Opal Bloomfield, 28, Newman hotel, Mansfield. The injured are: Clay Baker, 22, Shiloh route 1, driver of the car.

Geraldine Tackett, Phoenix hotel, Mansfield. Mildred Matlose, 34, Newman hotel, Mansfield.

Baker, according to state highway patrolmen, is in Shelby Memorial hospital with a possible fracture of the skull and lacerations of the face. The Tackett woman has multiple lacerations and a possible leg fracture.

The accident occurred in the Springfield-Plymouth road 2.8 miles north of State Route 396. Time of the accident was 1 a.m.

Baldwin leaves his wife, Mable Sipes Baldwin, and four children, David, Ellen, Sue and Larry, all of school age. In addition, there are four sisters and five brothers. Three of the sisters and four of the brothers live in Mt. Gilead.

Funeral services were held Monday from the Volk Funeral home at Galion. Burial was in the Iberia cemetery.

Train Kills Farmer At Base Line Road Crossing of 'Big Four'

A 59-year-old Shiloh farmer was ground to death beneath the wheels of a New York Central railroad freight train at the grade crossing of Base Line road north of Shiloh, yesterday.

He was Gal Forsythe, brother of Arthur Forsythe of Greenwich and Clarence Forsythe of Shiloh, an employee on the farm of Marion Seaman, where he was a stock hand.

Eewitnesses said Forsythe drove a light pick-up truck belonging to the Seamans directly onto the tracks from an adjoining field and did not notice the approach of the freight, whose engineer told police he sounded his whistle frantically to warn the driver. The truck was completely demolished.

The accident occurred near the residence of Gal Seaman, and Mrs. Tanager was a witness.

Mr. Forsythe was a bachelor who lived in separate quarters on the Seaman farm. In addition to the two brothers listed, there are a sister, Mrs. Gladys McCarthy, living in Florida, and two other brothers, Harry of Chicago, Ill., and Samuel, living in North Carolina.

The dead man would have been 60 years old next February.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete. The remains are at the McQuate Funeral home, Shiloh. Plymouth police investigated and the McQuate ambulance, Plymouth, responded to the call.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Fox of Columbus, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. James Fox of Cleveland, visited Mr. and Mrs. Charles Whatman Sunday. Mrs. Whatman is the aunt of the Messers. Fox.

Anybody Lose Anything?

"Things in this business run in streaks," Police Chief Robert Hoyer said some time ago. He was right, he was indicated by a look at the police blotter.

He might also have said that they run in unique incidents, too. In addition to the suspicious person apprehended on the AC & Y tracks a week ago and who was committed to the state insane hospital at Tiffin Friday, Chief Meiser is on the trail of a thief.

Dr. Kinsey might have some ideas as to the kind of thief it was. The missing articles are a brassiere and three pairs of panties, taken from a clothes line in Mulberry street. The identity of the loser is not revealed.

$300 Profit for Band Listed from Festival

Some $300 was the profit of the annual Plymouth High school band festival on the high school lawn Thursday night, according to Mrs. M. S. Snyder, secretary of the Band Mothers club which sponsored the affair.

The money will be used to purchase new uniforms and other supplies for the unit, which is growing steadily.

The Band Mothers wish to heartily thank those who helped with the festival, including the Roman Catholic parish, which loaned the tables; Schneider Lumber Co. for lumber for seats; Mr. Sproules for a new saw; and the installation of the electric line for lighting; Mr. Fox, the auctioneer, and all others who assisted in any way. "Mrs. Snyder said yesterday.

Donations of food who have forgotten their pans or dishes may retrieve them from the home economics room in the high school, where they were stored.

Although inclement weather had prevailed during most of the morning, the sun shone as the auction commenced at 3:30 p.m. and good weather thereafter materially contributed to the success of the venture. Mrs. Snyder said.

Ambulance Man Finds Ring Wakens Him, But Good!

There is something about the telephone bell at midnight that wakes him up all the way. As, for example, a recent Saturday night.

"There's been an accident on 224, by the railroad crossing at call to Haven! Hurry!" the voice cracked through the wire.

R. Earl McQuate, operator of Plymouth's only emergency ambulance service (in addition, he is a licensed undertaker and funeral director and a furniture merchant), was already into his clothes and ready to run downstairs to wheel his big Packard ambulance out of Railroad street and north on Route 61 to the scene.

The McQuate ambulance awaits a call in front of Mr. McQuate's place of business.

When he got there, as on hundreds of similar occasions previously, he found the need again for a strong stomach and quick hands. In less than time it takes to tell about it, he had his patient laid on the stretcher and with the big red flashes spinning atop the cab, he was off to Willard.

Young Jack McQuate and his father put the portable stretcher into the ambulance.

That was but one example of the kind of speedy ambulance service available at the cost of a telephone call to Plymouth residents and others living in the area.

The ambulance is available both for emergency calls and for routine services, such as the fetching of a bedridden patient from hospital to his home or vice versa. The fee is small by comparison with the value delivered.

Handsome Earl McQuate comes by the profession naturally. His father, Ivan McQuate, is a veteran funeral director in Shiloh. The younger McQuate, who became a licensed embalmer in 1937, was graduated from an embalming school in Cleveland, does embalming services for his father, but otherwise the two businesses are separate. But he learned what he knows from his Dad, and he looks to him from time to time for the kind of advice an older head can give.

"One thing you can say about this business, it ties a man to the telephone," Mr. McQuate says with a smile. "Everytime I go across the street for a cup of coffee, I have to leave word where I'm to be found."

That telephone can be both a blessing and a curse. One week recently, Mr. McQuate counted 57 calls on his private line. Of course, some of them related to the furniture business, but more than half of them had to do with saving the living or burying the dead.

The ambulance is always in readiness in the spacious garage at the rear of the McQuate home. The door is kept open and the keys are always there. On some runs, Mr. McQuate is accompanied by his 16-year-old son, Jack, a student in Plymouth High school.

Over the years, Mr. McQuate remembers a great many calls, some of them humorous, more of them pathetic. Human misery is seldom funny, he observes. As for accidents, the school bus accident at Sandusky a few years back, when he went with Dr. C. O. Butler of Shiloh he was the first aid man on the scene. When the wire services and the nearby newspapers got to setting it down on paper, there were ambulances from half a dozen towns, but nary a word of Mr. McQuate's.

"The ambulance doesn't mean anything to me," Mr. McQuate says. "What counts is getting them to the hospital."

The McQuate funeral home, which he operates as a principal line of endeavor, is a part of his business at 35 Railroad street. The business is the successor of the old Miller funeral home, later Miller & McQuate. The funeral home part of the residence is the south wing, where there is a chapel and a laboratory, where remains are prepared for public view and interment.

Like any other around-the-clock business, it takes more than one hand to operate this one. Mr. McQuate's wife, to whom he has been married 17 years this spring, is his faithful assistant. She is the former Janice Brumbach, of Cleveland. Son Jack and even the younger Douglas, aged 12, will on occasion take a phone call. Part-time help is called in as needs require. Bob Young West High street, and Robert Fogelson Trux street, are the usual assistants.

In one year, the ambulance covers 8,000 miles. It doubles as a hearse, of course, and when it does so, the sedate grandeur of its sleek black body is more important than the 165 horses pent up under the hood. When it's off on a rescue mission, the blinker light is installed on top, and the bits are taken from the mouths of those horses.

Mr. McQuate remembers, also, some of the more pleasant missions upon which he has been called. Even though it was marooned two and a half hours in a snow drift one winter, the trip was a happy one, for a baby arrived in the ambulance.

But another time, when the snow was deep, the McQuates had to hold three dead in their laboratory until the snow let up so the burial could be carried out.

The younger McQuate differs from his veteran father in at least one respect: the number of babies born in the ambulance. In nearly four decades of answering emergency calls, Ivan McQuate has been midwife only once. Earl has done the job eight or nine times, and became so proficient at it that his colleagues at Shelby Memorial hospital and Willard Municipal hospital got up midwifery certificates attesting to his skill.

Call him "Doc" if you like, in fact call him almost anything except late for meals, but call 433 if you need an ambulance in a hurry.

Ed Is Ready for Anything

Ed Phillips, veteran Plymouth electrician, is going to the Phillips family reunion at Aukentown Saturday ready for whatever may happen to him.

For in years gone by, he never attended the big gathering of his cousins and uncles and aunts without something momentous happening to him.

Take 1898, for example. Ed was a young blade headed up for a big fling. He spotted a young woman from Butler who was playing the organ for the quarter which entertained the Phillipses. There seemed to be no one to introduce them formally, but Ed ascertained her name and introduced himself.

He went home that night a different man. For Ed Phillips had fallen in love.

Her name was Jessie Troxler, and she was a winsome girl in her teens. He pursued his suit across Richland county, and in two years he induced her to marry him.

Through thick and thin, they remained together for over 50 years, until Jessie's death in 1950 parted them.

This year, it's unlikely that the attendance of Phillips will amount to the 1,000 who were there in 1898. But Ed Phillips will be ready for whatever happens. The last time, it was good. "Couldn't be anything but good Saturday," says Ed, hopefully.

Picnic Is Tonight For Bethany Class

Safety Begins at Home

Although an eyewitness said he didn't look, the man who was killed near here yesterday might still be alive if the crossing were equipped with a sound-and-light warning device. The near death last week of a man who didn't see the train crossing in the Hazel Brush road at an early hour of the morning is another instance that reminds that it could happen here!

At the same time, the absence of a traffic light at Routes 224 and 13, less than 15 miles from here has in part caused the death of two persons within the past two weeks. That could happen here, too. It might be one of our kids.

What can we do about it? The first step for the citizen is to make his desires known to the proper authorities. In the case of the unlighted railroad crossings, it is the railroad. In the case of the traffic lights, it is the village council.

How can he do it? First, by petitioning the proper authorities, together with other citizens who think as he does. Second, by maintaining pressure upon those authorities to get something done.

As a public service, The Advertiser has called attention to these hazards because it believes the public ought to be protected. Additionally, the publisher has children of his own, and how can he expect to dandle grandchildren on his knee unless he sees to it he and his children live long enough to have grandchildren? This is the reason why we believe very prompt steps ought to be taken to rectify the situation.

If there are any adult citizens who think as we do, we invite them to call commencing tomorrow to sign a properly constituted petition to the B&O road requesting that sound-and-light warning devices be installed at the High and Walnut street crossings. As regards the matter of traffic lights at High and North streets, a matter that we believe should be treated separately, there'll be more on that next week — in both news and editorial columns. Our opinion has not changed. We think traffic lights should be installed, right now. And we urge our readers to join with us in a petition to the B & O railroad requesting that sound-and-light warning devices be installed.

It's a Matter of Emphasis

A Cleveland high school principal, Mr. Wayne Smith, who heads South High school in that city, has asked the American Legion's state meeting to demand that the teaching of American and Ohio history be made compulsory in the public schools.

Mr. Smith also says he would insist on the compulsory teaching of mathematics, English, reading, spelling, the natural science, safety and fire prevention, the fine arts, and health and physical education.

Now there is a program that any right-thinking citizen should endorse, especially if it be emphasized that English, reading, spelling and simple mathematics are to be given precedence and importance over such subjects as the driving of an automobile, the sawing of a miter, the technique of the T-formation and such.

We note with some regret that some of our business colleagues are complaining about poor command of the English language and inability to add, subtract, multiply and divide among recent high school graduates. It is a bad reflection on our state school system if our graduates cannot speak and write their native tongue adequately, or perform simple arithmetical tasks. We do not doubt these same graduates who are deficient in the fundamentals can kick a football, or saw a board, or drive a car satisfactorily.

It is a matter of emphasis. Some of the fault is with the teacher, but not much of it. Some of it lies in the home. But the real fault is in a system which allows a child to progress with less than satisfactory knowledge of the fundamentals. Let's put a stop to it.

to the Editor:-

To the Editor:
I wish to extend my sympathy to Mr. Hershier in regard to his only alley, for a similar condition exists on Walnut street, only it is stone dust. Over a year ago Huron county top-dressed Park avenue and Walnut street. The tar on Walnut street would not exceed 1/16 of an inch in thickness and this was covered with about two inches of loose stone. Since that time it has been impossible to have the windows open on the south side of the house because of stone dust. Nature has now taken care of the situation to some extent as the hard rains have washed some of the stone from the road and piled it up along the curb. So if you still have your dust, George, here's hoping you won't have to wait two years for oil.

Yours very truly,
Otto Kinsey

Superstitious? Not Ed!

Tomorrow is Friday the 13th. Owners of black cats and loose mirrors had better beware, for the superstitious will be particularly hard on them tomorrow. Edward Ramsey, owner of Plymouth Drive-In theatre, scoffs at superstition. He will show the original and uncut version of Frankenstein, starring Boris Karloff, Friday night, in addition to other features.

It's the only 13th during 1954 that falls on Friday. Police Chief Robert Meiser scoffs at superstition also. He expects to be at home watching the Indians play Detroit.

If you've got mud in your heart, kindly do not commit same during or after the show Friday night - it'll disturb the theatregoers.

Chickens Gone!

Richland county police are looking for the footpad who fleeced eight chickens from a coop belonging to Howard S. Lauer at Ganges. The birds disappeared Aug. 4. Mr. Lauer lost 11 other chickens in the same manner during July.

Around the Square

—By Phineas Whittleseed—

A good time was had by all but Phil, even though it drizzled all the time at Cleveland. Our Yank and taken, 3 to 2, but we reversed the tables the next day. Wait'll the end of September, and Casey nominates Ford for the first game at the Polo Grounds.

Too bad the auction at the band festival attracted so few folks. Rich Fox, the auctioneer, said it was hard to push off goods on the very people who'd donated the stuff. And a gold star to Harris' Postum and Bill Root for boosting the price of the lovely cake up to $5.10, with Mr. P beating Mr. R for the color-laden wonder. The crowd was bigger than last year, we're told, and the music finer. So hats off to the band, its director, and the mothers who made the thing tick.

A big thank you to Bill Moore for his helpfulness while we were away Thursday. Memo to all who're interested: we've got Ohio plates now, which means we belong.

There's a free subscription to The Advertiser for the person who submits the oddest first or middle name of a Plymouth resident. Ours don't count, none of the four. Or Cookie's, either.

Speaking of animals, that cat of ours is as bad as the mutt. She followed the Boss into town Thursday night and had to be carried there.

Editor Earl Frye at Willard is looking for evidence of a George Brainerd. Seems Look magazine printed an item allegedly taken from his paper, referring to a man of that name in a humorous yarn. "George Brainerd had charge of the entertainment during the past year. His bit-of-provoking antics were always the life of the party and he will be greatly missed," the piece is said to have said. Mr. Frye has called on all his staff to recollect if that name ever appeared in his paper, with any negative result. Anybody know a George Brainerd? Mr. Frye quite justifiably doesn't like to own up to an error he didn't make. The Lord knows, we make enough real ones in this business to make life harrowing enough without making imaginary ones.

That item last week about Our Bob shooting starlings, or rather being unable to do so because they'd flown the coop, is more important that you think. Take some care to do it right. In Bellevue, one James E. Welch took a shotgun into his own hands and blasted some chattering birds, and knocked out the village power for three hours. Cost him $25.

Doc Faust brought home to us Thursday that even the smallest item gets eye. Seems a little headline caught the good Doc's eye. He kicked it too. Had to do with a divorce, and the head read "Soandso's Piffit" "Best way to say it I ever heard," says the Doc.

Thanks, also, to C. O. Cramer, Link Sprowles, Mrs. Gleason and Bob Meiser for their yeoman work Thursday afternoon, when the water gave way. We were at the county seat and the water began to flow. Lady at our house telephoned all over the place, and the folks mentioned complained to stop the water, and fix it later.

A satisfied reader, Martin Kruger, 57 Plymouth street, calls our attention to the following item reprinted from the Detroit Daily News in his church bulletin which is certainly worth passing on:

A PRAYER SELDOM HEARD
"Eternal God, as I sit here by the fire this lovely Sunday morning, surrounded by the Sunday paper and half listening to one of the big preachers over the radio it has just come to me that I have lived to Thee and to myself."

I said I did not feel well enough to go to church. That was not true. I would have gone to the office had it been Monday morning. I would have bowled had it been Wednesday evening. I would have been able to go to the Drive-in theatre if it had been Friday night.

But it is Sunday morning, and Sunday illness covers a multitude of sins. I have lived to Thee, O God, and myself. I was not ill - I am lazy and indifferent.

A belated Happy Birthday to the gentle Sam Fenner, whose service on the cemetery board gets small mention but is surely a good deal.

Our kids want to know if Rich Myers is taking lessons to understudy Gene Aunty. Dunno, kids, but when he gets that four and a half-gallon lid on, and those cow boots, he sure looks it.

Hope Mme. McQuate is convalescing faster at Shelby Memorial hospital. We miss you at coffee hour, ma'am.

Memo to E. M., J. C., and W. J.: why not?

Seeing Oscar Gowitska with a bag of popcorn makes us wonder if that tummy is all fish, as Os claims it is.

We got a nice smile from Mrs. Sheesley at the festival the other eve. Thanks, Mrs. S. First one we had all day.

J. Benjamin Smith, the genial councilman, pointed out in the car Wednesday that we had two Petes in it, and neither one was legitimate. The other guy's name is Laurence, but who knows him by that?

Memo to the fellow that lives next to the alley and has a radio in a beer bottle: Belated thanks for your kindness, chum, and those rides home when it was so hot. Did you know you were 'til your brothers put us wise Wednesday night. Bring your cat up some time.

The problems of police service in the village are many, and keeping somebody on the job for what we can afford to pay him is a hard task. Which makes us all the more pleased to speak up and be counted when good police work is noted. As, for instance, the suspicious character of Bob Cook, with a riot gun on the ACEY's tracks. Locked him up for a day while he checked on the bird, and found he was a bad 'un, the kind that could easily commit a violent crime. Good work, Robt, keep it up.

There're some who don't like politics, or mention it in the press. They tend to forget that politicians spend our money. The more light we shed on 'em, the less they tend to spend.

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Edward Vander Bilt who passed away four years ago, August 12, 1950. Today recalls sad memories Of a loved one called home to rest. And we're thinking of him today. As the ones who loved him best, God give us strength our loss to bear. And courage to face the blow. But what it meant to lose him, Only we shall ever know. Always remembered by Parents, Sisters, Brothers.

Mrs. Brown Attends 8 of 40 Convention Mrs. Stacy Brown, 79 North Street, was a delegate to the state convention of Ohio salons of the Huit Chevaux et Quatre Hommes organization at Cincinnati recently, at which the Richland County Salon No. 450 took high honors.

The Richland County Salon was awarded the Betty trophy for the most outstanding salon in Ohio in competition with other salons. It was the third time the trophy has been awarded to the Richland County Salon since it was started in 1951. The Richland County Salon also took the Etta McDonald trophy for the second straight year for presenting the best prepared history of the organization. The Salon also won a merit citation for completing all work activities outlined for it by the state headquarters.

Membership in the Salon is now 41 women. The organization takes its name from the custom of the AEP in France in World War I to load 40 men and eight horses into one railroad car. It made for fellowship among the men and among the horses and between the two.

The organization's project now is prevention and control of juvenile tuberculosis. Motto of the group is "Fun, Fellowship and Service".

Members are drawn from American Legion auxiliaries who have performed three years of outstanding work with their posts.
