Sewer Financing To Be Postponed

Proposed Irrigation Lake Scale: One Inch equals One Mile

Lake West of Village Is 'Likely'

Three appraisers appointed by Huron County Common Pleas Judge Robert Vetter will commence work in the Celeryville marsh area probably before snowfall as the final step in establishment of an 80-acre irrigation lake. Engineers engaged by the Celeryville Conservancy district board have been working during the summer on a survey of the region for the purpose of testing the technical feasibility of a lake that would furnish water to the Celeryville farms during the dry season. Their investigations have developed two likely sites:

1. The south side of Base Line road between State Route 598 and New Pittsburgh, which would give a fixed acreage of 80 and an overflow acreage of 412.
2. The area in Cranberry township, Crawford county, generally 3,950 yards southwest of the first site, which would give a permanent or fixed acreage of nearly 425 acres in a lake stretching to within 2,000 yards of Tiro.

Until the surveys by Engineer David Harker are complete, the board - John F. Stambaugh, Frank Wiers and Ben Van Zoest - will be unable to determine which plan is more satisfactory. But the signs are that the first scheme will win out, because it affords the opportunity of flood control with the overflow area of 330 acres, because transporting the water would be less difficult, and because costs would probably be less.

- Adoption of the plan would require:
1. Acquisition of title or flood rights to land between the intersection of Base Line road and Routes 598 and New Pittsburgh.
  2. Records in Richland county show that Burr Knabs owns 93.69 acres, and A. Zacharias 23 and 29 acres.
  3. Throwing up of a two-mile-long dirt revetment to dam up the water. The revetment would generally parallel Base Line road.
  4. Installation of water flow control.

Car Overturns, Hurts Two Willard Men

Two Willard men were seriously injured last night when their 1952 Ford sedan overturned in Route 174 west of New Pittsburgh and overturned in a cornfield. They were Larry Moore and James Whatman, both living at 207 Central avenue, Willard, who were proceeding at what eyewitnesses report to have been an excessively high rate of speed in an easterly direction about 200 yards west of the intersection with Route 298. The vehicle crossed the bridge over the culvert and apparently failed to regain the road. The sedan was completely wrecked.

The car bore California license tags and calling cards strewn about the wreckage indicated that Moore may have been a private investigator. The McQuate ambulance carried the injured to Willard Municipal hospital, where at present time their injuries were not completely diagnosed. Plymouth and Willard police investigated pending the arrival of Crawford county sheriff's de-

Such sewer bonds as may need to be sold to finance the proposed sewage disposal system will be offered after election, the village council decided early yesterday.

After discussing with representatives of two bonding houses the details of a financing program, and receiving two bona fide offers to buy bonds, the council voted unanimously to suspend the question of selling bonds until after the voters have decided.

The best offer received Tuesday night was for 3 1/2 per cent bonds to run 40 years, commencing three years after date of issue, with an option to redeem after 10 years, at a net interest of 4.05 per cent. The bonding house agreed to:

1. Prepare the necessary groundwork with Alden E. Starnes & Associates Ltd., of Columbus.
2. Come up with a workable scheme, using as many special assessment bonds as possible, by Oct. 5.
3. Prepare a brochure for circulation among all registered voters of the village by Oct. 12.

After all legal fees and forego all charges if the issue is defeated. The council was reluctant to close with an offer which seemed high. It said that it did not consider that committing itself to bonds at a pre-fixed figure before the exact cost of the program is known is the wiser course.

After it had summoned the two bidders and revealed its decision, a question from the floor put the question in a different light. One of the criteria used to establish a figure such as you have offered for Plymouth bonds.

"Frankly," he replied, "we consider the length of term of the bonds and the type of bonds, and then we consider the credit rating of the village."

Gusta Ray, 65, Dies After Stroke Here

Five days after he was stricken while at work in the Plymouth street department, 65-year-old Gusta Ray died at Shelby Memorial hospital Sunday at 8:30 p. m. He never regained consciousness.

Mr. Ray was born at Moonville in the Plymouth-Greenwich area for a number of years while he engaged in farming. Seven years ago he moved to Plymouth where he lived at 127 Trux street.

He was married to the former Ruth Ann Greenleaf, Feb. 1, 1914, in the parsonage of the Disciple church, North Fairfield, by the Rev. J. A. Duffly. Mrs. Ray had three children, a daughter, Harriet, at home, and three sons, Lloyd, Urbana, III, John, of the Trux street address, and Donald, 27 Trux street. There are three grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Thomas M. Sheesley, pastor of the Methodist church, yesterday at the McQuate Funeral home, with interment in Greenlawn cemetery.

Bearers were Charles W. Veil, Harold Ross, William Moore and Lincoln Sprowles all of Plymouth, Ernest Atyeo, New Haven, and Dale Lamoreaux, Greenwich.

Pilgrims Drop Opener, 32 to 0

Outweighed and outmanned, Plymouth High school's gridderes were also outbarbed offensively at Brunswick Saturday and they lost their season's opener, 32 to 0. The defeat was an expensive one, as the team's star backfield player was a bear on defense, was removed from the game with a incomplete fracture of a neck vertebra and will be forced to the sidelines for the rest of the season. He was released from a Medina hospital Tuesday and expected to return to Plymouth on an outpatient basis. Port's injured center, he is well and going about his duties with the junior class.

This Port will shift from his spot at quarterback to the tailback post for Saturday's contest with Maumee Valley Country Day school, Coach Kreuzfeld said last night. Jim Hens will move to Port's post, and the remainder of the backfield will have Tom Marvin at wingback and John Fetters at full.

The line showed up fairly well in Saturday's defeat at Brunswick, particularly on defense, Coach Kreuzfeld feels, but was outcharged on offense. Plymouth will depend largely on Coach Kreuzfeld indicates, on how well the line charges offensively, because Maumee Valley's forwards are bigger and more experienced.

If the Pilgrims go as well on defense - and they were, frankly, a surprise to their coach against Buckeye local, the prospects of a first victory of the season seem good. Plymouth lost two possible touchdowns last week because of bungled punts and receivers, and the punting and passing game was given a brushing up this week.

In reward for faithful performance on the Public Square grounds this summer, Plymouth High school band will be entertained today at 7:30 p. m. by a committee of merchants. Sound by the Ohio State University band, the London Philharmonic orchestra and the famous Clark Brass Sextet will be shown at the old Plymouth theatre. Cider and doughnuts will follow.

Bandmaster Robert Dubbert announces that all members will be released at 9 p. m. in deference to the fact that Friday is a full school day.

Tower Remodelling Begun by Lutherans

First step in a rebuilding program, the restoration of the Evangelical Lutheran church's steeple tower commenced this week as builders started work that will put it back to what it was when it was built in 1886.

The church council announced that Walter Weitman, New Washington building engineer, has been awarded a contract to effect the restoration. It was not an easy task to prepare the drawings. Accurate plans of the steeple could not be found. Finally, a yellowed postal card illustrating the church steeple was located, and from a photographic enlargement the engineer was able to prepare a suitable drawing of its final appearance.

The funds to pay for the work derive in part, the council announced, from a bequest of $1,000 of the late Mrs. Cornelia Johns. When the council decided

Last Rites Held For Darlene Reed

Private funeral services were held yesterday at 5 p. m. for infant Darlene Reed, stillborn daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Denver Reed, 212 Plymouth street, who was born yesterday morning at Willard Memorial hospital.

Interment was in Greenlawn cemetery. The child is survived by her parents and three brothers and sisters.

300 Hear Cashman Call School Addition 'Credit to Plymouth'

More than 300 persons attended the dedication ceremony in the new elementary school Sunday and heard J. Harold Cashman, president of the Board of Education, pronounce the building a "credit to Plymouth."

He said that construction of public buildings affords a "worthy source of justifiable pride" and the new school is in keener with this sentiment. Mr. Cashman introduced the members of the present board - John Hebling, Judson Morrison, David Cook, and Haldon Chapman - and those of the board of 1952 who launched the bond issue which made the addition possible. These included Paul Stoodt, who was present, and John F. Root, who was not.

James Crawford, representing the architectural firm which designed the building, introduced contractors who carried out the plans. Superintendent M. J. Con brought out briefly the economic into which the board has been able to complete the building and pointed out needs which the board hopes, in time, to fill.

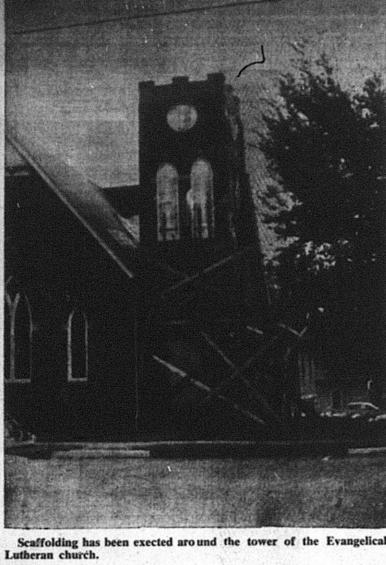

Wayne Spivey, principal of the addition, complimented the program with praise for his teaching staff. Mrs. Cornelia Vanderbilt Whitney, of Old Westbury, L. I., N. Y., introduced Mrs. Antonia at the opening of the program and "Bless This House" at the close. She was accompanied by Mrs. E. M. Gribble. The Rev. Thomas M. Sheesley, pastor of the Methodist church, offered the invocation and benediction.

The audience then dispersed for a tour of the building. Punch and pastries were served.

Memorandum to General Motors Corp. and Henry Ford II: why can't we get together, like our Ford, Plymouth, and Chevrolet?

At the Library—

"The Gallians," by Frank Slaughter. Mary Magdalene is one of the most intriguing women in all the pages of the Bible; beautiful, provocative, condemned by society but not by God, who gave her a second chance. Now is the time to read this novel, based on fact, while it is being made into a movie. Slaughter has fashioned the dramatic story of this woman, out of whom Christ cast "seven demons," and of the brilliant young physician who loved her. We see Mary first, dancing for cures in the street of Tiberias, where Joseph also sees her. Then we follow her through the passions and storms of her beleaguered life, leaving her in the triumph of the Resurrection. "Many Heavens," by Virginia Soerensen. This story, too, may be headed for the films, proving that religion and its problems are a timely topic even in fiction. This is a story of the clash of old Mormon customs with new ways in the church, and with the Gentiles. Dr. Niels was married, and to a cripple. His nurse was young, attractive and a friend of both wife and himself. His wife, a Mormon, suggests the inevitable, but you must read the solution.

"Mary Anne," by Daphne du Maurier. The author's name will bring many readers to this book. Mary Anne will keep them reading, for she sparked the liveliest scandal ever to rock the House of Commons in England. Her childhood was spent in London's grubby Fleet street, where she helped her stepfather proofread copy when he was too ill to hold his job in the print shop. She, too, hastily married a ne'er-do-well, and in order to eke out a living for their growing family, she began to write a scandal column for the papers of London. Finally she began to provide the material for the column herself! As she entered a new career as a courtesan, she found she had brains and shrewdness, as well as beauty. The politicians found that love and government do not mix.

"The Spirit of St. Louis" by Charles A. Lindbergh. Lindbergh has always been as intriguing and amazing as the stars that sparkle from the dark blue jacket cover of his last book. Now you can read his first book. He gives his hour-by-hour account over the trackless water of the Atlantic.

"Clown of the Gods," by Agatha Young. This is by the author of Blaze of Glory, which has been on many best seller lists. This colorful novel reveals the behind-the-scenes story of the European and American artistic world. Behind the footlights are the creative men and women who dance, costume and direct and produce the modern drama. From the unknown, comes a ballet genius, and we follow him through the trials of his development, to the pinnacle of success. This is the story of his rise and fall, and the pattern of his glittering and tragic life.

"Seven Steeples," by Margaret Henrichsen. One of the most amazing books we have had for a long time; amazing because of the story of it tells, and also amazing for its tremendous popularity at all book counters and stores. This is the story of New England, and a woman who was an outsider. Margaret Henrichsen, at the age of 42, migrated from a city to the sparsely settled stretch of Maine coast, where she began a new life and a new profession. This is fact, more interesting than fiction. Not only does her story hold your attention, but her portrait on the back cover keeps you looking to see if you saw rightly the first time.

"The Crucible," a play by Arthur Miller, author of Death of a Salesman. This is set in Salem in 1682, with its problem of guilt by association. It is based on the actual witch trials. After opening on Broadway, the newspapers reported, "a play of granite and fire that towers and flames over the rest of the season's new plays."

"The Twelfth Physician," by Willa Gibbs. Dr. Florian loved Diane more than life and medicine more than either. This is not just another doctor's story, but the story of one at a time when the study of medicine carried the penalty of death. Florian, in the rule of Robespierre in France, risked the penalty of death to meet with his five students after the first 11 physicians had refused to teach them. Follow his life and profession to the time when he serves with Napoleon in the Egyptian campaign, and the unforgeable deed which became his final duty.

"The Iron Maiden," by Edwin Lanham. This is the story of what happens when a large metropolitan daily meets a dynamic, glamorous and ruthless woman who marries the young owner and takes command. Carolyn Brown was pleased by her first by-line on the New York daily, but it didn't seem to satisfy her. Now she marries Andrew, the founder's grandson. What would happen to the members of the staff whose lives and emotions had once been involved with her? This is the story of the life and death of news on the metropolitan daily.

"The Journal of Edwin Carp," by Richard Haydin. Edwin lives with his mother, an imperious dowager who, on first hearing that Edwin was to be married, loses consciousness for two hours. It was his fiancée, Maude, who presented Edwin with his Journal to commemorate the anniversary of their betrothal. (She even handwrote the leather binding.) Edwin's mother would not have approved some of his journal entries, "I noticed when I kissed Maude last night our since-ness met and made a tinkling noise. I find it embarrassing." Read this book and become a happier person, because you are you and not Edwin Carp.

Christmas Sale Slated
By Bethany Class
There's going to be a home made candy and cookie sale on Dec. 18th. This action was taken Thursday when members of the Bethany Circle, W.S.C.S. of the Methodist Church held their first meeting of the new year. Details of the sale will be released later.

The hostess for the evening was Mrs. Frank Pitzten. Her assistant was Mrs. R. C. Davis.
The worship booklets, whose theme this year is "Except the Lord Keep the City" and the date books were handed out. For devotions, Mrs. Pitzten chose excerpts taken from the Fourth Assembly of the Woman's Society of Christian Service held recently in Evanston, Ill. in conjunction with the World Council of Churches.

The usual routine business session was held and included the change of the meeting date to the third Tuesday of the month. The group also agreed to purchase a book rack for the vestibule so that church members may have access to the church publications. Other business included the call for clothing for overseas refugees, which may be left in the vestibule of the church.

At the close of the session, Mrs. Pitzten invited her guests to an outdoor Wiener roast.

The October meeting is scheduled for Oct. 19 and is to be held with Mrs. Jacob Schneider. Assistants are Mrs. Alfred Parkinson and Mrs. A. L. Ferris.

The program featured presentation of colored slides of a trip taken through Hawaii and the Caribbean two years ago by Mr. and Mrs. Percy H. Root. The slides were shown by Mrs. Joanne Root.

Twenty-three members were in attendance and answered the roll call with mention of places they would like to visit. A potluck supper was served.

Ham-From-A-Can Fares Beautifully

Boned, cooked and ready-to-serve hams in cans are a joy to serve. Here the ham is baked with spiced fruit syrup and garnished with canned peaches also simmered in the same pungent glaze mixture. The ham requiring refrigeration storage are generally canned in 6 to 12-pound sizes. The 6 1/2-pound ham is now one of the most popular sizes with consumers. Some members of the meat canning industry are also bringing out a 4-pound canned ham because consumers have indicated interest in the smaller units.

A neat serving trick when the ham is to be served at a buffet calls for slicing the ham before heating it. Stud every other slice with cloves prior to cutting and then tie the ham back into its original shape and bake. By figuring three to four servings per pound, you have a basis for judging the size ham to buy.

Glazed Canned Ham
6 to 12-pound canned ham 1 tablespoon cornstarch
Whole cloves 2 tablespoons vinegar
1 No. 2 1/2 can cling peach halves 3 tablespoons prepared mustard
1 cup unsulphured molasses

For attractive service and easy carving, slice ham before heating. Cut 1/4-inch slice; insert cloves along top edge of ham slice. Leave second slice plain. Stud every other slice with cloves before it is cut. Tie sliced ham with string in original shape; place in shallow baking pan. Drain peaches; measure liquid; reserve. (There should be about 1 1/2 cups.) Mix cornstarch and vinegar to a paste in saucepan. Blend in mustard, drained peach syrup and molasses. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Use to baste ham two or three times during baking. Bake in a moderate oven (350°F.) 1 hour. Stud peach halves with cloves, add to remaining syrup; heat. Use to garnish ham; trim with mint leaves if desired. Serve with potato salad. YIELD: 3 to 4 servings per pound.

Maumece Loses Green, Star Fullback

Defeated but by no means discouraged, Plymouth's 141 gr in's journey to Maumece Saturday to play Maumece Valley Country Day school. The prospects look better than good for the first victory of the season.

Maumece Valley is a private college preparatory school with an enrollment of 30 men in the top four grades. There are 20 uniformed on the football squad.

This is Maumece Valley's fifth year of varsity football. Except for the first year, none of them has been successful. Last season the school won only one game.

In the season's opener Friday, Maumece Valley played Mt. Blanchard and received a hiding for his pains. It was a costly loss, because Neil Green, the star fullback and outstanding player of the Maumece squad, was injured and will probably be out for the rest of the season.

Maumece Valley is coached by Edgar Charles, a graduate of Franklin & Marshall college, Lancaster, Pa. His assistants are Bill Houle, a graduate of Defiance college, and Art Leighton, an alumnus of Kalamazoo college.

The starting lineup will boast of big ends and tackles and some weakness through the middle. The captain and quarterback is a little chap weighing 110 pounds who is in his fourth season.

The starters include three seniors, two juniors, five sophs and a single freshman.

The line seems heavy, reading 175, 175, 165, 200 and 160 from left to right. This averages about 177 per man. Coach Charles would nevertheless swap some of the heft for some experience at guard.

The probable starting lineup for Maumece Valley:

- l. e. Atkinson
- l. g. Davis
- l. g. Lucynski
- c. Hankins
- r. g. Fine
- r. e. Ziemas
- r. e. Chase
- r. e. Green
- l. h. Gwyn
- r. h. Getgen
- f. b. Finkbinder

Followers of the Plymouth eleven should take Route 20 west from Norwalk to the crossing with the Ohio Turnpike, Maumece Valley Country Day school lies to the north of the turnpike crossing on the right hand side of the highway. The field lies in front of the school a long, low, white building. Admission is 50c for students and 75c for adults.

Council Finds Bond Experts a Tardy Lot

The eagerness expressed by bonding houses in their correspondence with village authorities is hardly matched by performance, Plymouth village council found Thursday night.

Although the village clerk receives daily letters by the bale from bonding companies expressing a desire to bid on any bond issues that may be floated by the corporation, when they are invited to come in for an informal discussion and give the council the benefit of their knowledge, they are slow to comply.

The result Thursday was that only one firm of the three invited showed up. Two representatives of the firm spent two hours with the council and shed considerable light on financing of the proposed sewage disposal system.

The upshot of it all was that the firm's representative offers to serve as financial adviser to the council during the planning phase of the sewage disposal system financing. He will give the board his time and knowledge on request. In return for he would expect to be given first shot at buying the bonds to be issued, the price to be negotiated with the council in a session at which other bonding companies would be excluded.

to reach agreement on the price of the bonds, then public bids would be asked, he would put in a bid with the other firms, and if he were not successful bidder, the council would pay him one and one-half percent of the face value of the bonds as his fee for financial advice. On a $375,000 bond issue, the fee would amount to $5,625.

The council promised to take his offer under advisement, with no indication of an attitude on the matter, whether favorable or otherwise.

The absence of definitive figures as to costs prevents the experts from making any more than an estimate within five or 10 per cent of being correct right now, the council learned. Figuring on $375,000 total cost of the project, the general obligation bond part would run to $12 a household a year, and the special assessment bond to $38-39 a year.

Mayor Glenn West told the council that Alden E. Stilson & Associates, Ltd., the consulting engineers, had promised to forward a final report in time for the meeting, but that it had not been received. Councilman J. Ben Smith reported he had been unable to locate a group willing to prepare the community dinner tentatively scheduled for Oct. 7.

When the editor sits in his office and the most unique news story in a year comes in, that's news with a capital "n".

Young David Roberts, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Roberts, 101 Franklin street, went to play Sunday afternoon with his friend, William Robertson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Conky Robertson, West Broadway.

The boys spied an unexpended calibre .22 cartridge, and they placed it on a stone and fired a bee-bee shot into the cap. The round went off and the bullet pierced the bridge of David's nose.

He was rushed to Shelby Memorial hospital by Mr. Robertson and six stitches were taken in the wound.

Now he's got a bandaid on his nose and a wonderful story to enthrall his schoolmates. But no Purple Heart.

Kill Lawn Weeds Now, Expert Advises

Deal a death blow to lawn weeds now and bluegrass will have a chance to fill the bare spots before weed growth starts next spring. Killing dandelions in May merely makes room for crabgrass in June.

Victor H. Ries, Ohio State University extension floriculture specialist, says rain has made weeds grow fast in recent weeks, so they are easy to kill with 2-4-D come under many trade names. Most of them are used for spraying, although some may be applied dry.

Ries advises gardeners to wet the foliage thoroughly when they spray weeds, and to follow the manufacturer's recommendations for mixing the spray. Be sure there is no wind blowing when you spray weeds, the specialist warns. Weed spray drifting on flowers, shrubs or evergreens may damage or even kill them.

It's best to use a separate sprayer for weed spraying. Weed spray residue in a sprayer may kill flowers, shrubs or vegetables if the sprayer is used on them later.

Intelligent clipping and fertilization is the easiest way to keep weeds out of lawns, according to Ries. Fertilizing lawns this fall will thicken the grass stand and cover bare spots. He says there's no need to reseed bare spots unless they are larger than one foot in diameter. The specialist recommends 3 to 4 pounds of 4-12-8, 5-10-10, 3-12-12 or similar grade fertilizer per 1000 square feet. Use only half that amount of 10-10-10 or 12-12-12 fertilizer.

Two Teeth at Birth

Part of the six pounds four and one-half ounces of avoirdupois that little Jayne Ann Capelle brought into the world at Willard Municipal hospital Sept. 8 was to have been removed from her by force this week.

What will be removed won't weigh more than half an ounce, and replacements may be expected after a time. And Jayne Ann will have a lifelong memento to treasure: the two teeth with which she was born.

Her father, Christian Capelle, reports the teeth were to be removed for medical reasons.

Ries advises gardeners to wet the foliage thoroughly when they spray weeds, and to follow the manufacturer's recommendations for mixing the spray. Be sure there is no wind blowing when you spray weeds, the specialist warns. Weed spray drifting on flowers, shrubs or evergreens may damage or even kill them.

Mounted Posse Gives Horse Show Sunday

A horse show will be staged at Richland county fairsgrounds Sunday, sponsored by the Richland county sheriff's mounted deputies.

The show, scheduled to start at 1 p.m., will have the following classes: parade, non silver; spotted, plain, no palominos; western ponies, under 48 inches; box race; ladies western, mares and geldings only; western pony hitch; stake bend on time; five-gated English; western pony, 48 to 56 inches; western single hitch; western pleasure, mares and geldings only, and western equitation for riders 16 years and under.

A trophy will be awarded to the largest horse group at the show, which has been certified by the Central Ohio Saddle Club association as an accredited show.

A special feature of the program will be the appearance of the Trumbull county sheriff's mounted posse.

Now that the first few days of newness has worn off and the mothers no longer have to drag their young ones to the front door, the four and five year olds have settled down to taking Mrs. Fackler's kindergarten course seriously, and nothing is more serious than coloring a chick the right shade of yellow and staying with in the lines.

Ohio University History by Prof. Hoover

Published As Sesquicentennial Feature

ATHEENS, OHIO—The late Thomas N. Hoover, (right) for 29 years professor of history at Ohio University, is the author of a 274-page book published this summer as a feature of the university's sesquicentennial observance. Entitled "The History of Ohio University" the volume represents the most complete history written during the school's 150 years of existence. Reproduced above are the opening pages of the book. The history was published by the Ohio University Press, whose first publication

On February 19, 1804, the General Assembly of Ohio passed an act to establish "an university in the town of Athens." Four years later Ohio University was opened in a two-room brick building with a single instructor and three students. Modest as this early academy was, it could still claim the distinction of being the first of higher learning in the Western Hemisphere. The founders of Ohio University were the United States Congress and administrators of the State of Ohio. The history of Ohio University in the past 150 years is a story of growth and development. It is a story of the struggle for recognition and the triumph of the American dream. It is a story of the founding of a great institution of higher learning, and the progress of the American people. It is a story of the founding of a great institution of higher learning, and the progress of the American people. It is a story of the founding of a great institution of higher learning, and the progress of the American people.

Miss Nina Brown of Attica was a Sunday caller at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Shrader and family.

The Misses Elizabeth Ryder and Gloria Baumberger of Mansfield were Sunday supper and evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Stockley.

M. and Mrs. Duane Slessman and children spent Sunday afternoon and evening with Mr. and Mrs. Donald Gurney and family near North Fairfield.

The Farm Women's Sunshine club will be entertained today at the home of Mrs. Duane Slessman with Mrs. Harold Hershiser, Mrs. Glenn Rang and Mrs. Charles Wyandt, Jr., assisting hostesses. A bake sale will be held at the meeting. Program committee will be Mrs. Melvin Buckingham and Mrs. Richard Babcock.

Vernon Smith called Mr. and Mrs. Frank Albright Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Vance spent the week-end with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Williams, at Newark. Sunday they all spent the day at Ohio and called on Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tidrick and visited the pottery museum there.

Telephone Rates in 1899 Were $1, $1.25 As Shiloh Readied Long Distance Line

Shilohans who are displeased with the proposed telephone rate increase can look at a report of telephone developments in their village in 1899, if they'll come to The Advertiser's editorial office.

A copy of the Shiloh Review in that year reports developments in telephone connections that would astound the present day subscriber. "The price for business phones, the Review says, 'will be $1.25 per month and for those in residences, $1.00 per month. The subscribers will be given the privilege of free communication with all who have phones in the vicinity and with many of the surrounding towns.'"

Men in the employ of Star Telephone Co. were rushing completion of pole installation and wire assembly to connect Shiloh with the United States Long Distance Telephone Co.'s wires passing Shiloh one mile to the west. Connection with Gulf cities and Lake cities through Shiloh was thus possible.

The editor of the Review, J. Fred Wolfersberger, announced that he would have a telephone at both home and office, and thereby hoped he could do a better job with his newspaper.

Better Eating
BY JEAN ALLEN

BABY BEEF IN YOUR FREEZER
The fall round-up of beef is bringing up an abundant supply of baby beef—sometimes called heavy calves—to the market. Since freezing preserves but does not improve the quality, it is wise to select the top U. S. government grades of baby beef for the freezer.

Guide to Quality
Your best guide to quality continues to be the government grade stamped on each carcass. The three top grades are U. S. Prime, Choice and Good. U. S. Choice and Good are plentiful this fall.

These upper grades of baby beef are an economy buy because they are tender and have only a small amount of fat. It will not be quite as flavorful as top quality mature beef but is much better than the lower grades of mature beef.

A fore or hind quarter of baby beef weighs from fifty to seventy-five pounds. This is an ideal amount to cut into family size pieces for placing in your home freezer.

Too many packages of meat are placed in the freezer at one time. This will freeze quickly and will raise the temperature of the freezer. The maximum to freeze at any one time is six pounds of meat for each cubic foot of freezer space.

Preferred Cuts
Buy the cuts your family likes best. Remember that chuck and rib roasts, rib steaks, short ribs, and ground beef or stew meat from the fore shank and plate are cut from the fore quarter. The hind quarter is cut into club, porterhouse, sirloin, flank and round steaks, rump roast and some stewing meat and ground beef.

Wrap Well
Beef should be carefully wrapped in the amounts that your family will use at one time. Freezer wrapping material made especially to protect food from drying out while frozen should be used. A double thickness of the freezer paper between each steak or hamburger patty makes them easy to separate for cooking. Be sure to mark each package with the date and cut of beef.
