

Polio Drive Reaches $631,400 Reveals

Plymouth's porchlight drive for the polio fund netted $132,739, Supt. M. J. Coon, chairman, announces.

The drive will be completed this week, when receipts left in business houses are collected.

As of Tuesday morning, a total of $613,314 had been collected, Mr. Coon said.

Had an unexpectedly polio case strike was illustrated by the chairman: Huron county's first 1955 polio case was reported Friday and entered at City hospital, Cleveland.

Never in the 17-year history of the Huron county chapter has polio struck so early in the year.

Two Plymouth area children will submit to spinal fusion operations during 1955. The operation is said to require a year in bed and to cost $3,500, which will be borne by the chapter.

Mr. Coon said today last-minute donations will continue to be received. The Community club voted Tuesday to give $5 to the drive.

B & O to Stop L-C-L Service Here Feb. 16

Less-than-carload pick-ups and deliveries at Plymouth will be stopped by the Baltimore and Ohio railroad at midnight Feb. 16, it was learned this week.

B. O. Blanchard, who has been freight master for the railroad for many years, received a nine-line letter tersely terminating his services as of Feb. 12 because the B & O has made other arrangements.

What the railroad will do about smaller freight shipments to and from Plymouth could not be immediately learned. It is likely that Willard will be used as a delivery point, with motor truck forwarding from the Willard freight house.

Some business men wonder whether this will leave Plymouth at the mercy of the single certificated common motor carrier serving the village, with whom some of them are not entirely satisfied.

Dance Successful, Another Planned

The Mothers' club-P.T.A. dance held Saturday at the high school was well attended. The Ohio railroad two groups have held this year. The next dance is planned for Mar. 26.

Among those assisting at the last dance were Mrs. Donald Shaver, Mrs. Robert MacMichael, Mrs. D. B. Faust, Mrs. C. L. Hanson, Mrs. James Allen, Mrs. James Jacobs, Mrs. Ralph Hunt, and Mrs. M. J. Coon. Refreshments were given by the various members of both groups.

Wayne Strine's orchestra played for dancing, and Mr. Strine called the social dances. They will play for the next dance.

10 PHS Musicians To Go to Delaware

Ten Plymouth High school music students will be in Delaware this weekend to participate in the annual Ohio Wesleyan Music festival.

Under the direction of Robert L. Dubbert, the students will leave Saturday morning to rehearse during the day in their chosen group and present concert at 7:30 p.m. in Gray chapel, on the Ohio Wesleyan university campus.

The affair features a mixed chorus of over 1,000 high school voices of two hands of 125 players each, and a 100-piece orchestra.

Library Board Votes To Make Cushions

"Sit-upons" will be made by members of the library board during the next few months, the board decided Thursday at the home of Mrs. George Herndon.

It was felt there is a need for those little cushions for the younger children who attend the Story Hour during the summer. The group has become so large that there are not enough chairs to seat them all.

Mrs. Belle Bachrach, president of the board, presided at the business meeting. The meeting day was changed to the second Thursday of each month. The next meeting will be Feb. 24 at the library. This will be a luncheon meeting.

The group agreed to order more cushions from the proceeds of the

Mothers' Club, P-TA Hear Psychiatrist In Joint Meeting

Should a strong-minded father be allowed to teach his children the responsibilities of a mother in an early age? Should a mother keep her children tied to her apron strings?

These two questions were brought out Tuesday evening in the film, "Preface for a Life," shown by Dr. Walter A. Masie, chief of the Mansfield Guidance clinic at the meeting of the Mothers' club at the elementary school.

Dr. Masie spoke briefly about the guidance clinic, which serves the Mansfield area. The office is well staffed with trained personnel, he said, and the clinic receives many cases through the doctors in the area and the schools. It is possible for individuals to make appointments themselves.

Mrs. C. L. Hannum presided over a short business meeting at the end of the program. Supt. M. J. Coon was authorized to purchase an armoire for the cafeteria. Another dance is being planned with Wayne Strine's orchestra furnishing the music. The Jan. 29 dance netted $39,648 for the Mothers' club and the P-T.A.

Plans are being made for the Mar. 18 dinner for the members of the children's committee and board and superintendents. The group will hold its annual all day meeting in Plymouth, Mrs. Robert MacMichael, project chairman, is in charge of the single certificated common motor carrier serving the village, with whom some of them are not entirely satisfied.

The next meeting will be a tea at 3:45 p.m. Mar. 1, Dr. Harry Wain, chief of the health department of Richland county, will speak.

Case Settled Out of Court

A Plymouth woman has settled a $20,000 damage suit against a Shelby driver for the death of her 10-year-old son.

The suit was filed by the mother of the child, who was killed in a collision with a car driven by a Shelby driver.

The settlement was reached after several months of legal proceedings. The case was heard in court but was settled out of court.

Scouts Open Drive For Funds Monday

Aiming at the $539 figure they got last year, Plymouth Boy Scouts and Scouters will launch next week a drive for funds to support activities during the coming year.

The troop committee, whose chairman is Quentin Ream, announced that several adults will solicit from businessmen and other individuals during National Scout week to obtain funds that would:

Help defray some of the cost of the Mansfield Area, BSA, from which Plymouth troop derives considerable support, including access to Camp Avery Hall.

Pay for the maintenance of the Scout-hut, and for the national and district expense of registering the troop.

More than 20 Boy Scouts are registered as usual. Scout master Robert MacMichael told the community club Tuesday night, and about 10 more are expected to join after passing through the Cub Scout ranks.

"We know there isn't any need to remind anybody of the numerous ways the Scout organization prepares oys for good citizenship in the community," the troop committee said, "but it is likely some person or merchant will be overlooked. If this should be the case, please send contributions to the Scout committee."

Members are Mr. Ream, H. James Root, institutional representative; James Durr, assistant Scoutmaster; Elmer E. Markley, Gordon Brown, Ellsworth Ford and Kenneth Eichelberry.

During Scout week Plymouth Cubs under the direction of Don Markley will stage an exhibit in the windows of Millers' Hardware & Appliances, and the Boy Scouts in the windows of the Cornell hotel building.

Don W. Einsel, Jr., advancement chairman for Shelby district, BSA, has been elected vice-chairman of the district, and H. James Root secretary, for 1955.

A district board of review will be conducted Mar. 3 at 7 p.m. in the American Legion hall at Shelby. Deadline for filing entries is Feb. 16.

The district's Boy Scout week activities will feature a film by Fred Laubie, Shelby automobile dealer, of his trip around the world last year.

The district affair will take place Tuesday at 7 p.m. in Shelby High school auditorium.

No Baths Friday! Thinking of taking that Saturday night bath a day early? Better do it before 11 p.m. tomorrow, otherwise you won't have any water.

Superintendent of Light & Water Lincoln Sproles will turn off all drinking water in the village tomorrow at 11 p.m. to effect certain changes in water connections at the old power plant in Birchfield street.

If you don't take more than two or three hours, Mr. Sproles says, but just to be on the safe side, draw a glass or two of aqua pura for the youngsters and let it stand on the window sill (inside, of course) so they'll have something to drink during the night.

Harry Sharpless Mark Golden Anniversary

Friends and neighbors of two long-time Plymouth area residents will gather at their home Sunday to help celebrate 50 years of a happy marriage.

Harry and Isabel Brown Sharpless, who were married Feb. 5, 1905, by the Rev. O. J. Coby in the parsonage of the Methodist church at Chicago Junction (now Willard), will receive callers from 3 to 6 p.m. to talk over old times, share a hearty handshake, and drink some wedding punch.

They hope the visitors will come empty handed, for they want no gifts.

Both the Sharplesses are natives of this area. When Harry was only 16, he took the advice of Horace Greeley and served four years as a cowpuncher in the west. While he was 20, he came back to the Buckeye state, and here he has remained.

For 33 and a half years, he was a car inspector for the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. He retired from that job in 1945. They set up housekeeping in Willard and moved to Greenview in 1915. In a few years they took a farm, and worked

Board Given OK In Water Deals

Board to Meet New Haven To Discuss Access to New Well

Emergency authorization to the Board of Public Affairs to negotiate and enter into a contract providing for the adequate supply of water was voted by the village council Tuesday night, after hearing the Board will meet Monday with another likely supplier of water.

Simultaneously, the council put the final touches to a sewer ordinance which will:

Net the village sewer fund about $720 a month. Cost the average resident $1 a month.

Cost the public schools $100 a year, in four equal installments.

On first reading, the council passed unanimously an ordinance authorizing the Board of Public Affairs to hire an engineer to make the necessary studies incident to establishment of an adequate water supply.

Members of the council were searching in their interrogation of the Board, whose representatives were present, because the draft ordinance appeared so far-reaching in phrasing. It was explained the Board does not wish "to be caught with its pants down" as was last summer, in its effort to current obtain water. Farmer living near New Haven, has agreed to discuss with the Board the possibilities of granting an easement to enable it to enter his property to test pump a well that is reputed to have a high water head. Should he prove amenable to the Board's offer, the Board is now authorized to close with him promptly, and to reach an agreement which would allow the Board to enter the property, build a conduit outlet, and otherwise do whatever is necessary to establish a water supply point.

In response to a question by Councilman John Dick, Board President Francis Burcher emphatically said "This does not exclude our negotiating with anybody else, anywhere, if we can get what we think is right."

The engagement of the engineer, the Board pointed out, is to meet the state Board of health requirements in respect to design and construction of a water supply.

Since the matter is not urgent, the council declined to pass the ordinance as an emergency measure.

In other action, the council was informed that a new siren and flasher light has been installed on the police cruiser. Street Superintendent M. J. Coon reported the arrival of the new sewer cleaning device which will be ready for use in a few days. The street and sewer committee was directed to discuss with Mr. Moore the level of fees to be charged for private use of the device.

This brought up the question of whether the village will be responsible for the maintenance of sewers - and principally the unstopping of those that are not free - now that a sewer use tax will be collectible.

Various public works were referred, and Councilmen Dick and J. Ben Smith pointed out that numerous private persons have constructed their own sewer lines, and they will now expect cleaning service.

It informed that it is unlawful to excise public entities from the paying sewer or water rate, and the council reluctantly voted to assess a flat fee of $100 a year, in four equal installments, against the public schools. It was expected Jan. 1, because the 1955 school budget is already in effect.

It would put the average rate in the schools at five cents a pupil a quarter, or half that which is charged the Fate-Roof-Health Co.

Post Office Topic Of Mrs. Parkinson

"Everyone's Servant, the Post Office" was the subject of Mrs. Alfred Parkinson at Monday's meeting of the Tourist club.

Mrs. Parkinson spoke of the history of the Post Office Department. She said that Samuel Osgood was the first postmaster general appointed under the constitution in 1789. When the Department was established in Washington, there were only nine employees in its headquarters, and today thousands are employed in Washington alone.

The first postmaster was Mr. J. E. Nimmons after having dinner at Cornell's.

August (Gus) Sifferlen, 87-year-old resident of Shelby, died at his home after being in failing health for nearly a year.

Sifferlen high reunion mass was said Sunday at 10 a.m. in the Second Heart of Jesus church, of which Mr. Sifferlen was a communicant by the Rev. Virgil Riedel, pastor. Interment in the church cemetery.

In addition to Mrs. Kucinic, Mr. Sifferlen is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Stewart White, Mrs. Robert White, Shelby and Miss Rita Sifferlen, at home; a brother, William, Fremont, and five grandchildren.

The Rev. William Coomes, pastor of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church, will sing a solemn requiem mass tomorrow at 9:30 a.m. in the church. Interment will be in Greenview cemetery, Willard.

The body is at the McQuate Funeral home here and friends may call after 7 p.m. today.

Four Take Tests For State Grades

Four Plymouth High school students took the Ohio General Scholarship tests at Mansfield Friday and Saturday.

The tests were offered to students ranked scholastically in the upper 40 per cent of their classes and are graded at Columbus to determine the student's relative rank among other students in the state.

English and literature, American and world history, mathematics, science and reading comprehension and vocabulary are included in the scope of the test.

Local students who took the examinations are C. Otis Port, Nancy Barbour, Betty Reed and Pearl Lucas, all of the Class of 1955.

Mrs. Desje Johnston has returned from Burbank, Cal. where she spent several months.

Good Excuse: Horse Sunk In Quicksand

That one day of absence from Plymouth public schools chalked up to Patricia Grabach, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Lyle Grabach, 320 Main street, has a good excuse.

Her filly, a three-year-old black and white spotted beast named "Trixie," was mired in quicksand up to her neck, and it took all of Pat's coaxing and the assistance of a block-and-tackle and the advice of Leo Barnes to get her out.

The horse failed to appear for her outcall when Mr. Grabach started for work Monday. Alarmed, he looked around and found the horse all but smothered in quicksand neither he nor anybody else knew was there.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sharpless, long-time residents of the Plymouth area, will hold open house Sunday in observance of their 50th wedding anniversary.

Another Rooping

The complaints of such cities as Fostoria and Findlay are also our complaints: the state highway patrol is giving us a rooping on traffic cases which would add to our municipal revenues.

The patrol denies it, of course, but one need only have the sense of a two-headed billy goat to see the truth. Item from the Willard Times: "Mary Ellen Gill, Plymouth, arrested by the state highway patrol for operating a vehicle without a driver's license, was fined $25 and costs in mayor's court. Richard Pittenger, Shiloh, arrested for speeding on Route 61, was fined $25 and costs."

Now, unless our ruler is haywire, it is apparent that Route 61 is closer to Plymouth than to Willard. We have a perfectly able and intelligent officer here who can deal with highway cases, with equity and justice, and deliver just as nasty a sermon against speeding and reckless driving as the next fellow, when it needs to be given.

Why don't we get the state highway patrol business? We are not rolling in money, and whatever we get is helpful to us. Neither is Willard rolling in money, but the truth is that Willard is eight miles from Route 61 and Plymouth much less, depending upon where in Route 61 the patrol makes an arrest.

Our purpose is not to interfere with the family life of the mayor or the acting mayor. So far as the records show, and so far as we can investigate, the arrests over which we think we have a reasonable claim to jurisdiction occur within reasonable hours when the patrol should know the magistrate of the village is available.

It is not an isolated incident of which we complain. Other communities complain also. It would seem the patrol does not have any sentimental feelings toward a magistrate who tempers law with justice and compassion, who thinks of little kiddies and hungry families before he socks a fine of $50 on a first offender.

You can talk about fascism and creeping socialism all you like. Take a look at the state highway patrol.

What those who knew was true all along has come to pass, but where are the sparrows of yesteryear?

A sewer tax of $12 a year has become a fact. Every widow, spinster and retired person is paying the tax, and we are as far from a sewage disposal plant as we ever were. Many of the folks who are paying a sewer usage tax now will not live long enough to benefit by what they pay.

Back in November, some sparrows who were looking for crumbs, in the kind of thing most sparrows look for most of the time, whipped up opinion against the sewage disposal issue and it was roundly defeated. That they told half-truths about our debt is inexcusable but understandable when one considers what sparrows are - air borne birds whose bones are filled with air so they can fly. In this case, most of the air was in their heads.

When the acting mayor testified before the Senate investigating committee, it was made clear that our debt isn't so great. Except for the school debt, there is no debt, really, because the water and light debts are self-financing.

On Thursday night, when the council discussed the matter in a well-advertised special session, there were three citizens who appeared. To them, we take off our hat. If Harry Vandervort, Richard Fackler and Clarence Barnes will drop by our office, we will buy them a cigar. They are honest citizens who have the courage to speak up.

But for the sparrows, there are only crumbs.

Report from Columbus

By J. K. (Ken) Weaver - Haron County Representative

For the information of individuals or groups who are now working on legislation to be introduced in the Ohio legislature, in both the House and the Senate has been set for Feb. 14th. So whatever you do, you should do quickly.

I have had many requests for copies of the School Survey commission report. In order that people who are closely connected with our school problems may be informed, I have requested the commission to send a copy to each school board member (local, city and county) in the county, as well as one to each copy to each school. You should receive this information sometime during the first week in February. Remember that the information contained in this report is not law, but suggestions by about 100 people who worked directly on this study. In addition, there were about 40,000 who took part in the report by way of questionnaires. There will be many committee hearings, and hours of work, before any part of this report becomes a part of our law for the operation of schools.

I have received a number of letters in regard to legislation pertaining to the illegal distribution of narcotics in Ohio, and to requests for severe penalties for offenders, in order to discourage this operation in Ohio. I am vitally interested in this type of legislation. In the past, as chairman of a sub-committee, I helped to write legislation in regard to this matter, and during this time, I expect to co-sponsor narcotic legislation, and will work toward the enactment of laws that will make Ohio a tough spot for these undesirable.

Compensation Bill
 During the past week we have had one of those unusual things submitted to the legislature, namely, a bill in the form of an initiative petition. This bill has been submitted by the Ohio Congress of Industrial Organizations and under the Ohio constitution may be introduced, with a required number of signatures, directly to the Assembly without having any particular members name on it as sponsor. This bill carries more than the required number of signatures equal to one-half percent of the total vote cast for governor in the 1952 election.

The principal features of the proposed bill include (1) increase of minimum weekly benefits to unemployed persons from $10 to $15; (2) increase of maximum weekly benefits from $30 to $50; (3) increase of weekly allowance for dependent children from $5 to $9; and (4) increase of the maximum benefit time from 26 to 39 weeks.

This measure has been termed "fantastic" by Governor Frank Lauch.

This bill undoubtedly is a controversial bill as it is submitted to

POINT MARKET

Route 224 at 61 New Haven, Ohio

Around the Square

— By Phineas Whittleseed —

It took a cold and blustery night on the streets of our state capital to remind us once again what there is about a small town that a city - even one so bustling and important as Columbus, 25th ranking metropolis in the land - cannot match. It was snowing just a bit, and about seventh we made our way across High street to dine. Prior thereto, we had swung twice around the block, looking into the shop windows, comparing prices and goods.

No doubt about it, for variety, for style, for what the French call eclat, the city has it all over the small town. And price-wise, too, the city dweller has an advantage.

But of the hundreds of souls we saw of a Friday evening in Columbus, not one spoke to us. It made the evening doubly cold. Even on a Friday evening in our town, when we swing around the square, all fuddled up against the frigid winds, someone speaks, and like as not we do not know who he is, or do not recognize him because our glasses are all fogged up.

'Twas the annual convention of the Ohio Newspaper association that called us there, and an excellent event it was. One editor called our attention to how important one word may be. Take the following sentence:

"She told me that she loved me."

There are seven places where you might insert the word "only", and each changes the meaning of the sentence. "Only she told me," "She only told me," "She told only me," "She told me only," "She told me that only," and so on.

And a distressing but true fact: Americans are reverting to the juvenile. They are becoming picture readers. They want everything so simplified that it can be presented in a picture. Television has contributed to it. And, in the main, it is bad.

For what of the Robert Louis Stevenson and William Cullen Bryant, what of the Wilbur Crosses - he who wrote so touchingly in the one Thanksgiving proclamation - and the haunting lines of Miss St. Vincent Millay? Our writing and our communication are becoming so pedestrian that our standards are going down with them.

Just the other day, from the good, grey Times, we read in full the president's message to the Congress. How devoid of the rounded phrase, the chord that strikes a response in the hearts and minds of men, that becomes a kind of slogan about which their thoughts and actions rally! Mr. Eisenhower stands first among Americans with 'us', but it is still true that his message - and the whole jumble of stuff one reads in the Congressional Record and in business reports - is so pedestrian and so lacking in inspired composition that one is appalled.

Consider such important publications as the income tax regulations. The man who wrote the instruction book is an old friend of ours, who served on the same copy desk as Phin many years ago. He is a bright chap, learned, a lawyer as well as a trained newspaperman. But even he has fallen under the spell.

There is a book in the Old Testament that brah young iconoclasts such as we were 20 years ago used to throw up into the Sunday school teacher's face as a fine example of the kind of thing one found in the Old Testament. It's the one about how to beg whom, and he begged somebody else, on and on, for perhaps 100 verses. We take it all back, and then come. The trash we read every day, whether in our newspapers, in our government publications, is so poorly written as to make one wonder whether after another century we shall ever have a language at all. Come to think of it, there's an example. How many times do you hear the word "shall" in a conversation? Some telephone company or other has shown that it has all but fallen into disuse, and when it is used, the user is stared at with suspicion.

But one point the experts at Columbus brought out that is reassuring: there are some stories that you simply can't tell with pictures. Try though you may, you simply can't do it. And which is why we feel that emphasis upon the ability to read, write and speak our native tongue is the most important subject we should in our schools. There is no such thing, to our mind, as a passing grade. Passing is perfect, and perfect only passing. We do not settle for less than 100 per cent accuracy in the writing and speaking of our native tongue.

What prompts all this, besides the visit to Columbus? Isn't it fine that two of our young women have been awarded prizes for their ability to say what they think on paper? Hats off to Bette Carter and M. M. Brinson. May their tribe increase!

The vice of newspapermen and printers is a common one. The vice of bankers is sticky fingers and that of the Fourth Estate the bent elbow. But the reputation that most newspapermen have is not earned. Nor is it deserved. The group assembled at Columbus - but for two notable exceptions - was a sober, serious one, and while there may have been tipping, we didn't see any. Come to think of it, for every drunken newspaperman you'll find a crooked banker.

It is interesting to swap notes with the strangers. John Kiser and Wade McKewen, told us the other day when attending a convention when a chap from a small town deliberately wrote his address at Dayton because he didn't want to answer questions about where in heck his town was.

Not so at Columbus. Two fellows came up to Phin and said, "So you're from Plymouth. You know Foggy?"

Sorry, we didn't know Foggy.

"Why, Foggy is still remembered in our town as the best quarterback we ever had and he lives in Plymouth. Haven't seen him in years, how is the old rooster?"

Foggy, it developed, is Harold Farrar, of Mulberry street, back in the twenties the schoolboy star at Oberlin who was thought to be another Chic Harley. It's a small world.

Shoots Birds and Roost

Rollo McBride, the chap who meets the mail trains and lives in the Noble road just northeast of town, prefers holes in his barn roof to pigeons.

Rollo, becoming disgusted with the birds' droppings in the barn, tried in vain to shoot them out. Finally, his patience at the breaking point Tuesday morning when he went to get his trailer out of the barn and found it covered with their droppings, he saluted into the house, gets his shotgun and blasts away.

Result: Pigeons gone; holes in roof.

Fishing Is a Risk

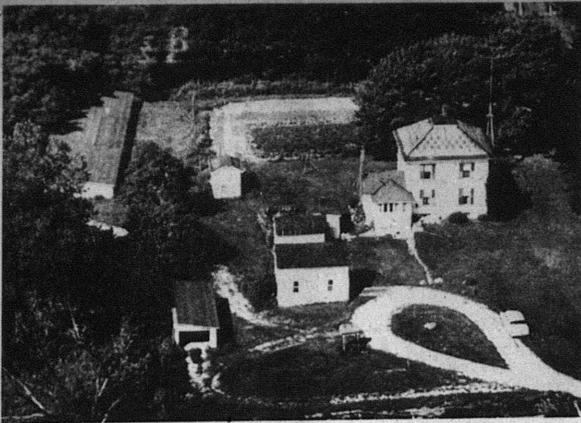

The difference between this fisherman and the man who buys a Dodge is obvious:

He doesn't know what he's getting!
He's got a lot invested in rod, tackle, boots, mosquito repellent, anti-snake bite remedy and the rest of what it takes...

But he might get nothing, something he doesn't want, or can't use — that's not dependable. Not so when you buy a new Dodge. It's dependable, because it's made right, designed for dependability and carefully engineered to serve you.

Don't be like the fisherman who doesn't know what he's getting — go Dodge, and stay with Dodge. It's dependable!

George Cole Is Grass Farmer

George Cole is a shrewd grass farmer whose livestock activities were cut short because of a fire which destroyed his barn some six years ago.

But he has farmed his piece on both sides of Skinner road in New Haven township for a bit over 28 years and he knows his ground and he studies crop conditions, notably markets.

Like everybody else, he is "up the creek when it comes to growing wheat" and he "doesn't think rye or barley is the complete answer to restrictions on both wheat and corn.

"Mills and elevators don't like to handle rye - on account of that itchy beard it has, I guess - and I'm not sure a farmer can make out on barley, though I've got 10 acres of winter barley in and I'm hoping it'll pay off," he says.

The Coles lived in the east a good many years - 11 of them - while he was employed by a big packing house, and he knows his meat. They eat well, and only the best cuts are suitable. "When you've worked in a packing house, you learn too much about the butchering business, and your taste comes high for your pocketbook," he laughs, and Mrs. Cole brightly shakes her head in agreement.

The Cole farm is adjoined by one of just over 110 acres owned and operated by their son. Their own is 180 acres, and for a man whose farm is somewhat off the beaten track, Mr. Cole takes an uncommon interest in things political - especially practical politics, like fire protection and school construction.

He hopes very strongly that New Haven township can come to agreement with Plymouth village to furnish protection. "Willard Fire department is good and we've been served well, but Plymouth is closer," he reasons. The fact that the Black fork runs just below his window gives him an advantage so far as fire protection is concerned, but it didn't prevent his barn from burning down.

Fire on the farm is the more dangerous fire, he points out, because farm produce is eminently more combustible. "Hay and straw burn fast, and the farmer usually has gas or oil products around, and the way a barn is built, it's a natural flue for a fire."

About the most the fire company can do, unless it gets there while the fire is in its infancy, is to keep it from spreading to other buildings. This was the case with the Cole fire.

"It was a Cole fire, not a cold fire, but more like a coal fire," he says.

Mr. Cole maintains a keen interest in the farmer's stake in rural education. He recognizes that small schools are unable to do the educational job that larger schools can do, and he frankly wonders - but keeps his mind open - on the question of consolidation.

"The farmer pays for the efficient school and he pays for the inefficient school," Mr. Cole remarks, "and he has to pay for the inefficient school while the efficient school is being built, and even long after, because we don't burn down inefficient schools."

Grass farming has its advantages, more than general farming, George Cole asserts, "if you're organized so that you don't have to rely on the proceeds of livestock and poultry. Your time is a bit more your own, and you're a lot less bound by routine."

That he figures that time pretty closely is indicated by an informal report on an experiment with clover seed. "Plowing and making the ground ready didn't take any more time than any other crop, and harvesting didn't take any more than any other crop. It was that in-between time that cost me money," he says, grinning a bit sheepishly. The licking he took was due, he figures, to the time that it takes to care for clover for seed purposes.

BUY CHICKS CONSERVATIVELY — Don't buy more chicks than your brooder and brooder house can handle easily. We are looking way into next fall, too. Maybe you won't get them housed as soon as you think so bear that in mind also when ordering your chicks. If you crowd them stunted chicks always result and you are gambling long odds on their piling up, and smothering. Dead birds and stunted ones never paid a profit over feed costs—not a solitary dime. The good ones left are always charged up with the owners short sightedness and more often than not the loss is too great for them to make up. Wet litter is another sin chalked up against you when the brooder house is overloaded, especially with early flocks and while a certain amount of moisture is essential a dripping house and wet litter are a constant threat to good health. WE'LL go into this next week. White Rocks — White Leghorns — Special Broiler Chicks

Filgrims Lose Again

Lexington's Minutemen started early and walloped Plymouth's Pilgrims, 85 to 54, in a Richland County league game Tuesday night on the winners' floor. Big Dave Dill was the whole fireworks for the Lexington five. He threw in 30 points. Cliff Schnebly had 15 for the Minutemen. Don McKinney dumped in 13 markers for the Filgrims and John Fox was runner-up with a dozen. For the Plymouth quintet, the game was not without its brighter moments. The scoring ability of the Crimson and White, which has been weak in the past, shot over 50 for the third time this season.

B-r-r-r, It Was Cold!

The coldest weather of the winter occurred during the last week of January, 1955, when the mercury plummeted to five below zero on the 29th, and to two below on the 27th and 28th. These are the first sub-zeros since Feb. 21, 1951, when it dropped to 12 below. The highest for January this year was 51 on the 1st and 2nd; the average for the month was 26.3, or 1.5 degrees below normal. Precipitation totaled 2.19 inches or .07 inch above normal. Nearly one-half of the total, or 1.09 inches, fell in 24 hours on the 5th and 6th; the remainder in drizzly rains and snow. Total snowfall measured 4.7 inches. Altogether, it was a cold, disagreeable month and we are glad it is gone. Now if Mr. Groundhog does not see his shadow Wednesday we can all be happy!

How Can You Protect Yourself?

NAMED BY CATTLE MEN

Ross Fackler and Oliver Fairchild, both of Shelby route 3, have been elected treasurer and director, respectively, of the Richland County Holstein club.

Taking up residence in Jacksonville, Fla., is the former Miss Shirley Fritchen of Mansfield, who became the bride of Yeoman 3rd Class David L. Wichie, son of Mrs. Edna Gieseman of Shiloh, in the Shiloh Methodist church Jan. 22.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Herbert Ganeyard, Ashland, the bride was attired in a street-length gown of turquoise Italian silk, cut in the princess style, with a bolero jacket and three-quarter length sleeves.

She wore a matching cap with veil and carried a prayerbook topped with a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses tied with turquoise ribbon.

Matron of honor was the bride's aunt, Mrs. Wendell Jordan, who wore a beige linen outfit with matching hat and veil. She carried a Colonial bouquet of Briarcliff roses.

Best man for the bridegroom was his brother, Joseph. Ushers were Robert Kemp and Budde Cline, both of Akron.

The Rev. Thomas M. Sheesley, pastor of the church, performed the open church, double-ring ceremony. Two seven-branched candelabra and heavy baskets of pink gladioli, blue iris and white chrysanthemums decorated the altar. Mrs. Anton Fritchen, Mansfield, was soloist and Charles Wolfgang played the organ prelude.
