Och, No Oirish To Celebrate Birthday Today

Sure an' begorrah, th' top o' the mairnin' to ye wan an' all. 'Tis Saint Paddy's day, it is, it being named, for him' what chased all th' snakes out of Ireland.

And here we be on Saint Paddy's day, and not an Oirishman to celebrate. Savin', mind you, all them that be Oirishmen wan day in a year, on the sixteenth of March.

The natal day of our blessed saint who had such a way with him so far as the serpents are concerned foinds not a wan of us here who's Oirish to celebrate.

Sewer Permit Renewed, But with Strings Attached

Just a day before the period of grace expired, the village council revealed Tuesday night its permit to dump raw sewage into the Huron river has been renewed for another year, to Jan. 16, 1956.

But the renewal - actually dated Mar. 7 - has two strings attached. The village must, before another permit is applied for:

1. Prepare a revised study of the general plan with cost estimates to provide for compliance with the state's order to install sanitary sewage system, and obtain the approval of the state health department.

2. Investigate ways and means of financing construction of the proposed sewage system and obtain the state's approval of the plan.

In its covering letter, the state water pollution control board made clear that renewal of the permit was granted upon the council's expressed intention of applying a sewer rental tax.

Tonight, in special meeting, after considering the bid for Peoples National to be the depository of surplus village funds, the council will get down to brass tacks with the draft sewer usage tax ordinance, which has been kicking around for nearly three months.

Despite advice of Squires, Sanders & Dempsey, Cleveland attorneys retained by the village to advise it with respect to the sewer bond issue, that the ordinance might be watered down somewhat, the council seems of a mind to go ahead with its plans as now laid.

This call for a basic assessment of $3 per dwelling per quarter, $6 per business house per quarter, and special assessments for the public schools and for productive industries.

Board Gets Approval Of Purchase of Buses

Armed with the approval of the state education department's transportation chief, Plymouth Board of Education voted to buy two new school buses in a special session Tuesday night.

The buses are expected to be delivered in April, upon which delivery hoped for in six weeks, President J. Harold Cushman told The Advertiser.

The action was made necessary when state highway patrolmen condemned the present vehicles last week. Without expensive repairs, the vehicles were certified to be unsafe for general operation. Rentals were obtained from a stop-gap measure, and the Board sought aid from Columbus.

Under state law, purchase of buses must be approved by the state. Buses are amortized in 10 years, and so long as the cost of the buses is outstanding against the school district, their annual amortization costs are deducted from the state foundation funds received by the district.

Already, there is some feeling that the figure set for the latter is too low, but at least one councilman - J. Benjamin Smith - has said he is unalterably opposed to any increase in the figure now that the basis of the assessment has been laid before Plymouth only industry and apparently accepted without question.

In other action, the council voted 5 to 1, over the emphatic opposition of Councilman Lawrence Cornell, to appropriate $56.25 to Richland county commissioners as the village's share of the 1955 civil defense budget for the county.

Mayor Glenn West attended an organizational meeting in Mansfield last week and told the council what the county has in mind. Despite evidence that civil defense activity is unpopular in Plymouth, and over the protests of Mr. Cornell, who said the expenditure was a waste of money, the majority seemed of a mind to go ahead with the move "because it is the right thing to do, even if it doesn't work."

Councilmen during discussion developed the point that civil defense is not only a measure for war times, but is also for the purpose of providing the village with some organization to cope with disaster such as explosions, fires, storms and the like.

Huron county apparently will levy no assessment against the village because the county obtains its civil defense director's services on a volunteer basis. The reverse is the case in Richland county, where a paid director is on the job.

An appropriation of $125 in the annual budget was made to provide for such requirements.

Fire Chief Dalton F. McDougal's request for a $100 raise in pay was brought to the council by Mr. Smith, who made clear he was not engaging in "special pleading" for McDougal. The council consulted records furnished by other villages and concluded that McDougal's salary is much higher than that usual in other villages of Plymouth's size, even where there are more than two townships to furnish with fire protection.

An ordinance to pay McDougal $2 for the first hour and $1.50 for any additional hours while he is actively engaged in fighting fires was finally passed on voice vote.

Effective from Tuesday, parking in the Public Square and on streets leading immediately into it will be limited to two hours, and Police Chief Robert L. Mesler will hand out tickets to violators. Clerk Carl V. Ellis was authorized to receive fines in payment of traffic violations, including parking.

Luther R. Fetters requested the council to look into access to lots which he owns adjacent to Mary Faye park, and Royal W. Eckstein and Elmer E. Markley were named to communicate with adjacent property owners - Reed White and the Board of Education - to develop a plan by which the access road to the park may be strengthened.

After some discussion, the council voted to table the matter of a new village truck, which will be shared in ownership with the Board of Public Affairs. The consensus was that specifications for a truck should be developed in consultation with the Board and all prospective bidders invited to comply, whether or not the type of truck offered is the same make as that which the village now owns.

FROM OUR FILES

Ten Years Ago

To the Editor:
 No matter who you are, there is something constructive you can do, under God, to raise the level of the channels of literature and entertainment. You have a personal responsibility to decide what you will do and how you will do it.
 The foul minded are now in the midst of a desperate attempt to degrade the bodies and souls of the American people. If their many sided efforts succeed we may all be paying the penalty for generations to come.
 While much is being accomplished by regulations of the law and by the valiant efforts of various organizations, much remains still to be done. And much will be done if individuals by the million will think and act quickly when, in their best judgment, the standards of decency are violated.
 Little is accomplished by complaining or criticizing.
 Those people who would pollute the minds of America act as if they have a right to impose anything at all upon you and that you have no right to dissent. Protect your God given freedom to demand the best and to reject what is foul and low.
 Respectfully yours,
 Mrs. Albin O. Hahler
 Plymouth Ohio.

EYES ON GOAL

Successful is the man who goes straight forward—with an aim on only what is right.

In recent years, both Ashland and Mansfield have been successful in attracting new industries to settlement in their communities, at not very much out-of-pocket expense.

How it was done is worth looking into, and that we did. First, the committee prepared a brochure - not a very elaborate one, typographically - that presented in detailed fashion all of the advantages of settling in the town concerned. Availability of transportation, of housing, condition of schools, amount of tax burden, availability of labor, of water, of electrical power, of land on which to build, and the like.

When it was satisfied that a good job of presenting all the attractions had been done, the next step was to put this in the hands of likely users. This was accomplished by reading the financial journals carefully, and by soliciting the cooperation of industrial departments of railways and truck lines.

And when some active customer was developed, they got after him. They sent a personable and knowledgeable representative of the community to the customer's office - wherever it might have been - to lay the attractions in front of him and talk about them.

Never once did either town surrender its freedom of maneuver. Not once did either town even consider the building of a building or the investing of money by the townspeople. In fact, the guide for both was "if a factory isn't willing to build its own building, what with the tax advantages in this day and age, then the factory isn't worth having."

Nor did the towns in question put up any money to wine and dine the representatives of the interested factories. One or two businessmen may have anted up, say, $50 or $100 on one or two occasions, but there was no general canvass of funds and there was no head tax upon businessmen to finance the scheme.

Ashland and Mansfield have been successful, not only because they have certain advantages peculiar to Ashland and Mansfield, but also because they took advantage of the fact that dispersal of units is a growing tendency in American business. And it didn't cost them any official money, nor did it cost the businessmen any money.

But the businessmen didn't get out of that easy. It cost them effort and time and, above all, interest.

Why Ashland and Mansfield succeeded was pointed out dramatically by the general manager of an Ashland firm, who told us, "We are here because the people of Ashland wanted us to come here, and they were not backward about telling us so."

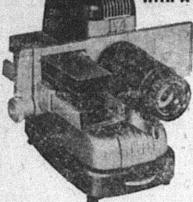

That wanting is what did it. It's all very well to howl about conditions here and there, about how business is likely to be bad because 38 or 48 or 55 men have laid off at one place or another. But what are we gonna do about it?

This is what we mean by leadership. Leadership is required to draw the necessary folks together, to induce them of one mind to unite for one purpose - to bring another industry to our town.

It doesn't require any money. The brochure about our advantages is already drawn up, has been corrected, printed, and is ready for wide distribution.

Now, fellers, just how many of you are there who are willing to work - work, mind you, not lay out your dough - to get another industry here?

Around the Square
 — By Phineas Whittleseed —

Young Dick Lewis is all enthused about the coming baseball season. And he keeps pestering Pin about the possibilities of a kids' league this summer. Patience, chum, we'll try to have something on that shortly.

A lady wants to know what kind of a story it has to be to get on the front page. Now, ma'am, we'll tell you. A newspaper's front page is like a department store's show window; on it goes the stuff that, in the judgment of the editor, will make people read the paper. All you have to do to be assured of a spot on the front page is:

1. Swipe a new car and run off to the West with a dizzy blonde.
2. Attend a council meeting and take a punch at a village official.
3. Stand up in church and tell the minister he is preaching heresy.
4. Have a two-headed child.
5. Donate a pile of dore-mi to some deserving public agency.

Seriously, our front page is planned in advance from stories we know are going to happen and which we think will merit the widest readership. So if you know of something that's going to happen that you think merits news coverage, give us a ring and let us know about it.

Florence Brokaw at Barberton sends us a note saying the "sure does enjoy reading her home paper". Thanks, ma'am.

Signs of spring: Ed Ramsey hustling to get his driven-in in shape. First aid of the coming drive-in theatre season already has appeared. Bob Meiser reporting two intruders in Mrs. Bachrach's back yard: robins, fat and plump after a winter in the show. Earl McQuate wielding brush and paint pot in his south room, which is now redone in a galaxy of reds and pinks. We'd like to have a pair of peccies done in that shade. It would perk our wife up in the morning.

Speaking of pee-ya's, there's a man in the bank who has a zorchy pair of new ones, colorful as all get out. How much'll you pay us not to reveal who you are, friend? How'd we find out: saw your wife buying 'em, and there's nobody else in your family that size.

And another sign of spring: sound of ball in glove. C'mon you baseball fans: for the one (or more) correct listing of the finish of the first four clubs in both American and National leagues, Pin will award one (that's two tickets) of World Series tickets. Sorry about the transportation. That you gotta do yourself.

Rules of the contest: write your choices legibly on a piece of paper (any kind of paper that'll stand the heat of the summer is all right), and sign your name. Include your address, too, and the hours when your wife home, alone, if you want. But your name is essential.

Decisions of the judges (that's us) are final, and there will be no appeal listened to. One more thing: you gotta be a regular subscriber to The Advertiser.

Entries must be postmarked (yep, you've gotta get up the three cents to mail it, Box 488, Plymouth, so we can have a record of the post al cancellation) not later than the first day of the season.

The personal wishes of the conductor of this column as regards the winners will not interfere in the slightest with the awarding of the prizes. We're still pulling for the Yankees and the Redlegs.

Phin hears tell that Doc Faust had an elderly gent call on him the other eve. The feller said, "Doc, my problem is that I'm nearly eighty and I'm starting to think about girls all the time."

"What're you yellin' about," buffed the Doc. "Most fellers your age would give an arm for that."

"Yeah, I know, Doc. But what I want to know is, can't you speed it up?"

We met a young chap in Norwalk the other p.m. whose hair was slicked down in the middle of the afternoon. This being spring, Phin asked him how come. Said he lived in the middle of the bay, and he gets to strob by swimming.

How far out did he live, Phin wanted to know. About seven miles, replied the lad.

Migosh, migoshed Phin, that's a pretty long swim, isn't it? Yes, replied he, and he had to get up early. His grandfather helped him out by throwing his in the morning.

But doesn't a swim that long make you tired? Isn't it hard?

"Not so hard," quoth he, "after you get out of the sack."

Think of it: the guy lived within a stone's throw of Indiana all his life, yet he had to go to Merrie Oldie England to find a lady arm from Indiana to splice up with. She's mighty toothsome did, too. C'mon, gentlemen, a little sincere contemplation of the finer things in life won't hurt anybody. And the flood alone'll be worth the price of admission, which is a buck and a half.

To the county seat Sunday to see Joe Dush's one-man exhibition of water colors. From a country boy in Licking county, who openly admits he ran away in fright the first time he saw the celebrated watercolor collection in Columbus, Joe has come a long way. He has a strong flair for color and expressiveness and his notion of line and dynamism is right up there. It'll be there a month, and Joe'll be tickled pink if you drop in to see it.

Mr. and Mrs. George Page of Shiloh, Miss May Page of Plymouth and Mr. and Mrs. Will Page of Camp Hill, Pa., returned Saturday from a three weeks' vacation trip through the South.

While in Florida, they stayed with their sister, Mrs. Cecil Culver and husband at Oneca, near Bradenton.

George kept a diary of the trip and has many interesting things to report, not the least of which was a visit to the old slave market building in Louisville, Ga. The building was erected in 1758, George states, and with the exception of a concrete floor, stands today just as it did then. A bell, presented by the French in 1792, still stands in the center of the building.

Mrs. Stanley Huston will be the leader of the next meeting, which will be held at the home of Mrs. Brook. The meeting starts at 10 a.m. with a sack lunch at noon. The subject will be, "Choosing Accessories", and all area women are invited to attend. Each is requested to bring a suit case of her own accessories.

Power of Press Brought Home to Ex-Resident

The power of the press has been demonstrated once again, this time to the satisfaction of a former Plymouthite, Alex Bachrach.

Mr. Bachrach lives in Phoenix, Ariz., where he is divisional manager of the Cascade Petroleum Co. He picked up his Phoenix newspaper and noted that a visitor to the Camelback Inn in that city was Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney. The name didn't mean so much as did the photograph accompanying it; it smacked very strongly of someone he used to know.

A telephone call proved he was right, and Mr. Bachrach - who is married to a "beautiful blonde" - renewed acquaintanceship with the former Eleanor Searle.

The Bachrach used to live in the property now occupied by Ray Dinginger in Sandusky street. He was a sergeant in the Army engineer corps during World War II.

Mrs. Whitney also renewed acquaintanceship with the Himes family, Thomas Himes, son of the Rev. A. M. Himes, former pastor of First Evangelical Lutheran church, made his presence known in the Arizona city. He also was a soldier of the engineer corps and served brilliantly in Korea in the rank of captain.

Right now, he's studying in the American Institute for Foreign Affairs at old Thunderbird field near Phoenix. The course specializes in preparing men and women for careers in international trade.

Married, he has a small daughter. His parents now live in Fruitland, Fla., and a brother, James, is a veterinary at Culpeper, Va. His sister, Ruth, now Mrs. William Addison, lives in Des Moines, Ia., and another sister, Peggy, is now

Mrs. James Sims, of Oberlin. Mrs. Whitney has been visiting in Phoenix while her husband completes work on the first motion picture to be produced by C. V. Whitney Pictures. It's taken from the novel "The Searchers" by Alan LeMay and the company has been on location in the Colorado mountains where cavalry charges in snow four feet deep were filmed. Had to dynamite the snow to 20 inches of snow to allow Indians and horses to ford. Mr. Whitney reports. The picture will be out in a year, it is reported.

The Whitneys will arrive in Marineland, Fla., Saturday to visit with their son, Searle, and his grandmother, Mrs. George Searle.

225 Attend Party

Two hundred twenty-five guests were on hand Sunday to assist Mr. and Mrs. Albert Feichtner and Mrs. John Feichtner in the celebration of their golden wedding anniversaries.

The Willard Grange hall was the scene of the event. Mrs. Albert Feichtner's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rotherhoefer, traveled the greatest distance from their home in Pittsburgh, Pa., to attend the celebration.

Dinner was served to 65 persons, among whom were Mrs. Albert Feichtner's sisters, Mrs. Charles Glancy, Akron, and Mrs. Bertha Murphy, Lakemore.
