EUREKA! Pilgrims Snap 28-Game Loss String at New Haven

As Taylor goes, so go the Pilgrims!

With Eddie Taylor's 31-point outburst before he fouled out in the fourth period, Plymouth's Pilgrims brought an end to an humiliating 28-game losing streak at New Haven Tuesday night by defeating the Yellow Jackets, 87 to 61.

The Pilgrims fast-broke the losers to death in the last half and broke all opposition early in the final canto.

For the first seven minutes, it looked very much that an upset was brewing. Led by Jimmy Postema, the Yellow Jackets overcame a slight lead and were pressing the Red and White. In the last minute three quick buckets established an eight-point lead for Plymouth.

New Haven got five points of it back by the halftime whistle, chiefly because Postema couldn't be stopped. He left the floor at intermission tied with Taylor at 16 markers.

Plymouth began to move early in the third quarter, and the Pilgrims built up their lead to seven points with only eight minutes left. Then the roof fell in.

It was an opportunistic lot of Pilgrims that won this one. During the first half, Ray Einsel kept the ball club together. His feeding to Taylor, a trick which he learned on the gridiron with marked success, paid off.

In the last half, Herb Caudill, who got 19 points, and Ted Fox came to the fore.

The varsity contest was the 22nd time Plymouth has defeated New Haven in 37 basketball contests. Last year the Jackets won with ease.

For Plymouth, the 87-point total was the highest score ever registered in varsity basketball by a Pilgrim squad.

Tomorrow the Pilgrims resume Richland county league play by entertaining Lucas, led by vaunted Tom McMillen, a lithe, poised athlete who moves with a basketball the way a cat moves after a mouse.

Taken on form in the past two games - one with Lexington and one with New Haven - the Plymouth five appears to have two virtues and two faults. The virtues are that it plays well in the middle two quarters of the game and it fast breaks well. Its faults are that it chokes up in the first quarter and it loses confidence easily.

The New Haven quintet is not what it has been in years past. The loss of Bob Newmyer and Beecher Caudill by graduation Wayne Robinson because somebody made the grass greener on the other side of the fence would be a death-dealing blow to any school, and particularly a small one like New Haven.

Nevertheless, the Jackets were well drilled and when they moved, they moved with finesse and shock.

Young Jim Postema, a southpaw who is no bigger than the water bucket, is an opportunist par excellence, and he shoots extremely well from the left side.

For his squad, the loss was the 13th straight, a far cry from the Yellow Jackets' record in seasons past. But it is not without possibility they'll win one before the season is out.

Coach Lew Petit was about to give up with the Pilgrims after their shabbly first and second period performance, but he was all smiles after the final whistle blew. It was apparent shortly after the fourth period began the Pilgrims would finally win one.

A small but noisy crowd watched the game.

Booing by Plymouth supporters is "undesirable", Supt. M. J. Coon said yesterday, "and we hope it will be stopped. There is no need to boo, neither official nor player, and it is no mark of sportsmanship by student or spectator. Booing in any amount can only bring censure to a school."

Around The Square with Phineas Whittleseed

'Tis not often the conductor of this column endorses under this now celebrated masthead a commercial product, but this is an exception, and for a worthy cause.

First Evangelical Lutheran church will show the film "Martin Luther" in the church Monday at 7:30 p.m. and the Men's Fellowship of First Presbyterian church will repeat the performance at 7 p.m. on the following Sunday, Jan. 22.

Martin Luther was an Augustinian monk - which is to say a follower of the teachings and preachings of St. Augustine - who tried to find peace of mind and soul through study, work, worship and confession. But he soon came to the conclusion, according to historians, that no matter what he did, he was not able to escape the fear of evil and punishment.

One day, in his tower room at Wittenberg university, he found his answer. He was reading in St. Pual's Epistle to the Romans, in the first chapter, and when he got to the 17th verse, he hit upon it: "A man can't earn salvation by what he himself does. Man gains salvation through faith in Jesus Christ, through what God has done for man through this Savior."

What stuck in his craw was the practice of selling indulgence (indulgence, in the ecclesiastical sense, means the forgiving or pardonning of sin) authorized by the ruling Pope, Leo X, of the Medici family. He figured this was wrong, morally and spiritually, and he called for a housecleaning.

The pillars upon which he laid his plan for housecleaning were the Scriptures, which he thought were being abused because mere mortals in vestments were interpreting them.

To bring up the abuse of indulgences for debate, he did a controversial thing. He prepared a brief. He nailed to the church door of the castle a list of 95 arguments, or theses, as bases for argument. What he thought would be a scholarly debate of the moral basis for the sale of indulgences turned into a violent argument that split the church right down the middle. And that's the way it has been to this day.

Luther was labelled a heretic, excommunicated by the Pope, and banished and condemned by the Emperor Charles V. Duke Frederick of Saxony spirited Luther away before he could be physically harmed and the unfrocked priest spent the days of banishment teaching and preaching, writing a catechism for his family and his pastor, and translating the Bible into everyday German for his people.

When, later, the emperor called upon the nobles and theologians to reject their heresies and to reunite with the church, he got a rude answer, in as godly a voice and manner as the nobles could muster. It was the beginning of Protestantism.

Now whatever a man's religion, the picture - and we've seen it - is worth seeing. The fact that it was produced by Protestant elements primarily for the use of Protestant theology should not stop any non-Protestant from seeing it, because it is history. And, if you like, you can close your mind and your ears to the argument after the history has unfolded.

A few years ago, Phin made the Luther tour. He went on foot to all the places where Martin Luther had been, looked at what he could of the place where he nailed up the theses (it was in the Russian zone), and in general became steeped in the Luther story.

Those were days when Phin was sorely troubled by the things young men are usually troubled about when they have spent a good bit of time reading in libraries, museums, and history classrooms, and he finally resolved to consider the Luther story as history rather than religion, and to make his own adjustments from that point.

Which is not by way of recommending the same course to anyone else, because we are all different, that's the only sameness about us.

But it is a recommendation that you see Martin Luther, the film. It's worth it, worth the experience, even as The Song of Bernadette was.

A man in Uncle Sam's establishment across the square apparently has the problem of taking his business home with him. When he gets to the family hearth, all he talks about is the post office. It's natural - that's where he works and that's how he spends most of his wakeful day.

The other p.m. he got his comeuppance. Wifey blew her stack.

"Trouble with you is you talk post office, post office all the time. You've forgotten how to PLAY post office."

We promised we wouldn't tell which one of the genial characters around Uncle Sam's place it is, but if you go in there, you might ask the feller at the window which one it is. Mebbe he'll tell you.

We doubt that you'll be told. Firstly, it's embarrassing. No gentleman likes to be told he's over the hill, especially by Wifey. Also, in the second place, there're probably more than one tarred with the same brush.

One thing you can be sure of: it's not C. E. S., for obvious reasons, unless there's something he's concealing from us.

And while we're about it, although it's a little late, our thanks to C. E. S. for his many courtesies in 1955 and our hope we'll continue to merit 'em in 1956.

You've Got to Use Services

You never notice the value of a service, the saying goes, until it's curtailed or eliminated..

It happens every day, and increasingly closer to home. The village of Monroeville, for example, now has only one incoming and outgoing mail a day, Sunday and holidays excepted. On these days, there is neither dispatch nor delivery.

Once a service of this type is curtailed, it's almost impossible to restore it to what it was before the cut. Budget funds reallocated to other services seldom become available again.

So far as we know, the folks in Monroville aren't very happy about the situation. But it wasn't done because the postal authorities disliked Monroeville or wanted to make the Monroeville people mad.

It was done because economies directed it. It was a reflection of the decreasing importance of mail of all categories in that post office.

The need for adequate communications, especially through the mails, is paramont to industry, whether established or about to be established. You can't very well induce an industry to build in a town unless facilities are right for it.

But when mail services are curtailed, it's a reflection of what has happened, not what's going to happen. So the moral is this: if you want to keep a service operating at the same level or frequency, you've got to support it, to keep using it.

Once a year, it seems, the publisher of a weekly newspaper needs to clarify th spirit of the editorial. This is our contribution for 1956.

Editorials in this newspaper are published on the editorial page and represent the views of the newspaper only.

When they do not appear on the comment page, they are so labelled, as was the case last week.

An editorial is written for one or more of several purposes. It may be an obituary editorial. It may be for the purpose of informing the public. It could be to guide the readership. Whatever its purpose or intent, it is always prepared with the most serious thought and printed with a full knowledge of the facts involved, so far as they may be available.

It is never printed with the intent to embarrass or criticize any single person or group of persons unless the public interest — such as the disbursement or appropriation of public funds, or the management of public enterprises — is concerned directly.

When the word "we" is used in an editorial, for the most part it is because the editor doesn't want to write the vertical pronoun.

Occasionally the word "we" is used to mean all the people of the community. It is rare that this occurs. When it does, the context is clear.

Always, absolutely always, the comment is designed to induce the public to behave or act in a manner which is believed to be the best for the entire public interest.

So be it. We hope our readers will paste this piece in a prominent place until next year, when we will rewrite it and say substantially the same things again.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Sir:

As I see it, the policy of the Plymouth school board relative to the consolidation with Shiloh is this:

The most important factor is whether we will be able to get enough state aid by consolidating that we can build a new high school of adequate site and facilities.

We have not picked a site for this building nor has any specific site even been considered.

In effecting a consolidation of the two districts, the present two boards will be dissolved and a new board appointed by the county board of education. This new board will have to take the necessary steps to plan a bond issue and to petition for state aid. At the next general election an entirely new board would be elected by the people.

It seems logical that either the second or third boards, preferably the third, should be the one to select the site. There are many factors to be considered in selecting a site - availability of water and utilities, gas, sewerage, drainage, transportation of pupils, transportation of supplies and many other factors.

Thus the selection of a site should not be considered as the prime move in the steps toward consolidation.

To those who are concerned about additional taxes: whether the two districts are consolidate or not, we must ask for an additional bond issue to provide, for the housing of the pupils at the high school level.

Very truly yours,
David E. Cook, Member
Plymouth Local Board of Education

(Ed. Note: Mr. Cook's reasoning is eminently sound, and the facts which he brings forward are entirely correct. Nevertheless, the eperience of most boards involved in consolidation where the building of a new school is required is that the people want to know first where the new school will be located. It has been that way, to some extent, at Greenwich, and there are any number of others. We do not necessarily agree that the overpowering question is how much state aid can be obtained, but this is a matter which we shall discuss under a signed opinion elsewhere.)

Average farm prices decreased about 4 percent in 1955. The decline has been taking place since 1951. A slight additional decline is expected in 1956 by farm economists of Ohio University.

When buying medium or heavy turkeys, 12 pounds or over, allow ½ to ¾ pounds (ready-to-cook) per serving. When buying turkeys under 12 pounds, allow ¾ to 1 pound per serving.

Farmers, food merchants and the government are increasing their efforts to sell the heavy supplies of hogs, cattle and other products which midwestern farmers are sending to market

The Saddest Story In Mind of Man

A new jacket, laboriously constructed by an old lady's work-gnarled hands and worn by her for the first time Saturday, is missing from her home, apparently taken by intruders who entered her home without knocking Saturday afternoon.

The jacket was hanging behind the door in the kitchen of Mrs. Viola Garrett in Delaware street when the intruders, two women dressed as gypsies, entered the kitchen unannounced and immediately began going over Mrs. Garrett's person with their hands. They asked her where her husband was, and when informed that she was a widow, they became bolder and refused to leave the house despite her heated protests. However, when a bread truck stopped in front of the house, they departed, getting into a big dark-colored sedan parked in the alley along the house, where a man or another woman sat behind the wheel.

When she went to get her jacket sometime later, it was gone, presumably taken by the unwelcome intruders. The incident was reported to Marshal A. C. Henry, who searched the village but could find no trace of either the car or its occupants.

On Route 8 at the south edge of New Philadelphia is one of Ohio's top tourist attractions of today, the reconstructed Schoenbrunn Village which gives the motor traveler a chance to turn back the pages of history as he visits a community that looks today just as it did when the village was inhabited by Christian Indians back in 1772.

Board Orders Meter Put in Each House

Board of Public Affairs voted Monday night to instruct the village solicitor to draft an ordinance calling for mandatory installation of water and electric meters in every house in the village for consideration at its next meeting Jan. 23.

Robert L. McIntire was elected president of the board by unanimous vote and the board turned to a discussion of an increase in salary for its clerk, Carl V. Ellis.

Subject to the approval of the solicitor and acquiescence of the council, a raise of $125 annually was voted Ellis. The question of whether he may be given a raise for his duties as clerk of the board when he is already an elective officer of the village will be adjudicated by the solicitor in a written opinion to the council.

Carl Fife, principal of Carl Fife & Sons, low bidders on the test well in the Chapman property at New Haven, appeared to explain difficulties of obtaining 10-inch wrought iron pipe, as required by the specifications drawn by Floyd G. Browne Associates, Marion, consulting engineers. He was given a 30-day extension on the contract, to require performance by Feb. 29, and told that if wrought iron pipe should prove to be in such tight supply that performance cannot be reasonably effected by that date, the board would seek revision of the specifications.

Mrs. Carl V. Ellis was hired as assistant clerk of the board at the same salary.

A request by Russell J. Moser, superintendent of light and power, for wire and lineman's tools was honored with authorization to purchase them.

The board decided to have Moser conduct a personal survey of the entire municipal light and water services before the next meeting, to enable members to acquaint themselves with the establishment and to suggest where economies may be made by disposing of unusable equipment.

Pilgrims Have Fatal Skirmish With Minutemen for 32nd Loss

Despite their heaviest point-production in history, the Pilgrims of Plymouth High school dropped their 32nd consecutive interscholastic basketball contest at Lexington Friday night, 106 to 69.

Ray Einsel and Ted Fox shone for the Pilgrims, with 20 points each, and truth to tell, the Pilgrims held their own in the last three periods.

But a disastrous first eight minutes, in which they scored only three points while the Minutemen were pounding in 33, cost the locals any hope of winning.

Ron Armstrong, leader of the Minutemen, and Tom Volz dropped 23 points each and John Barr accounted for another 18.

It was the seventh straight defeat for the Pilgrims this season. They rest in the bottom slot in the Richland county league.

Shiloh Roars Back Into Title Contention

It was the fifth consecutive win for the Lions and the 10th in 12 games this season.

George Poffenbaugh led the Lions with 19 points, and Jack Hall and Otis Hughes had 14 apiece. The Lions trailed after the first eight minutes, but got up steam in the second period and held on for the win.

Buzz Wareham had 15 for Butler and Bruce Larcomb and Ernie Cochran got a dozen each.

Prides of Plymouth, Tomorrow's Citizens

These two rascals are Randy, three, and Ricky, 18 months, when the picture was taken. They're the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Eurmlee Collins, who live across the square from The Advertiser and just a few steps down from the House of Sealtest.

So far as we can see, they inherited their sunny dispositions from their mother, but alas! no freckles.

The boys are balls of fire, sure enough, and the feller with the white whiskers took good care of them on the 25th of last month.

Randy is built like Hopalong Cassady the football player - he's the original swivel hips of his age, or so his mother says when she runs after him. But he's much more interested in the other Hopalong, horse and all.

Come in and see us often, fellers!

Delectable And Different Ham Loaf

Plentiful pork and pork products can help you put more pennies in your "piggy bank" if you include them frequently in your menus now and in the months ahead. Your meals can be varied and interesting while you effect savings in your food budget. Here's an idea for leftover cooked or baked ham—a delectable and different Pickle Stuffed Ham Loaf. Evaporated milk is the binder and moistening agent for the nicely seasoned ham layers, which are stretched with a zesty pickle layer in the middle.

This is a really thrifty meal, and evaporated milk is a valuable ingredient product in this and similar meat loaves. Because it is whole milk concentrated to half its original volume and used here undiluted, evaporated milk is doubly rich, and therefore doubly nutritious. And it is fortified with vitamin D, the "sunshine vitamin" that helps the body make use of calcium and phosphorus which build bones and teeth.

Pickle Stuffed Ham Loaf

4 cups ground cooked ham, lightly packed
1 cup fine dry bread crumbs
½ teaspoon black pepper
½ teaspoon powdered thyme
½ cup finely chopped onion
1 egg
1¾ cups evaporated milk
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
½ to ¾ cup pickle relish

Boiled or baked ham can be used. Put ham through medium blade of food chopper. Place ham in large mixing bowl. Add ½ cup of the fine dry bread crumbs, the pepper, thyme, onion; mix thoroughly. Beat in the egg and 1 cup of the evaporated milk. Divide ham mixture in half. Pack one half in bottom of a well greased loaf pan, about 2¼ x 8½ x 4¾-inches. Stir mustard into the remaining ¼ cup evaporated milk. Add the remaining ½ cup crumbs and pickle relish, and blend thoroughly. Spread pickle stuffing evenly and firmly on top of ham layer. Pack remaining half of ham mixture over pickle layer. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) about 45 minutes.

YIELD: 6 generous servings.
