Board Inspects Plant, Finds Gauges Rusted, Estimates $1,000 Bill

Unless immediate repairs are carried out at the village water plant, any estimate of water consumption, supply or flow in the water system is pure guesswork, the Board of Public Affairs learned Monday night.

Light and Power Supt. Russell J. Moser conducted a field trip for a number of members of the Board. The rusted gauges are so corroded it is impossible to make any accurate estimate of water supply, demand or flow.

This condition has been called to the attention of previous Boards, Clerk Carl V. Ellis pointed out, but because of lack of funds, no corrective measures were applied.

Consulting engineers retained by the Board in connection with expansion of the water supply system have estimated $5,000 as the amount necessary to put the water plant in good repair. But Board members seemed of the opinion that about $1,200 would do the job.

In a policy decision, they determined to get the water plant into first-class operating condition before undertaking further expansion.

Superintendent Moser reported to the Board that an inventory of municipal property has been made. The water works is overstocked, the Board decided, but the equipment on hand is not useful in making repairs.

Ellis called the Board's attention to a ruling by the Attorney General of Ohio that he is illegally drawing pay as clerk of the Board under an ordinance combining this post with his elective job is passed. Genoa W. Cheesman moved that such an ordinance be recommended for adoption by the council.

Do children act contrary to what they are taught at home? Sometimes.

Does literature coming into the hands of children have a deciding effect on their behavior? Yes.

Do motion pictures and television programs they watch have a deciding effect on their behavior? Yes.

Angry Businessmen Blast Council In Two-Hour Parking Meter Parley

In a tempestuous meeting that made up in contentious debate what it lacked in attendance, the village council came face to face with the business community on the issue of parking meters Tuesday night after two and a half hours, no decision was reached.

With the entire council assembled on the platform in the elementary school auditorium, Mayor Alfred Parkinson called on Frank Ferneus, Ferneus, Inc., Columbus, distributors for the most expensive type of parking meter, to outline the value of installing them.

Before an obviously hostile audience, Ferneus said, "It is not true that parking meters are detrimental to business in the community which installs them. Parking meters provide revenue to a community. They are the only way a town can obtain revenue without a direct levy on the citizens. Out-of-town customers don't contribute to the upkeep of your town. The parking meter is one way that you can make them contribute to the payment of services — the wear and tear on streets, police protection — which they receive."

Ferneus halted after several minutes and invited comment and question. This afforded Robert J. McIntire an opportunity to pose several questions. "I am sure we're all grateful to have someone come in and tell us how to run our businesses, but it is not a parking problem we face. It is a revenue problem. Mansfield still has a parking problem that the parking meter hasn't solved. A parking meter is merely a tax on the vehicle parked there."

He took issue with the statement that out-of-town customers don't pay to support village services. With biting irony, he said customers of one, two and three generations pay sales taxes, they pay real estate and property taxes, they pay many kinds of taxes which contribute to the support of the village.

"I don't believe, in fairness," he went on, "that you can say that our only way to obtain support from our customers is through a tax in the parking meters."

Ferneus said he had come to the meeting to consult in a friendly way with the council and interested citizens, and did not expect a desire to be involved in heated controversy. After one statement — that Plymouth has somewhat of a parking problem in the sense that parking stalls on the square are continually filled — one speaker called out "That's a lie." Mayor Parkinson intervened harshly that this would not be tolerated.

Ferneus said he did not know of any town which has cancelled its parking meter contracts, whereupon McIntire asked what was the situation in Oberlin and Gibsonburg. Ferneus said that in Oberlin no meters had ever been installed and he was not familiar with the Gibsonburg situation.

This touched off another heated exchange between the two goods merchant and Ferneus in which McIntire said "You're trying to sell parking meters." He cited the testimony of a former mayor of Willard, representing that the latter had said the council could get out of the commitments of a parking meter salesman.

Ferneus disavowed any salesmanship, saying he had been invited by the council to present some facts about parking meters generally.

Questioning from the floor swung to Richard Fackler, who pressed Ferneus for a definite statement as to whether there is a parking problem in Plymouth. Ferneus straddled the question, whereupon Mayor Parkinson said, "We have somewhat of a parking problem, but our main problem is need for revenue."

Don Willett rose to say he thought businessmen themselves were taking up parking space needlessly. He said his own survey showed 14 cars belonging to businessmen and four to persons working all day at Wilkins Air Force station.

He asked why the two-hour parking rule was not enforced. Ferneus observed that such a rule is hard to enforce and the mayor interjected that no revenue can be expected from that source.

By this time, the question of an alternative to parking meters as a source of revenue was broached. McIntire suggested a general property tax and Royal W. Eckstein rose to point out that if a one-mill levy for operating expenses is passed by the electorate, its entire proceeds will accrue to the village, rather than to be divided with the state and county, as implied by Mayor Parkinson.

But, Parkinson said, it would

H. A. Kessler, 86, Former Resident, Dies in Norwalk

Harrison A. Kessler, 86, who formerly lived at 199 Sandusky street, died at 5:30 p.m. Monday at the Huron county home, Norwalk.

Born in Mifflinburg Pa., Sept. 30, 1869, he lived for some years near Clyde and thereafter moved to Norwalk.

His wife, the former Creta Rogers, whom he married in 1924, survives, as do two daughters, Mrs. Catherine Backer, Cleveland, and Mrs. Ellen Prince, Phoenix, Ariz.; three sisters, Mrs. Ella Walters, Marion; Mrs. Birdie Bernard, Toledo, and Mrs. Margaret Brandstader, living in California; a brother, Allen, Marion, and two step-daughters and a step-son.

The Rev. Ralph Dessen, pastor of First Methodist church, Bellevue, will pronounce last rites today at 2 p.m. from the Waters & Smith Funeral home here. Burial will be in Green Springs cemetery.

be a year before the money would be available for use, whereas the village needs the money now.

Eilon Robertson asked if another patrolman would be needed to collect the money and to watch the parking meters. Mayor Parkinson replied he did not think so.

At this point, Ralph W. Ream stood up and in impassioned phrases said he thought the businessmen should consider the 1,600 people of Plymouth.

"When I come to town at 4:30 with my car, I can't find a parking place. Everybody talks about out-of-town trade, but nobody shows any concern for the town-people."

Pressed by another spectator for a statement, pro or con, Ream said, "I am not going to say I'm against the meters now if a year from now we're not going to get police or fire protection because we don't have any money."

Here Clerk Carl V. Ellis was asked to present some facts about budgetary operations, which threw open to discussion the whole ramification of village finance. Neither Ellis nor the council gave an answer to the question of whether the carry-over of the general fund is deducted from the next year's appropriation. (Ed. Note: It is.)

By this time, the center of conversation swung back to the council, and Councilman Maurice Bachrach said he had polled a dozen merchants in Willard with only one vote opposing parking meters.

"If these businessmen, whom I count among my friends, want to

Sir: At last Friday's meeting of Plymouth Grange; the subject of parking meters in Plymouth was brought up and talked about, and then voted upon. The vote was 100 per cent against them, as Plymouth has no parking trouble. All the board can say is "we need the revenue". Well, who doesn't? The Grange feels that their class will have to pay to sell their produce. If we would keep our eggs alone out of Plymouth, the people would feel it.

Pilgrims Play Lions Here Tuesday Night

Pilgrims Lose Heartbreaker to Union, 79-78

Shiloh's Lions, breathing hard down the necks of Lexington High for the Richland county league championship, seek their second win of the home — and — home series over Plymouth's Pilgrims here Tuesday night.

Coach Harold Daup's forces, which defeated Lucas in overtime Friday, 79 to 75, have won 12 of 14 contests this season.

Starting lineups are likely to be:

Shiloh		Plymouth
Hall,	f	Berberick
Poffenbaugh,	f	Caudill
Hughes,	c	Taylor
Sloan,	g	Fox
Barnard,	g	Einsel

If you're subject to heart failure, stay away from the high school gymnasium these cold Friday nights.

That, at least, was sound advice Friday when Plymouth's once-victorious Pilgrims took on Union High school in a Richland county league game and finally succumbed in the last five seconds, 79 to 78. Scorers lost count of the number of times of change of lead in the game.

The Pilgrims pushed to a slim two-point lead at the end of the third canto and held on grimly in the final eight minutes. With the score knotted in the last half minute, the Red and White misinterpreted an instruction of Coach Lew Pettit. He told the Pilgrims to hold the ball and push the game into overtime. They, instead, drove in for a shot, missed it, and in the ensuing scramble Dave Clingan was awarded a penalty shot. This he converted. The Pilgrims' Herb Caudill drove one in with only five seconds remaining. It took some time to make up its mind, then rolled out of the hoop.

Ted Fox led the point-getters for Plymouth with 27, and Ray Einsel added another 20. There were four Pilgrims in double figures.

Clingan and Jim Sprunger led the Union five with 18 apiece. The little Pilgrims dropped the curtain-raiser, 47 to 31.

Safer Driving by Point System

Almost everywhere we turn, we see some reference to reckless and unsafe driving. This is as it should be. Ohio set the national record for killings by automobile during the Christmas — New Year's weekend.

Certainly the publicity campaign should help. But there are other ways to help the situation, and we honestly feel they should be given prompt consideration.

First, persons convicted of driving while drunk should be fined, jailed, and suffer revocation of their drivers' licenses for two years. Some of the culprits of our acquaintance laugh off a conviction, charge it up to bad luck, and within a few days are abusing the same privileges again.

A man said to us the other day: "You can sue somebody for all he has or hopes to have, and deprive him of his wife and children, but when you take his car, LOOK OUT!"

It is true, unfortunately, and the way to cure drunken driving is to take away a driver's license for two years. The heck with whether he needs it to drive to work—he should have thought of that before he took that last drink.

Second, a point system for traffic enforced. In Somerset county, New Jersey, two drivers have recently lost their licenses because they got too many points.

Kempson W. Wall, 20, lost his because he had three speeding convictions one driving without a license, one passing a red light, Alfred L. Bernard, 22, lost his for racing with another car, driving without a license, two speeding convictions.

The point is the state commissioner for motor vehicles has suspended their rights to drive indefinitely, and can make it stick.

Around The Square with Phineas Whittleseed

Our mutt took to romancing again last week, and was gone one whole cold night. The polticker is so addicted to sleeping on a fancy blanket on Milady's bed that Phin is sure he didn't stay out all night. He slept in somewhere, that guy did.

On Tuesday last week, when Phin was stealing time from other duties to hunt the rascal down, he encountered young Doug McQuate.

"Hi, Doug," we said, "if you should see that dumb hound of ours, kick him in the tail and send him home."

"Sure will," replied Doug, "and if you see my Mom, you do the same."

Many things we will do for you, Dougal, BUT NOT THAT NO-NEVER-NOT-THAT!

Prof. Hobart Coffey, director of the law library of the University of Michigan, writes that the library is making a permanent record of a book we wrote once. On microfilm, no less. It's all about the treaties and agreements having the character of treaties between the Empire of Ethiopia and other countries, which we wrote a long time ago.

Professor Coffey says he was born near Tiro and lived part of his life in Creston, which is in Wayne county, just a few steps down the line from the junior Advertiser at Lodi.

We thank you, professor.

Death tolls on the highways in New Jersey have taken a downward turn since this law was enforced.

Why not here?

Raymond L. Brooks is trying again to be elected commissioner of Richland county. Last year, he ran a close race and was defeated only in the last hour of counting.

He has a tough fight in the primaries this year, running against two such solid vote — getters as John Selby and John Friday.

We hope he makes it. Last year, when he was running in the general election against Fred C. Dawson of Shiloh, he reluctantly chose between two neighbors because we thought it was high time Plymouth township and the village of Plymouth should have a representative on the board of commissioners.

We still think so. We have no axe to grind with either Mr. Friday or Mr. Selby. If we did, we would tell them so, and make no bones about it.

But only two Republicans can be chosen in the primary. We wish the best of luck to both Mr. Friday and Mr. Selby in their quest for one of the posts.

For the other, we want to see Raymond L. Brooks elected, and we will work, and work hard, to that end.

years - $50, and "this offer expires when I do."

The headings throughout this sheet are in the old-time wooden type that was in vogue when Grandmother was a girl, and it is apparent that Mr. Oliver is not only a master printer but a good editor with a crafty sense of the dramatic. One little yarn caught Phin's eye, ironic, suitable for public consumption, and indicative of the kind of people we are:

"The names of most dance-hall girls have been forgotten. One exception is Anna King, who was murdered in a dance-hall brawl at Bonanza and was buried by a committee of miners from Custer who learned that respectable townfolk did not want her bones to lie in the town graveyard. They painted her well to one side in a square of earth marked by four beautiful pine trees. So magnificent were these trees that Anna's grave became eventually a state beauty spot cared for by the Department of Forestry."

Harry Oliver admits he is the biggest liar outside of Soviet Russia, and it's real tonic to read his stuff. There's more truth in his lies than nine tenths of the stuff we take as honest-to-God truth.

And wasn't it nice that Mrs. Foster retained her grip to the last and arranged her own funeral? Chose everything about it. R. E. M. says.

Correction No. 2: 'twas only an oversight that the name of Otto Kinsel was omitted from the necrology of 1955. Certainly, if offense were intended, it would be done in some really nasty way.

Riddle: what is it, old as man himself, that lures young boys and old men, parts them from their money, and leaves them less satisfied?

When you consider he drove up here from Columbus at his own expense, at the request of the village council, a vote of thanks is due Frank Ferguson, whose department under fire was a model for anybody who cared to learn from his example. The abuse he got wasn't worth the trip. But folks were expecting fireworks and that's what they got.

And scallions to the guy who told the businessmen and certain segments of the press the purpose of the meeting was other than to discuss parking meters.

FIX-UP TIPS
For the Home

Use Preswood Bed-Board
When the doctor recommends a bed-board, get one from your lumber dealer. Ask him for a piece of Masonite 1/4" Tempered Preswood, a smooth hardboard that's splinter-free and easily kept clean.

The size is a few inches smaller than the bed spring. A bed-board fits between the spring and mattress and gives a firmness sometimes required in alleviating a back ailment.

Only simple preparation of the board is required. Round the edges slightly and bevel the edges of the smooth side lightly, with a file or sandblock. Tempered Preswood is a widely-used fix-up material. With the cut-offs from the bed-board, you can make a kitchen blackboard, for example, by covering the hardboard surface with a slating material available at paint stores. Whenever a strong, moisture-resistant panel is needed, try this material. It has no grain, no splinters, no knots. It may be sawed, planed, filed, nailed, screwed, glued or riveted. Experts and handcrafters say they always keep a supply of Masonite Tempered Preswood on hand.

100 Aftend School Of Muck Crop Group, Hear J. F. Stambaugh

One hundred muck growers from Celeryville and other areas in Ohio attended the muck crops school at the Celeryville Christian Reformed Church, Thursday and Friday.

Raymond Wiers, committee chairman, opened the program on Thursday by presenting John Stambaugh, Celeryville Conservancy district chairman, to discuss problems of the district. Mr. Stambaugh pointed out the changes which have occurred during the past few months since the Soil Conservation Service started another survey. Completion of this survey should be realized within the next few months. The federal government will finance the cost of the project, Stambaugh reported, if that cost in all its various phases is found to be economically feasible.

John Wells, county agricultural agent, acting as general chairman of the muck school, presented research men from the Ohio Agricultural Experiment station to discuss their projects.

Dr. Freeman Howlett, chairman of the horticultural department, discussed the importance of analysis and the progress being made in this field. He cautioned the growers against accepting results from plant tissue tests by unqualified technicians. Extensive tests and considerable time are necessary for reliable results from any foliar analysis.

Dr. W. E. Kraus, associate director of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment station, reported that after careful consideration by research men and administration a decision had been made to temporarily interrupt several experiments now going on at the Celeryville sub-station in order to conduct a detailed foliar analysis study. The station will require nearly 1,200 plots, which will require nearly 12,000 soil tests in order to obtain comparable foliar analyses. In this way, Dr. Kraus reported, applications of different fertilizers can be viewed and results determined.

Dr. E. K. Alban, now working on weed control, presented many new chemicals that are now on the market but cautioned growers on the use of such chemicals. Only those approved by the Pure Food and Drug division, and so stated on the label of the product, should be considered.

The muck school committee, composed of Anco Burma, Charles Hanline, Burr Knauts, Henry E. Wiers and Raymond Wiers, was congratulated on its program for this year by those attending. New members elected were Robert Danhoff and Richard Burma. They will replace Anco Burma and Burr Knauts on the committee for 1957.

Dates for the 1957 school were set for Jan. 24-25.

At this point, when a photo-Ray Dinninger said after the graphic appeared, many of the audience dispersed, and the meeting broke up. Ray Dinninger said after the meeting, he would attempt to upset legally any ordinance passed by the council.
