

Report recommends merger of districts, school board demurs

Prompted by the publication of the Heller report suggesting the consolidation of Plymouth and Shiloh schools, four members of the Plymouth board of education with Supt. M. J. Coon met Saturday morning with the Richland county board of education. But no positive action was taken.

The state's $75,000 report suggests a consolidation which has been under consideration by the state board for almost 10 years.

County Supt. Dale B. Kinney briefly cited the highlights of the report, which he said expressed the same sentiments as a similar survey made by the state two years ago. The state board, he said, would be apt to adopt all the suggestions made in the newer survey. It lists the Plymouth-Shiloh consolidation as 62nd in priority for monies in the amount of $167,000, which will be loaned by the state and payable within 30 years.

THE ONLY OTHER SCHOOL in the county considered is Lexington, which is placed as 27th on the priority list. Some $606,000 is earmarked for it for building purposes next year plus an additional sum to be used in 1960 for building.

Mr. Kinney pointed out the Heller report strongly suggests the local boards handle their own problem. If they fail to act, the state board should take action.

Kinney then read a letter to the county board from Mr. Coon, setting forth Plymouth's arguments against consolidation on grounds of financing.

Basically, the figures cited by Coon were: cost of a new high school building, $664,000; state is willing to loan: $166,000; balance to be financed locally, $498,000; if both districts vote nine per cent maximum indebtedness, districts can raise: $325,000; balance needed, with no evident source: $173,000.

A letter from the Shiloh board which reaffirmed its position of last spring — that Shiloh is ready to consolidate with the understanding that the building be placed midway between the two villages — was then read. It said that in spite of adverse publicity of the financial situation of the Plymouth board, it felt that the majority of Shiloh school district patrons believe the merging of the schools would be for the best welfare of the students.

In the discussion which followed, Mrs. Helen Willson of Belleville called the Plymouth board on the carpet for the inadequacy of the survey which the county board requested this summer. Mrs. Willson said the survey was meant to be a house-to-house canvass, which would produce more definite answers, rather than a "half-hearted post card survey" which would be ignored. Results of the survey showed a poor return of cards. Speaking for the county board, she did not think that it reflected the accurate feelings of the school district.

HER REMARKS WERE ANSWERED by Donald P. Markley, spokesman for the Plymouth board throughout the meeting. He said the Plymouth board did not have proper figures at the time to explain the money situation to the district.

He then launched into a resume of the feelings of the Plymouth board regarding the financial aspects of the proposed consolidation and building. The gist of his remarks was that the cost and upkeep of an extra building with administrative and janitorial service would in the long run take a greater proportion of monies available to run the school than are needed now. As a result, Mr. Markley said, teacher's salaries would not meet current levels.

Mrs. Willson argued that with a good school plant, good teachers would be available at existing salaries. If a consolidation occurs, one teacher in a number of cases would take the place of two now hired by the two schools. "The good of our children is involved," she asserted. "More thought should be given to this fact. I am not sure you are thinking enough about boys and girls. You are thinking more of costs."

Earl Huston agreed with this view.

Huston charged "this situation has been tossed around for the last 10 years. I predicted in the beginning when no positive action was taken the same situation would continue to exist."

Another spokesman for the county organization, Lewis Rhinehart, stated that the county wanted to see the two boards cooperate to the fullest of their abilities and think of the situation in terms of what would be best for the children. Rhinehart defeated J. Harold Cashman, Plymouth board president for the last vacancy on the county board in 1955.

PLYMOUTH MEMBERS were reminded by Mr. Kinney the two schools had "probably lost $225,000 for building purposes because you refused to act in January." The proposed building might have received that amount then, as it was listed high on the priority list.

Judson A. Morrison then threw the meeting into a stalemate by suggesting the Shiloh and Plymouth boards reconsider the problem.

Shiloh farmer killed as NYC train strikes sedan at crossing

The lunch he was eating in the rear seat of the family Buick cost a prominent Cass township farmer his life Monday at 1:15 p.m.

Harold B. Paine, 34, was killed instantly when a New York Central passenger train, eastbound, struck the rear of the family sedan driven by his wife, Esther, at the Plankton North crossing.

Eyewitness reported Mrs. Paine halted at the crossing to permit the train to pass. She was south, with her 12-year-old son, when the crushing passenger train in the opposite direction.

Paine was thrown from the car as the locomotive sheared off the rear portion of the vehicle.

Richland County Coroner D. C. Lavender ruled death was caused by a fractured skull.

MRS. PAINE, NOT SERIOUSLY hurt, was removed to Willard Municipal hospital for treatment of shock.

An affluent farmer, Mr. Paine was a member of Shiloh Methodist church, Shiloh Grange and the Jersey Cattle club. His wife is his only survivor.

Private funeral services were conducted yesterday at 2 p.m. from the McQuate Funeral home, Shiloh, by the Revs. Wolfe, pastor of Delphi Methodist church, and Leroy Coffey, Shelby police chief. Interment was in Mt. Hope cemetery.

HOLIDAY BIRD KEEPS STEP WITH TIMES

Turkey is a different bird by design

The Pilgrims, by present day standards, had mightn't pickin' in their first Thanksgiving turkey.

The wild turkey was—and is—comparatively small and skinny.

Turkeys that grace Thanksgiving day tables nowadays represent the triumph of long years of experimentation climaxed by the development of the Broad-Breasted Bronze turkey and the apartment-size Beltsville Small White turkey.

These breeds are truly modern. The Broad-Breasted Bronze — which originated in England — took over the major share of the American market around 1940. The small — but — plump Beltsville White became commercially available in 1948. Another newcomer, the Broad-Breasted White turkey, began to assume significance last year.

THE PRESENT BROAD-BREASTED breeds were developed by private poultrymen: the Beltsville bird takes its name from the U. S. Department of Agriculture's research center at Beltsville, Md., where the breed was developed.

The heavy birds, which are the choice of the restaurant-otel industry, still far outnumber the light breeds—by 62,758,000 to 13,382, 000 in this year's record crop, the Department of Agriculture estimates.

All the turkeys in the world are descended from two species, the never-tamed Yucatan turkey, which inhabits the forests of southern Mexico and Central America, and the North American wild turkey—from which all domesticated turkeys were developed.

Spanish explorers took back turkeys bred by Aztec Indians from wild stock to Spain in the early 16th century. Some of the early American colonists brought turkeys with them from Europe to this continent.

Some of the colorful breeds—the Bourbon Red, the Black, the Narragansett and the Slate—have almost disappeared from the American scene, along with the old "Standard Bronze."

NOW THAT MEATY VARIETIES have been developed to suit most appetites, and fast-freezing has made the turkey a potential year-around dish, what next?

Present research at Beltsville is aimed at nutrition and conquering turkey diseases. The modern turkey, says a poultryman, is a "package" along with its feed. But there always are problems.

One of the long-range questions has been the best way to rear turkeys in confinement (most still are reared on the open range). For a time the answer appeared to be confining the birds in shelters ("platforms") entirely off the ground.

BUT TURKEYS IN SUCH surroundings tended to develop foot troubles (callouses) and breast blisters. So now the trend is to "pole barns"—a roof, poles and wire, with the ground covered with straw or shavings.

Beltsville also is running a continuing experiment that has received some attention but so far has no foreseeable practical value—the fatherless turkey. In 1954 Beltsville reported hatching a live turkey (it lived 18 hours) from an unfertilized egg—and this year the research center reported hatching three others similarly, one living 18 hours, another 18 days, the last 22 days. The researchers, interested in the possibility of a strain that might develop parthenogenetic offspring, said they applied no stimulus to the eggs. Current thought is that the foxglove organism, which has been responsible for these hatch-

Petition by subscribers can be resorted to, the commission said, if they believe the raise unwarranted.

Be thankful

Another Thanksgiving is upon us. It's almost the last of the holidays that isn't commercialized beyond all semblance of its initial intent.

Manifesting one's gratitude for his blessings is implicit in each of the major religions, from Buddhism to Zoroastrianism. A godly person — and we are all constructed in the image of God — has a solemn obligation to render thanks to the Almighty for the talents bestowed upon him, even when he has done nothing about those talents.

Thanksgiving is merely a national holiday when all faiths unite under one leadership to join together in a mass paean of gratitude for His blessings.

There is much to be thankful for. Be thankful that the sewer issue didn't pass; we are safe from disease, and there no longer is any danger that a new industry will come here. Be thankful that the one mill operating levy was not renewed: the village would only waste the money. Be thankful that obstructionists oppose school consolidation: our children have absolutely no need for two foreign languages, for better paid teachers, for larger grades (and smaller classes) so that pupils may profit from richer and more varied school experiences. Be thankful that an outlander pops off every week in this newspaper with crazy suggestions for the improvement of our community; it gives an opportunity to blame him for the failures of others.

Be thankful that nobody save the newspapermen attend council and Board of Education meetings: they never do anything there, anyway. Be thankful that only a few attend meetings of the Chamber of Commerce and the American Legion: they'd be too powerful if the attendance were greater.

Aye, there is much to be thankful for, Thanksgiving day, 1956.

Somebody out there says so, too

The suggestion in the Heller Report to the State Board of Education that the Plymouth and Shiloh school districts be consolidated agrees with the thinking of a number of leaders in those communities.

Obviously it does not agree with the present majority-thinking or the consolidation would already have been accomplished. Need for it has been fairly evident for a long time — purely on the basis of an opportunity to give the children of the area better school facilities and a more varied curriculum.

There is no intention here to minimize the feeling of opposition which exists in some quarters, nor to try to tell the people of those districts how they should run their schools.

We do feel, however, that in view of this impartial report to the state board, the residents of Plymouth and Shiloh might do well to approach the whole subject anew and with open minds.

Consolidation is nothing new. It is the outgrowth of better transportation and, over the state, it has helped improve educational standards tremendously.

It has worked to almost universal advantage by making the resources of a large area available to the operation of a single school, whereas years ago each school's resources were limited to the property within the pupils' walking distance of a building.

usual amount of raging and twitting, including some slighting remarks on a delicate subject: finance. (His allowance is overdrawn.)

Finally, he lunged for and knife into his plate and turned upon The Old Man: "I'd just like to have a recording of what you said when you asked for your first date."

Thereafter Phin maintained complete silence, ears burning, and contemplating the eminent justice of his remark.

TRUTH TO TELL SON, AFTER SHE WAS fed up with us, she threw us over for a linoleum layer with a mustache.

Ah, how times change. We were all of 17 when we asked for our first real date. He's just over half that age. Which leads us to a tentative conclusion, reinforced by the realization he's twice as handsome as we are, that the younger generation must be just twice as quick as we were.

The world may be going to hell in a handbasket, and there may be some kids who go mad over Elvis Presley, hot rods and other juvenile diversions. But it's part of growing up, and they seem to be growing up faster than our generation did. More power to 'em.

A CEMETERY WORKER, ABSORBED IN his thoughts, dug the grave so deep he couldn't get out. Came nightfall and the evening chill, his predicament became more and more uncomfortable. He shouted for help and at last attracted the attention of a drunk. "Get me out of here," he shouted. "I'm cold." The drunk looked into the grave and finally distinguished the form of the uncomfortable grave digger. "No wonder you're cold," he commented. "You haven't any dirt on you!"

And with much, personally to be thankful for, Phin wishes one and all a Happy Thanksgiving. The bicarbonate is on the second shelf here.

Most especially, Happy Thanksgiving to C. W.

Things just aren't quite the same around our house. Our Nine Year Old shows signs of becoming a man.

The other afternoon, after a business transaction involving a pair of warm mittens, he sped off to the south part of town and rapped at a certain door.

The handsome lady who lives there responded to the summons and he asked if her daughter was in. She said no, and he asked her to ask the daughter to telephone him.

Now the little girl is a favorite of ours, but we felt constrained to point our rather vigorously that there's no need to crawl on your knees to 'em. Not in the face of the recent report that women exceed men in these Yew-nited States by 1,350,000.

Mrs. Allen killed as employer's car fails to halt at sign

Garretts have guests

Mr. and Mrs. Foster Smith of New Haven were Sunday callers on Mr. and Mrs. Hobart Garrett in West Main street and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Livenspire.

Alaska cold, report construction men; ancient tusk found

Hobart (Kid) Garrett of West Main street and Foster Smith of New Haven arrived home Monday night from Alaska, where they spent the summer and fall on government work for the Hirsch Construction Co. of Columbus. They left Fairbanks by plane early Sunday morning.

Mrs. Lubold hurt in freak accident

Mrs. R. L. Lubold, wife of the Rev. R. L. Lubold, former pastor of the Mt. Hope Lutheran church, Shiloh, was admitted to Shelby Memorial hospital Thursday morning for treatment of a fractured left wrist and multiple minor bruises suffered in a freak car accident near Steuben about 9 a.m.

Garrett brought back with him a section of mastodon tusk uncovered in mining operations. The sawed-off section is about five inches in diameter and 15 inches long. It is on display at the Shiloh inn.

The Lubolds, with the Rev. Mr. Lubold at the wheel, were enroute from Shiloh to their home in Lakeside when a severe gust of wind struck the car near the home of D. D. Starkey in Route 198, causing the dryer to lose control. It went into the ditch. The front fender struck the embankment and slowed the car's momentum before it hit a small tree and turned over on its top.

It really got cold at Fairbanks, Garrett states. The temperature dropped as low as 40 degrees below zero. However, at Anchorage, where they stopped briefly, the weather was comparatively mild. The thermometer had not dropped much below zero.

A Shiloh woman returning with her employer from an afternoon of baby-sitting was killed Friday afternoon when her employer's car went through a stop sign and was struck broadside by another.

Dead in the collision, which occurred at the intersection of Routes 173 and 96 southeast of here, are Mrs. Margaret Allen, 63, Shiloh; Mrs. Mary Bond, 26, Lucas route 1, her employer, and Mrs. Bond's five-year-old son, Larry.

Another son, Ricky, three, survived the crash. He is said to be "improving" in Shelby Memorial hospital.

A STATE HIGHWAY PATROLMAN who was following Mrs. Bond's car said she drove through the stop sign and was struck by a vehicle operated by Richard Barth, 22, Upper Sandusky route 1.

The three were the 25th, 26th and 27th traffic fatalities of the year in Richland county.

Born in Kentucky in 1895, Mrs. Allen is survived by her husband, M. C., Shiloh; four daughters, Mrs. Catherine Stigall and Mrs. Rebecca Osley, Mansfield; Mrs. Bessie Osley, Risner, Ky.; and Louise Oney, Shiloh; a son Oliver, Wheelright, Ky.; a sister, Ida Willams, East Burley, Ky.; 18 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

The Rev. Mr. Lubold freed himself by cranking up a rear window in the car and went to the Starkey home for assistance in removing Mrs. Lubold.

Miraculously, the windshield and windows of the 1953 Dodge sedan were not broken. Dishes packed in the rear of the car suffered no damage either. A small trailer being pulled behind the car was released when the car went into the ditch and continued 60 feet in the road but did not upset. The only apparent damage, to the car was a slightly dented front fender and a smashed grill, the Rev. Mr. Lubold reported.

Thanksgiving Day will be a happier, more meaningful day...

for a "thank-you visit" to your church or synagogue

It's a story we all know and love—the first Pilgrim Thanksgiving. The excitement in their little homes must have been pretty much as it is today—the tantalizing smells of roast turkey and pumpkin pie—the bustle and rush of eager children—it must have been a wonderful day!

But before the Pilgrims sat down to their feast they observed the true meaning of Thanksgiving. They all gathered together in their meetinghouse to give thanks for the good they had received, for survival through a long year of hardship, and to pray for the strength and courage to keep their faith in this strange, new land.

This Thanksgiving, why not take your family to your house of worship. A quiet hour of prayer and thanks will make your holiday so much more meaningful.

Wherever you are... whatever your beliefs may be... take time to offer your words of thanks... just as the Pilgrims did more than 300 years ago.

Guinea Corners native found dead of accidental wound at Monroeville

A prominent Monroeville automobile dealer who was born at Guinea Corners in New Haven township lost his life Nov. 14 when the shotgun he was cleaning discharged, sending a blast through his left arm and upper chest.

He was 59-year-old George S. Sparks, Chevrolet and John Deere dealer in Monroeville.

His wife, Ruth, who had been visiting a neighbor's home, found the body at 6:30 p.m. Sheriff's deputies reasoned Sparks must have been inspecting the muzzle of the gun when the shell discharged. The safety was not set. The victim's left arm was nearly torn from his body.

Huron County Coroner Charles Edet ruled death by accident.

Mr. Sparks was a member of Roby Lodge, F. & A. M., the Scottish Rite, Toledo, and the Shrine, Cleveland. In addition to his wife, a son, Lowell, Monroeville; a stepson, Ted Crawford, serving in the Army in Germany; a brother, Walter, Monroeville rural; a sister, Mrs. Madala Lawton, Los Angeles, Cal., and his father, George F. Sparks, survive.

Funeral services were conducted Saturday by the Rev. Harold Filley. Burial was in Milan cemetery.

Five Pilgrims on press' all-loop team

Plymouth's championship Pilgrims placed five regulars on The Advertiser's all-conference team this season.

Runner-up Berlin Heights got three of the coveted posts and Lodi, Townsend-Wakeman and LeRoy one each.

Selected by sports writers of the loop, the 22 top ranking players in the conference boast the reputation of hard tackling, crisp blocking and, in the backfield, triple-threaters all the way around.

EDDIE TAYLOR, WHOSE point total leads the central Ohio area, was the unanimous choice for left halfback. His teammate, field general Ray Einsel, narrowly defeated Noel Davis of LeRoy for the signal caller's spot.

Coach Snag Sanders' twin aces, Dewey Acord and Paul Oslin, were ranked ahead of other backs in the conference for the other backfield posts.

In the forward wall, three Pilgrims got the nod. Ted Fox was rated the best end in the league. Franklin Eckstein and Tom Wilson of Lodi were given the tackle honors. Bing Reynolds of Townsend-Wakeman, although he played at tackle much of the time, was a line biker at guard and thus was assigned that post. His running mate was the unsung Dave Birmingham of LeRoy.

Mickey Hampton, who started the season as a back but switched to center, received recognition for his outstanding defensive play.

Neil Leimbach, Berlin Heights flanker, got the seventh post in the line.

Yellow Jackets split in first two games

New Haven's Yellow Jackets resume their 1956-57 schedule at Shiloh Tuesday.

Remainder of the schedule for Coach Roy Collins' crew: Nov. 30, Berlin Heights, away; Dec. 4, Plymouth, away; 7, Milan, home; 11, Norwalk St. Paul's away; 14, Monroeville, away; 18, North Fairfield, away; 21, Townsend-Wakeman, home.

Jan. 4, Greenwich, away; 11, Berlin Heights, home; 15, Greenwich, home; 18, Milan, away; 25, Monroeville, home; 26, Polk, home;

The Nine Old Men and a Boy outfit in black and gold with the world Cornell's spread across the chest is due for a youth movement.

"We're just like the Indians and the Browns," says sponsor W. M. Cornell. "We need some young blood and we are dickering with some new talent."

The Cornell's aggregation intends to match the Cleveland Browns basketball stars and the Ohio Stars, with all-American Bevo Francis before the season is out.

Meanwhile, to keep its hand in, the quintet is entered in the Willard City League, which opens Dec. 6 and will play Thursdays. It will also play independent ball on the high school court.
