Willard Youth Hurt In Head-on Crash

A 22-year-old Willard youth is still in critical condition in Willard Municipal hospital as the result of a headon crash with an- Amherst driver in Routh 61 at Morse's hill Friday at 4:45 p.m.

Morgan Hall, Jr., 22, mechanic in the Ford dealership at Willard, endeavored to overtake another machine without sufficient clearance. When he applied brakes, he skidded into the path of a Dodge driven by Archie Sawyer, 65, Amherst, returning with his wife, Ione, 48, and Mrs. Regina Krupnik, also of Amherst, from a trip to Florida.

Sawyer and his passengers were removed to the hospital by McQuate's ambulance. They were released after treatment for shock, lacerations, and contusions. A small dog riding with them was unhurt.

Hall's skull was crushed. His sedan was towed away by a local garage, a complete loss.

Mayor Gets 30-Day Leave

Mayor Alfred Parkinson applied for and got a 30 day leave of absence, effective at once, at Tuesday's council meeting, but Maurice Bachrach's resignation as councilman was tabled.

Parkinson waited until the end of a four-hour meeting to tell the council he has been asked to serve in a civilian capacity on a Defense Department task force in Alaska and Canada. He promised he would try to be in Plymouth on weekends and hoped to conclude the assignment in 30 days.

Bachrach's resignation, which was a terse, one-sentence affair, gave no reason other than "pressure of other interests" but his colleagues turned it down flatly.

Roger W. Loveless of Alden W. Stilson & Associates, Ltd., appeared with final blueprints of the proposed sewer system. He came up with a figure of $531,000 for the entire project, which he said cannot be economicaly of feasibly done in a "piecemeal fashion." Despite the notion of the State Water Pollution Control board that an "abbreviated" plan would be susceptible of limited finance, Loveless outlined another course, which he said was "practicable and logical."

It involves:

1. Placing of a $150,000 general obligation bond issue on the November ballot, and "selling" it to the electorate.

2. Financing of the balance — $300,000 to $350,000 at the most — on a mortgage revenue basis. Households would pay, he said, an annual service charge (he mentioned $36 a year) for sewer service. From the proceeds of this fund, mortgage revenue bonds could be retired.

3. Consideration by the council of special assessment bonds. Perhaps, Lovless said, laterals and other work could be separated in cost from the major part of the project and their cost lumped so that property owners would pay assessments in proportion to the front footage of property benefitted.

After some questioning and lengthy explanation, Loveless was excused, but not until the council had authorized payment for $1,400, the balance of his firm's bill for the survey work of additions and extensions, which amount to $69,000.

Four property-holders in Trux street appeared to request relief of a water situation in their nighborhood. They were Horace Goldsmith, James Lindsay, Fred Barnes and James Reynolds. The council promised to look into the situation and to afford remedies.

Salvatore J. Glorioso asked the council for money, with which to buy a police uniform. He was told he can have $50 from the uniform allowance fund.

Residents of the Richland county side of the village were wondering this week why some mysterious person — or persons — has a hankering for narcissus — flowers, stems, and bulbs!

At least two told The Advertiser that intruders have taken substantial numbers of the bulbs from their gardens.

Ross Operates 'Electronic Computer'

The first "electronic computer" to be installed in this area, an IBM 650 magnetic drum datea processing machine, was put into operation at the Shelby Air Force depot last week. This is one of 15 such machines the Air Force is using to modernize its complex supply procedures.

Wayne Ross, of statistical services, is the nucleus of a new department of trained specialists to work on the 650. He stated the new machine can process about 15,000 items in five to eight hours, a task that originally took 15,000 man-hours to accomplish.

According to Harold Johnson, chief of statistical services, the 650 machine not only adds, subtracts, multiplies, and divides, and then checks the accuracy of its answers, but it also has a complex magnetic drum that memorizes 20,000 digits.

The machine is capable of performing some operations in ten minutes that previously took three months for most workers. It is capable of 138,000 logical decisions per minute.

Presently, the 650 wil be used to parallel previous manual operations in property accounting, procurement records, payrolls, future delivery schedules, and many others according to Johnson. Eventually, it will be used to work in other, more complex fields, he added.

Here's brief example of how the 650's magnetic drum "memory" operates when Depot statistical experts wish to solve a series of complex mathematical equations.

The 650 operator first programs the machine by feeding into it a series of punched cards in which have been punched operating instructions on how to solve the problem. Then, the operator gives the machine all established data taken from previous experiments or calculations. This data may be in the form of known constants or tables of mathematical functions.

A device on the 650 reads the punched cards, transmitting the program and established data to the magnetic drum "memory". Each number is scored on the drum surface as tiny magnetized spots. Each group of spots has an "address" so that any number can be called for when needed.

The drum, only four inches in diameter and 16 inches long, turns at the rate of 12,500 revolutions per minute. Even though it holds up to 20,000 digits at 2,000 separate "addresses," the average "address" can be located in less than three-thousandths of a second.

The problem itself is transmitted to the machine by punched cards after which the calculating process begins. There cards may be fed to 650 at the rate of 200 a minute. Additions and subtractions of 10-digit numbers are performed at the rate of 200 a second; multiplications of 10-digit numbers by 10-digit numbers at the rate of about 80 a second; divisions of 10-digit numbers by 10-digit divisors at the rate of about 50 a second.

To demonsrtate 650's amazing efficiency, Ross set up a series of simple mathematical problems. The answers were flashed back almost instantly, yet the machine had completed more than 2,000 separate additions in 10 seconds!

Harmon Sloan Wins State Farmer Degree For Outstanding Work

A Shiloh boy will receive the State Farmer degree at the 28th annual convention of the Ohio association, Future Farmers of America, at Ohio State university June 1.

He is Harmon Sloan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Judd Sloan, Shiloh route 1, who has fulfilled the requirements for the honorary degree by conducting an outstanding farming program, demonstrating qualitis of leadership, and participating in school activities.

When he was a seventh grader, young Sloan rented a farm and bought a tractor. Since then, he's owned five tractors, now has a John Deere 70 with a four-bottom plow. With farm earnings — his total investment is now $8,200 — he has bought and paid for a full line of farm equipment.

He farms the home place and two others he has rented over the past two years.

A member of the class of 1956 at Shiloh High school, young Sloan was president of his class last year, treasurer in his sophomore year, played on the basketball and baseball teams all four yours. He's an honor roll student, has taken an active part in FFA activities, having served as vice-president last year, chairman of the FFA farm committee his senior year.

For the past two years, he was awarded first prize by the Ohio Bankers association for the best project book records in his local chapter.

Young Sloan is trumpeter in the high school band and sings in the Shiloh Methodist church choir.

His adviser is Gideon Deming Seymour, who will become associate farm agent of Richland county next year.

This is the fourth State Farmer degree to be conferred on a Shiloh boy. Of 11,500 boys in Ohio enrolled in FFA, only two per cent, or 230 boys, are eligible for the degree.

When he graduates, young Sloan plans to farm full time.

◆ By Phineas Whittleseed

"We have no excuse, they just didn't have it today," said Sylvester Veitch. And there you have it: why the entry of the Whitneys didn't fare better in the Run for the Roses.

Career Boy wound up in sixth place, and his grey stablemate, ridden by Eddie Arcaro, seeking his sixth Derby victory, finished eighth.

And to the newspaper writers and photographers and other hangers-on standing in the shadow of the stable shelter, there is a note of sadness.

Because if there is quality in this racing business, Whitney has it. Uncomplainingly, year after year, he has come back to the races, lending it the prestige of his name, the support of his money, and the backing of his vigorous work in its behalf.

The Whitney name commands respect around the race course, and well it should. His father before him, Harry Payne Whitney, was a distinguished owner whose animals won many stakes races. But it is not always that a son inherits the interest, the skill and the desire of the father. It is the curse of many of us small businessmen that Junior simply doesn't care for hardware, or selling Fords, or newspapering, or whatever.

But C. V. caught the urge and has developed it. Nine starters he had had in the Derby before this one, and one of them even finished last. For over 25 years he has been coming back to the Downs to win this one. Consider the heartbreak when the great Chocolate Soldier, Equipoise, turned up ailing in '31 and was unable to start. That was when Twenty Grand copped the cup and the money. And Twenty Grand didn't deserve stable room in the same barn with Ekky, as the latter subsequently proved.

But they don't pay off at Louisville on might-have-beens, and nobody knows it so much as the Whitneys. But there was a strong sense of respect among these seasoned newspaper people, as they stood about and watched the two three-year-olds pace around and around the stable area, cooling out.

Because they hoped, secretly inside, that Mr. Whitney will soon win a Derby. He is the kind of racing man who deserves a Derby. The feeling is much akin to what the whole world felt for Sir Thomas Lipton: a great sportsman, a believer in quality, a fine loser, and a gentle winner.

Career Boy and Head Man will go again in the Preakness. It may be a different story. Needles is every bit a grand colt, with heart and stamina and stamina and speed to burn — the very things the "improvers of the breed" tell you they breed for — and with a shrewd trainer and competent jockey. And so is Fabius, the Calumet colt, whose daddy was Citation.

But it may be Career Boy or Head Man or both on another day. The newspaper fellows felt that, though few of them said it. You don't need to say it to a fellow like Whitney.

It's that way with those who race for sport.

Part of the thrill of seeing America's greatest sports spectacle is watching the crowd. Certainly it is a free-spending bunch. Mint juleps were $1.25 apiece and keep the glass. Darned poor juleps, too. It set you back $6.15 to enter the standing room enclosure. No wonder they can pay the winner some $123,000.

Hotel rooms in a carnival Louisville started at $45, and by reservation only.

Private homes paid the month's rent by letting strangers sleep in the master bedroom for $15 apiece.

Meals were up in price, service was darned poor, and the food just like what we've found most Southern style cooking to be: second rate meat immersed in crankcase oil, and fried to a crisp.

And the patient folks standing in queues to buy mutuel tickets. Types? Migosh, there were types by the millions. A clergyman who bet at the $50 window on almost every race. Didn't see him cash many winners, either.

A dame who was poured into a blue and beige silk creation about two seconds after they said "When", wearing the dangedest hat! A tarboosh of blue, from which was suspended a myriad of gaudy yellow strips of some plastic material, fashioned in a long Dutch cut.

There were furs that would pop your eyeballs. Mostly on gals who got 'em the same way the minks did.

But that's a Derby crowd. It's a big crowd, somewhat sedate, not at all like the monster of a crowd you'll find at the Speedway in Indianapolis. But it's a freer-spending crowd, a harder drinking one, and one which indulges in the Sport of Kings.

Best part of it all is that a thoroughbred warms the blood of the poor and rich alike. And when they played "My Old Kentucky Home" and these 17 thoroughbreds danced out on the track, the little cockles rose on the neck.

And at the top of the stretch, when Dave Erb notified his mount the time had come, and Needles sprang forward like a scalded dog, the boys in the pressbox — many of whom had bet on him — spoke with one voice: "Here comes Needles!"

It was hot as sin. The sunburn we got will last us a long time. But there is nothing quite like that delicious feeling you get when the world's finest come thundering down that stretch for the $123,000 check, the cup, and the praise of the Derby crowd. It's a great show. Everybody ought to see it at least once.

Story of a Boy with Courage

Presence of a Plymouth boy in Crile Veterans' hospital at Cleveland is a quadriplegic patient is the main reason for the existence of Lake Erie chapter, Paralyzed Veterans of America, says Paraplegia News for May.

Logan Owen, editor, reports that the chapter rose to a membership of over 65 in a year's time, largely due to the efforts and push of Glenn Eugene Burrer, son of the Francis J. Burrers.

"In October, 1951, "Owen writes, "he donned the blue uniform of the U. S. Air Force and received basic training at Sampson Air Force base, New York. After required training he was assigned as gunner on a B-29 bomber.

On July 19, 1952, just after his 21st birthday, Glenn was seriously injured at cervicals five and six; the result of a diving accident. Once, when asked how he was hurt, he replied, 'I was chasing a flying saucer and tripped over a match.'

"The fact that one newspaper erroneously reported that he was dead gives some indication of the seriousness of his condition—he was paralyzed from the shoulders down.

"After a laminectomy and the usual post operative treatment at the U. S. Naval hospial in Portsmouth, Virginia, he was transferred to Crile V. A. hospital in Cleveland. For a while, Burrer, could hardly force a smile. He didn't want to do anything for himself, nor did he care for anyone else's help. He has voiced his gratitude for the patient and understanding help given him during this stage by Dr. Bruce Sutton, chief of the paraplegic section at Crile. His outlook soon changed and he became a most desirable patient.

"A trace of his former attitude still remains, however, for he is about as independent as a quad can be although he realizes there are some things he cannot do for himself.

"Gradually, some muscle power returned to his arms and sholders. He still has no power in his triceps, but with what muscles he has, Glen can lift his long legs onto a high hospital bed and then with a pushing motion, boost himself into the bed. He reverses the operation with equal facility; though an onlooker nervously feels he should assist.

"A hospital attendant, speaking of Glenn's independence, said, "Burrer will try anything." With a kind of humor characteristic of him, Glenn often says, "Never underestimate the abiliy of a quad." Pushing himself steadily in his wheelchair and presenting a neat appearance, Burrer doesn't seem to be a severely handicapped person. People usually think he is taller than his actual six feet.

Glenn feels that no quad or para shoud obtain a driver's license unless he can get himself into a car unassisted.

Accordingly, once he decided he wanted to get a driver's license, the problem of getting into and out of the car was quickly conquored. In the spring of 1955, he received a grade of 99% on his test and is probably the first quad in Ohio to be so licensed.

His instructor remarked that an observation from the car behind could not easily determine that Glenn's car was driven by a disabled person. He could be seen driving away from the hospital nearly every night during the summer and often in the winter for a few hours of leisure outside the hospital. Some weekends he would gain respite from hospital routine by motoring to his parent's home in Plymouth, 83 miles distant.

" In the summer of 1954, he flew to California to visit relatives. He stopped at the VA hospital in Long Beach and met Jim Dwyer, a hard-working man for the California PVA. From Jim he learned of the organization and was sold on its aims to ease the problems of paraplegia and eventually to solve them. After his return to Crile, the Lake Erie chapter of the PVA was formed, in September, 1954.

"This was the result of Glenn's persevering efforts. He was elected president and a year later was re-elected to the same post. Glenn speaks with force and finality at all the meetings.

"Everyone — patients, hospital personnel and outsiders—knows that Glenn has supplied most of both "management and labor" for the Lake Erie Chapter. He faithfully carried on the work when little or no enthusiasm was shown by other patients who were more physically capable of doing the work. When his buddies took off for a movie in the recreation hall, Glenn could often be found in PVA's office typing letters.

"Dr. Harry T. Zankel, chief, physical medicine and rehabilitation Service at Crile, when asked about Glenn Burrer, said, "Glenn has been an ideal patient. He has cooperated with us from the very beginning. For his own sake, I am certainly happy that he has reached a state in his rehabilitation where he can be discharged, but I shall miss him."

"On Mar. 2, Glenn was discharged from Crile hospital. A week later he headed for Southern California via automobile doing some of the driving himself. There, he plans to setlte and hopes to take up an occupation; one for which he is best suited. He has an optimistic outlook for the future. To put it in his own words, "My main interests now are women and travel."

"His independence, determination, intelligence and unwillingness to accept the status quo, make him what he is. It is quite appropriate to say of Glenn Burrer, You can't keep a good man down.

New Gas Contract Goes Into Effect

Consumers of natural gas supplied by the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. will pay 25 cents a cubic foot up to 600 cubic feet and a scaled rate downward thereafter, village council ruled May 9 in accepting a new three-year contract with the supplier.

Told by the village solicitor, Robert Ross, Mansfield, the contract is a fair one, the council voted to accept it. Neil McCaron, manager of the Shelby-Willard district, told the council it was prepread by rate experts at Columbus.

A rate of 6 3/4 cents applies to the next 4,400 cubic feet, then seven cents for the next 45,000 and 6½ cents for the excess over 50,000.

Minimum charge is $1.50, an increase of 50 cents, and the minimum is set at 600 cubic feet, an increase of 100.

What does it mean to the average home owner who heats with gas? Old rate: $18.10 for 30,000 cubic feet; new rate: $21.97.

The new rate goes into effect in 30 days from the date of signature of the contract.

Moser Heads Zoning Board

Other members are Councilman Kirby Nesbitt, representing the legislative body of the village; and three citizen members, Dr. Charles O. Butner, appointed for six years; Alvin Garrett, four years, and Joseph R. Page, two years.

Draft legislation will be presented to the council for its approval.
